THE SAILOR CRAB.

Makes Long Voyages at Sea on the Backs of Turtles.

Among the many curious crabs there is perhaps none more interesting than the sailor crab, a name applied to it because it goes to sea on long voyages, which it makes on the backs of big green turtles and giant loggerheads.

The sailor crab is a little fellow with a body three-quarters of an inch or an inch in length. With its claws extended it might measure an inch and a half. It is a very pretty crab indeed, with color markings that are various. It may be found with a shell all yellow or with a shell of dark colors with lighter shadings like those of finished tortoise shell or a shell whose coloring resembles that of veined marble. It seems all the prettier seen amid its rough surroundings on the big loggerhead's dingy brown shell.

The big loggerhead, with a top shell six or seven feet in length, may afford a floating home for various other living things. Barnacles attach to it and there live their lives, traveling with it wherever it goes, as do barnacles that attach to vessels. Marine vegetation that lodges on its back may there stick and thrive just as it would attached to rocks, gathering in clumps or streaming back from it when the big turtle is in motion just as it might from rocks washed by a flowing tide, and in this vegetation may be found various minute forms of animal life. Some day when the big turtle, with all this life on its back, swims into shallower waters to feed or works its way through some floating mass of seaweed one or two sailor crabs may come aboard, shipping thus for a long voyage.

To the sailor crab thus embarked the big turtle may not seem like a sea-washed moving continent, but it might easily seem like a sizable island with many places to roam. When the turtle is asleep, lying still upon the waters, the little sailor crab may wander out to the end of one of its long extended flippers as it might to the end of some peninsula, and then it may come back to find the way among the meadows or the forests of vegetation on the turtle's back, and if it is hungry, why, while the barnacles in their fixed places are reaching out with their delicate fingers and sweeping the adjacent waters as with a net to draw in their sustenance the sailor crab can move about in the vegetation and find food.

Flowers In a Mexican Jungle.

For four or five miles our road passed through a marsh, and for a mile our horses splashed stirrup deep in water. Then we reached the first rise of the foothills, and a tropical growth, dense and high, closed in upon us and shut out the last breath of air that in the open marsh below had fanned our cheeks and in some degree made tolerable the burning intensity of the noonday sun. Stately palms and gigantic ferns, with a luxuriant tropical undergrowth, made impenetrable the jungle that lined the road. Marvelous flowering vines that intwined themselves in the forest trees, blooming shrubs and here and there beautiful orchids and masses of wild honeysuckle gave a setting of gorgeous color and charged the atmosphere with delicious perfume.

Notes About Birds.

A peculiar characteristic about birds is that the young of those that build nests in trees are blind when hatched, are naked, unable to walk and are fed by the parent bird. Among the wading birds the young can walk, swim and pick up food immediately upon leaving the egg. With birds, as with higher animals, the females seem to fancy bright colors and music; hence Mother Nature usually ornaments the head, neck and tails of the males that they may find mates more readily. The male birds usually excel in music also.—London Gentlewoman.

How Masks Are Made.

Paper masks are made by doubling one sheet of a specially prepared paper, wetting it and molding it by hand over a face form. It is then dried by artificial heat. Openings are cut for eyes, nose and mouth, and it is painted and decorated by hand as desired. Wire masks are made by stamping a piece of wire netting about a foot square over a face mold in a large machine, inclosing the rough wire edges in a narrow strip of lead. Then it is painted. The painting is done by hand in oil colors.

Flogging the Bridegroom.

The singular custom of the bridegroom being flogged by the relations of the bride on the marriage day still obtains among at least three peoples of the world—in the extreme northeast of Siberia in Borneo and among some of the Arab tribes of the Nubian desert. In all three cases the idea seems to be that the bridegroom in order to prove himself "a man" must be able to undergo a considerable amount of physical suffering without flinching.

Economical.

"The servant that works for me must be very economical," said the boarding house mistress to the applicant for work.

"Oi'm such a one, mum," promptly returned the applicant. "Indeed, me last mistress discharged me for bein' that way!"

"For being economical?"

"Yis, wid me clothes. Oi used to wear hers."

Peculiar Musical Instrument.

A peculiar musical instrument is used by the Moros. It consists of a hoop of bamboo, upon which are hung by strings a number of thin pieces of mother-of-pearl. When struck with a small reed these give forth a sweet, tinkling sound, a combination of which sounds is developed into a weird, monotonous fantasy, very pleasant to the ear—for a short time.

A White Empire?

Cynical Interpretation.

She (sentimentally)—It means a great deal to a girl of Emma's nature to marry a man like Dick.

He (brutally)—Naturally. He is a man of means.—Baltimore American.

Stung!

"Don't you just love to see the birds soar?" asked the romantic girl.

"Yes," replied the man with the swollen cheek, "but I hate to see the bees sore."—Kansas City Times.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Laying of Corner Stone

To the Editor of the Review.

All Saints' Church,
Peterborough, Ont.,
June, 1909

Sir,—May I use the columns of your paper to extend to the members and adherents of the various Christian congregations of the city a most cordial invitation to the laying of the corner stone of All Saints' church on Rubidge street. Only a very limited number of invitations by letter, (chiefly clerical) has been issued, and I wish to take this means to invite the Christian people of the city more generally. The building of this church means a decided strengthening of the spiritual and moral forces of the city; it will also be an addition to the community in so far as it will add materially to the attractiveness of the city. I trust, therefore, that this invitation will receive a cordial acceptance on the part of the public, and the ceremony receive a most sympathetic support.

The corner stone will be laid with Masonic rites by His Honor Judge Harding, on Friday evening, at 7.15 p.m.

Yours truly,
H. R. TRUMPOUR,
Rector of All Saints' Parish

Cavan's Demand

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I admire the nerve of Cavan township in asking the City Council to pay them the modest sum of $1,000 for opening up a small part of one of their concession lines. The request is cool and refreshing after the hot spell. Exploiters, no doubt, think our Council is easy because of their lavish and at times, useless expenditures. The reasons given by the Cavan deputation would apply to all the rest of their fourteen concession lines, and those of every other township in these parts. They know, or ought to know, that no Council has power to make such to those within the same county. If Mr. Roger, as they allege, or any one else, has made such a foolish promise, let them put their hands down into their own pockets and keep their promise. The Cavan case is not a parallel one with Rose's bridge, which can be easily shown. At any rate two wrongs do not make a right. It was unfortunate that Mayor Rush pleaded poverty for not making the grant, and thereby admit our obligations and thus instil false hopes, instead of telling them truly that the city could not accede to their wishes if they would and would not if they could. A road that has been a winter road for the last half century or more, ought now, after the swamp is drained, easily be made a summer road by the expenditure of a couple of hundred dollars, to say nothing of the statute labor. Its use would be to serve two or three who own houses in the hamlet of Mount Pleasant, and instead of saving four miles as stated by the deputation, it would only save three miles over one of the present highways, and a mile and a half over another. It would have been as reasonable had they asked the Council to send out an automobile every time these two or three parties wanted to come to town, which is but seldom, except it is Mr. James McLean. It is not true that it would serve Emily, which lies to the north of Cavan and not in a direct line with the road, and which is already served by its own roads built without our assistance. I challenge the deputation to point out one additional man who would avail himself of the benefit of our market if the road was built. One would suppose that the rich and beautiful township of Cavan would not come as suppliants to another municipality in an outside county for money to build their roads. I trust that this is the last we shall hear of such an absurd proposition.

Yours, etc.,
CITIZEN

British v. American.

British tourists in Canada have hitherto formed a considerably smaller proportion than American, but the balance should be to some extent redressed this year. The British Association, which meets at Winnipeg in August, will naturally account for many, but quite apart from that there is a growing tendency among travelers to go to Canada instead of the United States. The expenses are less, and the scenery is infinitely finer. The Canadian Pacific staff at Charing Cross, London, is positively inundated at present with requests for information as to tours in Canada. Nowadays the transatlantic passage is so easy that one wonders why so many still keep to the played-out and over-crowded holiday resorts of Europe.—Standard of Empire.

Wanted Real Help.

An enterprising newspaper reporter who once happened to be holidaying at the same seaside resort as Lord Northcote, who has been spoken of as the next Governor-General of Canada, took the occasion by the hand by asking for some advice on a policy his paper proposed to adopt.

"Advice I am always chary of," said his lordship. "It is so cheap, so easy. I remember some years ago watching a boy pushing a heavy cart up a hill. The hill was steep; the boy thin. He bent forward at the work till he was almost horizontal. 'Push it up zig-zag,' I cried, 'and you will find it will go much easier.'

"The boy snarled back: 'Not so much of yer bloom'n advice. Come and give's a shove'."

SPLENDID ADDRESSES AT CHEMONG SUMMER SCHOOL

Special to the Review.

Chemong Park, July 9.—Wednesday morning's session of the summer school was opened as the former ones, by singing and prayer, after which the study of Paul's journeys and letters was continued. Prof. McLaughlin conducting the instructive study as formerly, the special subject under discussion being Paul's Epistle to the Galatians. Paul's purpose in writing to the Galatians was to maintain salvation, their faith in Jesus Christ alone, to declare the principles of Christian freedom and to urge the disciples to fidelity and love and perseverance in well-doing. Prof. McLaughlin also gave an outline of the contents of Galatians.

Mr. F. J. Joblin, Norway House, who was to have given a missionary address was not able to be present, owing to the illness of his mother. Rev. J. L. Stewart kindly consented to tell of some of his experiences as a missionary in China, which he did in a very interesting manner.

Several announcements were made by Rev. Mr. Foster, Castleton, business manager.

Following Rev. Mr. Stewart's address was one given by Rev. R. A. Whattam, Woodville, telling of his work in the west, while there as a missionary. He called attention to the fact that we are doing some missionary work in China. It will not be many years until, instead of China sending to us for missionaries, we will be sending to China for some to come as missionaries to Chinese in Canada. The address was highly appreciated, and at its close the missionary classes met for an hour of earnest study of the text books.

Many of the delegates took advantage of the delightful weather and the excursions to Chemong, enjoying the pleasant trip.

Preceding the evening session was a hill-top prayer meeting, led by Mr. Latimer, formerly of Albert College. Mr. Latimer spoke impressively from the text, "Not by might not by power, but by My spirit, saith the Lord."

Wednesday evening's session was opened by song service, followed by prayer. Rev. W. R. Rogers, B.A., occupying the chair.

R. J. McLaughlin, of Lindsay, after expressing his pleasure at being present at the school, gave an address on "Bible study from a layman's point of view." Mr. McLaughlin pointed out that we must study the Bible in our own lives. It is valuable to us only so far as it helps us to work out the problem of our own lives. This was a most helpful address.

One of the most entertaining features of the evening was the rendering of a hymn in the deaf and dumb sign language. Mr. Stewart, of the Deaf and Dumb Institute, Belleville, gave a brief account of the wonderful work done in that institution, and at the close Miss May Dobson, Whitby College, sweetly sang "Nearer My God to Thee," while Mr. Stewart accompanied her in the deaf and dumb language.

Rev. W. G. Clarke, president of the school, gave an excellent address on "Christianity as an aggressive power." Christianity has not lost one iota of its power and spirit since the day of the disciples. The world is moving toward better things. The church has not done all her duty when she has opened her doors with a welcome to all—she must go out into the highways and hedges.

Mr. Clarke spoke feelingly of the great amount of good done by General Booth of the Salvation Army. God grant that we may be loyal to Christianity, to God, and to the church.

The session closed with prayer.

THE BATIK WORK CULT

Latest Popular Diversion For the Up to Date Summer Girl.

DESIGNS DONE ON BRASS.

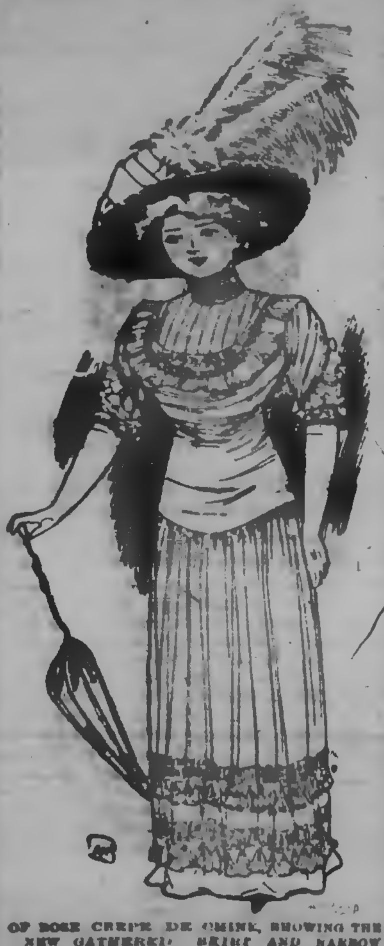
Smart New York Women Buy Their Stationery in Paris—Preparing the Scrawny Throat For the Modish Low Cut Gowns.

My Dear Elsa—I have just finished making the most stunning tobacco jar for Dick. Did I tell you I was taking lessons in batik work? Well, probably I didn't, but nevertheless for the last few weeks I've been working like a slave at this new cult. Batik has taken the place of china painting, pyrography and leather decorations of the past seasons, which have been relegated to the domain of serious pursuits, where their art possibilities are better demonstrated by really capable workers. Don't you remember how we almost burned our fingers to a cinder with those miserable pyrographic needles? And, after all, the burnt offering was sacrificed merely for a few weak, characterless, scrawly marks, politely referred to by our teacher as "the design." No; batik's the work for me, for you sail right in with all the ease of an arts and crafts woman's skill, and the output is a credit to the family. Besides, to quote the journals devoted to the interests of women, it's "the popular diversion for the up to date girl."



OF ROSE CREPE DE CHINE, SHOWING THE NEW GATHERED SKIRT AND NARROW FRILLED BERTHA.

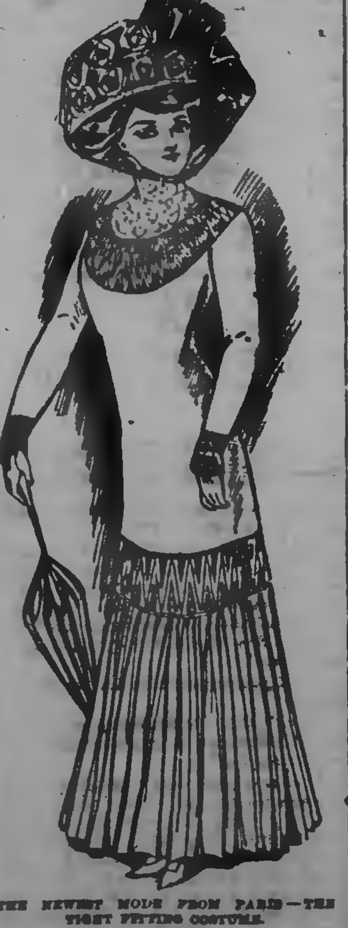
Now, I hope all this is convincing. But what is batik? My dear, patient friend, it is etching on brass and copper with a particular kind of pencil. To be scientific, the tool used is similar to a fountain pen, but is made of a brass tube open at one end to permit of its being filled with a wax stick, which is melted in the instrument. The point of the pencil has a spring, which releases the wax under pressure, like that put on an ordinary steel pen. The pencil is held a little more upright than the common pen. The operation in drawing deposits the melted wax on the stamped design on the article to be etched. All that is necessary is to follow with the pencil the lines indicated, taking care to have a free and steady flow of wax, which is easily obtained by occasionally heating the pencil. Brass is the favorite metal to use, and fascinating to a degree is the process of tracing the design and preparing it for immersion in the etching fluid. The attractive thing about this batik work is that no special knowledge of art is required. You simply have to be careful to follow the directions for using the pencil.

But there are all kinds of flights one can take, and Elizabeth X., as usual, has made us all feel like kindergarten children doing block work by bringing in to class today an exquisite piece of batik fabric work that she covered. A yard of white sheeting was the very prosaic inspiration. She etched the design, as usual, on wax, then dipped the fabric and the wax sheet, one over the other, into a deep blue solution, crumpling them both up with her hands, as one does when crinkling paper, and the result was a stunning pattern in delft blue and white that made up smartly into a summer couch cushion and incidentally made the members of the batik class green with envy.

The batik pencil suggests, in a very characteristically roundabout way, a way known only to the feminine mind, that we've got to change our handwriting just as we change our gowns—back to the mediaeval period—if we would be correct in our penmanship. So it's goodby to the bold, angular chirography, the half dozen words to the page type, that has been the get-rich-quick scheme of the stationers. For a moment of space we are to adopt, it seems, the old fashioned handwriting of the grande dames of the second empire, and if we want to be still more in vogue we will use the plain English stationery in solid blues or creams. To even things up, where the handwriting has been diminished, the monogram has taken on an added importance in point of size, and some of the smartest note paper is emblazoned with a monogram fully two inches in length. Oh, yes, it's absurdly funny, this long, slim-jim affair, but it's a change, and anything in the variety line, from Vesta Tilley to a monogram, hits the American fancy. We are a queer people, for, just think, the smartest women here in New York order all their stationery from two Parisian old maiden ladies who have a tiny shop in the Rue St. Honore. Before leaving the subject of stationery let me tell you about a new sealing wax that is a joy to the person using it. It comes in wafers already prepared and in staple colors and of exactly the right dimensions that are stuck in rows like postage stamps, or possibly a card of buttons would convey a clearer impression of its appearance. In the flap of the envelope there is a round hole, and when ready to seal the letter the button of wax is slipped through the hole, the letter sealed and the heating stamp applied. It makes a neat, easy and perfect job, minus the usual sputter of candle grease.

Like all the rest of the women who went in for high linen collars, I reckon you are bemoaning the scrawny and unsightly condition of your neck, brought about by the modish bands of embroidered linen that for so long have been the pride of our lives. Well, this is going to be a summer of decollete throats, not necessarily of the Dutch collar variety, but one of various cuts. And it's our bounden duty to see that our throats are Annie Laurie swan-like affairs. I am doing lots of stunts to get mine into form, and I'll tell you what they are. Deep breathing is, of course, the very best thing to develop the throat and neck, but this practice must be persevered in for quite awhile before results are to be observed. But here is my pet throat exercise. I sit in a chair, bend my head from one side to another and then roll the head to the right, left and forward. Another good position is to let the arms hang loosely at the sides, raise the shoulders as high as possible, then forward, down and backward until a circle is formed. Continue this for a time, then reverse the motion. If you do this for ten minutes every day you will be surprised before long to see a decided improvement, and in the end there will appear the alabaster, pillar-like throat which poets rave over and less favored mortals seldom see.

At night I wash the neck with warm water and a good soap, then rinse carefully and apply a cloth or flannel wrung out of hot water and folded several times. This I keep on until it begins to get cool, and then I apply another one. But do not prolong this treatment more than ten minutes. This will soften the skin and open the pores. Then it is time to rub in warm olive oil with a firm massage movement, giving especial attention to the hatrack hollows. Now, if you persist in this beauty work, by the time the weather man makes up his mind to give us some seasonable hot days your throat will be ready to do credit to your best gowns with their low cut necks.



THE NEWEST MODE FROM PARIS—THE TIGHT FITTING COSTUME.

And, speaking of chiffons, how do you like the sketches I am sending? The walking frock is the prop of my old age, for in it I feel that I've gone back to graduation days, when kilted skirts were smart and the last cry of fashion. There is not a shadow of doubt now in the minds of the modistes that the fall will bring into general vogue the most bouffant styles that are only being worn by the women who get their clothes on the other side or who, like your scribe, are the little sisters of the rich. Ever most sincerely yours,
MABEL.

Mrs. R. C. Small, of Ottawa, certainly ought to know a lot about Rheumatism. Goodness knows, she suffered long enough. For years, she was almost a cripple and at times, the pain was so severe that she was compelled to lie helpless in bed.

"About a year ago," writes Mrs. Small, "I saw Fruit-a-tives advertised and decided to try them for my Rheumatism. After I had taken two boxes, I was much better. I took six boxes in all — have had no pain for over six months—and feel that I am completely cured. I have gained over ten pounds in weight and am strong and well."

And yet there are some people suffering with Rheumatism, who have not given "Fruit-a-tives" a fair trial. Perhaps they don't want to get well.

SOMETHING ABOUT WHALEBONE

Largest Strips Are From Ten to Fifteen Feet In Length.

Whalebone is not real bone; in fact it would be much more correct to call it whales' teeth as it occupies the same position as teeth, and, in a measure, serves the same purpose. In order to get some idea of what this whalebone is like as it hangs in the whale's mouth, we must try to picture what the whale itself is like. The largest of them grow to something like 60 feet in length. The head is unusually large, and forms about one-third of the whole body, and the inside of the mouth is about as large as a ship's cabin or a very small room.

The strips of whalebone, which reach from the upper jaw to the lower one, must, therefore, be very large. The largest strips, which hang in the middle of the jaws, are rather like large planks, being from 10 to 15 feet long, and about 12 inches across at the widest part. They are thinner than planks, however, and perhaps we might better compare them to long and broad saw blades. There are altogether about 300 of these whalebone planks or blades in the whale's mouth. They are set transversely—that is to say, one narrow edge of each piece touches the tongue, while the other edge lies against the cheek or lip. They lie so close together that from the middle of the edge of one blade to the middle of the edge of the next the distance is less than an inch and yet there is a space between them.

Whalebone is very fibrous or stringy, and it splits very readily. The lower ends of the pieces in the whale's mouth are split and frayed into stiff bristles, and the inner edges are made smooth, so that they do not hurt the inside of the animal's lips. The roof of the whale's mouth is covered with smaller pieces of whalebone hanging down like bristled quills. Many of these are only a few inches long, but they make the whole of the upper part of the whale's mouth rough and bristly.

A Big Canadian.

One of the most interesting and independent thinkers that Canada has given to the world, says The Boston Herald, is John Beattie Crozier, author of a "History of Intellectual Development," and an autobiography which will be valuable to all who wish to study the effect of the dominant scientific conceptions of the latter half of the nineteenth century on sincere men. He has resided in London for some years, and has just received a pension of $250 a year from the Authors' Society. So has Richard Whiteing. A man of letters in Great Britain, thanks to this society and to Government pensions, is often saved from want in old age.

Old Glory in House.

Actually within the Canadian Parliament building itself, a large American flag was displayed on the day of the closing of the House.

The individual in charge of the decorations of the hall where the Australian press delegates were entertained to lunch by the Hon. Frank Oliver, draped the Stars and Stripes over the entrance in the most prominent place. Some of the members of Parliament, in their peregrinations, sighted the invader and the flag was removed forthwith, but the incident caused a good deal of talk.

POTATOES WILL HAVE TO BE PROTECTED BY BARBED WIRE

A New and Dreadful Potato Scourge---What Shall We do With it?--Attacks Human Beings

A new potato destroyer in the shape of a black beetle, about three-quarters of an inch long, furnished with wings, and with two long antennae upon either side of its head, is reported to be doing great damage to the potato crops of the city. The new species of potato beetle is quite unlike the old, and much resembles a big black ant. It is uncommonly quick in its movements and rapid in its work of destruction, clearing off an entire hill of potatoes upon which it may have settled in one night. Myriads of its species may be seen among the thick leaves at the head of the plant, and though it has been seen by many people who own gardens, it is only the more observant who have attributed the destruction done to their crop to the havoc-wrecking propensities of the little black beetle. The speed with which it flies from one place to another, and the rapidity with which it does its work will make it a formidable foe to the gardener, should it be allowed to increase and continue.

BARRIE EXCURSIONIST WAS OVERCOME ON GEORGE ST.

Mr. Fred Liddell, of the Barrie Carriage Works, and one of the excursionists from the northern town, was overcome while returning from the trip of the Water Lily up the canal, and it was feared for a while that his condition was serious. Mr Liddell is subject to heart failure and the excitement of the outing was too much for him.

He was accompanied by Mr. White, a G.T.R. brakeman of Allandale, and Mr White finally managed to revive him. Quite a crowd gathered around, and many thought that medical assistance should have been summoned.

INSTRUCTIVE PAPER ON SUMMER CARE OF POULTRY

Read by Mr. J. H. Callander at Meeting of Peterborough Poultry Association—Some Good Advice for Those Who Keep Fowl.

At the meeting of the Peterborough Poultry Association last night, Mr. J. H. Callander read an instructive paper on "Summer Care of Poultry." There was a fair attendance of the members and the meeting was a very profitable one. The president, Mr. G. Payman, was in the chair. Mr. Callander's paper was as follows:

"Eternal Watchfulness is the Price of Success," fully as much in relation to the raising of poultry as anything else. You can't expect, because you make a fine beginning and get a lot of early chickens hatched out, that, therefore you will have a grand flock of well matured birds in the fall. It does not follow by any means, as many a would-be poultry man can testify. Warm weather is apparently the ideal time for the chicks to grow, and it is then that the breeder sometimes becomes careless, with disastrous results. How often you can go into a yard, where the owner enthusiastically tells you, "these chicks were all out in March and April," perhaps, and who is evidently relying on that fact to ensure him a well-developed flock in the fall, but an observant eye can easily see that there has been a retarded growth, that is one of the hardest things to recover from in all the category of chicken troubles. In the next yard visited the chicks have a much more thrifty appearance, and are perhaps several weeks younger. Where does the difference come in, and why does one man have better success than the other? The first one made a good start and when warm weather came thought his work was done. The same idea applies to the care of the old fowl that are being carried over for another season. They have perhaps had clean, comfortable quarters in the winter and with careful feeding have been kept laying right up to the warm weather. That is good as far as it goes, and is the very time eggs are most useful in offsetting the expense account, but if the care stops then, and the quarters are allowed to become foul, over-run with lice and no comfort for the birds when they go to roost and need it, then the egg yield stops, the expense bill goes on and the profits of the winter [illegible] are eaten up by the loss thus sustained. The flock of poultry, to bring the balance on the right side of the ledger at the end of the year, should be making the very best possible use of the expense item, principally the feed bill. The rations should be either putting a rapid growth on the young stock, or made use of to some good purpose by the mature birds. To get this good result from the feeding, other conditions, pertaining especially to the comfort of the fowl, must be correspondingly good, and that means work and ceaseless care. This word work, is the rock that wrecks more poultry enterprises than all the diseases, vermin or other drawbacks combined, because it is always found that neglect brings the other ills. To mention a few of the things that ought to keep the poultryman busy during the summer season might serve as a reminder, or come as a timely suggestion to some earnest beginner, but the writer does not pose as one who knows it all, and can lay down a set of rules, the following of which will bring success, so merely offers a few leaves from his own experience.

Gatley two instructive paper

First, get acquainted with your fowls. Study their habits, and make their surroundings suit them as far as possible. Go out amongst them on a hot day in July and see if you can find a comfortable spot in the yard yourself. If you do it is almost a sure thing that right there you will find most of the flock, if they are not too hungry to care for comfort. This will probably convince you that shade is appreciated on a hot day and the thoughtful breeder will provide it some how. Then take a look for the consequences where this is not done. Are the chickens' backs and wing-joints becoming bare, down all gone, and red skin exposed to the burning sun? They have been too hot, and been sunburned and if you follow the development of a chick that has this disadvantage to contend with, you will find it takes a long time to get over this condition. Other chicks, perhaps younger than them, will outstrip the handicapped ones under better conditions, and not only lead them all season, but attain a much better final maturity in every way.

Sometimes only one chick in a flock will be afflicted in this way, and generally it is one that has been cowed by the rest. He does not get enough to eat, and when the others are full and seek a shady spot to scratch in, he has to forage out in the sun for any thing he can find. Such weaklings are better to be taken away from others of their own age and put with a younger lot. Next fill up the water pans, and see how eager the youngsters are for a drink. They fairly climb over each other to get one dip of their beaks into the cool liquid. Then never stint the supply and set it where it will keep cool as long as possible.

In some far corner two or three chicks may have discovered a nice mellow spot of earth with just the delightful amount of moisture in it, that they appreciate. Watch them take a refreshing bath. In a few minutes their feathers are full of the cool earth, and it is giving the skin just what it needs, while the bird's pleasure is abundantly evident.

The birds have shown you another of their wants, and the frequent use of a spade, hoe, or hand-plough will provide the necessary material.

Feeding is always important, but so much is said about it that often it is thought of as the only really important thing in the chick's life. It is of course, absolutely necessary but not the only thing to watch by any means. The birds want their grain ration, bugs or meat to take their place, green food of some kind, grit for teeth, and lots of water.

Green food is best provided by a grass run, but failing that, try giving them a basket full of the clippings from your neighbor's lawn, and see how much of it they will stow away while it is fresh.

So far we have only talked of the care of the fowl in the day-time, and that is the most important end of the work.

However, comfortable quarters go a long way towards bringing a successful season, and they should be given great care. Have them clean, free from foul smells, dry and above all roomy, as overcrowding the chicks as they grow in size, is fatal.

GYPSIES STRIKE OTTAWA AND CAUSE EXCITEMENT

Are Blamed for Ransacking a House—Deny They are Connected With the Band Arrested at Peterborough.

Ottawa, July 7.—Early yesterday morning a small band of gypsies reached Ottawa, pitching their camp in a field off Wellington street, opposite the C.P.R. round house, near Martin and Warnock's old flour mill. Later on in the morning two men entered the home of Mr. J. Herbert, over 232 Wellington street, and again in the afternoon and according to what is known of the incident, the intruders, it is believed, form a part of the gypsy outfit.

Mr. Herbert is employed by the city, while Mrs. Herbert goes out working by the day. Yesterday morning she went to work as usual, leaving her four children, Agnes, aged 10; Leon, aged 9 and Doris, aged 18 months, to look after the house. The children, about 10.30, were at play in a shed adjoining the house, when Leon heard sounds inside. With commendable courage, she investigated, and looking upstairs through the front door, saw two big men, both of whom were busy searching the house. The children then ran away in fear, and later saw the men leave. They came again and made another search about 11.30, and were just in the act of entering again shortly after 6, seeing the children around the door, they retreated.

CHILD DESCRIBES THEM.

"They were dressed nearly all in black," said Leon to a reporter this morning, "and I thought they were niggers. If we'd seen a policeman, I would have told him." Then she went on with a child's excited account of how the men acted saying that they threw bread crusts out of the window, and that when they left they were wiping their mouths, and there was butter on one man's face.

"I don't know how it got out that I had money in the house," said Mrs. Herbert, when interviewed; "but people seemed to know it. You see I received a considerable amount a few days ago, which I kept in the house, and I believe these men were after it. They searched everything, never missing the smallest nook."

BLAMES THE GYPSIES.

"Do you believe they were gypsies?" she was asked.

"Yes," was the answer. "Leon saw the gypsies passing the house in the morning, when the men were leaving after their first visit, she recognized as two of those belonging to the wanderers. She would know them again any time."

"Did you report the matter to the police?"

"No," Mrs. Herbert replied, "Principally because they got nothing for their trouble."

The reporter then called at the gypsy encampment, where three small tents, a camp fire, and innumerable sun-burned, dirty-faced children fell under the gaze of the visitor. The tents were empty, save one, where a dark-hued woman kneeled over a pan of water in the act of washing out some of the family wardrobe. She wore the typical gypsy turban, while phoney jewels and brass souvenirs ornamented her arms, neck and ears. She was an excellent example of a low class Mexican woman, to which race these gypsies claim a connection.

COST HIM A QUARTER.

The woman looked up with a curious expression at the reporter's "Good morning." She never answered, but waited for further parley.

"Are you a fortune-teller?" she was asked.

A smile crept over her features as she answered, "25 cents—me tells you all your trouble. Come, lets me tells to you!"

With a farewell glance at the piece of silver the newspaper man listened to her conception of his fortune, at the same time gleaning the information that the band had come from Montreal and would be here a week or more. A pretence is made at the manufacture of copper ware, but fortunetelling is the big moneymaker. In this connection it must be said that, although 25 cents is the stated price, the listener will be lucky to get through less than 50 or 75 cents. It is absolutely necessary that small pieces of silver be placed in the open palm at intervals, also a handkerchief and other articles, all of which the gypsy attempts to get hold of "for keeps."

Her eyes glared fire-like when asked if her band was part of the Peterborough crowd arrested recently. "We no make-a fight," she said. "We like-a best de peace."

LEMIEUX TALKS PEACE AT THE CHAMPLAIN CELEBRATION

Makes Eloquent Plea at Tercentenary at Burlington, Vt., for Amity Between Canada and the United States.

Burlington, Vt., July 9.—The Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Postmaster-General of Canada, in speaking here yesterday at the Champlain tercentenary celebration, made an eloquent plea for the perpetuation of progress and peace in North America as now exemplified by the cordial relations between his country and the United States. He said in part:

"Whilst we must show appreciation of the explorers and pioneers of this continent and of the warriors who fought and died here for their country, whilst to forget such true and brave men or even to yield them indifferent praise would be but shame, yet is not this the fittest occasion to proclaim our determination that now on and forever the American Commonwealth and the Dominion of Canada shall always promote and advance the cause of peace, harmony and civilization on this vast continent.

"There are heroes of peace as there are heroes of war. In our modern times death sacrifice is not demanded as in days gone by. With less glamor, perhaps, but with no less glory, can the statesmen by standing faithfully to their unthanked tasks of public service make their country a better land. Assembled here on the historic shores of Lake Champlain the representatives of three great nations can well afford to proclaim before the whole world that the arts of peace are above all the most civilizing."

The speaker compared the celebration of the Quebec tercentenary a year ago and the Champlain celebration as equally important in recording the historical development of the North American Continent. He outlined the part the Canadian explorers had taken in the early colonizations and settlement of the west, and in the development of the whole northern country.

There could be no better evidence of the friendly spirit existing between England and the United States than that for nearly a century the policing of the great lakes had been reduced to a minimum of armed cruisers, the speaker said. The same friendly spirit between his country and the United States was shown by the fact that there were already five treaties existing between the two countries, a sixth awaits ratification, and a seventh was almost completed, the Postmaster-General said.

"Canada" was the subject of an address delivered last night by Mr. Rodolphe Lemieux at the dinner given to President Taft in connection with the Champlain tercentenary celebration. The speaker paid his respects to President Taft by saying that the Canadians claimed a part ownership in him on account of the several hundred thousand of his countrymen who had gone over the border and became citizens of the United States.

One of the proudest memories in Canadian history was the fact that the little Canada of fifty years ago sent no less than 45,000 men to fight in the ranks of the north, to maintain the ascendancy of the Stars and Stripes, said the Postmaster-General.

The speaker said there could never be any real barriers arise between the United States and Canada, as their futures were already so closely linked together by all the ties of friendship and mutual trade.

CHALLENGES HIS ENEMY

Rome, July 9.—The Minister of Posts and Telegraphs yesterday sent a challenge to a Republican deputy as a result of the debate in the Chamber of Deputies Wednesday night on the proposal to give the Italian Lloyd Steamship Co. a twenty-five year subvention for the transportation of mail.

Signor Calliani, the deputy in question, yesterday explained that he did not allude to the personal honesty of the Minister, but to his political honesty, but this explanation did not satisfy Signor Schanzer. The bearers of his challenge were Admiral Mirabello, the Minister of Marine, and Gen. Spingardi, the Minister of War.

THE KING HELPS SUFFRAGETTES

London, July 9.—Following a direct appeal to the King by Mrs. Despard, and a deputation of suffragettes, the Home Secretary, Right Hon. H. J. Gladstone, accorded a courteous audience last evening to eight of the women. Mrs. Despard was leader of the deputation.

After reading their petitions, the Home Secretary made a sympathetic speech, expressing regret at the present involved situation and the belief that the matter would finally be settled and in a way satisfactory to women.

Mr. Gladstone explained that he could do nothing to commit the Government. He admitted that the petition was an argument for an audience, and promised to forward it to the King.

The suffragettes had appealed directly to the King, who informed them that the Home Secretary was the constitutional channel of communication, and His Majesty apparently followed this up with a hint that Mr. Gladstone would be advised to receive the women's deputation.

PROBABILITIES.

COBALT LOOTER SENT TO JAIL

Cobalt, July 9.—John Shepherd, colored, was given three months in the district jail with hard labor for looting during the fire. He was arrested at Haileybury with three trunks full of merchandize. He sold two pairs of shoes at North Cobalt and his defence is that he did it to get money to advertise the goods as found.

About 300 homeless are still being fed by the town.

The Nipissing Mining Co. have granted only one lease, to the Catholic Church and school. The company intend to allow only solid brick, cement or brick veneer buildings.

Supper Not Ready; Kills Wife.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 9.—The wails of a deserted infant greeting the ears of a milkman brought about the discovery yesterday of a murder and suicide at No. 2,408 Whirlpool street. ## MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING OF A MAN NAMED PELLETIER SOMEWHERE NEAR HAVELOCK

Ottawa Newspaper Contains Story of Robbery of "Dr." Pelletier, Who, it is Stated, Was Registered at Havelock Hotel—Dr. Pelkey Furnishes the Review With Some Information in the Matter—A Strange Case.

Yesterday's Ottawa Citizen contained the following story:

Daniel ("Dr.") Pelletier, or Peltchier, who for some time had an office in Ottawa, on Bank street, till a couple of months ago when he was fined in the police court for illegally practising medicine, was shot near Havelock, Ont., on Tuesday night, and is thought to be dying.

From inquiry made by the Citizen today it was ascertained that he had registered at the hotel in Havelock as Daniel Peltchier, M. D., and on Tuesday evening about 11 o'clock left to drive to a sick patient some distance out in the country. Yesterday morning he was found unconscious in his rig, ten miles from the village, and investigation showed he had been shot through a lung. He was taken to Havelock in an unconscious condition and later was sent to the hospital in Belleville, where practically no hopes are held for his recovery, as he did not regain consciousness.

When he left the hotel at Havelock he had about $600 in bills in his pocket, according to the bartender, but when he was found in the morning this had disappeared. All he had when found was a marriage certificate from the Bishop of Mexico, endorsed by an Ottawa clergyman, and an insurance paper in the names of Aberdinis and Dolly Peltchier. The name of his wife was given as Lizzie Fern, Ottawa, and his address as 569 Albert street.

While in Ottawa he attracted considerable attention by his "cure" for consumption and in the window of his Bank street store he displayed the machine with which he pumped gas into the lungs of his patients. He also sold several tonics. When he was fined in the Ottawa police court he took the matter good naturedly and pulled out a big roll of bills from which he took fifty dollars to pay his fine. He was about forty years of age, was unusually tall, and generally wore a blue suit with brass buttons. From Ottawa he went to Hull, but remained there only a couple of weeks, going thence to Toronto.

From inquiries made by the Evening Citizen today it would appear that the motive of the attack on Pelletier was robbery.

The Review to-day called up Havelock and got in communication with Dr. Pelkey, who, it was thought, might be the man referred to in the Citizen's story. Dr. Pelkey was in Peterborough last week introducing a consumption remedy, and was secured by the local authorities to act as interpreter at the trial of the gypsies, he having spent some time in Mexico, and was familiar with the language of the nomads.

Dr. Pelkey, who is staying at the Armstrong House, at Havelock, informed the Review that he knew "Dr." Pelletier, and that he was in no way connected with him. He had heard that Pelletier was held up and robbed about ten miles north of Belleville on Thursday of last week, and that he was taken to a private house in Belleville, where he is said to be at the present time. It is reported that he has not regained consciousness.

Dr. Pelkey stated that Pelletier had resided at 569 Albert street, Ottawa, coming to Ottawa from Montreal, where his home was, and where his people lived. Dr. Pelkey also stated that Pelletier had considerable money on him when he left a farm house where he was staying to visit a patient several miles away. The money was gone when he was found.

The Review also communicated with several people at Havelock, but they were able to provide but very little information about the affair.

TROOPS AT MINES QUIET NOW REIGNS

Company Claims to Have Mines Running a Third of Regular Output—Strikers Claim a Big Decrease in Working Crew.

Glace Bay, C.B., July 9.—The beginning of the fourth day in the struggle between the miners of the United Mine Workers and Dominion Coal Co., finds both sides confident of victory.

Quietness reigns throughout the colliery districts, after a somewhat strenuous day yesterday.

Early last evening the detachment of troops arrived from Halifax, after an all-day run by special train.

The force is made up of 250 men from the Royal Canadian Regiment, 200 from the Royal Canadian Artillery, 50 of the Royal Canadian Engineers, and details from the Army Medical Corps and the Army Service Corps.

The commanding officer is Lt.-Col. Wadmore of the Royal Canadian Regiment, with Major Macdonell as staff officer.

The moral effect of the presence of the red coats is probably counted upon for the good that is expected to result, for 500 men, even though armed, can't very well give absolute protection to a district that has within a radius of four miles nine huge collieries, each of which cover from 10 to 20 acres of land, with towns and valuable property between.

Among outstanding incidents of a violent character occurring in the strike district late Wednesday night and yesterday were the attempted blowing up of Sydney and Louisburg tracks at Caledonia, the burning of a shack, and the stoning of a train at No. 6, the mobbing of the sheriff at No. 4, and the assault of Manager Maxwell of No. 1 during a general fusilade of stones.

The coal company is quite hopeful of success, although the output of the mines has been lessened by 65 per cent. The United Mine Workers are just as optimistic as the operators, basing their hopes on the fact that only two or three of the pits are being worked to advantage, while the majority of the pits have been tied up.

The company's normal output is about 12,000 tons a day. Last Friday, according to figures emanating from the company, the output was 8,566 tons, on Saturday, 11,065 tons, on Tuesday 5,610 tons; on Wednesday 4,055 tons, and yesterday it was estimated at 400 tons, a quantity of this being from the bankhead.

At No. 2 only sufficient coal was raised yesterday to keep the fires going. No. 3 was closed, but the company expect that with the troops here it will be possible to operate it to-day. Caledonia is reported by the company to have yielded 500 tons, of the normal 1,400 tons to-day. At Reserve No. 5 and 10, 1,000 tons was yielded, 900 being from No. 5. The normal output from these pits is about 1,200. International No. 8, with a normal of 700, produced 400. The remaining pits were practically closed.

As is usual in mining towns in times of strikes, large numbers of men, mostly foreigner and the cheaper grade of labor, are even at this early stage of the struggle, feeling the pinch of want. The U.M.W. headquarters all day long was occupied by men in waiting there for the purpose of impressing their wants on the committee. Assistance will be given, but only the necessaries of life will be provided. The U.M.W. believes that the men, in fighting their own battles, should provide for their own wants. Where absolute poverty is felt, aid is given.

At present, the U.M.W. is proceeding with the assumption that the strike will be of short duration. In case of a lengthy struggle there is talk of starting an immense provision store, with a service extending to the different collieries. Some of the miners who are not bound by family and other ties to Glace Bay, are leaving for various places. There is no "tented city" for strikers, as the company are not evicting the tenants from their houses.

May Be Double Murder.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 9.—The police last night are considering the theory that the English couple found dead yesterday morning may have both been murdered. Murder and suicide was the first belief. It is thought the woman may have had a paramour, who did the shooting when English surprised them.

Woman Shot by Burglar.

New York, July 9.—Mrs. Sophie Staber, wife of George Staber, an importer on Euane street, this city, was shot and instantly killed in her home in Flatbush, Long Island, while aiding her son in a struggle with a burglar early yesterday. Two suspects are under arrest.

THIS WOMAN HAD SPLENDID PLUCK

London, Ont., July 9.—Rare presence of mind and magnificent pluck was all that prevented Mrs. Oscar Wanton and her two-year-old baby from being ground to death beneath the wheels of the merry-go-round at Springbank Park.

Mrs. Wanton was standing on the platform holding the baby on a horse when a section of the merry-go-round gave way and she and the baby were thrown between the wheels. She managed to grab the flooring with one hand and held on to the child with the other and was dragged around twice before the machine was stopped.

MOTOR BUS LINES GETTING POPULAR

St. Catharines, July 9.—The motor bus idea is taking hold here and this week a regular service will be inaugurated between this city and Queenston and Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Isaac Normandy, automobile builder, is the father of the idea, and has constructed a number of busses to carry 18 passengers. Heretofore the only communication between St. Catharines and Niagara-on-the-Lake has been by stage, making one trip each way every day. There have been many proposals for an electric car line, but none of these have taken definite shape and now Mr. Normandy will fill the want. It is 12 miles to Niagara and eight miles to Queenston. The busses will make the loop of the three towns.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

The Hamilton Board of Education granted several increases in salaries.

A severe earthquake was felt at Simla, India, and at points in Turkestan.

Two Kingston grocers have been summoned on a charge of selling adulterated coffee.

Japanese are strongly reinforcing the garrison at Mukden and are extending fortifications.

Frank Seed's cheese factory at Chantry, near Brockville, was burned with 150 boxes of cheese.

Charles T. Coombes, fireman on the steamer Saronic, was drowned at Fort William by falling into the river.

The Calgary Express was ditched near Edmonton, as the result of a spreading rail, and five men were more or less hurt.

Bernard Keller, an electrician, 27 years old, living at Fort Erie, Ont., was one of three men terribly burned in the blowing out of fuse at a substation of the Cataract Power and Conduit Co. at Buffalo.

Serdir Sokowiecz, a Galician settler from Hirsch, Sask., returning with a carload of effects, was killed while the car was being shunted at Winnipeg. Seeking fresh air he crawled to the car roof, was thrown off and his head crushed.

SUFFRAGETTES IN NEW YORK

New York, July 9.—A hurdy-gurdy and tambourine were used by two militant suffragettes yesterday, whose English tactics, adopted for the first time in New York, met with such a boisterous reception in City Hall Park, on the edge of the financial district, that a riot nearly resulted. A meek-looking man pulled the hurdy-gurdy while Mrs. Sophia Loebinger and Miss Helen Murphy, the suffragettes, wore badges and streamers lettered "Votes for Women" and carried copies of The Suffragettes, as they jangled their tambourines.

Within five minutes they were the centre of such a crush that they had to shriek for the police. Not a copy of the official publication was sold and there were no speeches. A squad of police made a lane for the two women to the nearest subway station, and home they hurried gratefully.

The same two made their appearance in Wall street on Wednesday.

HUDSON BAY CO. WON ITS CASE

London, July 9.—In the Court of Appeals yesterday, in the case of Stevens v. Hudson Bay Co., the court allowed the company's appeal from the decision of Mr. Justice Channel. The case raised the question of the liability of the company to bring into account for purposes of assessment for income tax the sum of £177,857 realized on the sale of land during the last of the three years which were taken to obtain an average of the profits to be assessed. Their lordships hold that the sum in question is not to be regarded as profits or gains denied by the company, and further, that Judge Channel was wrong in holding that the company carried on the business of dealing in and selling land.

Grimsby Park will be divided into lots and sold. [illegible]

ALDERMANIC CONTROL NO GOOD FOR THE POLICE AT MONTREAL

Montreal Magistrate on Stand in Graft Investigation Has Several Suggestions to Offer—Ald. Proulx Goes on the Stand and Denies all Charges.

Montreal, July 9.—Ald. Wilfrid Joseph Proulx, was the chief witness before the royal commission yesterday.

He was called upon to deny or affirm the testimony of numerous witnesses who have sworn that they paid him money for city positions, for leniency in the prosecution of the law through his influence as chairman of the police committee or for help in getting city contracts.

Proulx denied everything. He swore he did not know some of the witnesses who claimed to have done business with him. He admitted taking $25 from one man, but said it was for services as a notary. He said he helped to dismiss charges against a police captain because he was moved by the latter's tears, not for any pecuniary gain.

But Ald Proulx doesn't want the public to see his bank book. "It contains professionals secrets," declared he.

The police magistrate, Judge Choquette, was also heard.

"I came to the conclusion from the first year of my judicial experience, that it was absolutely necessary that the city police force, both as regards their nomination and administration, be under control of an authority other than one composed of aldermen."

"What reforms would you suggest?" asked Mr. Perron.

"My suggestion is," replied Judge Choquette, "that a commission or special body of some kind should be appointed, quite independent of the City Council, to administer the city police force, and that the members of the force should be responsible to that independent board."

Speaking then, as a license commissioner, Judge Choquette said: "Up to two years ago, the more direct surveillance of the saloons and hotels in the city was done by the provincial police, but for the past two years the work has been done more by the city force. We were confident that certain hotelkeepers openly violated the license law by selling liquor on Sundays, and they were not prosecuted, while other offenders of a like character were.

"This open violation of the law was especially remarked in the neighborhood of the Windsor and Bonaventure railway stations, and on St. Lawrence boulevard."

Ex-Chief Benoit of the fire department was also on the stand yesterday afternoon, and although he denied taking money for anything in connection with the department, he admitted having received presents from people for his influence in securing them contracts from outside fire departments.

COMPOSER'S WIFE JAILED

Signora Puccini Drives Servant Girl to Suicide—Tredegy in Real Life.

New York, July 9.—The American prints the following cable from Lucca, Italy:

The curtain fell yesterday on a real life tragedy in the career of Giacomo Puccini, the opera-composer, that was quite as pathetic as the stage story of Cho-Cho San, the little Japanese heroine of Puccini's masterpiece, "Madame Butterfly." It was a story, too, that was not greatly dissimilar to Cho-Cho San's.

The climax came when Signora Elvira Donturi Puccini, the composer's wife, was sentenced in court yesterday to serve five months in prison for having caused the suicide of Doria Manfredi, a beautiful little serving maid in her villa, whom Puccini befriended after her father's death.

She accused Doria of being Puccini's mistress. The girl, a peasant and scarcely more than a child, crept out of the villa and swallowed poison.

Puccini, when he heard of his protege's death, had a bitter quarrel with his wife, and separated from her at once. When the authorities inquired into the suicide, he told them what he knew. Signor Puccini will also have to pay to the surviving relatives of Doria Manfredi a sum of money, the exact amount to be determined later by the court.

"SCARE" REPORT IS DENIED NOW

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 9.—There is no foundation for the statement that members of the American Whist League, now in session at the Clifton Hotel were offended at Manager Major for his alleged action in reference to having the orchestra cease playing the "Star Spangled Banner," and it is not true that the "Maple Leaf" was substituted for the American air.

The American paper which first published the statement was asked by members of the league to deny the report, and that paper issued a partial denial last night.

The Strike at the Coal Mines

MANAGER DUGGAN.

ARSENIC FOUND IN SOME DRUGS

Ottawa, July 9.—The examination by the Inland Revenue Department of a number of drugs, as found on the Canadian market, for the purpose of ascertaining whether any of these contained distinct traces of arsenic, shows that while most samples were practically free from the poison, arsenic was found to be distinctly present in certain sulphates and particularly in phosphate of soda.

The amounts were not so large as to be alarming, but were sufficient to make is impossible to regard those drugs as meeting proper requirements; 448 samples of sulphate of magnesia, sulphate of soda and phosphate of soda examined showed 336 containing no arsenic, while 86 did.

The United States gunboat which sailed from Chicago for Cleveland last Saturday, has disappeared.

George Cowling, a farmer, passed through Earl Grey, Sask., en route to Toronto. He intends to cover the entire 2,100 miles by waggon.

LATE NEWS FROM MANY LOCALITIES

London, July 9.—By a vote of 224 to 24 the church council, which was attended by the leading bishops, clergy and laymen of the Church of England, yesterday declared that marriage to a deceased wife's sister, recently legalized in this country, was contrary to the moral rules of the church and to the principles of the Scriptures.

Furthermore, the use of the prayer book in the service solemnizing such marriages was reprobated in the strongest terms.

Kingston, July 9.—Mayor Cooper has received a letter from the Street Railway Co.'s solicitor in which it is stated that if no readjustment of the present situation is made, the car service will be discontinued. The company say they will not accept a bonus, or power at less than the cost of production.

Coal Strike in England.

Hanley, Eng., July 9.—Serious rioting occurred yesterday throughout the North Staffordshire coal fields. A dispute regarding the time allowed for meals under the new eight-hour act led thousands of the pit lads to cease work. They marched from colliery to colliery bringing out the adult miners. Much colliery property was destroyed, and there were many conflicts with the police.

A CASE IN POINT

It will be noticed in the Globe and the other Liberal journals that they deem it necessary to keep the old flag of Free Trade flying by pretending that they believe in it and that we have some of it in Canada. Apart from the inconsistency of such a position in view of at least the moderately protective character of the present tariff it would be interesting to ask the Globe, for example, what it would do in case municipalities desirous of fostering a home-grown journalistic industry, cut on a tariff against that journal. The result would be that if the home-grown article were practically "just as good" as the Globe or a reasonable news substitute for it, it would get the home-patronage and cut the Globe out just so far. If this were done extensively then the Globe's circulation would shrink considerably to the manifest advantage of the home-grown. Now then for the other side of it. What would the people lose? They would still get a reasonable substitute for the Globe at the usual price, but they would have in their midst a printing and publishing office giving employment to local citizens. It is just so with cloth. Canadian cloth wears just as well and as long as the same priced British or German cloth. The "cheap" cloths in all countries are poor. The medium-priced are almost equally good. Our our Halifax tweed will outwear anything on earth of equal price. At any rate, if the advantage of a change of base from one place to another is not made up to the people in some way it can't last and what is more it won't last. It is this failure to recognize these simple facts that keep the Globe et al crying in the wilderness. The tariff does not increase anything at any rate without providing full compensation. The tariff on woollens gave employment to a home-market and developed the raising of Canadian wool. Where was the loss? It was at the worst a simple re-adjustment of trade but as a matter of fact it transplanted just so much Yorkshire prosperity to Canada.

THE TEXTILES

Fair play among the other industries is all the textile interests ask in the tariff policy of Canada, and this they will obtain, though justice be long delayed. In presenting their case to their fellow-citizens those immediately concerned cannot make it too clear that the extent of protection is not the whole problem. It is the unequal way in which this protection is distributed, both in the woollen industry itself, and in comparison with other industries. The farmer, to begin with, has no protection at all on his wool, and consequently the Canadian sheep industry has been declining for years, while of the Canadian fabrics now manufactured a dwindling proportion is composed of Canadian-grown wool. Canadian yarns are protected only to the extent of 12 1-2 per cent., while worsted "tops" are on the free list, so that the worsted industry, for which Canadian wools are specially suited, is on this account in a worse position than if we had absolute free trade. The reason of this has been set forth in previous issues, but yet it is a common impression that the woollen industry has an all-round protection of 30 per cent. If a part were equal to the whole this would be so, but unfortunately it is the greater part which has the least protection under the tariff. If we regard this business as a native product, beginning with Canadian wool, it would be better to have no tariff at all than to have the name of a protection without the reality. The Canadian worsted and woollen industry is a cripple, not by the deformity of nature, but by the act of the Governments which have mutilated it. We say "Governments," because the existing tariff is the work of several administrations in the past, and from the circumstances of its evolution has been more or less haphazard. The whole edifice needs reconstruction, and when this is done, the Canadian worsted, woollen, knit goods, carpet and other branch will make a great industry, befitting a nation that aims to be self-dependent.—Canadian Textile Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES

There are only about sixty-three million acres under cultivation in Canada. This is a small portion of the total.

Sergt.-Major Rundle's new book is out. The Sergt.-Major was very popular in Peterborough, and no doubt his effort to provide entertainment and to make provision for his old age will be well received.

It does not seem to be generally known to our free trade journals that Germany ships to Britain much manufactured and unmanufactured cloth, which comes to Canada, as if from Great Britain under the British preferential tariff. Such is life.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier alone on duty is the news from Ottawa. How the man must muse upon the condition of his governmental affairs, as he thinks of six Cabinet Ministers abroad, escaping the cares of office at the country's expense, while he remains "on the job" at home. And Mr. Lumsden cutting up rusty over the G.T.P., too!

"When millions of Chinese decline to purchase goods from a foreign country their refusal means material injury to the boycotted producers. South China is just now penalizing Japan for her seizure of disputed territory, and for claiming two hundred thousand dollars damages for the capture of a vessel suspected of supplying Chinese rebels with arms and ammunition. The Chinese seem likely to win."—The Globe.

But what of the Globe's profession of condemnation for resorting to means of protection or retaliation? Is this move not chargeable up to national idiocy, too?

"The impression made by rural England was somewhat mixed. The neatness of the countryside, the beauty of many pastures, and trimness of the villages came in for much praise. Our main roads were constantly admired, and our railways also. "But where are the people?" I have been asked, "Why have you so much land down for pasture? Why did we see so few men at work in the fields?"—Overseas Mail.

If Great Britain were not sacrificing her agriculture to her manufactures this state of affairs would not long continue. But they may be assumed to know their own business best, and if they want Britain to be lopsided, it is the Britishers' own business and the triumph of free trade.

OF INTEREST

A GERMAN IN ENGLAND

This is my second day in England.

As much as a man can see of London in twenty-four hours, and of the rest of England in the time it takes to get here from Queenborough—that is to say, in two hours—I have seen. I have seen it as a German would—unbiased, anxious to learn, happy to be in a country admired by every one of our people as the country of Shakespeare, if for no other reason, seen it through German spectacles and compared it with home.

Here are the results of the first 24 hours:

The cigar hunt the Custom House officials instituted in the trunks of the passengers did not take long; we passed out of the building and I had my first glance at England.

ENGLISH MANNERS.

Let me say that it was a surprise in the wrong direction. For the first glance one gets of things English after landing at Queenborough is the train of the S. E. and Chatham line—I hope I quote the name correctly — waiting outside the rail to take the passengers up to London. I beheld a number of waggons of the type of our old-style fourth-class carriages. Nor did the exterior belie the interior. Dingy, narrow, low-roofed, they seemed a relict of days gone by. And then some official came and actually locked me in. I was startled. There seemed no way of opening the door from the inside, and I could not help wondering what would happen if some accident should necessitate a quick exit. And another thing I cannot help thinking. What would happen if such a state of things existed in Germany? For I have since been told that this special line is the standing joke of the country; that protest after protest is issued by the travelling public, and that the patriotic Englishman returned from abroad usually feels ashamed at the sight of those waggons. In Germany the railway is owned by the State. I will not discuss the merits of private or Governmental ownership. No doubt the medal has its two sides. But this much is certain; the German Secretary of Railways would be "heckled" in the Reichstag so continually and successfully that the obnoxious waggons would soon be either altered or disappear altogether.

Someone asked me: "Does London make a prosperous impression?"

It certainly does — round Piccadilly and Regent street. It certainly does not round Shoreditch.

To my German mind prosperity is synonymous with progress. One is impossible without the other. Of progress, however, I see—at least at the first glance—no sign in London. One sign, the surest one, of progress is building. It has become almost a nuisance in Berlin. Berlin is progressing steadily. And if you say Berlin is young, London is old, I answer: We do not build on new sites only, we tear old buildings down. If a new enterprise, a business house, or an hotel springs up, old houses must be torn down to make room for the new establishment. On the other hand, Pall Mall, Regent street, Piccadilly, and the Strand do not speak only of prosperity but of superfluity. I have never seen so many well-dressed people, especially men, so many smart carriages and motor-cars, such evident heaping of capital together in one section of any city as I have seen round here. But this seems to me to denote only the affluence of the upper, the splendid prosperity of the better middle class; and the question arises—How about the others? Or may one still speak of the prosperity of a town that "boasts" of ragged children in front of soup kitchens, squares like Hoxton market, and living-rooms that we would hesitate to use as a pigsty? That sounds hard, but I have seen such rooms in Shoreditch. I have seen them without especially hunting for them, the first day in London. So they cannot be hard to find. But one must look deeper to determine the question, no doubt. I shall have more to say on this in a day or two.

It was not London so much as the Londoner that took me by surprise. Like a good many— too many —of my compatriots, I did not know England. But I thought I knew the English. Not personally, of course. I had heard about them, read about them, in the same way as those readers of this journal who have not been to Germany have no doubt heard and read about the Germans. And just as surely as many Englishmen honestly believe themselves to know all about the Germans, just so surely did I believe myself to know the English. And what I imagined I knew of them was not all of the best. For, much as the Germans otherwise admire the English —and I repeat this because it is a fact— they consider them—well, a bit arrogant. During the last twenty-four hours—that is to say, ever since I left my train at Victoria Station—I have been trying to puzzle out why this is so. The men who attended to me at the station, the men at the hotel, the men whom I addressed in the street seeking advice, they all were politeness — if cold politeness—itself. It seemed as if either the Englishman must change his whole nature the moment he left home, or as if only a certain portion of the British population, and not the most pleasant part of it, travelled abroad. Until I went up to a policeman to ask about the direction of a street. Then, like a flash, I had solved the riddle. For when I approached this man I politely lifted my hat, started in with "Excuse me, but would you be so kind as" — and popped my question. The representative of law and order gazed upon me a moment or two. I felt "he sized me up." Then, "Two to the right, one to the left!" said he. That was all. He never touched his cap in reply to my salutation. He never thought it worth while to reply to my "thank you." "To the right, one to the left!" Now, I understood. I understood this to be not an intended impoliteness, but the English way.

THE ENGLISHMAN ABROAD.

But now take the Englishman who first came to Germany for the first time. It is ten to one he knows the language of the country but poorly. He steps up to anyone—a private citizen, a policeman, anyone—and asks as well as possible for information. He will get it all right. But as he has not lifted his hat, has not made his bow, has not excused himself, has left aside all these little points of "etiquette" the German is so keen on, he only needs to turn his back and the others are ready with their verdict. "Aren't they arrogant, those English!"

Which only proves how deceptive appearances are. How easy it is to understand each other! Between men, such a misunderstanding is soon cleared up; one chat and the matter is settled. Between nations it is more difficult. There it is necessary for someone to explain. International visits are good, but the given factor is the Press. For instance, in this little matter of supposed English arrogance. Surely, one only needs to come here, needs only to feel the grip of the Englishman's hand, to look him in the eye, to hear his one word of welcome — and know how it is meant. The trouble is that everybody cannot come over and find out. I wish they could.

At the end of my first twenty-four hours' stay in England I have come to the following conclusion. If all the English could meet all the Germans for just a few hours' talk there would ensue a friendship as of brothers; a friendship that no power on earth could part. Because then, probably for the first time in their lives, they would understand each other. And that is all that is needed.—Overseas Mail.

72 Days of Dish Washing

You spend two hours every day washing dishes. That's 720 hours a year or 72 days of ten working hours each. This means that half the time is wasted. For with Taylor's Borax Soap you finish your work in one hour instead of two.

Isn't it worth five cents to have 36 days a year to yourself—to have cleaner and sweeter dishes than ever before with less than half the work?

Taylor's Soap

This wonderful soap is unlike any other you have ever known. It digs into the corners of dishes and loosens the dirt almost like magic. It cuts away grease and leaves the surface clean and polished.

Hard water makes hard dish washing, but Taylor's Borax Soap softens the hardest water and so makes the work easy. But it does more than soften the water—it softens the hands and leaves them even whiter than before.

With this soap you save all the bother of rubbing and most of the scouring. You simply have no idea of the work this soap can save—it is the greatest surprise you have ever known.

The glassware has a lustre that fairly sparkles with brilliance. The china ware looks as fresh and inviting as new. Yet you work only half as hard with this astonishing soap.

No soap could be purer than this, for during the boiling process we run thousands of gallons of clean water through the soap. Thus every impurity is carried away and the soap is absolutely clean.

Borax also sterilizes and sweetens. It kills every germ and leaves no possibility of contagion. It destroys all odors and leaves a clean scent that is simply delightful.

This wonderful soap costs no more than the ordinary. We spend twenty-one days to make a single cake. We use the labor of more than 200 persons. Yet we make such enormous quantities—millions of cakes every year—that we buy at the lowest prices and give you the very best of quality. Try one bar and judge for yourself.

—THE— Masquerader

By KATHERINE CECIL THURSTON,
Author of "The Circle," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, 1906, by Harper & Brothers

The passage outside was dark and the newcomer drew back before the light from the room.

"Mr. Loder?" he began interrogatively. Then all at once he laughed in embarrassed apology. "Forgive me," he said. "The light rather dazzled me. I didn't realise who it was."

Loder recognized the voice as belonging to his acquaintance of the fog.

"Oh, it's you!" he said. "Won't you come in?" His voice was a little cold. This sudden resurrection left him surprised, and not quite pleasantly surprised. He walked back to the fireplace, followed by his guest.

The guest seemed nervous and agitated. "I must apologize for the hour of my visit," he said. "My—my time is not quite my own."

Loder waved his hand. "Whose time is his own?" he said.

Chilcote, encouraged by the remark, drew nearer to the fire. Until this moment he had refrained from looking directly at his host. Now, however, he raised his eyes, and, despite his preparation, he recoiled unavoidably before the extraordinary resemblance. Seen here, in the casual surroundings of a badly furnished and crudely lighted room, it was even more astounding than it had been in the mystery of the fog.

"Forgive me," he said again. "It is physical, purely physical. I am bowled over against my will."

Loder smiled. The slight contempt that Chilcote had first inspired rose again, and with it a second feeling less easily defined. The man seemed so unstable, so incapable, yet so grotesquely suggestive to himself.

"The likeness is rather overwhelming," he said, "but not heavy enough to sink under. Come nearer the fire. What brought you here? Curiosity?" There was a wooden armchair by the fireplace. He indicated it with a wave of the hand, then turned and took up his smoldering pipe.

Chilcote, watching him furtively, obeyed the gesture and sat down.

"It is extraordinary!" he said, as if unable to dismiss the subject. "It—it is quite extraordinary!"

The other glanced round. "Let's drop it," he said. "It's so confoundedly obvious." Then his tone changed. "Won't you smoke?" he asked.

"Thanks." Chilcote began to fumble for his cigarettes.

But his host forestalled him. Taking a box from the mantelpiece, he held it out.

"My one extravagance!" he said ironically. "My resources bind me to one; and I think I have made a wise selection. It is about the only vice we haven't to pay for six times over." He glanced sharply at the face so absurdly like his own, then, lighting a fresh spill, offered his guest a light.

Chilcote moistened his cigarette and leaned forward. In the flare of the paper his face looked set and anxious, but Loder saw that the lips did not twitch as they had done on the previous occasion that he had given him a light, and a look of comprehension crossed his eyes.

"What will you have, or, rather, will you have a whisky? I keep nothing else. Hospitality is one of the debarred luxuries."

Chilcote shook his head. "I seldom drink. But don't let that deter you."

Loder smiled. "I have one drink in the twenty-four hours—generally at 2 o'clock, when my night's work is done. A solitary man has to look where he is going."

"You work till 2?"

"Two or 3."

Chilcote's eyes wandered to the desk. "You write?" he asked.

The other nodded curtly.

"Books?" Chilcote's tone was anxious.

Loder laughed, and the bitter note showed in his voice.

"No; not books," he said.

Chilcote leaned back in his chair and passed his hand across his face. The strong wave of satisfaction that the words woke in him was difficult to conceal.

"What is your work?"

Loder turned aside. "You must not ask that," he said shortly. "When a man has only one capacity, and the capacity has no outlet, he is apt to run to seed in a wrong direction. I cultivate weeds, at abominable labor and a very small reward." He stood with his back to the fire, facing his visitor. His attitude was a curious blending of pride, defiance and despondency.

Chilcote leaned forward again. "Why speak of yourself like that? You are a man of intelligence and education." He spoke questioningly, anxiously.

"Intelligence and education!" Loder laughed shortly. "London is cemented with intelligence. And education! What is education? The court dress necessary to presentation, the wig and gown necessary to the barrister. But do the wig and gown necessarily mean briefs or the court dress royal favor? Education is the accessory. It is influence that is essential. You should know that."

Chilcote moved restlessly in his seat. "You talk bitterly," he said.

The other looked up. "I think bitterly, which is worse. I am one of the unlucky beggars who in the expectation of money have been denied a profession—even a trade, to which to cling in time of shipwreck—and who when disaster comes drift out to sea. I warned you the other night to steer clear of me. I come under the head of flotsam."

Chilcote's face lighted. "You came a cropper?" he asked.

"No. It was some one else who came the cropper. I only dealt in results."

"Big results?"

"A drop from a probable £80,000 to a certain £800."

Chilcote glanced up. "How did you take it?" he asked.

"I? Oh, I was twenty-five then. I had a good many hopes and a lot of pride; but there is no place for either in a working world."

"But your people?"

"My last relation died with the fortune."

"Your friends?"

Loder laid down his pipe. "I told you I was twenty-five," he said, with the tinge of humor that sometimes crossed his manner. "Doesn't that explain things? I had never taken favors in prosperity. A change of fortune was not likely to alter my ways. As I have said, I was twenty-five." He smiled. "When I realized my position I sold all my belongings with the exception of a table and a few books—which I stored. I put on a walking suit and let my beard grow. Then, with my entire capital in my pocket, I left England without saying goodby to any one."

"For how long?"

"Oh, for six years. I wandered half over Europe and through a good part of Asia in the time."

"And then?"

"Then? Oh, I shaved off the beard and came back to London!" He looked at Chilcote, partly contemptuous, partly amused at his curiosity.

But Chilcote sat staring in silence. The domination of the other's personality and the futility of his achievements baffled him.

Loder saw his bewilderment. "You wonder what the devil I came into the world for," he said. "I sometimes wonder the same myself."

At his words a change passed over Chilcote. He half rose, then dropped back into his seat.

"You have no friends?" he said. "Your life is worth nothing to you?"

Loder raised his head. "I thought I had conveyed that impression."

"You are an absolutely free man."

"No man is free who works for his bread. If things had been different I might have been in such shoes as yours, sauntering in legislative byways. My hopes turned that way once. But hopes, like more substantial things, belong to the past"— He stopped abruptly and looked at his companion.

The change in Chilcote had become more acute. He sat fingering his cigarette, his brows drawn down, his lips set nervously in a conflict of emotions. For a space he stayed very still, avoiding Loder's eyes; then, as if decision had suddenly come to him, he turned and met his gaze.

"How if there was a future," he said, "as well as a past?"

CHAPTER V.

FOR the space of a minute there was silence in the room; then outside in the still night three clocks simultaneously chimed 11, and their announcement was taken up and echoed by half a dozen others, loud and faint, hoarse and resonant, for all through the hours of darkness the neighborhood of Fleet street is alive with chimes.

Chilcote, startled by the jangle, rose from his seat. Then, as if driven by an uncontrollable impulse, he spoke again.

"You probably think I am mad"— he began.

Loder took his pipe out of his mouth. "I am not so presumptuous," he said quietly.

For a space the other eyed him silently, as if trying to gauge his thoughts. Then once more he broke into speech.

"Look here," he said. "I came tonight to make a proposition. When I have made it you'll first of all jeer at me, as I jeered when I made it to myself. Then you'll see its possibilities, as I did. Then," he paused and glanced around the room nervously, "then you'll accept it, as I did." In the uneasy haste of his speech his words broke off almost unintelligibly.

Involuntarily Loder lifted his head to retort, but Chilcote put up his hand. His face was set with the obstinate determination that weak men sometimes exhibit.

"Before I begin I want to say that I am not drunk—that I am neither mad nor drunk." He looked fully at his companion with his restless glance. "I am quite sane—quite reasonable."

Again Loder essayed to speak, but again he put up his hand.

"No. Hear me out. You told me something of your story. I'll tell you something of mine. You'll be the first person, man or woman, that I have confided in for ten years. You say you have been treated shabbily. I have treated myself shabbily, which is harder to reconcile. I had every chance, and I chucked every chance away."

There was a strained pause, then again Loder lifted his head.

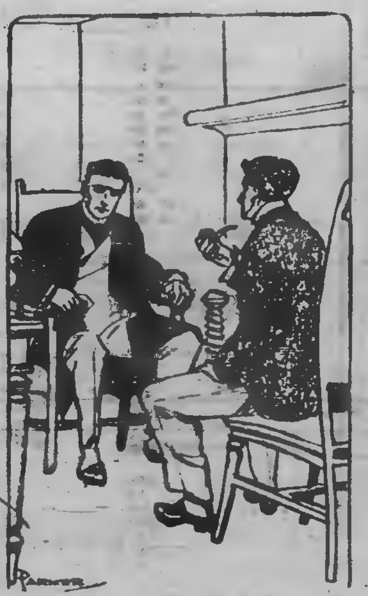
"Morphia?" he said very quietly.

Chilcote wheeled around with a scared gesture. "How did you know that?" he asked sharply.

The other smiled. "It wasn't guessing. It wasn't even deduction. You told me or as good as told me in the fog when we talked of Lexington. You were unstrung that night, and I—well, perhaps one gets overobservant from living alone." He smiled again.

Chilcote collapsed into his former seat and passed his handkerchief across his forehead.

Loder watched him for a space. Then he spoke. "Why don't you pull up?" he said. "You are a young man still.



"Why don't you drop the thing?"

Why don't you drop the thing before it gets too late?" His face was unsympathetic, and below the question in his voice lay a note of hardness.

Chilcote returned his glance. The suggestion of reproof had accentuated his pallor. Under his excitement he looked ill and worn.

"You might talk till doomsday, but every word would be wasted," he said irritably. "I'm past praying for by something like six years."

"Then why come here?" Loder was pulling hard on his pipe. "I'm not a dealer in sympathy."

"I don't require sympathy." Chilcote rose again. He was still agitated, but the agitation was quieter. "I want a much more expensive thing than sympathy, and I am willing to pay for it."

The other turned and looked at him. "I have no possession in the world that would be worth a fiver to you," he said coldly. "You're [illegible] delusion or you're [illegible] time."

Chilcote laughed nervously. "Wait," he said. "Wait. I only ask you to wait. First let me sketch you my position. It won't take many words."

"My grandfather was a Chilcote of Westmoreland. He was one of the first of his day and his class to recognize that there was a future in trade, so, breaking his own little twig from the family tree, he went south to Wark and entered a shipowning firm. In thirty years' time he died, the owner of one of the biggest trades in England, having married the daughter of his chief. My father was twenty-four and still at Oxford when he inherited. Almost his first act was to reverse my grandfather's early move by going north and piecing together the family friendship. He married his first cousin, and then, with the Chilcote prestige revived and the shipping money to back it, he entered on his ambition, which was to represent East Wark in the Conservative interest. It was a big fight, but he won—as much by personal influence as by any other. He was an aristocrat, but he was a keen business man as well. The combination carries weight with your lower classes. He never did much in the house, but he was a power to his party in Wark. They still use his name there to conjure with."

Loder leaned forward interestedly.

"Robert Chilcote?" he said. "I have heard of him. One of those fine, unostentatious figures—strong in action, a little narrow in outlook, perhaps, but essential to a country's staying power. You have every reason to be proud of your father."

Chilcote laughed suddenly. "How easily we sum up when a matter is impersonal! My father may have been a fine figure, but he shouldn't have left me to climb to his pedestal."

Loder's eyes questioned. In his newly awakened interest he had let his pipe go out.

"Don't you grasp my meaning?" Chilcote went on. "My father died and I was elected for East Wark. You may say that if I had no real inclination for the position I could have kicked, but I tell you I couldn't. Every local interest, political and commercial, hung upon the candidate being a Chilcote. I did what eight men out of ten would have done. I yielded to pressure."

"It was a fine opening!" The words escaped Loder.

"Most prisons have wide gates!" Chilcote laughed again unpleasantly. "That was six years ago. I had started on the morphia track four years earlier, but up to my father's death I had it under my thumb, or believed I had, and in the realization of my new responsibilities and the excitement of the political fight I almost put it aside. For several months after I entered parliament I worked. I believe I made one speech that marked me as a coming man." He laughed derisively. "I even married"—

"Married?"

ACTION AGAINST CAMPBELLFORD

Bogue and Buchanan Sue Town for Money That is Due Them

Messrs. Bogue and Buchanan have issued a writ against the town for $26,900 and interest since last November, this being, they claim, the balance due them on the work of the new power house. The Council has withheld payment from the contractors on the ground that the work was badly done, and now the case will be fought in the courts.

Proceeding on the advice of eminent engineers, the council have had the stone work all taken down and men are engaged under Messrs. Brown & Aylmer to treat the foundation walls with concrete. These walls will be reinforced by a layer of concrete 6 inches or more in thickness. Messrs. Brown & Aylmer have a large number of men on the job are proceeding rapidly. This work will mean a large outlay to the town and from present indications the revenue for this year from the new plant will be nil.—Campbellford Despatch.

CHEMONG SUMMER SCHOOL

Special to the Review.

Chemong Park, July 9—The sixth session of the summer School opened on Thursday morning with singing and prayer. Rev. Mr. Clarke occupied the chair.

The study of Paul's missionary journey was continued, being conducted, as usual, by Rev. Prof. McLaughlin, who, in a clear and interesting manner, traced the journies of Paul and those with whom he was associated. Paul's epistle to Corinthians being the subject under discussion. This study is gaining in interest each day.

Rev. Mr. Foster made some announcements, and Miss Bessie Scott, field deaconess, Toronto, gave a very interesting and instructive address, telling of the deaconess' work in the slums, schools and Fresh Air Homes, also of their mothers' meetings and the meetings for young ladies. Miss Scott made special mention of the meetings held in Elm St. church, Toronto. Surely this is a grand work.

A round-table conference on the literary department was conducted by Rev. A. H. Foster and many valuable hints were given in regard to the literary side of our league work.

At the close of the conference mission study classes met for their study of the text books. These, too, are gaining in interest.

The afternoon session was of special interest to all. Rev. V. T. Tucker occupied the chair, and at the close of the opening exercises Rev. Dr. Stephenson, of Toronto, gave an address in his usual enthusiastic manner. After congratulating the Bay of Quinte conference on their success, and speaking of his pleasure at being present, Dr. Stephenson suggested some excellent plans for the Epworth Leagues. He spoke of the wonderful influence the young people of the country are exerting over those in the cities to which they go. "We each want to make our lives productive, and in order to do this we must have power from God. Our whole life must be thrown into league work if we would make it a success."

Mr. McIlroy rendered a solo, which was much appreciated, and Dr. McKenzie, of Japan, gave an interesting address telling of his work in Japan, where he is a missionary. Dr. McKenzie said that the Japanese people were misjudged when called a war-liking nation, for they were, in reality, lovers of peace, and it was only when the feelings of national danger were aroused that they were anxious to go to war.

The afternoon session was dismissed by singing the doxology.

At five o'clock the excursion left the park for Bobcaygeon, the majority of the delegates taking advantage of the opportunity afforded them. The evening was perfect, and the trip all that could be desired. A bountiful lunch was prepared under the direction of Mrs. Brown, and the time was pleasantly spent in singing, recitations and addresses, all uniting in making the trip one to be remembered.

Two small boys of West Hoboken, N.J., were fired on by an unknown party. One boy was mortally wounded and the other maimed for life.

ACTION AGAINST CAMPBELLFORD

Bogue and Buchanan Sue Town for Money That is Due Them

Messrs. Bogue and Buchanan have issued a writ against the town for $26,900 and interest since last November, this being, they claim, the balance due them on the work of the new power house. The Council has withheld payment from the contractors on the ground that the work was badly done, and now the case will be fought in the courts.

Proceeding on the advice of eminent engineers, the council have had the stone work all taken down and men are engaged under Messrs. Brown & Aymer to treat the foundation walls with concrete. These walls will be reinforced by a layer of concrete 6 inches or more in thickness. Messrs. Brown & Aymer have a large number of men on the job are proceeding rapidly. This work will mean a large outlay to the town and from present indications the revenue for this year from the new plant will be nil.—Campbellford Despatch.

A large family of gypsies are at present in camp at City View, near Westboro, and the farmers round about are double-locking their granaries and cellars. The outfit yesterday lurked about the outskirts of Westboro. There are many children in the gang and many horses. The gypsies are probably of the same stock as those in camp at Hintonburg, judging from dress, appearance and manner.—Ottawa Journal.

MEDICAL ASS'N. OFFICERS; ANNUAL MEETING HELD

At a meeting of the Central Ontario Medical Association held last night in the City Council Chambers, the question of the isolation hospital was taken up. It was regretted nothing had been done.

At the meeting of the Medical Society the chief topic of discussion was the presence of scarlet fever and the demands for an isolation hospital. There is a lot of scarlet fever in this city and there have been more or less patients suffering from contagious diseases in the city for several years. One of the safest and surest ways of stamping out these troubles is by isolation. Here such action is impossible as there is no place to put a patient. The city needs an isolation hospital and the sooner it gets it the better.

In this connection the society passed the following resolution;—

"That in the opinion of this society there is an urgent demand for the immediate establishment of an isolation hospital for the city of Peterborough, the infectious diseases being constantly in our midst for several years, and as rigid isolation is the most essential means to stamp out cases of this kind and suitable means and equipment should be provided to further this end.

The society also decided that it was in the public interest that the medical health officer should see every quarantined case before the quarantine is raised.

The doctors also discussed that dread disease, tuberculosis. There should be a hospital or two provided for the special treatment of tuberculosis, but as the council has no money this year the matter was allowed to stand over. A hospital and pathological laboratory should be provided.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows—

President—J. M. McCullough.
Vice-Pres.—G. S. Cameron.
2nd Vice-Pres.—E. V. Frederick.
Secretary—C. H. Amyn.
Treasurer—W. D. Scott.
Executive Committee—W. Caldwell, A. Hammond, A. W. MacPherson.
Auditors—Doctors Amyn, Caldwell, McCullough, and Cameron.

BRIGADE HAD BUSY SESSION; THREE ALARMS RUNG IN

Things were looking up in the fire department yesterday, and the men were given some merry chases for small blazes. There were three cases altogether, the first one being at box 52. The second alarm came from box 53 and was for a fire attached at the corner of St. Luke's church. No damage resulted.

While the brigade was busy with this fire an alarm came from box 54 at the north of Ashburnham. A grass fire at Concession street set fire to some railway ties. This was soon extinguished also.

At 8 o'clock last night another alarm came in. This time it was a call to put out a blaze at the rear of 421 Downie street. Some burning rubbish blazed up beyond control. No loss was entailed.

SAW AND PLANING MILL DESTROYED NEAR WARSAW

Murphy's saw and planing mill and a dwelling house in connection, about five miles east of Warsaw, were destroyed by fire, which broke out yesterday about ten o'clock. On account of the material and the lack of fire-fighting equipment the blaze made quick work of the buildings. A large quantity of lumber was also destroyed. The loss will total over $4,000, partially covered by insurance. It is supposed that the fire started in the engine room.

FORMER ASST. PASTOR OF ST. PAUL'S CHURCH HONORED

Citizens of Peterborough, and particularly the members of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, will be interested to hear of the Rev. H. Beverley Ketchen, who took charge of St. Paul's church during the absence of Rev. Mr. Torrence, some years ago. Rev. Mr. Ketchen is now pastor of McNab street Presbyterian church, Hamilton and was recently presented with a beautiful travelling bag, while Mrs. Ketchen and little daughter were also remembered by the members of the congregation on the occasion of the intended departure of their pastor and his family for their summer vacation. A programme of short speeches and music were rendered and the members tendered to Rev. Mr. Ketchen their sincerest wishes for a happy holiday.

CAN THE CROWN CONFISCATE THE WHISKEY SEIZED?

Yesterday before Justices of the Peace Tate and Lillicrap the question of the right of the town to confiscate the barrel of whiskey recently seized by License Inspector Joseph Stewart; Mr. James Haverson, K.C., represented Mr. Lawless, and no counsel for the town was present. Mr. Lawless claimed that the liquor was simply on the premises awaiting transfer to Bobcaygeon, and thought it should be sent on to its destination. The case occupied considerable time, and the point at issue is a novel one, and created quite a bit of interest among the license holders of this district. Judgment was reserved until tomorrow.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed for ever: nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness —caused by catarrh— that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A Case in Point

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Please publish the following as a case in point in Peterborough:—

"A young man who persisted in whispering loud to the lady who accompanied him to a symphony concert, telling her what the music "meant," what sort of passage was coming next, and so on, caused serious annoyance to every one of his immediate neighbors. Presently he closed his eyes and said to his companion:

"Did you ever try listening to music with your eyes shut? You've no idea how lovely it sounds."

Thereupon a gentleman who sat in a seat in front of the young man twisted himself about and said gravely:

"Young man, did you ever try listening to music with your mouth shut?"

CITY LEAGUE GAMES TO BE PLAYED AT THE OVAL

The Question of How Many Real Live Sports There Are in This City Will be Settled To-morrow.

The respective heads of the four city league baseball teams decided last night to play the games scheduled for to-morrow on the Oval. Dissatisfaction exists among the teams owing to the small percentage of the gate receipts of Riverside Park received by them, especially when each manager has to pay 10 cents for the admittance of each player.

The T.A.S. and the Strathconas will meet in the first game at two o'clock and the West Ends and P.A.C. will come together at 3.30. Both games will be interesting and should be well played. The fans who witnessed the game the city leaguers played with Barrie Wednesday were agreeably surprised with the article of ball put up by our own kids. There will be no admittance to the games, but those who are willing to contribute towards the expenses of the teams will be given an opportunity to do so.

The batteries will be;—

Strathconas—Gorham, Hickey and Wilson.

T.A.S.—Quinlan, Flaherty and McFadden.

West Ends—Rose, Kirn and Dobson.

P.A.C.—Dusty and Bell.

There should be a large number on hand at the Oval to encourage the players, who have without an exception given the fans the worth of their money this season. Everything and interesting will be done by the possible to make the exhibitions fast teams, and the opportunity is now given to see how many real live sports there are in Peterborough

LINES ON SPORT

Wrestler Frank Gotch is all in and has been advised to take a rest. It is to be hoped that Fritz Mohl, Chas Kaiser, Hassan Abdallah and a few others will be stricken in a similar manner.

A Marathon bicycle race will be held in Toronto to-morrow.

Q.—If a batted ball strikes foul and rolls fair before reaching first base, is it a foul or fair ball? The rule book says a fair ball is a ball that settles on fair territory. The ball struck foul and settled on fair territory.

A.—The rule book is right. The ball was fair if it settled on fair territory before reaching first base, no matter where it struck.

Dick Baker, who trained Eddie Cotter for the big Canadian Marathon race, has decided to train one of the runners in the same race for the Olympic trials at Athens here this fall. Under the watchful eye of Baker this man should just about win the trials here. Good luck to you, Dick.—Toronto News.

A big husky athlete in the person of Jack McDonald, of Kenora, passed through Montreal last evening on his way to Sydney, where he will start on a tramp to Vancouver for a wager of $2,000. McDonald is 25 years old, is over six feet tall and weighs about 200 pounds. He expresses little doubt of his ability to accomplish the trip in 115 days.

Louis Phelp, of Hobson, a few miles from Vancouver, has just completed a walking stunt of 216 miles, holding a plow and walking two horses the entire distance, on a bet with a friend.

Lindsay has a crack battery this season in the persons of Dickey Grag pitcher, and Bill Cinnamon, catcher. It would be a good line to get a Lindsay nin here for a game with a Peterborough team. It would be interesting to see what the Lindsay mound artist could do with the local sluggers.

Lindsay and Toronto are having a chewing match as to respective abilities of pitchers Fred Hickey and Dickie Gray. Honors appear to be about even in the argument line. Hickey pitched good ball for the Toronto Eastern League team last fall and on this account his record should entitle him to a higher place in the niche of fame than the Lindsay twirler. But from all accounts this boy Grag is going great guns this season and is some pitcher without any doubt.

Toronto lost the first game of the Rochester series yesterday by 6—1. The Bronchos got after Newton in the first innings and netted four runs.

Jack Toft will umpire the doubleheader between Toronto and Rochester to-day. Rudolph and Pfeffer will twirl for the Leafs.

Edward Payson Weston, has failed in his attempt to walk from New York too San Francisco in 100 days.

CLAIM THAT HICKEY QUIT AT MARKAM

In Markham on Saturday the fans thought Hickey was bluffing when he claimed he hurt his arm sliding into a base.

It was in the seventh innings and the score was a tie. Bill Cinnamon thought Pitcher Fred was ringing a little phoney game, too, and Bill went in to find out the details of the accident whereby Hickey was disabled.

Being an old friend of the Toronto catcher, Bill had to sympathize a little and be rubbed the injured portion of the arm. Nothing appeared to be swollen or hurt, according to Bill's investigations, and this made him more suspicious.

"Give me a match, Hickey," snapped out Bill, a couple of minutes later, pulling a stogey from its hiding place in the meantime. Without thinking Hickey dug his left hand into his pocket and brought out the required piece of timber, using his injured arm with surprising freedom. Then Bill went his way with a chuckle and was well satisfied.—Lindsay Warder.

FOOTBALL

ROASTS THE REFEREE

The following is from the Bowmanville Statesman—

The final game in the Midland Football League was played in Hampton on July 1st between Havelock and Bowmanville, resulting in a victory for the former team by a score of 3—2 thus winning the round 4—3, and the Stratton Cup for 1909.

Mr. Skelding, of Peterborough, was agreed upon as referee, but Wednesday Secretary Brumwell 'phoned to find out if he could himself handle the whistle. The management finally consented, when he admitted allowing too much rough play in Havelock the previous Saturday, and promised to give our boys a "square deal" on the return game. Did they get it? Well, I guess they did—worse and more of it. Oh, it was awful! If the game had been played in Oshawa the referee would have been mobbed sure. It was really a shame to let him run loose. Mr. Brumwell had better look after the duties of secretary of the league and get some responsible person, capable of handling a game in future.

Bowmanville got the first goal after ten minutes' play on a fast shot by Dr. Simon. All Havelock could do in this half was "kill time" by kicking the ball out of the lot, but extra time was not added. When goals were changed Bowmanville had a strong wind to kick against, but with this disadvantage the boys added another goal after Simon had turned a flip-flop and passed the ball to Bradley, who scored. Now Mr. Brumwell came to the rescue of the Havelock boys by allowing them to play the old check-off game of one take the man and the other the ball—this was in vogue some ten years ago—tripping, offsides, etc., were also allowed. With this assistance Havelock earned one goal and Brumwell presented them with two more by his one-sided decisions. With the wind blowing a gale towards Bowmanville's goal, some ten minutes were added because our boys sent the ball off the lot a few times. Exeunt Brumwell!

HAVELOCK WILL PLAY CLAREMONT

And if Successful Will Have Try For Provincial Championship

Havelock has been entered for the Intermediate Ontario championship, and has been drawn to play the winners of the South Ontario League, Claremont. The first game to be played at Claremont and the second at Havelock on dates to be selected in a few days. The winners of these two games will go into the finals for the Provincial Championship.

EVIDENCE INSUFFICIENT TO MAKE A CONVICTION

William Wyatt Was Charged at the Police Court This Morning With Having Supplied Liquor to a Blacklister—The Evidence.

William Wyatt was arrested yesterday afternoon by P. C. Newhall, and when he appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning was charged with having on Tuesday, July 6th, given liquor to George Martin, a black-listed person.

Much evidence in regard to the case, but the Magistrate held that it was insufficient to make a conviction against the accused, and he was discharged.

THE EVIDENCE.

Inspector Stewart, sworn, stated that the black-list notice had been served on Martin on the 15th of April, 1909, by personal service. He also knew the prisoner, but did not know of him ever having supplied liquor to Martin.

P. C. Newhall, next sworn, said that on last Tuesday he found Martin lying helplessly drunk in his store with a flask containing whiskey beneath his head, and one empty flask that had contained whiskey by his side, and there were several other empty liquor bottles in the shop. We arrested Martin and brought him to the police station. He had from time to time seen Wyatt and several other black-listed men around the shop.

Mr. J. W. Carey said he had seen the prisoner go into Martin's shop possibly half a dozen times within the past two weeks. Martin had been drinking during that time. On one occasion he saw prisoner carry a large pail, but did not know what it contained. Did not see the prisoner on Tuesday.

Wm. Fleetwood knew the prisoner by sight and had seen him Tuesday in the shop, about fifteen minutes before Martin's arrest. He had seen Wyatt in the shop many times. The store was closed during the visit of Wyatt several times. He did not see any liquor carried to the store, but was aware that Martin had been drunk many times, and had seen the blacklisters in the store.

Mr. W. B. Armstrong knew the prisoner by sight since last Tuesday. Wyatt had bought liquor twice on that day, two 25c quantities of rye whiskey. Wyatt came at two different times in the day. Did not notice which way the purchaser came to the store or which way he went on leaving the store.

Mr. A. Sawers stated that he had a shop next door to Martin, who was a steady worker as long as he did not secure liquor. He had seen prisoner at the store a dozen or more times during the past two months. Had seen prisoner at Martin's store about 4.30 on Tuesday. He went down to Mitchell's store and soon afterwards returned to Martin's, but could not say if he carried any liquor. Frequently while Wyatt was at the store or after he went away, the curtains on the window would be pulled down and the door locked. He sympathised with Martin as he worked hard when he was left alone.

George Martin was brought from the county jail to give evidence. He said he had known prisoner for the past six weeks, but he had not been around his shop very frequently. He had told Wyatt that he was on the black list. Witness denied that he had been drunk.

"Were you drunk on Tuesday?" asked the chief.

"No," replied the witness.

"Were you drunk when you were found by Newhall?"

"No, I was only sleeping."

"What about the money you gave Wyatt Tuesday?"

"He brought me the plug of tobacco but no whiskey."

"Did he go out and come back a first time?"

"Yes."

"Did he go out and come back a second time?"

"Yes."

"Yes."

"Were there any other men there?"

"I couldn't really say

"Did you see him give liquor to the other men?"

"No."

"No."

"What time did Wyatt go out the first time?"

"Between four and five o'clock.

"How much money did you give him?"

"Ten cents."

"Did he have a flask with him?"

"I didn't see it.

"What did he go out the second time for?"

"I don't know.

"How did that flask get under your head?"

"I don't know."

"Did you lay down before or after Wyatt came in?"

"After."

"Has there been a pail brought into your shop?"

"Yes Wyatt brought a pail of water in from the hotel yard."

"What about the blind going down?"

"A pane of glass is broken in the door and the blind was put down to cover the hole."

Witness was warned about signing the evidence, but he wrote his name. This concluded the evidence.

THE CANADIAN ENVOYS.

Complimentary References to Canada In London Journal.

Sir Frederick Borden and the Hon. L. P. Brodeur Canadian Ministers of Militia and Marine, are starting, to visit this country for further consultation with His Majesty's Ministers on the subject of Imperial Defence. At the same time it is notified that the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia has sent its amended proposals to the Admiralty. Taken in conjunction with the offer of Dreadnoughts by New Zealand and by Victoria and New South Wales, these are gratifying signs that the Young Lions are awake to the dangers which loom before the old grey mother and the whole of her family alike. Sir Frederick Borden presides over a force which is already strong both in numbers and in other essentials which make even more surely for efficiency in war. The Canadian Infantry proved itself, on the day of Paardeburg, fit to fight beside the elite of the British army. When the Imperial General Staff is established, and the divisions for which Mr. Haldane hopes organized, the strength of the Empire on land will be of a kind not to be lightly provoked, provided that the Mother Country will set the example by accepting the liability for service for defence. Sir Frederick Borden's military service has been on the non-combatant side, for he is a surgeon-colonel. But that is, after all, as real a military experience as most Secretaries for War in this country enjoy. The Marine over which it is Mr. Brodeur's duty to preside is yet a thing of the future. His duties are, for the nonce, confined to fisheries. But there can be no doubt that Canada means to have a navy of her own, and no man's task can be more responsible than his to whose lot it will fall so to concert arrangements with the Imperial authorities that the infant fleet may at once retain its independence of administration, and yet fit in with the organization of the whole when it is called upon to do its duty in war.—The London Graphic.

Welland Canal and Lloyd's.

A protest from the Canadian lake marine interests has also been occasioned by the report that Lloyd's and other English underwriting companies contemplate an increase of 1 per cent. on hull insurance on all steamers using the Welland Canal and trading east of that waterway. This would mean that the rate of insurance from Port Arthur to Buffalo would be 5 per cent., to boats going through the Welland and trading as far east as Prescott 6 per cent., and to those going on down the St. Lawrence to Montreal 7 per cent.—an increase of 2 per cent. over the Buffalo route. The adoption of this insurance rate would further handicap the Canadian all-water grain route, and tend to divert the carrying trade back to the New York route. For part of last year the Canadian route almost put the American route out of business.

Fads For Women.

A new design in a bureau or sideboard scarf is of linen, hemstitched all around, then hand embroidered.

The embroidery starts from the four corners and is worked inward, forming two very handsome ends. In the center of the long sides a pretty running design is worked above the hem. It measures 18 by 54 inches and costs $1.50.

Hemstitched pillowslips similarly embroidered are of Irish linen, measuring 22½ by 36 inches, and may be bought for $1.65 per pair.

Burlap and craftsman's canvas are much used for cushion covers, and really beautiful effects may be brought out with very little effort. A design, conventional or otherwise, cut from cretonne and employed with an embroidery stitch will make a brave showing at the expense of little time or trouble. Another good design equally simple is of two peacock feathers drawn diagonally across the pillow and worked with mercerised thread in natural colorings.

Where to Put Plate Rail.

Where to put a plate rail in the dining room is not known definitely to many people. It should be placed about seven feet from the floor and should match the woodwork and can be wider or narrower, as it is intended for holding plates or pitchers and tankards.

It is safer to have a grooved lodge for plates, to hold them more firmly in case of sudden jarring.

The fullest effect of a plate rail, says an authority, in the way of decoration is made from a careful selection of what it is to hold. Avoid a jumble of colors and overcrowding.

Blue in rich deep colors is most effective, but with tan or ecru walls, dark reds and ivory colored pottery is lovely. With the brown paper now so much in vogue for dining rooms, plenty of orange and light yellow plates and pitchers on the rail give a needed touch of color.

If possible do not keep articles on the rail that are in frequent use. They are apt to be broken in taking them down.

If Sugar Boils Too Long.

Boiling sugar or water for icing or icing is a somewhat ticklish operation, as every cook knows. If cooked too much it will be sugary and if not enough it will run.

The latter fault can be remedied by returning to the stove for a few minutes.

When the boiling has gone beyond the desired degree the consistency can be reduced by adding a few tablespoonfuls of cold water and boiling again.

If the sugar has been burned the taste will remain, even though sugaring has been prevented.

Never stir sugar and water while boiling if you do not want it to granulate. Watch it carefully and take it off at the critical moment, which in most cases must be decided by experience.

Starting a Balky Horse.

A horseman who has had much experience with balky horses says: "I saw a bad case conquered by the driver getting out of the wagon and petting the animal on the head for a minute. Then he picked up a stone, lifted up one of the animal's front feet from the ground and gave each nail a light tap and a smart tap on the frog. Then he dropped the foot quickly, jumped into the wagon and told the horse to go, and he did."

Cleaning the Cow's Udder.

The use of the damp cloth in wiping the udders and flanks of the cows before milking is very important in reducing the bacterial count. Stocking found that where this was practiced in one instance the number of bacteria in the milk was 716 per cubic centimeter as compared with 7,058 per cubic centimeter where the moist cloth was not used.

Making Good Butter.

The four essentials in making dairy butter are to churn the cream as soon as it is thick, to salt well, to work well as soon as hard enough and to remove the water, says a dairywoman. I sell in pound prints so as to secure the highest prices. Corn chop is my only coloring matter—that is, I feed so as to make the cows do the coloring.

A CHINESE VIEW OF THE MURDER OF ELSIE SEIGEL

"Chinese News" is at a Loss to Know the Cause of It—Chinese Fear That Tragedy Will Put Them "in Wrong" to a Large Extent With American People.

The matter that is interesting Chinamen in America most at the present time is the murder of Elsie Sigel in New York lately by Leon Ling. The Chinese colony in Peterborough make it the chief topic of their conversation and the Chinese newspapers.

A copy of the Chinese News, a New York publication, largely read by the Chinamen in America, containing a detailed account of what is known of the tragedy, has been received by Mr. Harry Hamilton, of the Dominion Cafe.

According to the paper the girl was in love with the Chinamen and the letters found addressed to him from her were of a very sentimental character. She also called at his apartments with much frequency.

There is talk about the crime being committed through jealousy, but the Chinese newspaper men, who should be able to glean considerable knowledge of the inner details of the affair don't attribute it to any such source and say the cause of the tragedy is a mystery to them.

Another feature they regret is that the murder will, to use a slang expression, put them "in wrong" with a great many people. It will be taken for granted that lots of Chinamen are like Leon Ling whereas the case is a most unusual and isolated one.

LUMBER JACK SMILES AT MOSQUITO VICTIMS HERE

Those who have spent any of their leisure hours down the Otonabee, especially in the evening have returned to the city to talk of the annoyance they have been called upon to bear by the mosquitoes, and to bear out their statement, exhibit marks on parts of the body exposed to these hummers. Some have made statements to the effect that sooner than put up with the mosquitoes again, they would remain at home. A Review representative had an interesting conversation with one of the "old lumber jacks" this morning, and during the talk, mentioned these demons of the air, and the following story was forthcoming:

"I was down near the street car wharf last night and had a good laugh to myself as several young ladies, accompanied by a gent with a pair of white trousers and his sleeves rolled up as if he had been working, arrived on the scene. The ladies were exhibiting their arms to each other, and softly mourning about the number of bites from mosquitoes they had received.

Well, I wish some of them had been up in the locality where I was working last year about this time. I was engaged with a party of men to build dams for the lumber Company, away up the other side of Sudbury. We had to walk from a station to the camp—a distance of seven miles—and it was a roasting hot day. The camp was reached about five in the evening and each of the party started at once to fix up his bunk for the night. After this was accomplished tea was served, and as all were hungry and tired, very little attention was paid to our winged friends, who, it seemed, had become acquainted with the date of our intended arrival. Well, we got through our meal of pork and beans and potatoes, and adjourned to our respective bunks to rest for the night. But we were called upon to meet with disappointment. The 'mattress' of our 'bed' was composed of hay, which had been there for a long time, and we had no sooner lain down than we discovered there were other inhabitants besides ourselves, and they made it hot for us. We had struck the haunts of the mosquitoes, and there was no sleep for us that night. I had been in similar positions before, but in the party were several greenies and they had a lovely time that night. These mosquitoes played all the popular music of the day, and at last, becoming enraged at the lack of appreciation shown by their audience, used their weapons of torture with striking effect. There was compliments expressed in a vigorous manner that night which would not look good in print, and in the morning, about five o'clock, all of the party had all the sleep they wanted—or could get.

Well, we stayed in that place for two months, and there wasn't a day passed but somebody left the camp vowing to get as far away from that part of the country as possible.

The twenty-four hours of the day were spent in working, eating, sleeping and fighting flies—mostly the latter. Grease and fly oil were used on the face and hands, but the weather was so hot and dry, and the flies so thick that very little comfort was secured by these means. The mosquitoes would wake you up in the morning, stay with you during the working hours, fill the cook house at meal time, and gather in great numbers in the evening, necessitating the making of smudges around which the members of the camp would sit and relate their experiences of the day.

Our boss slept in a tent, and he had to smudge it out every night, and some men would lay down to sleep with the tent full of smoke. The black flies and sand flies were bad during the daytime, but they did not trouble us in the evening—it was only those blamed mosquitoes. I have read items in the daily press during the last couple of weeks about the trouble the mosquitoes and black flies are causing this summer, and the reports are no exaggeration at all. But I really have to laugh at the young people around these parts talking about how bad mosquitoes are. A day's visit to the woods in the north country would thoroughly convince them that instead of the flies being bad here the torment they caused is very insignificant with that of the where they breed them.

ACTRESSES TURNED TO DISH WASHING

Troupe Arrived in Cobalt just in Advance of the Big Fire

Cobalt, July 6—Ten minutes after a troupe of girls arrived from Toronto to play at the "New Idle Hour" Theatre in vaudeville and extravaganza, the audiences in the Lyric Theatre were turned to an entirely new turn that was neither vaudeville nor extravaganza. It was a realistic drama entitled "The Feeding of the Hungry," and given on Saturday afternoon.

There was no singing nor dancing, nor any of the other clever skits that will grace the "Idle Hour" this week, but off with hats and gloves, on with white aprons, and up with sleeves, and behold, the "Imperial Girls Company" were carrying slices of bread and butter and ham, and cups of tea and coffee, and tin plates and cups, and knives, forks and spoons to hundreds of starving Italians, French, Poles, Syrians, German and Russian Jews, and a few English who crowded the Lyric seats.

This was their preparation for the rehearsal later in the afternoon, and this is only one of the hundreds of instances where Cobalt's men and women and children left their work to help the hungry sufferers. A bank manager's wife the same afternoon, was washing dishes and drying them upon the same mission of mercy.

DOGS ARE STILL CONGREGATIONABLE

Edward Taylor was charged at the police court this morning with not having secured a tag for a dog which made its home on his premises. He pleaded not guilty, and stated that the animal did not belong to him, but was owned by a man named Storey, who was in the habit of leaving it at his place. Storey had secured a tab, but the court was in doubt as to this, and the case was enlarged until to-morrow, when both parties will be present.

Gypsy Smith Is Facetious.

Gypsy Smith may not be a higher critic. He may not think any more of higher criticism than either Hon. S. H. Blake or Dr. Elmore Harris, but if the good old Bible is good enough for the evangelist, he doesn't exactly adopt the old method of imparting its teachings. An incident at one of his Toronto meetings indicated the soul-saver's attitude toward the stereotyped and dignified method of piloting the wanderer to the penitent bench.

It was at the close of one meeting, which was to be followed by an after meeting. The sedate gentleman acting as chairman had just requested the ushers to see that the women departed by way of certain doors.

"Don't let a single woman out by that door," he admonished the assistants down below. Then Gypsy Smith rose to his feet, with this correction or addition: "And don't let a married woman out that way either."

"You will break up the meeting," the chairman said, in mild rebuke; but the evangelist would not stay rebuked.

"It will break up the stiffness, you mean," was the way he came back at the dignified chairman, who, however, eventually recovered from the shock.

The Times and the Telegraphers.

The London Times likes to have its correspondence from Canada sent over the Marconi route. The Canadian land telegraph companies have no working agreement with that phantom conveyer of intelligence, and they have been charging the Thunderer full local commercial rates—thirty cents for ten words, instead of thirty cents a hundred—for delivering the goods at Glace Bay to the Marconi Co. The Times has applied to the Railway Commission to have this discrimination put an end to. The telegraph companies advance as justification the fact that The Times's reports are very much condensed, to which Chairman Mabee replies that every one who uses the telegraph condenses as much as possible. Evidently Judge Mabee is a bit old-fashioned. The Times deserves sympathy in its pioneer support of the ethereal system, but it had better beware. The telegraph companies may introduce the method of charging by the ton, and The Times's reports are reputed to be rather heavy.

Circular Has Been Sent to One Hundred and Eight of the Best Booking Agents—Good News for Farmers.

The following circular has been sent to one hundred and eight of the best booking agents in the British Isles and the farmers who need more help are assured that applicants will be of the necessary ability. The assistant superintendent of immigration was in this city recently and the local immigration agent, Mr. George Howson, stated the position of the farmers in this locality and the circular speaks for itself:

Sir,—Mr. G. H. Howson, Canadian Government Employment Agent at Peterborough, Ontario, informs me that he requires between now and the first of August, twenty-five experienced farmers' labourers at wages ranging from $10 to $15 per month, according to ability. If you can send Mr. Howson either the whole or part of this number before the first of August, they will be perfectly sure of securing good positions, but you should not direct any to him after that date without his assurance that he is still in a position to secure work for them. He also desires fifty domestic servants whose wages would be at the rate of $8 to $15 per month. These may be sent at any time of the year. Mr. Howson is one of the best agents of the department and those directed to him may feel sure of securing good positions if they follow his advice. I also wish to state that Mr. John S. Smith agent at Camlachie, Ont., died on May 31st. Kindly remove his name from the list of employment agencies.

Your obedient servant,
W. W. SCOTT,
Superintendent of Emmigration.

HALF TON TO ACRE AVERAGE OF HAY CROP IN COUNTY

Mr. E. M. Elliott, county clerk and treasurer, was on a trip to Gannon's Narrows yesterday, and took particular note of the condition of the crops. Mr. Elliott informed the Review today that hay is very light and will not average more than half a ton to the acre. Some farmers are getting only four or five loads off eight and ten acre fields. Lack of rain is responsible for the shortage.

Fall wheat is looking well, but barley is short, and will not be an average crop. The pea crop is in poor condition, and at the present time oats are standing still. A good rain in the next few days would do a lot, and farmers are longing for a good downpour. Haying is pretty general throughout the county.

McKENZIE AND MANN BUY RAVEN LAKE CEMENT WORKS

Lindsay, July 8.—Messrs. McKenzie and Mann, two of the greatest railway magnates in America, have purchased the Raven Lake Cement Co.'s works at Raven Lake, near Victoria road, and have commenced repairing the buildings and machinery.

They expect to commence operations in a short time and will employ a large gang of men. It will be remembered that the cement company made an assignment about a year ago, when the stockholders lost practically all the money they had invested in it, a number of Lindsay citizens having stock in the company.

The buildings and machinery are of a very modern type, and the new owners, who are both very progressive men, will no doubt make a success of their new undertaking. The cement manufactured by the former company was of the highest grade, and they gave as a reason for their assignment that they could not dispose of their cement owing to the great opposition in this part of the province. The new company have purchased six acres of clay from Mr. Osborne, near Kinmount, and it will be drawn by the G.T.R. via Lindsay and up to their works at Raven Lake.

DECORATION DAY WAS OBSERVED

By Oddfellows at Little Lake Cemetery Yesterday Afternoon—Graves Beautifully Adorned—Addresses by Members of the Local Clergy.

The annual ceremony of decorating the graves of deceased brethren was conducted yesterday afternoon by the Peterborough Oddfellows fraternity circumstances and conditions in which entered every element favorable to the occasion. The weather was of genial warmth tempered by refreshing breeze.

The general public in throngs co-operated with the large assembly of the brotherhood in the pious work of brightening even the ever beautiful Little Lake cemetery by piling with a profusion of floral tributes the green mounds that covered the ever remembered dead and the religious and semi-religious ceremonies in which city clergymen took part signalized the solemn, but grateful significance of the occasion.

This showed that death, all powerful as it seems, cannot break the triple bonds of brotherhood, which the principles and practices of the order forge or sever the ties which love and family relationship form. In affectionate and loving memory the grave disappears and the departed, but not lost, are in spirit present with us.

PROCESSION TO CEMETERY.

Shortly after 2.30 o'clock the Oddfellows marched in procession from Central Park to the cemetery being headed by the 57th band. As is usual on the Decoration Day parade each member in line carried a bouquet and there were about one hundred men in the parade. Lt.-Col. Miller was marshall.

THE GRAVES DECORATED.

When the procession entered the cemetery the Oddfellows gathered in front of the chapel, where the band accompanied the singing of "Nearer My God to Thee." Then Mr. Keith led in prayer, and the Oddfellows were divided in four sections and proceeded to decorate the graves of the following departed brethren;

The following is the list of the graves decorated;

Sheriff Hall, S. Albro, W. Gilbert, Richard Kingdon, W. H. Wrighton, Wm. Hall, Robt. Rowe, John H. Cameron D. Baillie, Jas. Hamilton, Dr. Wm. Bell, Arthur Rutherford, G. Rubidge, A. Baptie, W. C. Downer, D. Breeze, Nathon Nicholls, Steve Roadhouse, W. H. J. Vizard, C. Beauchere, W. S. Conger, John Reid., Dr. McNab, Jas. McKim, S. White, A. Wilson, J. W. Doxsee, Dr. Allen, Andrew Tully, J. Eastland, Dr. H. Bennett, C. A. White, F. Foote, A. McCallum, F. Logan, J. A. McDonald, A. Sawers, D. Carlisle, W. Beale, Jas. Bird, J. Swanton, John E. Parsons, John W. Armstrong, Jas. W. Crossley, W. Morse, L. E. Gillespie, Robt. Smyth, John Fanning, Jos. Phillips, Chevalier W. Smith, Jas. McWilliams Walter J. Roberts, John Frances, Thos. Connal, Col. McDanald, Fred Rubidge, Geo. Jenkins, F. Ferguson, Jas. Ferguson, Geo. McBurney, W. H. Scott, Jas. Foley, D. Sim, Wm. Galley, J. Martin, T. H. J. Buckett, A. Mooney, T. H. Foster, Geo. Milne, John Milne, J. Robinson, J. L. Hughes, Judge G. B. Hall, T. Fortye, C. Perry, W. Rombough, E. Chamberlain, Jas. Harvey.

THE ADDRESSES.

After the graves had been decorated the band gave several sacred selections on the green in the cemetery south of the chapel chosen for the musical portion of the ceremony. Mr. A. A. Fowler, D.D.G.M., presided at the proceedings which followed and called upon the Orpheus Quartette for a selection. The quartette sang several selections unaccompanied during the afternoon and rendered the numbers with great feeling and excellent tone blending.

Rev. H. J. Keith was the first speaker of the afternoon.

"We are here to-day," he said, "to speak the language of the flowers and flowers use the language of love."

"In India flowers were used to worship the horrible idols. How much better is it in our own Christian land that we learn to use flowers in commemoration of the ones we love.

There is no stronger message than these flowers can bring to us.

They speak to us of self-sacrifice. They also speak to us in all their beautiful fragrance of benevolence. The speaker asked his listeners to carry home with them the message these flowers gave.

In opening his address Rev. H. R. Trompour said that on an occasion like the one at which he addressed the Oddfellows and their friends the finest oratory in all language was called for and he almost hesitated to speak.

By the decoration of graves we had shown that nothing could keep those here from communing with those who had gone beyond.

There was a message from those who had gone before. One wandering through the sacred resting places of the dead one felt that he had communion with those who had gone before. The message from the dead was "Have faith in Christ." "Do good in Christ."

We should learn what the dead have to say to us and be faithful and pure and sincere. And we should learn that there was a perfection we should not miss.

Rev. J. R. Webb esteemed it a privilege to have even a small part in so important an occasion. On such an occasion it was a distinct advantage if a text that could be remembered could be given. The text he would give give was, "Forget it Not." In feeling terms he applied the text in reference to the departed ones whose memory had been honored that afternoon. We should not forget that those that we don't see are still ours. We should forget it not that we will join the great company of those who are departed.

Rev. H. C. Coon was the last speaker. He exceedingly expressed what had fallen on his ears during the afternoon. Mr. Coon stated he was not present only as a minister of the Gospel, but rather as a brother Oddfellow.

Speaking of the departed ones Mr. Coon stated that those who had gone before us would have us live the higher life. The very inception of the idea of Oddfellowship was that men should help one another. The time was when the speaker thought of the grave with shuddering, but he thanked God that he now realized that there was life in Him and from Him who arose from the tomb. Some of us would find our narrow cell before the year was over.

The speaker dwelt in complimentary terms on the splendid qualities of Oddfellowship and was impressed by the fine ceremony and the ritualistic work of the order.

The exercises were brought to a conclusion with benediction pronounced by Rev. J. G. Potter.

ENGINEER FRANCIS APPROVES PLANS FOR SMITH ST. BRIDGE

Endorses Plans Prepared by City Engineer Hay and Gives Further Advice Regarding the Work—By-law Will Be Voted Upon on July 29th.

The report of Mr. Walter J. Francis on Engineer Hay's plans for the Smith street bridge will probably be of interest to the ratepayers. It was presented to the Council as follows—

Harry Phelan, Esq.,
Chairman Board of Works,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—In accordance with your instructions of the 15th ultimo, I beg to report the result of my examination of the plans for the proposed reinforced concrete bridge over the Otonabee River at Smith street.

In view of your expressed desire to have my opinion at the earliest date possible, and of the fact that your city engineer had been unable to complete the drawings and specifications as early as was expected, to expedite matters I conferred with Mr. Hay at his office on several occasions in your city while working on the plans. As a result he was able to incorporate a number of features arising from our discussion on the subject.

I consider that the plans and specifications for the Smith street bridge dated June 19, 1909, will provide a reinforced concrete structure eminently well suited for the site and first-class in every respect. The structure will be permanent in character and will require practically no maintenance. It will be economical in cost. The general arrangement and appearance will be very pleasing.

There is no question as to the strength of the design. It will safely sustain your heaviest traffic. According to the present accepted rules of the art the sections of the steel and concrete are liberal, but this can only be criticized on the safe side.

As compared with steel under your conditions I consider the reinforced concrete arches to be preferable. In either case, the foundations and substructure would be practically the same, resolving the question into a comparison of the substructure. I believe bids would be in favor of the concrete, to say nothing of permanency, durability and appearance of the latter material.

A concrete railing on either side of the bridge is preferable to a steel one, being more fitting, more permanent, and practically no more costly.

The design of the foundation I find to be ample, judging from Mr. Hay's statement that he finds rock at one end of the bridge and boulders firmly embedded in clay at the other. This can only be determined absolutely from the earth at the time of excavation, and the tender provides for actual quantities in footings so no question can arise as to change of footings.

I would strongly recommend the application of a proper coat of asphalt to the extrados—the exterior curve—of the arch before the gravel filling is placed.

I believe it to be my duty in submitting my opinion on a subject of this character to add that co-operation on the part of all directly interested in the construction is necessary to insure success.

Reinforced concrete is on of the highest types of construction to-day, but it is one of the newest systems. It differs from the older types in this important feature, namely, that it is really manufactured at the site. Consequently it is at the site that care and skill must be exercised. I do not wish to be misunderstood as saying that it requires more care than other types, for it does not. The material for a steel bridge, for instance, is carefully handled by skilled persons in the smelters, rolling mills and bridge shops. It is made up by skilled mechanics under the most favorable conditions, and the oversight of competent inspectors. The reinforced concrete requires only a corresponding amount of care.

This leads me to the [illegible] construction, consider only the proposals of competent, reliable persons skilled in the art.

I trust you may have the best of success and satisfaction in your undertaking, and I wish to thank you for the honor of reporting on this

Yours truly,
WALTER J. FRANCIS,

ENAMORED OF CHINAMAN

Pittsburg Sunday School Teacher Found in Dive—Chinese Adepts in Love Making

Pittsburg, Pa., July 8.—Sarah Crew, a teacher in a Chinese Sunday school connected with the second Presbyterian church here, yesterday was sent to the House of the Good Shepherd, to be held as a witness against Lee Fulk, keeper of a Chinese dive, and a pupil of the young woman. The youthful teacher of the Chinaman was arrested in his half-restaurant and half-dive last Saturday, but the preliminary hearing was not held until this morning. When Lee Fulk was arraigned the girl was asked to testify against him. She broke into tears, declaring that the Chinaman always had treated her kindly and had given her presents, and that she had no desire to be instrumental in sending him to the penitentiary. After much questioning Miss Crew acknowledged that she first became enamored with Lee Fulk while teaching him the Ten Commandments. Each Sunday Lee would bring her some little present varying from a fan to a bottle of Chinese wine. He always treated her with the greatest of courtesy, she said, and finally requested her to call at his alleged restaurant. She began calling at the dive several weeks ago and finally allowed her yellow admirer to caress her. That was the beginning of the fatal end when the police broke into the place last Saturday, finding Miss Crew in the embrace of her admirer. In closing her tale Miss Crew declared that the Chinese are adepts in the art of love-making, and that by their ingratiating manner, and pigeon-toed English, are able, if given the opportunity, to win the heart of almost any American girl. Fulk was held under $1,000 bond on a charge of seduction, his American sweetheart being but seventeen years of age. There are several other charges to be lodged against him if this does not hold. During the preliminary hearing of Fulk Superintendent of Police McQuaide was laboring with Miss Lillian Ray, another teacher in the Chinese Sunday School, endeavoring to persuade her to give up teaching. "I will do it next week perhaps," she answered, "but my Chinaman promised me a handsome bracelet and I propose to get it."

THE NEW PASTOR WAS WELCOMED

Rev. Mr. Brown Extended Hearty Reception by Congregation

A very successful meeting was held on Tuesday evening in St. James' Methodist church to welcome the new pastor, Rev. Mr. Brown. There was an interesting programme, Mr. Petley taking the chair. It consisted of gramophone selections, choruses by the choir and a duet by Mrs. Rehill and Mr. Pollard. Mr. Cressman welcomed the new pastor on behalf of the trustees, Mr. Preat on behalf of the Sunday school and Mrs. Robinson on behalf of the Ladies' Aid Society. Rev. Mr. Soper and Rev. Mr. Brown addressed the meeting and Mr. Kitney offered the opening prayer. A very profitable and enjoyable evening was spent. Light refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake were served in the basement and a very pleasant evening was brought to a close with the singing of the doxology.

GYPSIES CALLED AT MILLBROOK

The Peterborough gypsies on their tramp eastward struck Millbrook on Friday last and excited considerable interest and some misgivings whilst they replenished up their larder in town. Chief Miller and Constable Nattress escorted them on their way south as far as Carmel, where they put up for the night, and moved on to Port Hope in the morning. They behaved very well en route, only helping themselves to some supplies from the gardens and fields on the way.—Millbrook Reporter.

GYPSIES HAVE LEFT KINGSTON

The gypsies who kept the authorities on the jump yesterday have left this district. They told the police that their destination was Ottawa. A couple of their Pullmans were brought over to the city last night for repair, and this gave some of the party an opportunity to do a little sight-seeing. The officers kept a strict eye on them, however, and saw that they behaved themselves.—Kingston Standard.

OVER FOUR HUNDRED MINERS WALKED OUT AT INVERNESS

Company Declares That Situation Shows Still More Improvement—Few Signs of Disorder Visible Since Soldiers Arrive—Several Arrests.

Glace Bay, N.S., July 10.—The usual calm that follows the storm obtained at all the Dominion collieries yesterday morning. Quite a number of men were on hand ready to go to work under military protection. Several of the men who were passing through the gate on their way to work were accosted by U.M.W. men and asked not to go to work, but there was no attempt at interference.

The number of men working yesterday is larger than on any day since the declaration of the strike, and by to-day the company expects to have a full complement of men in the mines.

The U.M.W. executive have notified the Nova Scotia Steel & Coal Co. that in the event of their furnishing coal to the Dominion Iron & Steel Co. a strike will be declared at the Sydney Mines collieries.

A new feature yesterday occurred at Inverness. There has been trouble brewing for a fortnight at Inverness colliery, which is operated by the Inverness and Richmond Coal & Railway Co., controlled by Mackenzie and Mann. Last week E. H. McCullough, vice-president of the U.M.W., who is in Glace Bay as chief organizer of the strike, visited Inverness, accompanied by another organizer, Peter Patterson. They returned to Glace Bay Thursday reporting everything quiet at Inverness. Yesterday morning, without giving any notice to the coal company, one-half of the men at Inverness, numbering about 400, remained off work, and only members of the P.W.A. were working yesterday.

Disturbances similar to those that have occurred during the past few days at Glace Bay are now feared at the Inverness colliery, which is situated on the other side of Cape Breton Island. There is a strike now on at Port Hood, 16 miles from Inverness. The cause of the strike at Inverness is the refusal of the company to officially recognize the U.M.W.

Everything is quiet at Glace Bay so far as outward appearances go, but a hundred little frictions make the situation look less bright than it might otherwise appear, though there is no need for disquietude. The soldiers have gone into camp and as yet no complete arrangements have been made regarding the disposition of the majority of the militia. The company officials were in touch with Col. Wadmore yesterday, and no doubt arrangements have been made for their distribution. Gen. Drury arrived yesterday from Halifax.

All the available revolvers in the town have been bought up. Not only have the small firearms been all purchased, but the large consignment of Enfield rifles condemned by the Government and sent to Glace Bay a few months ago to be sold at private sale have all found ready purchasers.

The coal company's claim that its vast interests in Glace Bay could not be protected by the civic administration, no matter how capable the force at its command, has aroused the animosity of the Town Council, and correspondence and diplomatic interviews between the two big corporations waxes warm.

There have been several arrests made. One attended with some importance took place at No. 4. A Polish woman stopped a man from going to work by throwing dry ashes at him. A company's constable arrested the woman, but later on dropped her and arrested a man for interfering with the arrest of the woman. Afterwards it was found that the man arrested was a town constable who had no badge on. Yesterday morning the town issued a warrant against the company for interfering with its police.

Good feeling exists between the soldiers and the strikers, as evidenced by the football match between teams from the strikers and the soldiers.

Illicit Still at Cobalt.

Cobalt, July 10.—A sensation was caused yesterday morning by the discovery among the fire ruins of the remains of an illicit still, which had apparently been doing quite an extensive trade before the fire. The indications are that spruce boughs were used in the manufacture of a vile liquid which was sold extensively among the "blind pigs," which supplied to a large extent the foreign element with their liquid requirements.

NEW COTTAGES ARE COMPLETED

Two Handsome Summer Homes on Pigeon Lake

Mr. Percy Fitzgerald and a staff of men have returned from Pigeon Lake, where Mr. Fitzgerald had the contract for building two cottages and a large boathouse. The cottages are now ready for occupation and belong to Mr. A. A. Hollingshead, of Peterborough, and Mr. E. Heaton, of Toronto. The boathouse will be used by both parties.

Mr. Fitzgerald says that there is excellent fishing in Pigeon lake, many catches having been made.

FINED FOR SHOOTING AT THE ITALIAN FLAG

New York, July 10.—"I don't care what flag it was, you had no right to shoot it down and I will fine you $25 for doing it," said Judge Wilcox of Portchester, N.Y., when Harold Conant, a patriotic grocer, was arraigned before him on a charge of shooting down an Italian flag.

The trouble was caused when Guiseppe Maduro put up an Italian flag in front of his home. Conant, who is the senior member of a grocery firm, demanded that the Stars and Stripes be run up on the top of the Italian flag, and when the Italian refused Conant went to his home, several blocks away and returned with a shotgun. He shot away the halyards supporting the flag.

Dr. Chown of Toronto, deprecating the trend to socialism, said:

"Every reform must have a religious basis. An industrial system with a secular foundation must fail. The doctrine that each man must look out for himself is a theism applied to business. The millionaire and the tramp are alike loafers in the sight of God, whose only way of making the desert bloom is by labor. ## FOOLISH VOW OF SUFFRAGETTES

Have Hit Upon Starvation Scheme to Fight the Law.

London, July 10.—Sir Albert De Rutzen, chief magistrate of the metropolitan Police Court, yesterday decided against the suffragettes on the point raised by Miss Pankhurst, regarding the right to present a petition to Premier Asquith, and the court sentenced Miss Pankhurst to pay a fine of $25 or go to prison for a month on the charge of resisting the police.

Miss Pankhurst declared that her assault on Police Inspector Jarvis on the night of June 0, when 116 suffragettes were arrested for trying to force their way into the House of Commons, was her "guage of battle to the Government and defiance for its constitutional ways.

"I was aware," continued Miss Pankhurst, "that when I started that deputation of eight helpless women, about whom men armed with opera glasses had congregated to watch, as though it was a good show, it was bound to result in humiliation; but until women have the power to elect representatives to Parliament it is their duty to maintain the right of a subject to petition the King through Parliament. If the magistrate repeats his former sentences we will go to prison, but we will not conform any longer with the prison regulations. As political offenders we will insist on being treated as such and not as ordinary prisoners, and in the last resort we will act as did Miss Dunlop."

Miss Dunlop secured her release yesterday by starving herself for 91 hours.

Mrs. Havergal, daughter of Lord Abinger, was given the same sentence as Miss Pankhurst. Both the women notified the court of their intention to appeal from the judgment, and they were released by the magistrate on promising to abstain from sending further deputations to the House of Commons during the present session.

Montreal, July 10.—O. H. Bachelder of Newport, Vermont, and J. Twohey of Montreal, a McGill student, were killed at the second annual races of the Canadian Automobile Club on the Blue Bonnets track yesterday afternoon.

Bachelder was driving a sixty horsepower Stearns car in the ten-mile open race for stock touring cars, Twohey acting as his mechanic.

On the eighth mile, rounding into the back stretch, Bachelder pulled out to pass Burman.

What then happened nobody knows. The Sterns was seen to dash into the fence, fly over the embankment and come to a stop forty yards beyond. The two occupants were thrown into the air.

When assistance arrived Twohey was found dead with his neck broken. Bachelder was still breathing, but was horribly mutilated, one stake having torn out his bowels and another knocked a great gash in his chest. He was placed in an ambulance and rushed to the Royal Victoria Hospital, but died just after being admitted.

The car was the property of Lorne [illegible] His entry was refused on Thursday night, but yesterday, when he secured the services of Bachelder, who was a science graduate of McGill, it was accepted.

CROP REPORTS ARE ISSUED HAVE BEEN MANY DRAWBACKS

The Low Temperatures and Cold Rains in May and June Delayed Grains and Roots—Maritime Provinces Yield Will be Good Despite the Drouth.

Ottawa, July 10.—A bulletin on the condition of crops and live stock in Canada at date of July 1 has been issued by the census and statistics office, based on the reports of a large staff of correspondents.

Low temperature and cold rains prevailed over the whole of Canada in May and the early part of June, which delayed seeding and checked vegetation. Then followed a period of drouth throughout the northern and eastern parts of Ontario, the western and southern sections of Quebec and nearly the whole of the Maritime Provinces. Grain, hay and root crops were consequently in poor condition in all those regions. On both sides of the St. Lawrence, in the lower parts of Quebec and in the southwestern counties of Ontario, there were copious showers in June, and all crops were looking well at the end of the month. Fall wheat would be ready for reapers in the second week of July.

A feature of the season, however, has been a series of showers over local areas, and the conditions of crops are irregular. But there is a note of hope in the reports of many correspondents, encouraged by the widely extended rains of June 28 and 29, and in the Maritiem Provinces, where the drouth was most severely left, there were heavy rains on July 7. British Columbia has had a like experience of dry weather in June, with rains at the end of the month, and fall wheat is the only good crop there.

In the northwest provinces, fine growing weather followed the seeding of spring wheat, oats and barley, and correspondents throughout Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta are jubilant at the prospects. Rainfall was ample to the end of June, except in a few localities, and although seeding operations were delayed, cereals and grasses are nearly as well advanced as in any previous year.

"Ideal" is the favorite word of many correspondents, and it was generally expected that spring wheat would be out in ear by July 10. In Alberta fall wheat was badly winter-killed, and much of the land has been re-sown with spring wheat, oats and barley. Spring wheat was heading out at the end of June in the southern parts of Alberta.

In the case of all the grains, except fall wheat, the per cent. condition is higher this year than it was last year; hay and clover and pasture are lower. In the three northwest provinces the average condition of spring wheat at the first of July was 95,53 and of oats 96.56.

LATE NEWS FROM MANY LOCALITIES

Delegate Has Fever.

Winnipeg, July 10.—Mlle. Lafontaine, Belgian delegate to the women's quinquennial conference, held recently in Toronto, and who was among the number of visitors to this city, is now in the General Hospital suffering from scarlet fever. The supposition is that Mlle. Lafontaine was exposed to the same source of infection as Her Excellency Lady Grey, or contracted the disease at Rideau Hall. Luckily the case is not very severe.

Eaten by Alligators.

Pensacola, Fla., July 10.—With the bones stripped of flesh by alligators, the body of Herman Wilcox of Chicago was found in Good Time Lake, two miles from Camp Walton, a summer resort, where Wilcox has been residing with his mother for the past two months. Not knowing that the lake contained hundreds of alligators Wilcox went in for a swim.

They Fought a Duel.

Paris, July 10.—M. Caillaux, the Minister of Finance, who was struck in the face as he was leaving the Senate chamber on Thursday by Charles Bos, a former deputy, fought a duel with his assailant yesterday afternoon on the Bois Vincennes.

After the exchange of two shots, which did no damage, the duellists left the field, unreconciled.

Had Deserted Husband.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 10.—The body of the woman killed by George England, railroad brakeman, Wednesday night, was claimed yesterday by W. D. M. Estill of Youngstown, her husband, who says she deserted him two years ago. England and the woman were known by neighbors as man and wife.

Cattle Killed by Hail.

St. Petersburg, July 10.—Hailstorms of unusual severity are reported from Saratov, Pavlograd and Yekaterinobar. Many peasants and great numbers of horses and cattle have been killed, and the fields have been devastated. It is estimated that the loss will reach into the millions.

Went to Sleep With Hogs

London, July 10.—Arthur Smith of Hamilton, the young colored man who got drunk last week and went to sleep in a car load of hogs, was yesterday morning fined $5 and costs. Smith left the car door open and several hogs escaped. The railwaymen chased them about and finally captured them, otherwise Smith would have had to pay for them.

On a Serious Charge.

Brantford, July 10.—In the Police Court yesterday Joseph Bowes, chairman of the Brantford Board of Health, was charged with an attempted offence. Thursday night an information laid by the parents of a seven-year-old girl Bowes was taken in custody, and later released on bail of $1,000. Yesterday morning he pleaded "not guilty," and was remanded until Tuesday.

Suit Case Filled With Guncotton.

Detroit, July 10.—As an outcome, the police think, of labor troubles, a suit case containing guncotton was placed under a pile of steel girders early yesterday in the yard of the Whitehead & Kales' plant on Beecher avenue, and exploded. The terrible explosion wrecked windows for half a mile around.

Fraud Alleged.

Montreal, July 10.—A warrant has been issued by Judge Choquette for the arrest of Major R. G. Leckie of Sudbury, on the complaint of William Marshall, who alleges fraud in connection with a mining deal. The Grey Siding Development Co. is the concern involved.

A Manager Arrested.

Guelph, July 10.—James Edward Brown, general manager of the Brown-Lee Chemical Co., was arrested Thursday night at the Central Hotel, and yesterday morning was remanded to jail for a week on two charges of obtaining money under false pretences.

Japan After Dreadnoughts.

Tokio, July 10.—It is reported that Japan will acquire the three Brazilian Dreadnoughts building in England.

BACK-YARDS

The difference between Peterborough, as it is, and just as it used to be, in respect of its back yards, is enormous. For some reason the old-time back yard was left to chips, cans, old broken boards, discarded boots and shoes, dishevelled grass, a pile, or piles, of nondescript rubbish in the corners, perhaps a child's house, with its amusing disorder, but usually an altogether hopeless ugliness. At last some one started the idea of "cleaning up," and it became general. It was just as natural to clean up the yard as it was to wash the face, if not "more naturaler." Then someone with a love of flowers planted the idea. The sunflower and a few sweet peas were put first near where the broken boards used to be in the fence-corner. The trimming of the grass followed. The soul found its refreshment in the new order of peace and beauty. A humble little old roughcast, lopsided, tenement surrounded by howling dogs, screaming cats and noisy, obstreperous children had become in the rear a small park. The good woman of the house could sit on her wee back verandah, or at the back door, and rejoice in a sight of her geraniums, now nicely coming on. "The old man" lights his pipe, gets his week-old paper, and with a face of satisfaction and an air of repose and well-doing, joins her and applauds her successful efforts. A plentiful sprinkling of the beflowered tomato cans and a shower over the flower-beds with the grass borders, gave them new life, and thus one by one the steps are taken to make the "back-yard" a joy to the eye, and a breath of June to the tired nostrils. It is all just as good as going away, and can be done more cheaply. The price of a ticket round the lakes near home, would provide a whole gardenful of flowers. Then in the winter they are brought in and cared for like children, only they are such pretty, always clean, happy and quiet children. The joy of a clean lawn and of a plot of trimmed and watered grass and flower-beds is more than can be told in a book. It is a perpetual source of sweetness and gladness. It not only refreshes the eye, but it softens and beautifies the temper. Gossip is only another form of ugliness and ugliness of any sort is incompatible with the loveliness of flowers. Such a well-cut grass plot is delighting. Many have done these things, more are learning the "good" of them, and at last it will be found that the best substitute for drugs, illness, a piano, and the other burdens of life will be found in the back-yard flower garden. A vegetable garden serves a double purpose, no doubt, but on no account neglect the sunflower, the geranium, the phlox and the begonia. It will pay you in the end and give solace after a weary day as nothing else can.

THE MAMOTH

The mammoth lived a matter of a millenium of centuries ago. He is occasionally found embedded in the ice. After a 100,000 years his flesh is quite fit to eat. It is plain that there are no microbes in that ice. But it has been customary for some scientific men to say that the frozen from above and that pressure made a glacier of it. Another class of scientist say that a seismic submergence of the land let in the sea, and that he was swallowed up in it, that the land partly rose again and that the mammoth found himself frozen in to a huge brick. It was a process so sudden that undigested food remained in his stomach. One would think that the difference between the two theories could easily be settled. If the glacier is salt it came from the sea, if fresh then from aloft. Nothing more interesting and puzzling greets the zoologist than this finding of the 100,000 years old mammoth in a perfect state of glacial preservation.

WATER! WATER!

It now transpires, if you please, that a new and very deadly form of bacterium has been discovered in sewage, so that tests are not all that they seem by any means. Water that any man in his senses would know to be bad, was said very often to be "good" by the analysts. With this wholly erroneous assurance the good people of this province would take another pull at the water-jug and go to bed in the sure and certain hope of a glorious resurrection in the morning. But now, it seems, that the testing apparatus was not up to requirements. While the various "germs" hitherto known would sail about and nibble at the analyst's bait, the anarobe paid no more attention to it than a chronic beat to a dun. All this time therefore we have been swallowing the deadliest bacterium of them all without knowing it. We may have to revise our ideas of water and we may find that Stony Lake, Young's Point and Lakefield sewage is not the best form of drinking water after all and certainly it is not the most refreshing. When we get municipal artesian wells such as supply Winnipeg, then how we shall rejoice in a really good refreshing draught of pure water taken from a depth beyond the microbe's ken or the bacterium's ravages. It's coming. There need be no mistake about that. But let there be at least one good lesson learned from all the analytic jargon. Correct so far as it goes, analysis may not be able to go far enough and what it does not find is not necessarily "not there." We have been content to bow to the Government analyst in token of submission to his statement that sewage from Stony Lake is pleasant and healthful but in the future, look out for us. We feel that we have been fooled.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A concrete bridge at Smith street means the work all done here. A steel bridge would mean that very little of our own money would find its way back into our pockets.

A city cotem has an advertisement to the effect that it has "a second-hand Bible for sale; little used."

It's raining. Couldn't some politician manage to claim the credit of it? It is time for the outriders to get busy.

Why is it that so much Canadian capital is invested abroad? Millions upon millions of Canadian money are invested in Mexico in water-powers and irrigating lands. Much is also used in the American stock market. It looks as if this were not a good country for the investor.

VENTURED INTO CIVILIZATION

And the Groundhog List is Reduced by One

It is an unusual thing to do any groundhog hunting in the residential section of the city, but Thursday afternoon one of these little burrowers was unfortunate enough to encounter unfriendly persons, and as the result of an impromptu assault Mr. Groundhog was soon despatched. It was at the corner of Smith street and Benson Avenue that the tragedy occurred after considerable skirmishing around by the pursuing party.

DISMISSED THE ACTION WITH COSTS

His Honor Judge O'Connell Gives Judgment in the Case of Burnham vs. Ackerman

His Honor Judge O'Connell gave judgment this morning in the case of Burnham vs. Ackerman, dismissing the action with costs. Mr. Z. Burnham, of Otonabee, sued Mr. Ackerman, of Norwood, for trespass, the alleged offence taking place on some property near Crowe's Landing, Stoney Lake. The plaintiff disputed the claim of defendant to a right of way through plaintiff's property. Mr. W. H. Moore, K.C., appeared for defendant, and Mr. F. D. Kerr for the defendant.

LINGERING WEAKNESS FOLLOWING DISEASE

Can be Banished by the Wonderful Tonic Powers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

How often it is that the victims of diseases—fevers, measles, la grippe or other contagious troubles are weak and ailing, even after the disease itself has disappeared. They do not pick up strength as they ought; remain listless, tired and discouraged. The reason for this is that the blood has been impoverished by the ravages of the disease through which the victim has passed. Strength will not return until the blood is enriched. The blood can be enriched by no other medicine as quickly and as surely as by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People—to enrich the blood and strengthen the nerves is the whole duty of these pills—thousands have found them beneficial in bringing strength after disease had left them weak and run down. Among those who owe good health to these Pills is Miss Laura Hisco, New Ross, N.B., who says:—"Following an attack of measles I was left greatly run down and suffered from a bad cough. I was advised to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and procured half a dozen boxes. Before they were all gone I had regained my strength, my cough had disappeared and I was once more enjoying perfect health."

The experience of Miss Hisco is that of many others. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make new, rich, red blood. This new blood strengthens the nerves and banishes such ailments as rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago dyspepsia, etc., and brings the glow of health to pale cheeks. The Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Grass stains may be removed by saturating in paraffin before washing.

To remove paint from linens rub the cloth with turpentine, then clean with French chalk dampened with alcohol.

Table linen should be dampened thoroughly and ironed until dry. It will then have enough gloss and stiffness to suit the most fastidious.

Furniture polish—two ounces linseed oil, two ounces alcohol, four drops aniline, four drops wintergreen. Put on and rub with a flannel cloth.

To take mildew from linen rub the spot with soap; scrape chalk over it and rub it well; lay it on the grass in the sun; as it dries wet it a little. It will come out with two applications.

To clean furniture, if rough, rub it with powdered pumice. If simply dirty, rub with diluted vinegar, which will cut grease and remove dirt. Then polish with some good furniture polish.

Violets after they have been worn will come out fresh and almost as good as new by clipping the stems without cutting the bouquet apart and putting the flowers into a deep glass of water, covering the heads with waxed paper and setting them in the refrigerator.

Muslin dresses of delicate colors should not be washed with soap. The best fluid to wash them in is rice water, made by boiling one pound of rice in one gallon of water. Reserve a quart of the water for starching; then wash the dress in the remainder. Rinse in clear or slightly blued water; then starch the dress in the remaining quantity of rice water and iron quickly.

FLOUR BARREL WITH SOAP BOX ON TOP SERVED AS PULPIT AT COBALT SERVICE

Interesting Description of Divine Service in the Silver City—Fourth of a Series of Articles on Cobalt Written for the Review by Mr. Walter F. Stewart

Continued.

I enclosed my last letter with a description of the opening of our first school in North Cobalt. I quite forgot to mention that there is also a Separate school here, which was opened a short time after ours; it is also filled, and their trustees will be obliged to construct an addition to their building.

The school problem was hardly settled when I was confronted with the church question. All denominations called. First came a Methodist minister, who wanted to know where he could hold service on Sunday evenings. We donated them three lots on which to erect a church, but as they were not prepared to build just then, it was arranged that they should use a large room over a general store. This was fitted up with rough lumber laid across nail kegs, which answered for pews; a flour barrel with a soap box on top was the pulpit, and the collection plate consisted of the minister's hat. This was all very primitive for a church, but everyone was just as happy, and there was just as much heartiness in the preaching and singing as if they were in a building surrounded with all the comforts of a city edifice. The Church of England, as I mentioned in my last letter, I established in the school house, the service being held in the afternoons at three, Sunday school at two. The first service was held on January 5th, 1908, by the Rev. Mr. Cowling, of Haileybury. Our congregation was small, but has since since grown rapidly, and now we have a very pretty little church of our own, built by our own exertions and constant attention. I will here give my readers a description of how we erected a church without asking for a single donation, without any outside assistance to commence with, just as we went on the help came voluntarily. Seven of us got together one evening last summer, and decided that we must build a church. We had three lots set aside by our company for the purpose, and it was our duty, if possible, to make some move towards that end. (We were averse to asking for downstairs and decided that we would try a concert. (Our Sunday offerings were too small to count on, but still were piling up, and in time would amount to something. In the evening we devoted our time to practising quartettes, duets, solos and recitations. We did not know who to look to for assistance in getting up a programme, so it fell to us seven. We scraped together all the talent that was in us, and looked back on our past lives to try and think on what occasion we ever displayed any talent, and the result. In the day time we men put in all the time we could spare, first in cleaning up the lots, then getting out stone for the foundation. We went to the rocky side of the townsite with crow-bars, sledge hammers and picks, and there heaved and broke out blocks of stone, which we hauled by team to the building site. There we had masons laying them in position and soon the foundation was built. It was hard, after using our strength all day at stone quarrying to put in the evening practicing singing. Our voices sounded tired, but we were doing our best in a good cause.

We held our first concert August 1st, 1908, in a bottling factory. It was a large building for this country, seating about 350. A few days before the concert we all turned out and built a stage, borrowed chairs and lamps from every house in the town. Well, we simply sprung a surprise on everyone. The concert was a success and netted us $75, but we were greatly assisted by people from Cobalt and Haileybury, who attended and liberally patronized our candy and ice cream tables. We also had the able assistance of Buffalo friends who were staying with us in decorating the stage and hall and taking part in the concert. After the concert, of course the young people wanted to dance. The chairs were piled up at one end of the room; two fiddlers and some one to "call off" were secured, placed upon our stage, and it did not take the dancers long to get busy. We performers went home to take our much-needed rest, preparatory to entering into the active operations of church building next day. So successful was our first venture in raising money and at the same time pleasing our audience, that we decided to continue by giving a concert at least once a month.

On September 15th we gave our second, and this time added an ice cream social which was just as successful as the former one, netting us about the same amount. The third we gave in New Liskeard on the evening of October 1st, the distance from North Cobalt is eight miles, and here we met with our Waterloo. The evening was cold and stormy with snow. Very few turned out to patronize our concert. We had brought with us five gallons of the best ice cream—ordered all the way from Toronto—but no one could get up courage to even taste it. We tumbled through our programme and longed for the time when we could pack up for home. At midnight a big lumber wagon and a tired team could be seen wending their way back to North Cobalt, with seven wearies perched up on hard seats with a five-gallon tub full of strawberry-flavored ice cream standing in their midst, every jerk of the wagon sending it falling over into somebody's lap. The gentlemen, in trying to save the ladies from a deluge, would receive a bump on the knees and try to smile. Snow was falling fast, making the occupants of the wagon look like ghosts absorbed in very glowing forebodings. We had lost money in our venture, and what was going to be done with all this ice cream? It made us shiver to think of it, so we would forget it until the next bump came. Then we got a full reminder. Next day we found there was to be a dance in the bottling factory, so we turned the ice cream over to the committee and asked them to sell it for us, but the weather turned even colder, so no one could be induced to risk their lives for our accommodation, but they ate a little. Well we bounced that tub of ice cream all over the township with the same result, and we finally fed it to the hens. Even they took it up in their beaks, and threw it at one another. They were a funny looking bunch, and speckled all over with strawberry juice-cream. They helped us out as best they could, and paid us in eggs. Our next move was to make up the loss sustained in the New Liskeard concert by carrying our campaign into the largest mines. It was now well into winter, the sleighing good, and the performers fresh and eager for the new venture. I was advance and advertising agent, stage carpenter and comic singer. The first mine we undertook to inflict with our songs and variations was "Kerr Lake" where there are some two hundred men employed; the [illegible] reserve adjoining them about the same number. We posted up notices about a week before, and when we bundled out of our sleigh on the evening of the concert with our hand organ, we found the place packed. A stage had been erected out of heavy planking just dug out of the snow making them very slippery so we couldn't look as dignified as we might. The room was large, electric lighted and filled with as rough a looking lot of men you could imagine. They were miners from all parts of the world. Now a miner is hard to please; he is very matter-of-fact and critical to harshness. He won't part with his money for nothing; give him something that will please him in the way of entertainment and he is lavish with it. We did not charge an entrance fee or sell tickets but risked the idea of a collection. It was an awful risk but we were game if they were. The quartette taken by two ladies and two gentlemen were well received, as also a recitation and duet. Then a timid little lady appeared in a solo rather frightened at that hard-looking array of faces but her sweet voice captivated the crowd and they simply roared their applause. Then I came in arrayed in the grandeur of an Irish costume. The first thing I looked at was the slippery stage of melting snow, and then at the audience to see if there were any eggs handy for if they had any they were as old as my songs. This would decidedly be my last appearance. But they were kind to me through the first verse. I saw a slight ripple run over their cheek bones; second verse, a slight contortion round the mouths; the chorus brought their feet into beating time, and smiles to their faces; the following verses, where I had introduced local hits about themselves, brought down the house, and I was safe. This was the time to take up the collection, two of our ladies went down through that rough crowd with tin plates.

Not once were they insulted nor was there the slightest hint of such, nothing but respect and good will was expressed, and they came back with their plates laden with silver and bills. During the intermission some fancy work, consisting of hand-painted cushions, centre pieces and frames were produced by one of our lady performers, all her own work, you may think these out of place, in such an audience, but on being put up at auction the miners bid readily and bid high, as high as $7 for one piece. In a very few minutes seven pieces of work went for about $30.

The concert ended with "God Save the King," in which the miners joined most heartily, all rising to their feet and remained so until the anthem was concluded.

We drove home the seven miles in a happy mood, through the bracing and frosty atmosphere making the woods ring with our songs and choruses, receiving hearty applause from the many mining camps we passed through. We gave several concerts during the remainder of the winter in towns and mining camps and now we have a church we are all proud of and nearly all paid for. We are not talented artists but we made the best of what we had and built a church, costing $1,500.

Last Christmas we gave the children a Christmas tree and they gave us a concert in return during the evening. The preparation for this was like the good old times, we went into the bush ourselves cut the tree, and evergreens for decorations, the children hauling them to the school house on their hand sleighs. But it is rather out of season now to tell Christmas stories so I won't dwell on the subject, further than the talent displayed by the little children in their songs and recitations, great credit on themselves as well as their instructors.

At this date we are housing in North Cobalt many families who were sufferers in the late Cobalt fire. Every available shack, shed and space, I am putting at their disposal, the very bottling factory, where we held our church concerts, is sheltering some twelve families. Their distress is becoming lessened each day as donations and other assistance arrives hourly.

Yours faithfully,
WALTER F. STEWART.

THE Masquerader

Author of "The Circle," Etc.

"Yes—a girl of nineteen, the ward of a great politician. It was a brilliant marriage, politically as well as socially, but it didn't work. I was born without the capacity for love. First the social life palled on me, then my work grew irksome. There was only one factor to make life endurable—morphia. Before six months were out I had fully admitted that."

"But your wife?"

"Oh, my wife knew nothing—knows nothing. It is the political business, the beastly routine of the political life, that is wearing me out." He stopped nervously, then hurried on again. "I tell you it's hard to see the same faces, to sit in the same seat day in, day out, knowing all the time that you must hold yourself in hand, must keep your grip on the reins"—

"It is always possible to apply for the Chiltern Hundreds."

"To retire? Possible to retire?" Chilcote broke into a loud, sarcastic laugh. "You don't know what the local pressure of a place like Wark stands for. Twenty times I have been within an ace of chucking the whole thing. Once last year I wrote privately to Vale, one of our big men there, and hinted that my health was bad. Two hours after he had read my letter he was in my study. Had I been in Greenland the result would have been the same. No; resignation is a meaningless word to a man like me."

Loder looked down. "I see," he said slowly; "I see."

"Then you see everything—the difficulty, the isolation of the position. Five years ago—three—even two years ago—I was able to endure it. Now it gets more unbearable with every month. The day is bound to come when — when" — he paused, hesitating nervously—"when it will be physically impossible for me to be at my post."

Loder remained silent.

"Physically impossible," Chilcote repeated excitedly. "Until lately I was able to calculate—to count upon myself to some extent—but yesterday I received a shock—yesterday I discovered that—that"—again he hesitated painfully—"that I have passed the stage when one may calculate."

The situation was growing more embarrassing. To hide its awkwardness, Loder moved back to the grate and rebuilt the fire, which had fallen low.

Chilcote, still excited by his unusual vehemence, followed him, taking up a position by the mantelpiece.

"Well?" he said, looking down.

Very slowly Loder rose from his task. "Well?" he reiterated.

"Have you nothing to say?"

"Nothing, except that your story is unique and that I suppose I am flattered by your confidence." His voice was intentionally brusque.

Chilcote paid no attention to the voice. Taking a step forward he laid his fingers on the lapel of Loder's coat.

"I have passed the stage where I can count upon myself," he said, "and I wish to count upon somebody else. I want to keep my place in the world's eyes and yet be free"—

Loder drew back involuntarily, contempt struggling with bewilderment in his expression.

Chilcote lifted his head. "By an extraordinary chance," he said, "you can do for me what no other man in creation could do. It was suggested to me unconsciously by the story of a book—a book in which men changed identities. I saw nothing in it at the time, but this morning, as I lay in bed, sick with yesterday's fiasco, it came back to me. It rushed over my mind in an inspiration. It will save me and make you. I'm not insulting you, though you'd like to think so."

Without remark Loder freed himself from the other's touch and walked back to his desk. His anger, his pride, and, against his will, his excitement were all aroused.

He sat down, leaned his elbow on the desk and took his face between his hands. The man behind him undoubtedly talked madness; but after five years of dreary sanity madness had a fascination. Against all reason it stirred and roused him. For one instant his pride and his anger faltered before it, then common sense flowed back again and adjusted the balance.

"You propose," he said slowly, "that for a consideration of money I should trade on the likeness between us and become your dummy, when you are otherwise engaged?"

Chilcote colored. "You are unpleasantly blunt," he said.

"But I have caught your meaning?"

"In the rough, yes."

Loder nodded curtly. "Then take my advice and go home," he said. "You're unhinged."

The other returned his glance, and as their eyes met Loder was reluctantly compelled to admit that, though the face was disturbed, it had no traces of insanity.

BABY'S GREAT DANGER DURING HOT WEATHER

More children die during the hot weather than at any other time of the year. Diarrhœa, stomach troubles come without warning, and when a medicine is not at hand to give prompt relief, the delay may prove fatal to the child. Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in every home where there are children during the hot weather months. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent deadly summer complaints, or cure them if they come unexpectedly. Mrs. O. Moreau, St. Tite, Que., says: "My baby suffered from a severe attack of cholera infantum, but after giving him Baby's Own Tablets the trouble disappeared, and he regained health splendidly." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

RAIN WORTH THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS TO COUNTRY

To-day's rain will be worth thousands of dollars to the country.

Burnt-up pastures and fields of grain that have been standing still for lack of moisture will respond to the welcome downpour from the clouds. The rain was sucked up by earth almost as quickly as it fell, and drooping nature was refreshed into life anew.

It is hard to estimate the amount of good the rain will do throughout the country.

"It can rain all day without doing any harm," remarked a farmer this morning, and this opinion seemed to be general. Oats, barley, peas and fall wheat, as well as the potato, corn and root crops will all be greatly benefitted. In the city the parks and squares which were badly burnt up, will take on new verdure.

FIVE DOLLAR BILL CAUSED LOT OF TROUBLE LAST NIGHT

Kenneth Hurd, is rather a small boy and last night when he presented a five dollar bill to Mr. William Lundy to change, Mr. Lundy came to the conclusion that the bill was too large to be in the possession of the boy and thinking that he must have found it kept it and took it over to the police station. He explained the matter to P. C. Adams and the latter said he didn't care to take the bill.

After Mr. Lundy had left the boy hove in sight and told his story. The officer went out after Mr. Lundy, but he had gone too long to find him and notify him that the boy had been given the money by his father to change.

Kenneth went home and told his father about the matter and his father accompanied him to the police station. P. C. Adams told what he knew about the affair and Mr. Hurd immediately started on a search for Mr. Lundy to get back the adventurous five.

BAND CONCERT GREATLY PLEASED THE AUDIENCE

The band concert at Victoria Park last night was a hummer to use an unconventional expression and it was voted by the audience as the brightest one of the season. It held the attention of the crowd during the entire evening and won encouraging applause. The selection of numbers was particularly well timed and while there was not much on the bill to bring Mozart back to life, it was a hot dry night, such as one reads of in the alkali west and Happy-Go-Lucky was high enough up the ladder to suit the average auditor.

The three new popular numbers, "Dublin Daisies," "Bits of Remick's Hits" and "Happy-Go-Lucky," all rang up high on the applause target and will stand repetition to advantage.

March ........ Selected
Overture ........ Bohemian Girl
Irish Intermezzo ..... Dublin Daisies
Variations on German Song ........ In the Deep Cellar
Euphonium solo—Air and Variations
Bandsman Cronk.
Characteristic ........ Happy-Go-Lucky
Gypsy Serenade ........ La Paloma
Bits of Remick's Hits, No. 5 ........ Popular Medley
Scotch Patrol ........ Wee McGregor
Descriptive ........ Hunting Scene
March ........ Old Faithful

THE MILITIA DEPARTMENT TYRANNICAL AND HARSH

The Glace Bay Strike the Scene of Tyranny on Part of the Laurier Administration — Too Ready to Furnish Troops.

Special to Review.

Glace Bay, July 10, 1.30 p. m. — Mayor Douglas refused to co-operate with General Drury, claiming that his own "army" of policemen from ranks of the strikers was sufficient to maintain order. There are forty more men at the Inverness mine today. The troops are maintaining order.

In conjunction with the above despatch may be read an earlier one as follows:

Glace Bay N. S., July 9. —A determined effort is being made to have the soldiers returned to Halifax, and tomorrow something definite is likely to transpire. A conference today between General Drury and Mayor Douglas did not result in a solution of the problem. It is likely that tomorrow Judge Finlayson, who signed the requisition for the soldiers will be asked to give his reasons before Gen. Drury. Today a hundred or more United Mine Workers' men and others were out with petitions for signature. About 2,000 signatures of ratepayers were secured up to ten o'clock tonight, when the papers were gathered in and sent to the Acting Minister of Militia.

The petition sets forth "that in connection with the strike there is not now, and there has not been since its beginning, any riot or disturbance to render necessary the calling the maintenance of the said militia that under the provisions of section eightynine of the Militia Act of Canada this municipality is liable for the maintenance of the said militia while on service in this town.

"That the Town Council of Glace Bay, by resolution passed at a regular meeting, held July 8th, 1909, repudiated any responsibility for the cost of calling the said militia, and Mayor Douglas protested against the grounds that the civic authorities were capable of suppressing and successfully controlling any disturbance which had so far arisen in connection with the dispute.

OBITUARY

WRONG AGAIN!

The Barrie baseball team were to have played a picked team from Lindsay at Peterborough Wednesday, but were disappointed. They found that they would be charged $25 for the use of the ground at Peterborough, and consequently concelled the game. Var and a few other members of the team dropped off in Lindsay on the way back from Peterborough.—Lindsay Warder.

The sporting editor of the Warder should consult a specialist on sleeping sickness. The Barrie baseball team played at Peterborough Wednesday, and a rattling good game it was too. As the contest was arranged on Monday, this dope about Barrie playing a picked team from Lindsay at Peterborough appears to be the star bit of junk of the season. Take something for the lethargy, boy.

THE ONTARIO BANK LOTS SALE

The big red posters all over the town announce this sale. There is a big plan of the lots at Might's Land Office, it shows the new King Edward street going through the land now occupied by the old house and barn. Much interest is felt in this sale as a number of people are waiting for it. The terms are easy, just such as suit people of moderate means. The lane at the back of all the lots will make nice unbroken frontages. The sidewalk will be at the outside of a 20 ft. boulevard. We are glad to see this improved method of laying out streets.

HELD PICNIC AT SOUTH BEACH

Mark St. Sunday School Had a Most Successful Outing

Mark street Sunday school held their annual excursion to Stony Beach, Clear Lake, yesterday, and had a delightful outing. The steamer "Water Lily," which left the lift lock at eight o'clock conveyed the picnickers, who turned out in a large enough number to load the boat to its capacity. At South Beach dinner was partaken of and the afternoon was spent in running off the sports, boating and other pastimes. The weather was rather hot, but the children did not seem to mind that. A number of boats were kindly placed at the disposal of the excursionists and everything was done to give the children a good time. Great credit is due the committee of young ladies who arranged the sports, and to Mr. J. H. Callander, who was active in carrying out the programme. Rev. Mr. Coon was among those present, and also helped materially. The winners of the sports were as follows;—

Girls, up to eight years — Carrie Coon, May Cook.

NEW COTTAGE AT STONEY LAKE

"Bon Repose" is the holiday name of a beautiful cottage that has just been built at Stony Lake by Mr. Thos. Wilson of the city for Rev. J. R. Webb, the popular pastor of Murray street Baptist church. The island on which the cottage is situated is about an acre in extent and abuts Juniper Island on the south. It was purchased from Messrs. Roger and Edwards, who formerly owned several islands in the vicinity. The cottage is of bungalow pattern with extensive verandahs. It is approached by a large and commodious wharf. "Bon Repose" will be one of the prettiest spots on the lake.

MR. BOGUE OBJECTS TO PRESS REPORT

Mr bogue object sto press (not

Mr. Bogue strongly objects to the language used by the Campbellford Herald with respect to his action against the town of Campbellford for $26,900 and interest for work done. He says the journal in question gives a wrong idea of the claim and its merits. Last year the work was done by his firm under the supervision of the town engineer of Campbellford, who passed the work up-to-date. On the advent of a new council, however, the town engineer was allowed to go and a new engineer secured. The council withheld the money coming to Messrs. Bogue and Buchanan, which is the subject of the action now pending.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed for ever: nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness —caused by catarrh— that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

CRICKET

Early in the season it was thought that the Australians were a poor side because of their not overwhelming the weaker counties, but the beating of the champion Yorkshire team of Worcester by a large margin and the near-victory of Leicester, the two-smashing of Surrey by Lancs., etc., have changed all that, not to mention Australia's two victories to one defeat, vs. England.

YOUNG MAN'S INJURIES MAY HAVE FATAL RESULT

Special to the Review

Havelock, July 9.—Harry Vansickle, son of John Vansickle, who resides 4 miles north of Cordova, was probably fatally injured to-day. He was driving a waggon loaded with lumber down a steep hill to Cordova when the waggon tongue dropped out of the neck yoke, causing the waggon to leave the road, and the load upset on Harry, breaking his leg above the knee and injuring his body. Dr. McKechnie, of Marmora, attended the injured man, but holds out little hope of his recovery.

CHEMONG SUMMER SCHOOL

Special to the Review.

Chemong Park, July 10.—Friday morning session of the Summer School was opened as usual by a prayer and praise service, the president occupying the chair.

The regular Bible study was led by President McLaughlin. The special study for the morning was Paul's Epistle to the Roman's, which proved to be of special interest and was not concluded.

Mr. McKenzie, of Japan, again addressed the school, telling of his missionary work, and speaking hopefully of Japanese Christians. "God has raised up apostles in that country, and the time is coming when we shall see a great turning toward higher things among the Japanese."

Rev. Mr. Foster made several announcements, and a Round Table Conference on Social Department was conducted by Mr. F. R. Foley, President Conference E.L. Many valuable suggestions for social evenings were given, and this conference proved to be one of the most helpful of the Summer School. We should have our brightest and most willing workers on the Social Committees, but we should not let brightness develop until it grows into lightness.

The regular Mission Study classes met for study at the close of the Conference.

In the afternoon a ball game was played by the gentlemen.

A hill-top prayer meeting was led by Mr. Griffith, formerly of Albert College, who spoke for a few moments about the consecration of our all to Jesus. At the close of this helpful little meeting the regular evening session was opened by song service. Mr. J. M. Dunyes, B.A., Newbrgh, who occupied the chair, made a brief address, and at the close a lime-light lecture was given by Rev. W. E. Hassard, B.D., district representative of the Upper Canada Bible Society. This was one of the most interesting and instructive features of the Summer School. The pavilion was filled to overflowing, and all listened with intense interest to Mr. Hassard's brilliant address.

One of the pleasing numbers on the programme was a solo sweetly sung by Miss May Dobson, Whitby College. An interesting fact was that this solo "The Lord of Grace," is a favorite hymn among the Chinese. Miss Dobson sang the English translation.

Announcements were made by Rev. Mr. Rogers and Rev. Mr. Foster, and the session was closed by prayer.

LIFE OF THE MINK.

Mark Robinson Tells of Family Near Stayner, Ont.

My acquaintance with the mink began one day, many years ago, while I was fishing for trout in Silverthorne's Creek, near Stayner, Ont., says Mark Robinson, Algonquin Park Ranger in Toronto Saturday Night. I was busy coaxing a lazy trout to take notice of my bait, when suddenly he vanished in the twinkling of an eye. I felt that the fish had not taken flight at myself; and, as I sat very still, a large female mink and three young mink came swimming along the stream. I watched them for some time. When it became evident that the mother mink was desirous of carrying off all my catch of chub and trout I made a rush for the young ones, and succeeded in capturing one, getting from my captive a neat pinch that brought the blood freely. I took the little fellow home and was censured by my mother for doing so. However, I placed the little chap in a tin box, covered it up well and went back to the stream. The mother mink by this time had carried off all my small fish, and made quite a fuss at my approach. So I went farther up the stream, thinking many things about my mother's words, kindly spoken but to the point about the feelings of that mother mink. However, I felt that my mother did not know how sore my finger was and I resolved that the youthful mink must stay in the tin box. I caught a number of chub and took them home, and was delighted to see the little fellow eat them up—except the heads, which he tossed aside with contempt. Next morning early I was at the creek again catching chub for the mink, and he ate them with great relish. Then I departed for school. When I returned he was gone. He had jumped out and ran to the creek, my mother told me with a smile. I went and examined the box and decided that our mothers have much feeling for the mother animals, especially regarding their young.

The summer following I assisted a couple of neighbor lads to capture a pair of young mink, which they kept in a neatly made pen near the stream. We fished every chance we could get to supply them with food, and it was surprising the amount of small fish those young mink could dispose of, as well as drinking a quantity of new milk daily. In about three months they were fine big fellows, and evidently very strong, as they chewed a hole out of their pen and departed. We often saw them afterward in company with other mink and when called would allow us to approach within a few feet of them, but never close enough to be recaptured. As the winter approached they disappeared. Evidently some trapper had caught them.

LITTLE BOY HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Was Thrown From Waggon When Runaway Horse Turned Corner

A little boy about six years of age, had a narrow escape from serious injury in a runaway on McDonnel st. this morning. The outfit belonged to a market gardner and the horse started to run from the top of the Court House hill while the father of the boy was delivering some produce. The boy was on the waggon and hung on for dear life as the horse ran down towards Water street at break-neck speed. The little fellow was thrown out when the animal turned south at Water st. and spectators feared that he was seriously injured. When he was picked up however, it was found that he was not injured beyond a bad shaking up.

DISTINGUISHING MARK IN THE PROGRESS OF ALL SAINTS'

Corner Stone of New Church Laid Last Night With Masonic Ritual by Judge Harding, of Lindsay---A Significant Occasion in the Spiritual Advancement of the Community---Addresses of Congratulations and Good-Will by the Clergy.

The laying of the corner stone of the new All Saints church last night at Rubidge street was evidence of the gratifying progress of the church since its establishment, and is another illustration that modest beginnings often prelude large accomplishments. All Saints is the pioneer in the development of religious activity in the South Ward.

Judging by the energy and zeal of the present rector, Rev. R. H. Trumpour and heart co-operation he is meeting with from his congregation there is little doubt that the progress of the past will be continued, and the new church will become the centre of a spiritual work of an increasing importance.

The new structure will be a building in which the diocese of the city and the congregation may take just pride.

Building Where Rev. J. W. R. Beck Started Mission in South End of City

The corner stone was laid last night by Most Worshipful Brother Judge John E. Harding, of Lindsay, acting Grand Master, with Masonic honors. W. H. WALKEY.

OPENING PROCEEDINGS.

The exercises in connection with the ceremony were opened by the singing of a hymn. After the hymn was sung the Masonic brethren came upon the platform and gathered in a semi-circular form around the corner where the stone was to be laid.

Rev. Mr. Trumpour thanked Judge Harding for his presence and most heartily welcomed him.

His Honor, in reply, esteemed it a great privilege to be permitted to lay the corner stone of All Saints' church. He had laid the corner stone of three churches for his order. He hoped every blessing would attend the laying of the stone.

Rev. W. L. Armitage offered up prayer, after which the secretary, W. Bro W. H. Walkey, read the scroll to be placed in the stone.

The stone was then lowered to the singing of "All People that on Earth do Dwell" Judge Harding then performed the ceremony of the laying of the stone, and this was followed by his address.

JUDGE HARDING'S ADDRESS.

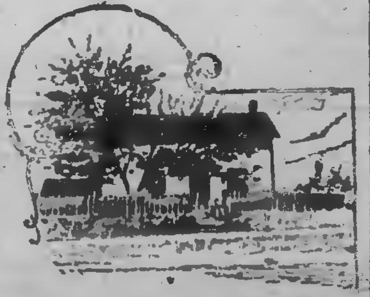
It has been the custom for centuries, Judge Harding said, for the fraternity of A.F. and A.M. to lay the corner stone of buildings erected for the worship of the one true God. Standing here, as the representative of the M. W. the Grand Master of 40,000 Masons in this province, I have great pleasure in performing this ceremony as his substitute. It is very appropriate that we, the A.F. and A. M. should lay this stone.

Representing the oldest fraternity in existence with a traditional history extending back into the mists and darkness of the ages, and an authentic written history since the 15th century, we have at all times insisted that our members should be believers in the Great Architect of the Universe. No athiest or unbeliever can be a Mason, and each member must declare his belief before being admitted a member. In addition he must be a man of good moral character, and in good repute in the community. In the fraternity he is taught tolerance and to respect the opinion of other members of all Christian bodies being members of the this fraternity, and there is no bar to the Roman Catholic of like qualification, save the rules of his church. We are the only benevolent fraternity that distributes its benificence to those only who need. No brother can claim any grant as a matter of right his necessity constituting his only claim. The Grand Lodge of Canada need not be ashamed of its record in this respect, as many hundreds of thousands have been expended by them in the relief of the brother in the distress, the widow, and the orphan children of our deceased brethren. It is true we have secrets that are carefully guarded, and my brethren need not fear that I shall devulge them.



Building Donated by Miss Chamberlain, Where Services Were Held for Some Time

Each society and each family have their secrets that they would not like to become the property of the public. The society is always in favor of peace, and their influence in that regard is becoming so powerful in both England and the United States as to render war between those powers impossible. In fact this result was predicted by that great statesman, Henry Clay, when G. M. of Kentucky in 1820.

At the conclusion of the address the Masonic ritual in connection with the ceremony was performed. Prayer was said by Rev. Mr. Armitage.

Mr. Trumpour called upon Ven Archdeacon Warren to speak and announced a collection would be taken up among the gathering.

Archdeacon Warren said it gave him very great pleasure to be present on such an important occasion, and to offer his congratulations to the people of All Saints' and the rector. He had watched with deep interest the upgrowth of All Saints' from its commencement to the present day. Owing to the number of speeches to be given he would limit his remarks to expressing his sincere congratulations.

In conclusion Archbishop Warren said that the church of God should be built on the true foundation and that foundation was Jesus Christ the Son of God and Son of Man. Its chief business was the construction of that divine temple wherein dwelt the spirit of the living God.

Rev. Canon Davidson, Rector of Peterborough expressed his congratulations and earnest wishes in a short, but expressive address.

Rev. W. L. Armitage, the first rector of All Saints', said it gave extreme pleasure to him to be present on such an occasion. To be there was like a homecoming and coming home was a glad occasion. He was very greatly pleased to be again in the field in which he had worked for seven years. It was the happiest hour possible to him to see the great advance for good in the work of the new church. And he was especially glad to be present on account of his acquaintance with the rector, Rev. Mr. Trumpour, whom he knew as a boy in their home province, Nova Scotia. He spoke very highly of the qualities of Mr. Trumpour and said that he was sure that his congregation would like him all the better as his time as rector progressed. He hoped that every member would remember the great responsibility incumbent with the establishment of the new church and a great responsibility lay upon all that the work of All Saints' should continue for the glory of God.

On behalf of St. Andrew's church its

RAIN WAS GENERAL IN THE PROVINCE

Saturday's and Sunday's Showers Prove to be a Blessing for the Farmers --- Rain Fell in West

Toronto, July 12.—Thus far the observatory reports do not show a very heavy rainfall throughout Ontario. Saturday and Sunday's storm did some damage to property but was of immense benefit to the crops. Last night's and to-day's heavy rain will bring the record up but the official figures thus far are only moderate.

One-tenth of an inch is reported from Parry Sound for Saturday and Sunday. About half as much more fell at Port Stanley. Kingston got half an inch.

Reports from the other districts around Toronto indicate that the scattered showers of Saturday brought some relief to the parched land. The heavy rain which fell early Saturday afternoon developed into a beautiful downpour between this city and Belleville. Train despatchers state they had considerable trouble with the wires in that direction owing to the heavy precipitation of moisture.

The district around London had but little rain to satisfy the anxious farmers. On both Saturday and Sunday the showers were light.

While Ontario is languishing with drought, the reports received from the west tell of a more satisfactory condition. Enquiries made at the head offices of the banks having an extensive branch system throughout the prairie provinces find that ideal crop weather existed.

FINANCE BILL GOES THROUGH

Berlin, July 12.—The Reichstag finished the finance reform legislation Saturday evening. It is eight months since the measures were first introduced. The complete legislation resembles but little the Government's original proposals.

The scheme finally adopted consists of higher taxes on beer, tobacco and brandy, and higher duties on coffee, effervescent wines, cordials and tea. The duty on tea has been quadrupled.

The House also adopted a stamp tax on checks, stubs for the renewal of dividends, and coupon sheets, as well as a higher stamp tax for issue of new stocks and bonds, which will affect foreign securities. A tax on transfer of real estate was also adopted, with a resolution requiring that a bill be introduced by April 1, 1911, for taxing the unearned increment in land values.

The National Liberals, Clericals and Socialists voted against all the bills.

EVERY MAN TO SHARE PROFITS

Chicago, July 12.—A comprehensive plan of profit-sharing with its employes has just been announced by the International Harvester Co. in a letter sent out by its president, Cyrus H. McCormick, to every man on the pay roll of the company. According to the communication, 12,500 shares of the preferred stock of the company will be offered to employes at $6.50 a share below market price, and 15,000 shares of common stock at $10 a share below the market. This offer will hold good until Aug. 15.

IS MUCH-MARRIED MAN HAS JILTED 25 WOMEN

Hamilton and Toronto Are Among the Towns in Which John Madison, With Several Aliases, Secured the Affections and Money of Women.

San Francisco, Cal., July 12.—"Yes, I annexed a couple of merry widows, but I wasn't fool enough to marry all of the women the police say I did."

Sitting in his cell in the city prison, John Madison, alias Christian C. Johnson, alias John C. Anderson, alias C. O. Moeller, cogitated on the follies of his old age. The police are busy untangling his voluminous record, which is said to extend to a dozen different cities and involve the affections and bank rolls of about 25 women. Included in the roster is a marriage in Toronto and Hamilton, Ont.

The authorities say they have established his marriage to ten women and his engagement and possible marriage to 14 others. Each is said by the police to have lost more or less money through acquaintance with Madison.

Among those to whom Madison is alleged to have been married appears the name of Mrs. Mary Wiggins Drown of Springfield, Mass., who is said to have lost $500.

Mrs. Sylvia Pollard de Bonnett of this city is another of his alleged victims. Mrs. de Bonnett and "Johnston," it is alleged, were married in San Rafael in August, 1906. Immediately afterward, after getting some of her money, Madison is said to have deserted her.

Advices from Stockton are to the effect that Mrs. Jessie Tretheway of that city has left for San Jose to swear to a complaint against him, her marriage to "Johnson" having been performed in that city. In the event that the warrant is issued in San Jose the case will be turned over to San Jose authorities and "Johnson" will be prosecuted in that city.

"Johnson" stoutly denied yesterday that he had ever assumed the name of Madison. He declared that it was laughable to connect him with so many women. "I married two of them," he said. "Mrs. McLeod of this city and Mrs. Tretheway of Stockton are the only wives I ever had. I am willing to plead guilty to a charge of bigamy if they will be a little lenient with me and do not try to saddle too much trouble on my shoulders."

John Madison has not been heard from since 1908. It was about this time that Christian Johnson began his operations, and the police believe that Johnson and Madison are the same man.

Madison's record is a long one and includes dealings with women in Cincinnati, Ohio; Louisville, Ky.; Kalamazoo, Mich.; Hot Springs, Ark.; Kansas City, Mo.; Olean, N.Y.; Toronto, Canada; Los Angeles, Stockton, San Francisco; Gettysburg, Ohio; St. John's, Mich.; Hamilton, Ont.; and in Germany. Almost without exception his alleged victims have been widows or women of middle age.

HAS A CURE FOR DIABETES

New York, July 12.—After a series of experiments in the clinics of Mount Sinai Hospital in this city carried on for the last two years and a half by Dr. J. Rudisch of the visiting staff, it has just made a preliminary report on the use of atropine in diabetes. He considers it a cure for that widespread disease which is attacking more and more New Yorkers every year in these "strenuous life" days.

Atropine is the active principal of belladonna or "deadly nightshade." It has never before been tried in kidney troubles, though it was well-known that it was chiefly eliminated by the kidneys and therefore exerted a pronounced effect on those organs.

MIGHT HAVE HAD MORE ON MINDS THAN ON BODIES

A number of boys who might easily have had more in their minds than on their bodies, were bathing in the creek not far from McDonnel street yesterday morning. They were without proper attire, and shocked the modesty of those who passed by. The boys were inside the city limits.

WOULDN'T PAY FOR THE LEG

Windsor, July 12.—Minus one leg, the body of Thomas G. McDonald, former mate of the steamer Douglas, drowned June 29, and picked up in Detroit River Thursday, was buried Saturday at Algonac. The leg is in Wayne County morgue and will probably be taken care of by the county. Coroner Burgess says the relatives refused to pay $15 asked by local undertakers for its preparation for shipment. This leg was picked up by Edward Lilly, the young man who was drowned the next evening almost at the point where he found the leg.

ELECTROCUTED IN THE TUNNEL

Windsor, July 12.—Wallace May, carpenter foreman, was electrocuted in the Michigan Central tunnel on Saturday. He was engaged in installing an overhead elevator and shoved a crowbar against a bolt which held electric wires. His cries attracted two other employes, who sought in vain to release May until they procured a rope and literally dragged him away. He died before the ambulance arrived. It is alleged that the electric wires were poorly protected.

Head-Hunters Active.

Victoria, B.C., July 12.—Raids by Formosan head-hunters have caused much loss of life in Formosa of late, according to advices from Keelung by the Teucer.

In Shinchiku district, the head-hunters fell upon a Japanese outpost and killed 12 men and several women, carrying away their heads as trophies. A Japanese surveying party with an escort of 79 troops was attacked and had to cut its way through a large body of Formosan rebels.

BAD FIRE VISITS MYRTLE STATION

A serious fire occurred at Myrtle station early Saturday morning when the store belonged to Mr. Jas. Beacock was totally destroyed by fire. Few particulars are to hand, but it is believed that the building, which was a frame one, was struck by lightning.

Mr. T. J. Tilley, Lindsay, manager of the Bell Telephone Co., left for Myrtle station to view the result, as the telephone central was located in the store.

Mr. Beacock is a brother-in-law of Col. Sam Hughes.

The promising fair of Western and Central Canada was opened in Winnipeg Saturday by Premier Roblin. The exhibits in every section and the crowd show the directorate have clearly before them the necessity of larger grounds.

Rev. A. E. Green, inspector of Indian schools, who has arrived at Vancouver, says the residents of Skeena district regard the discontent of the five hundred Indians in the river villages as likely to cause trouble when river navigation ends, and the majority are preparing to send their women and children out.

STUNS WIFE AND CUTS HIS THROAT

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 12.—After completing an autopsy on the bodies of Warren G. Bowland and his wife, Vashti Perry Bowland, who were found in a vacant house, the surgeons and coroner decided that Rowland had stunned his wife with a blow from his wooden leg, had wrecked the gas fixture in the room, permitting the gas to pour out, and then cut his own throat.

Both died from asphyxiation.

SURPRISED AT THE CENSOR

London, July 12.—Bernard Shaw's prohibited playlet, "Press Cuttings," was produced privately at a matinee at the Court Theatre Friday. The morning newspapers express themselves at an utter loss to understand why the censor put a ban upon "such an inoffensive skit." The play is clever and amusing, one act being a burlesque of current political topics, especially the suffragette agitation.

The King and Queen visited the Globe Theatre Saturday to see Mrs. Cornwallis West's play "His Borrowed Plumes." Their Majesties remained to the end and personally congratulated the author. The audience included many society leaders

ORANGEMEN HEARD FINE SERMON AT KNOX CHURCH

Large Turnout for Annual Church Parade—Principles of Orangeism Stand for What is Best in Life—Orangemen Can be Factor in Promotion of Church Union.

The Orangemen of Peterborough and district accompanied by a number of the Sons of England, attended divine service at Knox church last night and listened to an inspiring sermon preached by Rev. H. J. Keith. There were about 450 in the parade, which consisted of lodges 80, 1175, and 50 from the city district, 321, 178 and 457 from Peterborough district, Emily lodge No. 41, the Prentice boys and True Blues and a detachment of the Sons of England.

The church was filled when the service opened. Rev. Mr. Keith took as his text, 1st Peter, 2, 15, 16. "'For this is the will of God that with well doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men. As free men and not using your liberty for a cloak of maliciousness, but as the servants of God."

Mr. Keith on behalf of the congregation of Knox church heartily welcomed the brethren. He noted with pleasure that large number of boys who were in the order. Securing the boys one of the best methods of propagating the principles of Orangeism. Continuing the preacher said that the Orange Order and the church as well had suffered from ignorance of their principles from within and without and the extension of the knowledge of the principles would result in the dispelling of the ignorance. After looking over the constitution of the Orange Association the speaker had come to the conclusion that a true Orangeman must be a good Christian, for the Order was based on the same principles as the the Church of Jesus Christ.

Truth, Mr. Keith said, found its highest expression in the lives of men. It was the most effective way of dispelling ignorance. God had set a premium on right action so that by it men would be drawn from bondage into liberty. "By their fruits ye shall know them." The Orange Order stood for truth. It was not only the high ideal of the order but was involved in the constitution.

The Orange Order also stood for freedom. The highest type of freedom was found in the Protestant religion. Orangeism stood for progress. The speaker referred to the backward state of the Province of Quebec where the Roman Catholic religion largely held sway. It was the duty of all Orangemen to propagate the open Bible. It was the free gift of Jesus Christ who was the only rightful Lord of men and of the church.

Mr. Keith referred to the price that had been paid for the liberty which the Orange Order at all times sought to maintain. It had been secured at great cost and the heritage should be carefully guarded.

Composed as it was of members of many denominations, the Orange Order, Mr. Keith said, should be a strong factor in bringing about church union.

On return to their hall the Orangemen passed resolutions of thanks to the choir.

The anthem, "The Lord is My Light, Whom Shall I Fear," was rendered well by the choir.

SOLDIERS CALLED IN TO STOP RIOTING AT MINES

Only a Small Proportion of the Strikers Attend Divine Service at Glace Bay, Fearing Criticism From Pulpit—Men Coming in, Strikers Leaving.

Inverness, N.S., July 12.—There was some serious rioting here on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, when 304 miners, who were leaving the mine, were attacked with stones by a mob of strikers numbering about 300. The leaders in this disorder were Belgians, of whom there are about 150 who were employed in the mines.

General Manager W. D. Barclay and the officials waited on the mayor and asked that he make out a requisition for military protection, asserting that the Belgians had been making threats as to what they would do on Monday if the Provincial Workmen's Association men dared to go to work.

Mayor McLeod and two justices signed the requisition, believing that it was necessary for the preservation of order. The requisition was handed to Capt. Johnston of the 94th Regiment, who wired to Col. Humphreys, D.O.C., at Halifax, who immediately forwarded 100 soldiers and seven officers by a special train.

Most Disregarded Church.

Glace Bay, July 12.—Hostilities in the Cape Breton coal fields were suspended yesterday and some of the people attended divine service, but the great majority showed a disregard for attendance at church, many of them no doubt feeling that their actions were in danger of criticism from the pulpit.

The various ministers were fearlessly outspoken in the condemnation of the action of the men, and especially criticized the conduct of the women, who by their unwomanly conduct, brought discredit on a community jealous of its reputation.

The utterances of Rev. Mr. Feaver at Glace Bay, may be taken as indicative of the stand taken in the matter by the clergy. He expressed his deep sorrow that such unmanly and unwomanly actions should characterize the strike and severely condemned the perpetrators, whoever, they were. He had expected that the ladies would be guided by their instinctive sense of what a woman should be and do, but regretted to say that some of them had so far forgotten themselves and disgraced their sex. Mr. Feaver advocated rational behavior and a supreme regard for the law.

At the camp on the Black Diamond Trotting Park, service was continued yesterday morning by Rev. Mr. Feaver. The soldiers at this point, about 250 in number, were formed up in three sides of a square and the services, an abbreviated Anglican Church service, was hearty. Gen. Drury and his staff were among those present at the open air meeting.

To-day is witnessing an influx and an exodus of workmen.

The Dominion Coal Co. is bound to fill the places of the deserters from its ranks to the ranks of the United Mine Workers, and is doing so by bringing men from Newfoundland and other places. It is reported that a large number have arrived at North Sydney from Newfoundland, and on Saturday night the U.M.W. sent a committee to meet them on their arrival with the intention of persuading them to return without accepting employment with the company.

Asked if outside labor would be employed, General Manager Duggan said:

"It is our intention, if possible, to work every colliery, and every man who seeks work will get it. It will be a case of first come, first served. The best positions will be given to the early comers."

"There is a report, Mr. Duggan, that you intend importing men from the old country, the United States and the continent. Will you certify this."

"I am not saying what we will do in regard to importing men, but I will tell you this. We will work our mines, and no good man will be refused employment."

About 100 men arrived yesterday and went into the mines.

The exodus will be more noticeable than the influx, for the men will be taken away in larger groups than will come in. On Saturday, Leonard W. Anker, employment agent for the Corbett & Fleesch Co., who have the contract for building 150 miles of the transcontinental railroad, arrived from Moncton, and can find work for hundreds of men. Mr. Anker is ready to give employment to as many as 1,600 men. They will be put at grading. The wages offered is $1.75 a day, against $1.50 paid by the coal company. Board is only half as much among the railway workmen as at Glace Bay, so the proposition seems attractive to a large number of Austrians and Russians.

Fight on the Tariff.

Washington, July 12.—Cheaper cotton and woolen goods, and cheaper hosiery and woman's gloves—the former demanded by the House and the latter by the Senate—promise to be among the most stubbornly fought questions in the Congressional conference on the tariff bill.

At least that is the way things appear at the close of the first day's session.

Drowns While Bathing.

Bright, July 12.—While bathing with some small boys in Oliver's Creek at noon yesterday, Perry Crear, aged 14, was drowned. He was standing in shallow water and suddenly plunged forward into a deep hole.

S.A. Band Concert

Bandmaster Greene is preparing an excellent programme for the Salvation Army band concert to-morrow night at Victoria Park. Evangelist Adby will sing, making the concert an unusually attractive one.

PROBABILITIES.

Tuesday, strong north-west winds and cooler.

ACCIDENT ON CHARLOTTE ST.

Mr. T. Dancey was Thrown from his Vehicle and injured

Thos. Dancey, who resides at 198 Charlotte street, was thrown out of his vehicle on Charlotte street this morning and received some cuts on the head and face, in addition to being badly shaken up. A doctor was called to his house and dressed the injuries.

BARS DOWN TO CHINESE

Government Reduces the Restrictions on Oriental Immigration --Some of the Changes

Vancouver, B.C., July 12.—Acting upon the request of the Chinese of Vancouver, the Dominion Government has, by order-in-council, approved on May 4, 1909, removed many of the restrictions imposed on Chinese immigration.

According to advices received yesterday from Ottawa, the scope of exempt class, that is those Chinese who are not called upon to pay the head tax of $500, has been greatly widened. Immediately the order was approved, its terms were forwarded to all Canadian immigration and customs authorities, but so quietly that the public till to-day never received an intimation of the change in regulations. In a word, the new order widens the scope of the Chinese immigration act of 1906, with the amendment of 1908 in regard to the privileged class of Chinese, that it practically leaves only Chinese laborers to pay the head tax, with paupers, lunatics and sufferers from infectious diseases still prohibited. The new order puts even "students of manners and customs," in the student and merchant class and exempt from the payment of head tax.

J. D. ROCKEFELLER GIVES TEN MILLIONS

New York, July 12.—John D. Rockefeller has added ten millions more to the forty-three millions of dollars with which he had already endowed the Rockefeller Foundation.

Not only does he raise the fund of the general education board to this extent, but he places all but twenty millions of it in the hands of members of the board, to handle as they like in the endowment of American colleges and universities.

Heretofore Mr. Rockefeller constituted himself and his son final arbiters of the disposition of the Foundation Fund.

In relinquishing this control the Oil King characteristically suggests that the board spend its money on the strong institutions to make them stronger and let the weaker schools shift for themselves.

NO SUCCESSOR TO LUMSDEN YET

Ottawa, July 12.—The feeling is growing that no successor to Hugh D. Lumsden, late chief engineer of the National Transcontinental Railway, will be appointed.

A number of prominent engineers have been offered the position, but have all refused, and it is freely said that no engineer of repute would undertake such a job.

More sensations are expected to follow, in the wake of the Lumsden resignation, but an effort will be made to have everything patched up before Parliament meets.

LATE NEWS FROM MANY LOCALITIES

Veteran Soldier's Death.

New York, July 12.—Col. Marcellus Pointer, prominent during the civil was as a staff officer under Gen. Joe Wheeler, and of late years a supposedly successful railway promoter, was found dead yesterday in a Bowery lodging-house, from apoplexy. Among his papers were pawn tickets for his watch and for several gold medals given him for courageous conduct on the field of battle.

A Patriotic Mission.

London, July 12.—The Women's Aerial League is sending out an appeal to the women of England to unite in subscribing funds to buy an airship as a present to the nation, to be used as a model for testing and improving. It is also publishing the first text-book on aero engineering that has yet appeared in England. It is a translation from the French.

G.T.R. Freight Sheds Scorched.

Brockville, July 12.—The explosion of a coal oil lamp in the billing office of the G.T.R. freight shed caused damage to the extent of nearly $3,000 at five o'clock yesterday morning. It made a fierce blaze for a couple of hours, but the building with its contents was gutted. Much freight for local delivery was spoiled. The loss is covered by insurance.

Newfoundland and the Navy.

London, July 12.—Sir E. Norris, interviewed, said that Newfoundland would increase her naval reserve of men who would be ready on a day's notice to go aboard Dreadnoughts. In addition, he said "there would be no difficulty in obtaining to-morrow crews for twenty battleships from among the Newfoundland fishermen."

Georgia Not Very "Dry."

Atlanta, Ga., July 12.—Notwithstanding that in the State of Georgia "near beer" is the nearest approach to an intoxicating beverage which can be lawfully sold, the records of the Atlanta Police Department, at the close of six months of 1909, show 1,875 arrests in this city for drunkenness.

Smashed $5,000 Worth of Glass.

London, July 12.—In the early hours of Saturday morning a madman ran amuck in Nottingham, armed with a club composed of barbed wire twisted together. His frenzy was particularly directed against plate-glass shop fronts. He rushed backward and forward in the streets, smashing every window within reach. He wrought damage to the extent of $5,000 before he was overpowered.

Genuine Bad Man.

Chihuahua, Mexico, July 12.—Hunted by citizens and surrounded by a band of fifty rurals in the Progressomo Mountains, near Calsbacuili Zeferino Arguelles, the murderer of at least a half dozen people, killed the Chief of the Rurales and made his escape through mountain passes, but not until his father had been slain by the officers.

1,000 Autos Parade.

Detroit, July 12.—The automobile parade, said to be the biggest ever before held anywhere, was the feature of Saturday's preliminaries to the Glidden automobile reliability run, which starts from here next Monday morning for Denver. More than 1,000 machines of every sort and description, lavishly decorated with flowers and bunting, were entered.

MACHINE-GUNS AT SYDNEY

The machine-guns ordered from Halifax to Sydney by the Laurier Government for use by the regulars against the strikers are, as shown in another column, a violation of the constitution. It is more than regrettable that such a provocative and violent measure should have been adopted by the Government to awe the discontents into subjection. The rights of property seem to count for more with the present administration that the rights of a people to have its affairs judged calmly and fairly. When all other means have failed it is even then too early to use machine-guns. If the rights of property cannot be maintained except by a wholesale indiscriminate slaughter, then the then the privileges of property and its rights to protection had better be revised and amended. While not infrequently, disorder amongst strikers goes too far, it is also true that not infrequently the conduct of employers goes too far. In ordinary civil cases differences of opinion are settled by courts of law which are backed by the whole power of the nation, but to insist that a man with a grievance shall first be shot and heard afterwards is too much like suppressing freedom of speech. There is nothing to prevent the works at Sydney closing down until the trouble has passed over or been arranged, but the use of machine-guns against people who think they have a grievance is neither wise nor merciful. It is founded on the old idea of the sacredness of property as compared with human life. At one time a man who stole a sheep was hanged. More enlightened methods now prevail.

WHY NOT?

The Toronto News says, or is quoted as saying, that it is high time that one language and not two, was recognized as the official and general language of Canada. Some time ago we made the same suggestion on the ground that it would be better for us all to speak one language even if it were the French, than that Canada should keep divided into two distinct parts.

La Patrie archly asks the News which language it refers to as the proposed common tongue. Why not have a conference over it? Why... could it not be brought about that a number of representatives of both races should meet in Council at Ottawa to consider the desirability and feasibility of establishing one language and which it should be. Not that there should be any penalty for speaking any number, but merely by way of having a common tongue recognized as the language of Canadians. It is not only desirable. It is a necessity from every point of view. Perhaps the French-Canadians might persuade their English-speaking compatriots that it is better to speak the precise and beautiful language of the habitant than to have a language spoken by the Americans with whom we do so much business. It might be that it would be advisable for us to separate ourselves from the bulk of the continent, but it is not likely. At any rate let us have a conference.

POLITICS

The silly season, as the days under the dominance of the Dog-star are called, is probably just as appropriate as any other to discuss the present state of Canadian politics. As a distinguished Liberal lawyer said not long ago: "The introduction of crooked methods into public life means their introduction into private life. That means the rule of the rich and the crooked. It means more. It means social, moral, political and every other form of anarchy. That's what it means." He went on to add that such a condition amounts to the virtual enslavement of the worker. Those not of independent means are pulled here, there and everywhere by the cunning of the crooked and their crawling, cringing crowd of satellites. But the injury done goes beyond that. The misdeeds of a few, when brought home to them, or nearly enough to satisfy the public, affect the entire party. The Gamey-Stratton trial, though the finding was that the charges were not proven, so powerfully affected the public mind, and so enraged the people that the Ross Government could not be put out too quickly and too effectually. It went out for all time. It had no hope of a resurrection except, perhaps, in the nether-world. The act of vengeance and punishment was, of course, the act of Liberals themselves. The "party," whether Conservative or Liberal, will stand just so much and no more, and its reputation will stand just as much and no more, hence, when a trial comes off which "the people" are satisfied, has shown up "a state of things," the entire party is affected, and possibly put out of business for years to come.

• • • • • •

This fact is the one hope of the salvation of the country. If Liberal or Conservative crooks could make use of the party and "get away" with it, then all hope for the "poor country and the poor people" would be at an end, truly. We should become slaves of the crooked genius who manipulated the lamp. But whatever the reason, no party and no people will consent to be made a by-word and a reproach for the benefit of its rulers. That a man shall sacrifice himself for his country is godlike, but that he shall sacrifice his country to himself, its good name, its lofty aims, its splendour of achievement, is something that even the bandits of Karoo will not permit.

• • • • • •

It is, therefore, a matter of every man's concern that he shall take a just and lively, sensible pride in his country and, if possible, in himself. The straddle-the-fence man who tries to make profit on both sides, i.e., he who will attend the church by day and scour the fields for victims like a stray dog at night, but awaits his doom. It comes in time. We started out to do as others are doing, to discuss the politico-moral condition of the country, and we agree with the general conclusion—that it is about time for a change in both parties—if we are not to go into bondage as did the children of Israel. It is a peculiar position that a man finds himself in who, mindful of the crumbs that fall from the rich man's table, which he is permitted to keep for himself, stands baying to protect his master "for naught but provender." If he has nothing to dread, why does the poor creature fear? And so it goes. They murder morals. They make gain by devious ways. They laugh at the "straight" man. They imitate their uncanny kind in all its vice and lawlessness, and then, without even the one virtue of brass, its unblushing effrontery, they beg for the mercy of the people or the court.

It is too low a standard for Canadians, and Canadian journals are just now eviscerating it.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Canon Welch, in leaving for England, says that Canadians are so engrossed in the search for material wealth that they are in danger of complete moral and spiritual ruin.

The Montreal Star gives the Globe and the Toronto Star, which it calls "the turntail Dreadnought twins," a keel-hauling of the most approved sort for saying one thing one day and then the next, in their frantic efforts to support Laurier in his "Altogether Canadian navy idea." As usual the Globe pretends something else was the real issue, and falls back on its famous "saving clauses."

"Mayor Douglas, of Glace Bay, showed his wisdom in refusing at this present juncture to call out the Militia to protect the property of the Coal Company in the strike going on. Too often, in attempting to protect property which was in very little danger, the calling out of the military sacrificed human lives which were worth far more than the property. We should make haste slowly in using the militia."—Exchange.

It will be remembered that Mr. Dennistoun, K.C., now of Winnipeg, whose "address" appears in another column, was formerly for many years hon. secretary of the local C. A. Society, now so ably succeeded by Mr. E. L. Goodwill. The punishment of juvenile offenders is the crux of the whole children's aid question. The interest attached to the lecture is therefore doubly great.

It is said that Mr. Dan Mann, of Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann, met with a peculiar experience when in Russia. His easy, offhand manner was too familiar for the more classic ways of that land, and as a consequence a distinguished Russian challenged him to fight a duel. Mr. Mann said that he didn't know anything about fighting duels. The matter, however, was pressed and became more serious. So at last Mr. Mann asked: "Who says what we fight with?" "You do as the challenged party." "Very well! Let it be axes. I know how to handle them." The duel was called off.

MACHINE GUNS FOR SYDNEY N.S.

A Violation of the Constitution—Should Have Been Left at Home

"The military force sent from Halifax to Sydney in connection with the coal strike troubles, it is announced, took with it two machine guns. If the statement is correct somebody would appear to have made a mistake. When soldiers are called out in aid of the civil power, the general expectation is that their appearance on the scene will suffice to prevent further breaking of the law. If it does not, and there is need of stronger measures, there are rigid rules as to what may be done and how it shall be done, but there is no provision for the use of machine guns. Those at Sydney should have been left at home."—Montreal Gazette.

"I make you a proposal," Chilcote repeated nervously, but with distinctness. "Do you accept?"

For an instant Loder was at a loss to find a reply sufficiently final. Chilcote broke in upon the pause.

"After all," he urged, "what I ask of you is a simple thing—merely to carry through my routine duties for a week or two occasionally when I find my endurance giving away, when a respite becomes essential. The work would be nothing to a man in your state of mind, the pay anything you like to name." In his eagerness he had followed Loder to the desk. "Won't you give me an answer? I told you I am neither mad nor drunk."

"You can do for me what no other man in creation could do."

Loder pushed back the scattered papers that lay under his arm.

"Only a lunatic would propose such a scheme," he said brusquely and without feeling.

"Why?"

The other's lips parted for a quick retort; then in a surprising way the retort seemed to fail him. "Oh, because the thing isn't feasible, isn't practicable from any point of view!"

Chilcote stepped closer. "Why?" he insisted.

"Because it couldn't work, man—couldn't hold for a dozen hours!"

Chilcote put out his hand and touched his arm. "But why?" he urged. "Why? Give me one unanswerable reason."

Loder shook off the hand and laughed; but behind his laugh lay a suggestion of the other's excitement. Again the scene stirred him against his sounder judgment, though his reply when it came was sound enough.

"As for reasons," he said, "there are a hundred, if I had time to name them. Take it, for the sake of supposition, that I were to accept your offer. I should take my place in your house at—let us say at dinner time. Your man gets me into your evening clothes, and there at the very start you have the first suspicion set up. He has probably known you for years, known you until every turn of your appearance, voice and manner is far more familiar to him than it is to you. There are no eyes like a servant's."

"I have thought of that. My servant and my secretary can both be changed. I will do the thing thoroughly."

Loder glanced at him in surprise. The madness had more method than he had believed. Then as he still looked a fresh idea struck him, and he laughed.

"You have entirely forgotten one thing," he said. "You can hardly dismiss your wife."

"My wife doesn't count."

Again Loder laughed. "I'm afraid I scarcely agree. The complications would be slightly—slightly"— He paused.

Chilcote's latent irritability broke out suddenly. "Look here," he said, "this isn't a chaffing matter. It may be moonshine to you, but it's reality to me."

Again Loder took his face between his hands.

"Don't ridicule the idea. I'm in dead earnest."

Loder said nothing.

"Think—think it over before you refuse."

For a moment Loder remained motionless, then he rose suddenly, pushing back his chair.

"Tush, man! You don't know what you say. The fact of your being married bars it. Can't you see that?"

Again Chilcote caught his arm.

"You misunderstand," he said. "You mistake the position. I tell you my wife and I are nothing to each other. She goes her way; I go mine. We have our own friends, our own rooms. Marriage, actual marriage, doesn't enter the question. We meet occasionally at meals and at other people's houses; sometimes we go out together for the sake of appearances; beyond that, nothing. If you take up my life nobody in it will trouble you less than I've—I can promise that." He laughed unsteadily.

Loder's face remained unmoved.

"Even granting that," he said, "the thing is still impossible."

"Why?"

"There is—the house. The position there would be untenable. A man is known there as he is known in his own club." He drew away from Chilcote's touch.

"Very possibly. Very possibly." Chilcote laughed quickly and excitedly. "But what club is without its eccentric member? I am glad you spoke of that. I am glad you raised that point. It was a long time ago that I hit upon a reputation for moods as a shield for—for other things, and the more useful it has become the more I have let it grow. I tell you you might go down to the house tomorrow and spend the whole day without speaking to, even nodding to, a single man, and as long as you were I to outward appearances no one would raise an eyebrow. In the same way you might vote in my place, ask a question, make a speech if you wanted to"—

At the word speech Loder turned involuntarily. For a fleeting second the coldness of his manner dropped and his face changed.

Chilcote, with his nervous quickness of perception, saw the alteration, and a new look crossed his own face.

"Why not?" he said quickly. "You once had ambitions in that direction. Why not renew the ambitions?"

"And drop back from the mountains into the gutter?" Loder smiled and slowly shook his head.

"Better to live for one day than to exist for a hundred!" Chilcote's voice trembled with anxiety. For the third time he extended his hand and touched the other.

This time Loder did not shake off the detaining hand. He scarcely seemed to feel its pressure.

"Look here." Chilcote's fingers tightened. "A little while ago you talked of influence. Here you can step into a position built by influence. You might do all you once hoped to do—"

Loder suddenly lifted his head. "Absurd!" he said. "Absurd! Such a scheme was never carried through."

"Precisely why it will succeed. People never suspect until they have a precedent. Will you consider it? At least consider it. Remember, if there is a risk it is I who am running it. On your own showing you have no position to jeopardize."

The other laughed curtly.

"Before I go tonight will you promise me to consider it?"

"No."

"Then you will send me your decision by wire tomorrow. I won't take your answer now."

Loder freed his arm abruptly. "Why not?" he asked.

Chilcote smiled nervously. "Because I know men and men's temptations. We are all very strong till the quick is touched. Then we all wince.— It's morphia with one man, ambitions with another. In each case it's only a matter of sooner or later." He laughed in his satirical, unstrung way and held out his hand. "You have my address," he said. "Au revoir."

Loder pressed the hand and dropped it. "Goodby," he said meaningly. Then he crossed the room quietly and held the door open. "Goodby," he said again as the other passed him.

As he crossed the threshold Chilcote paused. "Au revoir," he corrected, with emphasis.

Until the last echo of his visitor's steps had died away Loder stood with his hand on the door. Then closing it quietly he turned and looked around the room. For a considerable space he stood there as if weighing the merits of each object. Then very slowly he moved to one of the bookshelves, drew out May's "Parliamentary Practice," and, carrying it to the desk, readjusted the lamp.

CHAPTER VI.

ALL the next day Chilcote moved in a fever of excitement. Hot with hope one moment, cold with fever the next, he rushed with restless energy into every task that presented itself, only to drop it as speedily. Twice during the morning he drove to the entrance of Clifford's inn, but each time his courage failed him and he returned to Grosvenor square to learn that the expected message from Loder had not come.

It was a wearing condition of mind, but at worst it was scarcely more than an exaggeration of what his state had been for months and made but little obvious difference in his bearing or manner.

In the afternoon he took his place in the house, but, though it was his first appearance since his failure of two days ago, he drew but small personal notice. When he chose, his manner could repel advances with extreme effect, and of late men had been prone to draw away from him.

In one of the lobbies he encountered Fraide surrounded by a group of friends. With his usual furtive haste he would have passed on, but moving away from his party the old man accosted him. He was always courteously particular in his treatment of Chilcote, as the husband of his ward and godchild.

"Better, Chilcote," he said, holding out his hand. At the sound of the low, rather formal tones, so characteristic of the old statesman, a hundred memories rose to Chilcote's mind, a hundred hours distasteful in the living and unbearable in the recollection, and with them the new flash of hope, the new possibility of freedom. In a sudden rush of confidence he turned to his leader.

"I believe I've found a remedy for my nerves," he said. "I—I believe I'm going to be a new man." He laughed with a touch of excitement.

Fraide pressed his fingers kindly. "That is right," he said. "That is right. I called at Grosvenor square this morning, but Eve told me your illness of the other day was not serious. She was very busy this morning. She could only spare me a quarter of an hour. She is indefatigable over the social side of your prospects, Chilcote. You owe her a large debt. A popular wife means a great deal to a politician."

The steady eyes of his companion disturbed Chilcote.

He drew away his hand.

"Eve is unique," he said vaguely.

Fraide smiled. "That is right," he said again. "Admiration is too largely excluded from modern marriages." And with a courteous excuse he rejoined his friends.

It was dinner time before Chilcote could desert the house, but the moment departure was possible he hurried to Grosvenor square.

As he entered the house the hall was empty. He swore irritably under his breath and pressed the nearest bell. Since his momentary exaltation in Fraide's presence his spirits had steadily fallen until now they hung at the lowest ebb.

As he waited in unconcealed impatience for an answer to his summons he caught sight of his man Allsopp at the head of the stairs.

"Come here!" he called, pleased to find some one upon whom to vent his irritation. "Has that wire come for me?"

"No, sir. I inquired five minutes back."

"Inquire again."

"Yes, sir." Allsopp disappeared.

A second later after his disappearance the bell of the hall door whizzed loudly.

Chilcote started. All sudden sounds, like all strong lights, affected him. He half moved to the door, then stopped himself with a short exclamation. At the same instant Allsopp reappeared.

Chilcote turned on him excitedly.

"What the devil's the meaning of this?" he said. "A battery of servants in the house and nobody to open the hall door!"

Allsopp looked embarrassed. "Crapham is coming directly, sir. He only left the hall to ask Jeffries"—

Chilcote turned. "Confound Crapham!" he exclaimed. "Go and open the door yourself."

Allsopp hesitated, his dignity struggling with his obedience. As he waited the bell sounded again.

"Did you hear me?" Chilcote said.

"Yes, sir." Allsopp crossed the hall.

As the door was opened Chilcote passed his handkerchief from one hand to the other in the tension of hope and fear, then as the sound of his own name in the shrill tones of a telegraph boy reached his ears he let the handkerchief drop to the ground.

Allsopp took the yellow envelope and carried it to his master.

"A telegram, sir," he said. "And the boy wishes to know if there is an answer." Picking up Chilcote's handkerchief, he turned aside with elaborate dignity.

Chilcote's hands were so unsteady that he could scarcely insert his finger under the flap of the envelope. Tearing off a corner, he wrenched the covering apart and smoothed out the flimsy pink paper.

The message was very simple, consisting of but seven words:

Shall expect you at 11 tonight.
LODER.

He read it two or three times, then he looked up. "No answer," he said mechanically, and to his own ears the relief in his voice sounded harsh and unnatural.

Exactly as the clocks chimed 11 Chilcote mounted the stairs to Loder's rooms. But this time there was more of haste than of uncertainty in his steps, and, reaching the landing, he crossed it in a couple of strides and knocked feverishly on the door.

It opened at once, and Loder stood before him.

The occasion was peculiar. For a moment neither spoke; each involuntarily looked at the other with new eyes and under changed conditions. Each had assumed a fresh standpoint in the other's thought. The passing astonishment, the half impersonal curiosity that had previously tinged their relationship, was cast aside, never to be reassumed. In each the other saw himself—and something more.

As usual, Loder was the first to recover himself.

"I was expecting you," he said. "Won't you come in?"

The words were almost the same as his word of the night before, but his voice had a different ring, just as his face when he drew back into the room had a different expression—a suggestion of decision and energy that had been lacking before. Chilcote caught the difference as he crossed the threshold, and for a bare second a flicker of something like jealousy touched him, but the sensation was fleeting.

"I have to thank you," he said, holding out his hand. He was too well bred to show by a hint that he understood the drop in the other's principles, but Loder broke down the artifice.

"Let's be straight with each other, since everybody else has to be deceived," he said, taking the other's hand. "You have nothing to thank me for, and you know it. It's a touch of the old Adam. You tempted me, and I fell." He laughed, but below the laugh ran a note of something like triumph—the curious triumph of a man who has known the tyranny of strength and suddenly appreciates the freedom of a weakness.

"You fully realise the thing you have proposed?" he added in a different tone. "It's not too late to retract even now."

Chilcote opened his lips, paused, then laughed in imitation of his companion, but the laugh sounded forced.

"My dear fellow," he said at last, "I never retract."

"Never?"

"No."

"Then the bargain's sealed."

Loder walked slowly across the room and, taking up his position by the mantelpiece, looked at his companion. The similarity between them as they faced each other seemed abnormal, defying even the closest scrutiny. And yet, so mysterious is nature even in her lapses, they were subtly, indefinably different. Chilcote was Loder deprived of one essential; Loder, Chilcote with that essential bestowed. The difference lay neither in feature, in coloring nor in height, but in that baffling, illusive inner illumination that some call individuality and others soul.

Something of this idea, misted and tangled by nervous imagination, crossed Chilcote's mind in that moment of scrutiny, but he shrank from it apprehensively.

"I—I came to discuss details," he said quickly, crossing the space that divided him from his host. "Shall we?— Are you?"— He paused uneasily.

"I'm entirely in your hands." Loder spoke with abrupt decision. Moving to the table, he indicated a chair and drew another forward for himself.

Both men sat down.

Chilcote leaned forward, resting elbows on the table. "There will be several things to consider," he began nervously, looking across at the other.

"Quite so." Loder glanced back appreciatively. "I thought about those things the better part of last night. To begin with, I must study your handwriting. I guarantee to get it right, but it will take a month."

"A month!"

"Well, perhaps three weeks. We mustn't make a mess of things."

Chilcote shifted his position.

"Three weeks!" he repeated. "Couldn't you?"—

"No, I couldn't." Loder spoke authoritatively. "I might never want to put pen to paper; but, on the other hand, I might have to sign a check one day." He laughed. "Have you ever thought of that—that I might have to, or want to, sign a check?"

"No. I confess that escaped me."

"You risk your fortune that you may keep the place it bought for you?" Loder laughed again. "How do you know that I am not a blackguard?" he added. "How do you know that I won't clear out one day and leave you high and dry? What is to prevent John Chilcote from realizing £40,000 or £50,000 and then making himself scarce?"

"You won't do that," Chilcote said, with unusual decision. "I told you your weakness last night, and it wasn't money. Money isn't the rock you'll split over."

"Then you think I'll split upon some rock? But that's beyond the question. To get to business again. You'll risk my studying your signature?"

Chilcote nodded.

"Right! Now item two." Loder counted on his fingers. "I must know the names and faces of your men friends as far as I can. Your woman friends don't count. While I'm you, you will be adamant." He laughed again pleasantly. "But the men are essential—the backbone of the whole business."

"I have no men friends. I don't trust the idea of friendship."

"Acquaintances, then."

Chilcote looked up sharply. "I think we score there," he said. "I have a reputation for absentmindedness that will carry you anywhere. They tell me I can look through the most substantial man in the house as if he were gossamer, though I may have lunched with him the same day."

Loder smiled. "By Jove!" he exclaimed. "Fate must have been constructing this before either of us was born. It dovetails ridiculously. But I must know your colleagues, even if it's only to cut them. You'll have to take me to the house."

"Impossible!"

"Not at all!" Again the tone of authority fell to Loder. "I can pull my hat over my eyes and turn up my coat collar. Nobody will notice me. We can choose the fall of the afternoon. I promise you 'twill be all right."

"Suppose the likeness should leak out? It's a risk."

Loder laughed confidently. "Tush, man! Risk is the salt of life. I must see you at your post, and I must see the men you work with." He rose, walked across the room and took his pipe from the rack. "When I go in for a thing I like to go in over head and ears," he added as he opened his tobacco jar.

His pipe filled, he resumed his seat, resting his elbows on the table in unconscious imitation of Chilcote.

"Got a match?" he said laconically, holding out his hand.

In response Chilcote drew his match box from his pocket and struck a light. As their hands touched an exclamation escaped him.

"By Jove!" he said, with a fretful mixture of disappointment and surprise. "I hadn't noticed that!" His eyes were fixed in annoyed interest on Loder's extended hand.

Loder, following his glance, smiled. "Odd that we should both have overlooked it! It clean escaped my mind. It's rather an ugly scar." He lifted his hand till the light fell more fully on it. Above the second joint of the third finger ran a jagged furrow, the reminder of a wound that had once laid bare the bone.

Chilcote leaned forward. "How did you come by it?" he asked.

The other shrugged his shoulders. "Oh, that's ancient history."

"The results are present day enough. It's very awkward, very annoying!"

Loder, still looking at his hand, didn't seem to hear. "There's only one thing to be done," he said. "Each wear two rings on the third finger of the left hand. Two rings ought to cover it." He made a speculative measurement with the stem of his pipe.

Chilcote looked irritable and disturbed. "I detest rings. I never wear rings."

Loder raised his eyes calmly. "Neither do I," he said, "but there's no reason for bigotry."

COMPETENT TEACHERS REPORTED SCARCE

Competent teachers, especially High school teachers, seem to be scarce. Of six applications for the position of junior teacher in the Stratford Collegiate Institute there was none that the management committee could recommend. In Kingston there were very few applications for a vacancy and when the management committee met to consider them no choice was made. The efficient High school teacher can recommend almost his own price these days. It is a healthful sign in one respect, though it is evidence that the number who are entering the teaching profession is less than it was some time ago, and this may work out badly if the scarcity of teachers become too great.

PATHETIC STORY OF BRIDAL ROBE

Pathetic interest attaches to a magnificent altar frontal, which has just passed into the possession of the Roman Catholic Church of St. John's, near Norwich, England. The frontal has been embroidered on the white satin bridal robe of the widow of the late colonel Noyes, who died suddenly about 18 months ago while on this honeymoon. His young, heart-broken widow sent her bridal robe to the nuns at St. Katherine's Convent, Bloomsbury, and for 18 months four of the most skilful embroiderers have been at work upon it. The altar frontal is eight feet long and about four feet deep. It is designed in three panels, showing beautifully executed figures. The first is an allegorical picture of the late Colonel Noyes. The colonel is depicted as a mediaeval knight clad in complete armour, but unhelmed. The knight kneels before the Virgin and Child who occupy the second panel. His shield is at his feet, and he is handing his sword to the Virgin. St. George of England stands behind his kneeling figure. The face of the knight is a portrait of the late colonel. In the third panel is a picture of St. John the Baptist, the patron saint of the church to which Mrs. Noyes has presented the frontal. The arms and mottoes of Colonel Noyes and of the widow's family are embroidered over the panels.

WAS MURDER OF COL. WYLIE PLANNED FROM VANCOUVER B.C.?

Has the assassination of Colonel Sir Curzon Wyllie by a Hindoo student in London a British Columbia end? Last fall, it will be remembered, the Vancouver World disclosed the workings of a band of seditionists on the Pacific Coast, and the publication of their plans and deliberations lead to the breaking up of the gang, the leaders scattering to the four corners of the continent. High in the councils of the Hindoos was a white man, an American, who stayed in Vancouver at one of the best hotels, and who had some mysterious command over Hindoos and Sikhs irrespective of caste. This man was traced by the World's correspondents to a hotbed of sedition among Hindoos in Pasadena, Cal., and there he vanished, having become aware that reporters were on his trail. A London correspondent of the World sends the following from the Daily Express of a mysterious white leader of discontented Hindoos. The description tallies in every particular with the man whose presence on the Pacific Coast was disclosed by the World.

There is at the present moment staying in London at the Waldorf hotel, under the most delicately assumed name, the American lawyer, Mr. Yyron H. Phelps, who has deliberately elected to forsake his practice in New York in order to become an active enemy against Great Britain in India, says the reporter of the Daily Express, London.

ORANGEMEN CELEBRATING THE GLORIOUS TWELFTH

Monster Celebration at Port Hope, in Which the Followers of William of Orange From Peterborough District are Taking Part—Paraded to the Grand Trunk Station This Morning.

Fifes and drums are to-day sounding throughout the Dominion. It is the "Glorious Twelfth," and the Orangemen, Young Britons, 'Prentice Boys, True Blues and Lady True Blues are celebrating the day with all the pomp and splendor and music of former days. Early this morning the strains of 'Rise Sons of William, Rise,' 'Boyne Water' and 'Protestant Boys,' were afloat in Peterborough, and by the time the parade was formed to march to the Grand Trunk station to entrain for Port Hope there were five hundred Orangemen in line.

The Keene lodge came to Peterborough on the 8.30 Grand Trunk train, and joining the Peterborough lodges, marched to Melbourne street, to meet the brethren coming in on the Lakefield train, which arrived shortly after ten o'clock. Four lodges arrived on the Lakefield train, two from Lakefield and the Nassau and North Smith lodges. A procession was formed and George street was traversed to the station. There were eight lodges in line, four fife and drum bands and three brass bands. Two of the latter were made up from the 57th regiment band, and the other was from Lakefield. A third section of the 57th band will be at the head of the Emily lodge.

The special left for Port Hope at eleven o'clock, and returning will reach Peterborough at 6.30 o'clock.

SEVENTH ANNUAL PICNIC OF EMPLOYEES OF QUAKER OATS CO.

Steamer Otonabee Carried 400 to South Beach, Clear Lake—The Sporting Events, Prizes and Winners.

The seventh annual picnic under the auspices of the employees of the Quaker Oats Company, was held Saturday to South Beach, Clear Lake, and was highly successful, although the enjoyment of the four hundred who took in the trip was somewhat marred by the downfall of rain which fell during the greater part of the day. The steamer Otonabee left the Wolfe wharf at eight a.m. and stopped at the Lift Lock to accommodate the large number who were waiting at this point. The trip over the Lift Lock and through the other numerous locks was made in good time, the excursionists reaching Lakefield shortly before 11 o'clock; then on to Young's Point, reached at 11.45, and landing at South Beach at twelve o'clock, where dinner was partaken of. The rain had commenced shortly after leaving the Lift Lock, but proceedings on board were enlivened by the music furnished by the Quaker band and Tucker's orchestra for dancing. On the arrival of the boat, Mr. Wm. Brooks, proprietor of teh South Beach Hotel, placed his splendidly equipped premises at the disposal of the excursionists, and those who did not eat on the boat found every convenience on the large verandah or in the dancing hall. A large number took advantage of the excellent menu which had been prepared by the proprietor of the hotel and his small army of assistants in the handsome dining hall. Undaunted by the drizzling rain still falling General Superintendent W.B. Denham and the sports committee after dinner proceeded to run off the many events, and the persistence shown by these gentlemen was too much for the weatherman, who stopped proceedings while the water sports were being carried out.

The boat left on the return trip at five o'clock, but not before the thanks of the excursionists had been tendered to the proprietor of the hotel for his kindness towards them.

The prizes were distributed to the winners, and the results of the guessing contest were announced. Everyone on board had been given a ticket and asked to write any number from one to five thousand and sign their name. The lucky number was 1,167, and the nearest guesser was Mrs. Mackin, who guessed 1,198. Four men were next with 1,111, and the second and third prizes were added together and divided equally among these four.

A handsome carving set was received by the sports committee from the Peterborough Hardware Co., and it was decided to make a special event for the members of the band, in recognition of the splendid servcie they had rendered during the day. The prize was won by Mr. Ed. Barrett, who came in first in a rowing race.

The programme of sports and games, the prizes and the winners were as follows:

LAND SPORTS.

Quoit tournament, two sets of quoits—Messrs. Allison and Hacker.

Putting 16 lb. shot, 50 cigars — F. Guerin.

Young ladies' double rowing race, 100 yards—1, pair kid gloves, Mrs. Slade and Gadd; 2, 2 fancy pins, Misses Roadhouse and Brown.

GRAND GUESSING CONTEST.

1, $8, Mrs. Mackin; 2, second and third prizes of $4 and $2, were equally divided among Messrs. Grant, Cunningham, Hughes and McKeown.

Rowing race, special, quarter mile, for members of band only, carving set—Ed. Barrett.

ON THE SIDE.

South Beach is a beautiful place. Too bad it rained.

Art Sims was kept busy handing out the puffed rice candy and serving the lemonade which had been placed on the boat, and could be secured free of charge. The small kids were right in it—also many of the big ones.

The Quaker band rendered a liberal quantity of music, and their services were much appreciated by those on board.

The various committees worked hard to make the day an enjoyable one. Mr. Denham made a very efficient chairman.

The captain and crew of the Otonabee did their part well in the proceedings of the day.

FORMALEHYDE A GOOD FLY KILLER

It is not always possible to trace the origin of illness, but it is easy enough to give valid reasons why the fly can be the introductory agent. Purely medical aspects apart, he is not particularly scrupulous as to its environment—it alights at one time on most offensive material and at another it is on the food in the kitchen and at the table. One of the earliest experiments we remember to have seen showing the connection of flies and diseases was that in allowing a common blue bottle to walk across a freshly sliced potato. The potato subsequently developed colonies of micro-organisms all along the track taken by the fly, while elsewhere no development took place.

The important question remains how best to get rid of the fly. Fly papers are sticky things and unsightly, and the struggle of a fly to release itself from a sticky substance is not an entertaining spectacle. The best exterminating agent is a weak solution of formaldehyde in water—say two teaspoonfuls to the pint. It would appear that flies are attracted by a weak solution of formaldehyde, which they drink. Some die in the water, others get as far only as the immediate vicinity of the plate of water, but all ultimately succumb, and where they occur in large numbers, hundreds may be swept upon the floor. It is consoling to know that by this time the flies have died under a dose of fluid which is fatal to disease organisms, a fluid also which is inoffensive and for practical purposes provides a means of diminishing the scourge, and of securing to some extent what is most desirable, the disinfection of the slain.

256 TONS WATER FOR EVERY ACRE

Saturday's Rainfall Was the Heaviest in Many Years—Totalled Nearly $2\frac{1}{2}$ Inches on the Level—Some Statistics.

SATURDAY'S RAIN.

HEAVIEST RAINFALL IN THIS LOCALITY FOR MANY YEARS.

HAS NOT BEEN EXCEEDED FOR AT LEAST THIRTEEN YEARS.

RAINFALL TOTALLED 2 46-100 IN. ON THE LEVEL.

THIS IS EQUAL TO 256 TONS OF WATER FOR EVERY ACRE.

ON A 160 ACRE FARM THE RAINFALL WOULD TOTAL 41,216 TONS.

The above interesting statements about Saturday's big rain are based on information secured from Mr. Walter Peters, who has charge of the government recording instrument here, and therefore they can be taken as reliable. From early in the day till late at night there was almost a steady downpour. At times the rain came down in veritable torrents, and the streets literally ran with water. The thunder and lightning were not severe in this district, and no damage is reported.

The earth was so dry that the water quickly disappeared, and before it started to rain on Sunday evening the surface of the earth appeared to be quite dry again.

The rain was a blessing to the country, doing thousands of dollars' worth of good.

JUNE WEDDINGS STIMULANT TO THE FURNITURE TRADE

The June bride has made others than her "hubby" happy. The furniture men of Peterborough are simply "tickled to death." And the dealers in household goods are not only jubilant because they are selling more wares this spring than ever before, but on account of the unusually good quality that has been in demand.

Railways are bringing to the city each week more furniture than was unloaded here in several months a few years ago. Dray loads of high-class bed room suites, fancy rockers and fine tapestries may be seen leaving the freight houses every day.

"This all goes to show," said an official, "that Peterborough is not only growing, but that it is highly prosperous. If times were not good the young men could not marry in the first place, and in the second place under adverse conditions they could not buy such expensive furniture after acquiring a better half."

Furniture men say business is fine, and they are hoping that July outdoes June in the matrimonial line.

JUVENILE OFFENDERS AND HOW TO DEAL WITH THEM; ADDRESS

BY R. M. DENNISTOUN, K.C.

Distinction Between Country and Town Boys—Home Influences and Their Effect—The Necessity of Allowing Magistrates to Order Whipping.

It seldom, if ever, happens that the children of well-to-do people are found in the police court charged with crime. On the other hand, it is a matter of frequent occurrence in a large town to find from two to half a dozen small boys of the poorer classes before the magistrate charged with stealing. Theft seems to be the only crime in the code which the child is capable of committing, if we exclude quasi criminal offences, such as breaking windows, coasting on sidewalks, and use of bad language or fighting, which are more the outcome of animal spirits and life and frolic than of criminal propensity.

To generalize further, from experience drawn from many years' attendance at the trial of juvenile offenders, I find, first, that charges of theft are in almost all cases preferred against town boys, very rarely against country boys. The different conditions of life in town and country, which produce these results may profitably be examined, in order to ascertain why the town boy should steal and the country boy, except in rare instances, remain honest. If we can reach a conclusion, and can apply the results to the towns and cities, we will have taken a long step towards the reformation of the juvenile offenders who appear in the juvenile courts of to-day. Second, the town boy never steals singly, but always in bands or gangs, the reason for this we will discuss briefly.

The relations between parent and child are very different in the country from those which exist in the town. The life of the country people gives them opportunities for constant superintendence over their children. The farmer lives his life upon the farm, and the children have their work and play under the direction and observation of their parents.

In the town, on the other hand, the father leaves home in the morning not to return till evening, or possibly the mother is a widow and has to work out. There is no regular employment for the boy about the home, nothing to excite his interest or arouse his ambition. There are no horses or cattle to care for, no ploughing, seeding, mowing, or threshing to be done, nothing, in fact, to use up his physical powers and make him tired out when night comes. He must find exercise outside his home life or remain a loafer. Here, then, is the first reason the town boy falls into evil ways, namely, he has the opportunity for so doing.

When the farmer's son is free from school, he has but little temptation to wrong-doing between the school-house and the farm, and at home there are duties to be done which keep him employed until dusk, in the performance of which he is entirely withdrawn from the companionship of other boys of his own age unless they be members of his own family.

On the other hand, when the restless, active town boy is released from school, his only aim and object is to seek amusement with his fellows. They are perhaps better dressed, better fed, better supplied with pocket money than he is. In order to join in their sports he must have money, not much, perhaps, but a little. His parents do not give him any, and if he earns it they will take it from him. He finds half a dozen others in the same plight as himself, and after mutual encouragement, they make plans which they execute and finally become expert thieves, in many petty ways known to the police. Every theatre, every circus, every minstrel show, confectioner's shop or excursion is an irresistible temptation to the town boy. He feels there is no pleasure in life apart from the expenditure of money and it is to obtain this money that he falls into evil ways. I do not believe that the town boy is worse than his country cousin, but that he is, by reason of his environment and temptations brought into the crooked ways of life unconsciously, through lack of those restraining influences which should be thrown around him in the home life.

When brought into the police court these boys weep at first, but knowing they are sure to get two or three chances, they rapidly become calloused, and in the end appear unconcerned, feeling that they are heroes in the eyes of their companions, and in no great danger from the kindly magistrate.

The old punishment was to send these boys to a Reformatory or Industrial school, where they met only boys of their own type. Good influence can seldom be brought to bear upon an institution full of boys so as to benefit them individually, and they come back to their own town or village, ready to repeat their former experiences on a more extensive scale.

I have letters from the superintendents of some of our large criminal institutions, all of which testify to the utter failure of imprisonment to work reformation.

What, then, is to be done?

The splendid organization known as the Children's Aid Society, offers a solution in part, and suggestions are made for further improvement of the law.

The town boy who has proved incorrigible, or whose home is broken up, wants transplanting. A home in the country with a good farmer where he may be removed at once from his old associations and companions, will work wonders.

Strange to say, these homes can be had in abundance. There is a large demand for boys from ten to fourteen years of age. The farmers take them willingly and agree to send them to school, and when older to put aside yearly a sum of money to be paid the boy when he reaches a certain age.

Different boys must be dealt with in different ways, but a little study and patience has solved many problems.

Let me give you the story of a boy who, in the early days of the society, and before the foster-home problem had been thoroughly tried, was dealt with in a way we would not now recommend: He had been deserted by father and mother. There was nothing really wrong about him except that he was idle and shiftless. He was brought before the magistrate and sent to the Reformatory at Penetanguishene upon an indeterminate sentence of five years. It appears he behaved fairly well at the Reformatory and was allowed to do work which interested him. His letters showed, however, that he was restless, and longing for his release. One day, an opportunity occurred and, prompted by a boyish impulse, which everyone will understand and sympathize with, he made a dash for liberty. He was caught, and punished, but felt that by this one act he had destroyed his chance and was doomed to suffer the full term of five long years imprisonment. He tried to escape on two subsequent occasions, and for this was transferred to the Central prison at Toronto. This boy, so far as we know, never committed a crime, and yet by this wrong system he was made a gaol bird and was forced to live the best years of his young life in the society of the most abandoned of our criminals.

Do you not agree with me that the foster-home is preferable to the prison cell?

Now for a few words on the present state of law. Does it not seem anomalous that the magistrate who has power to remove a child from its parents and make it a ward of the Children's Aid Society, has no power to order the child to be whipped; a foster-father may punish the child, if he do so in a legitimate way, but the magistrate cannot order a policeman to whip the child and return him to his rightful parents.

Those who have studied the child-saving problem are nearly all agreed that in some cases a good whipping properly administered under court administration would have a beneficial effect. This plan has been tried with advantage, but more power should be given to the magistrates. Our Criminal Law comes from the Dominion Parliament and our Children's Protective Legislation from the Legislative Assembly, which accounts for the lack of harmony in the statute law. The other provinces have followed the lead of Ontario in its most radical legislation; and judging from the results of the past years it must be pronounced an unqualified success. I firmly believe no more beneficial law of this character was ever passed.

It is the law of this province, though not generally understood—nor always acted upon—that children are to be tried in the children's court, and not in a public tribunal.

Also, that a judge may, without a conviction against a child charged with an offence, order the child to be placed under the care of the society's probation officer.

No child under fourteen is to be committed to gaol or police station pending trial.

Any accused child shall, as far as possible, be admitted to bail and placed in the custody of some friend or benevolent person, or Children's Aid Society.

We welcome these amendments to the law and feel certain that the care of the state for the children will continue to increase, despite the perverted and brutal ideas of justice and national vengeance on small children which so long prevailed. It is not a hundred years since a girl of sixteen years was publicly hanged in London for stealing a petty sum of money from her mistress.

Happily these crude methods are passing away and the child's value as a potential citizen is being increasingly recognised. Equipped and supervised playgrounds are the order of the day and more intelligent and sympathetic study is given to the child problem than ever before.

Surely we should be thankful for enlightened public opinion since that time, and resolve that in our young and growing country we will save for themselves and the state, the children who, left alone, will certainly perish!

When asked where he got his liquor Hayes told all the particulars as to who gave it to him, and when and where the liquor was bought. He was fined $10, the same to be paid in ten days.

PERSONAL

Miss Tucker and Miss Cowan, of "The Linton," Montreal, have left to spend the summer months at Muskoka.

Mr. W. T. O'Brien, head master of Peterborough Separate school, is in the Windy City seeing the sights and enjoying a holiday. The wheat pit was a revelation to him.

Mr. Thos. H. Burnham, of Fort Frances, is on a visit to his old home for a few days. He says Fort Frances is growing rapidly, immense pulp-mills are being erected by the Americans.

Mr. T. H. Binnie, son of Mr. George Binnie, of Bunessan, ex-warden of Grey County, Ont., has been appointed editor of the agricultural department of the Central Canada Citizen. Mr. Finnie is a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College in the dairy option and until recently was bacteriologist for a large dairy firm in Ottawa.

The friends of Miss Marie Fletcher, who married Rev. L. C. Smith, of Rochester, N.Y., in June, 1908, at her home in Beaufort, will be glad to hear she has had a pleasant year in California. Mr. Smith is pastor of the First Baptist church at Bakersfield, California, and the church has prospered greatly under his care. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are spending July and August in the North-west, visiting the Alaskan-Yukon-Pacific exposition en route.

SPORTING NEWS

LINES ON SPORT

Torontos walloped the champ on Tecumsehs at Scarborough on Saturday, 17 to 4.

Cornwall beat the Nationals in the Factory Town, 5—3.

Montreal trimmed the Caps in Montreal, 13—3. Montreal now leads the N. L. U.

Toronto divided a double-header with Rochester on Saturday. The Maple Leafs play at Buffalo to-day.

Philadelphia is only two points behind Detroit in the American League race. Krause won for the Phillies against the Tigers yesterday.

Pittsburg is still at the top of the National League and their supporters believe they will stay there.

There were no city league games on Saturday on account of the rain. They were to have been played at the Oval.

A writer in the Utica Saturday Globe says Jeffries can never get in shape to train Johnson.

Jack Johnson is said to be badly in need of a manager. Without one he is as erratic as the Toronto ball team.

As a shortstop Kid Mahling, of the Toronto team seems to be nearly as bad as some of the jokes in the Toronto Star.

Sport is so dead in Ottawa that the Ottawa Free Press has cut out its Saturday night sporting extra.

Mr. W. A. Bailey has our sympathy on account of his picture appearing in the Examiner on Saturday.

SPORT PRETTY DEAD AT OTTAWA

The Ottawa Free Press says: The Free Press is up against a big task in supplying Ottawa people with sporting news on Saturday night.

There is not sufficient doing of Ottawa interest to warrant the continuance of the pink sporting extra, at the present time at least.

All last summer and fall the sporting extra was published weekly, at a considerable loss it is true, but growing interest in it stimulated the hope that this year it would get on its feet. For causes over which the Free Press has no control and which need not be enumerated that interest has not been maintained this year.

Perhaps later on there will be enough interesting news to warrant a late Saturday evening edition. Then the Free Press sporting extra will surely be on hand again.

RUBBING IT INTO TORONTO

The Hickey-Gray Controversy Goes Merrily on

When a pitcher has played ball in a big league like the Eastern and then goes back and gets beaten by a bunch of "townies" it naturally ruffles his feelings.

Fred Hickey must have got rubbed the wrong way good and plenty for the Toronto Star contains a spout every night now to smooth matters over, after once publishing a despatch stating that Dick Gray, our local boy, outpitched Hickey, the Great at Markham last Saturday. Bee, but Mr. Hickey must be sore!

"As for Gray," the Star says last night, "there are plenty of kids on the sand lots in Toronto, who could beat him any old day in the week."

It's funny nobody hears of those kids in the sand lots outside of Toronto. Amateur teams by the dozen have played in Lindsay, Peterborough, Cobourg and the other towns in the Midland League circuit and seldom indeed have they sprung anything in the pitching that had beaten.

Gray lacks one thing that Hickey has, and has good; that is, a swelled head. It was not Gray who started the discussion over the Markham game, and Gray is not from Stouffville, as the despatch states, he's from Lindsay.

The remainder of the tommy rot in the Star can be taken at bargain prices for hot air.—Lindsay Warder.

A Big Canadian.

One of the most interesting and independent thinkers that Canada, has given to the world, says The Boston Herald, is John Beattie Crozier, author of a "History of Intellectual Development," and an autobiography which will be valuable to all who wish to study the effect of the dominant scientific conceptions of the latter half of the nineteenth century on sincere men. He has resided in London for some years, and has just received a pension of $250 a year from the Authors' Society. So has Richard Whiteing. A man of letters in Great Britain, thanks to this society and to Government pensions, is often saved from want in old age.

Old Glory In House.

Actually within the Canadian Parliament building itself, a large American flag was displayed on the day of the closing of the House.

The individual in charge of the decorations of the hall where the Australian press delegates were entertained to lunch by the Hon. Frank Oliver, draped the Stars and Stripes over the entrance in the most prominent place. Some of the members of Parliament, in their peregrinations, sighted the invader and the flag was removed forthwith, but the incident caused a good deal of talk.

THUGS SHOWED BIG REVOLVER

When Hop Lee a George St. Laundryman Disturbed Them in Their Operations—Entered Laundry When Proprietor Was Out.

Hop Lee, a Chineman, was given a very severe shock last night. Anybody looking into the barrel of a six-shooter would naturally be somewhat perturbed, and this is what Hop Lee had to do at his laundry, 533 George street.

He had been visiting his friend, Hop Sing, who conducts a washing parlor on Charlotte street, and returned to his own place of business at about 11.30 o'clock. He was alarmed to find two men in the laundry, and he demanded what they were doing there. In answer one of them drew a revolver and ordered the Mongolian to throw up his hands. He displayed no hesitancy in acquiescing with the request, and was further ordeerd to keep quiet.

The men raised a side window which let them into the kitchen, and were ransacking the place when the proprietor reached there. They asked him were his money was and received the reply that it had been put in the bank. They then made their exit through the raised window and disappeared int he darkness.

When they had gone Hop Lee went out in search of a policeman, and found P. C. Adams, who went up to the laundry. The floor was heavily marked with mud tracks. Nothing it is said was stolen, and the marauders were evidently surpried early in their visit. Lee describes them as big men but could not very well see them, and no accurate description of the fellows is to hand for the police to work on.

PITCHED BATTLE BETWEEN COWBOYS AND CATTLE RUSTLERS

Special to Review.

El Paso Texas, July 12.—A Southern Pacific despatch from Afton, N.M., forty-five miles west of this city, states that nine men are dead as the result of a battle between cowboys and cattle raiders.

The despatched stated that a wounded man had just reached Afton and reported that a band of rustlers had attacked his party, and that every person with him, nine in all, was missing, and he presumed they had all been killed.

The wounded man said 500 shots were fired. Since that hour the despatcher here has bee nunable to raise the operator at Afton to get further details.

CANON HENSLEY HENSON ON DUPLICATION OF CHURCHES

The Waste of Over-lapping—A Sin Against the Cause—The Rector of St. Margaret's, Westminster, Speaks.

Winnipeg, July 10—"I have been very much struck by the grotesque competition of denominations in America, seeing small towns with numbers of denominations, all struggling and none being successful. On purely practical grounds, some reasonable arrangement between he Protestant denominations seems to be urgently called for."

Thus was the situation summed up this morningb y the Rev. Canon Henson, of Westminster Abbey, who has just made athree months' tour of the United States, and is now visiting his brother here. The Rev. Canon Henson is one of the able divines of the old land, and, in addition to being a canon of Westminster, he is also rector of St. Margaret's, the parish church of the Britih House of Commons. Holding such a position, he is necessarily on the cross benches, and has a splendid oppertuntiy of watching the trend of political affairs at the seat of the Empire. On Wednesday nextt he reverend visitor will address the Canadian Club on "A cross-bench view of imperial defence."

THESE ARE SAMPLE CONUNDRUMS

What it Costs to Make Government Good in Some Cities

Why is it that a man working for private employer can accomplish more than eleven times as much in a day as a man doing precisely similar work for the city? And why should work done for the city cost fifteen times as much as the same quantity of the same kind of work done for a private employer?

Why should the city pay a clock repairer $11.63 per hour for tinkering at its clocks? Why not save money by throwing away a clock as soon as it got out of order and buying a new one?

Why is it that the city is obliged to pay sixty cents each for common wardrobe hooks and five cents each for two screws to put up each hook making the total cost of each hook seventy cents, when the plain citizen can go into any hardware store in the land and buy the same kind of hooks with the screws thrown in for six cents? And why does it cost the city an additional $1.51 to put up each hook, making the grand total cost $2.21 per hook?

Why does a given quantity of rubber hose that cost other purchasers $1.56 cost the city $5.40?

Why do gas mantles retailed everywhere at twenty cents each cost the city forty cents when purchased in quantities?

Why do brackets retailed at forty-five cents cost the city three dollars?

Why did ground with an assessed valuation of $4,360 cost the city $247,483 when bought for park purposes?

Why does it cost the city $8.25 a load to haul dirt when a private citizen can get it hauled the same distance under identical conditions for $1.47 a load?

These are sample conundrums from rather a long list propounded at the first budget exhibit of the Bureau of Municipal Research, which was held recently. In reality they were aimed at a specific city, the metropolis of a well-known English-speaking nation of North America but as fate would have it the conditions outlined in the conundrums depicted with startling fidelity the situation in about every community in the land big enough to be afflicted with a municipal government. Finding the shoe fitted cities everywhere proceeded to wear it.—From "Making Government Good," in the August Technical World Magazine.

THE NEW JEWELRY.

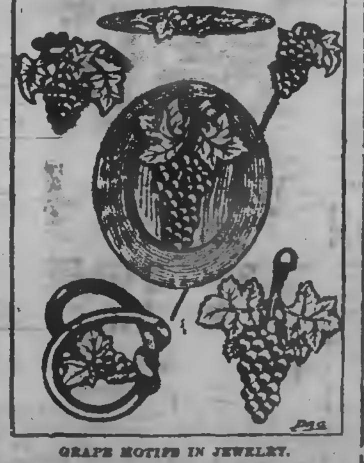
Grape Effects In Brooches and Pendants Are Very Attractive.

The cretonne designer, wall paper manufacturer, milliner and jeweler alike recognize the decorative value of the grape motif, and this popular fruit was never represented in a more attractive form than it has been brought out this season. Its effectiveness as a millinery accessory is shown in many of the smartest hats of the spring, while the wall paper and upholstery designer has brought out many original effects with grape clusters as the feature of the decorative scheme.



GRAPE MOTIFS IN JEWELRY.

It has remained for the jeweler, however, to utilize the grape motif in the most alluring manner. In white, green or purple hues that exactly imitate those of nature grapes, with a bit of foliage, form the setting for the daintiest of pins, brooches and pendants. The golden frame for these pretty fruit designs is of the bright or the duller rose tint, a faint greenish hue being introduced occasionally when the grapes are of the green white malaga tint. In the accompanying sketch are shown a few of the latest designs in grape jewelry, the pendant and brooch being especially pretty.

Gift to a Hostess.

One dainty woman gave to another dainty woman, whose guest she had been, a gift for her linen closet. It consisted of a number of lavender filled pads to lay in among the linens. They were generous in size, made of lavender Japanese crape, printed with a rambling vine, probably wistaria. The inside was white cotton wadding, with dried lavender flowers between the layers, and there was a last bit of prettiness added in the shape of tufts of lavender ribbon.

The gift is a very appropriate one from the guest, who has not known her hostess very w[illegible] there [illegible] might not venture on a per[illegible]

TO CLEAN FEATHERS.

Select a Good, Bright Day For This Important Work.

This is a task that most housekeepers dread, but it can be done most successfully without a great deal of hard work. Select a good, bright day for it, for sun, regardless of old superstitions to the contrary, is the best thing in the world for feathers. Empty the feathers or down into a bag of cheesecloth, tie the mouth tightly and wash in a big tub of strong white soapsuds, with a little ammonia added. Rub the bag between the hands, and dip up and down in the water for ten or fifteen minutes. Rinse through two clear hot waters and hang, without squeezing, to drain and dry in the sun or near heat. During the drying process pull the bag apart several times. When dry place in a larger, clean bag and whip well for ten minutes with a rattan whip, and you will find your feathers like new. Then put them back in clean ticks. Of course there is a slight loss in the feathers, as some of them come through the bag, but the clean, fluffy ones almost make up in bulk for what has been lost in the water. On account of what sifts through the bag never wash them in set tubs, as the fluff going through the pipes may clog them in three or four places. A feather bed may be washed in the same way. Of course it is troublesome, but well worth while. Needless to say, the tick should be thoroughly washed to be in readiness for the feathers when dry. A hot flatiron well coated with beeswax and then run over the inside of pillow and bedticks keeps the filling from washing through. If you don't wish to wash your feathers it is a great help to them to let them get wet in summer rain and then sun for several days, bringing them in each night.

A Novel Timepiece.

This quaint instrument, once used for measuring time by light, belonged to Mary, queen of Scots. It is now in the possession of Lord de Lisle and Dudley at Penshurst, England.

A Substitute For Broiling.

Occasionally in using gas stoves there is no broiler. Instead of falling back on unhealthful frying for meat, try heating a pan piping hot, put the steak in it without greasing, turn as soon as seared and keep turning until the meat is done.

To season remove from pan, put on a hot platter, press bits of butter, salt and pepper on both sides of steak, put in the oven a few minutes to draw a brown dressing.

Handicraft Fireplace.

The fireplace is usually the dominant note in the living room of a bungalow or summer cottage. It is planned to give an artistic effect and should always be in harmony with the general character of the room. For a small, picturesque cottage of natural color wood, with the living room done in soft green finished oak and natural color burlap, a fireplace of gray stones would be very much in keeping. A novel and decorative touch might be given it by the mosaic of pebbles done in an oak leaf design. This the children can do on a rainy day, thrusting the colored pebbles they have collected into the soft stucco.

THE BROOD MARE.

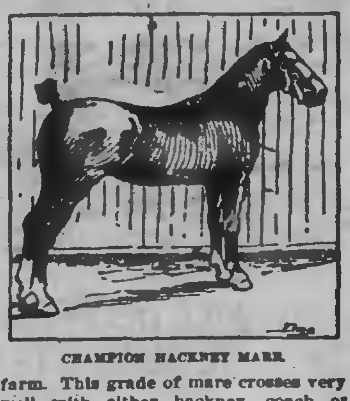
Too Many Scrubs Used by the Farmers, Says a Horseman.

If a farmer is going to raise colts that will give him a substantial balance on the right side of the ledger he must have a good grade of mares, as the stallion, no matter how good an individual or how well he is bred, cannot do it all, writes a horseman in Country Gentleman.

Having been connected with the breeding industry for fifteen years in the care and handling of stallions for public service in a farming community, I find there is a tendency among a great number of farmers to use their scrubs for brood mares instead of the best they have, and in many cases the best are poor enough, but when a man has a good mare and then breeds a broken down cripple with about all of the "ornaments" that go with a blemished horse instead he does not deserve to have good colts.

I will not mention training trotters for racing, as that rarely pays an ordinary farmer, but in my experience I find that the trotting bred mare weighing from 1,100 to 1,200 pounds and standing from 15.3 to 16 hands in height, with good conformation and all around action, heavy bone and a good head, makes the best kind of brood mare for the farmer if he is going to raise carriage horses that will sell and at the same time do his work on the farm. This grade of mare crosses very well with either hackney, coach or Morgan.



CHAMPION HACKNEY MARE.

I would prefer the Morgan or coach stallion, as its offspring will have action that, while it is high, is at the same time getting somewhere, while if the mare does not breed strongly after herself if crossed with the hackney the action in the colt is more on the trappy, up and down order, and nearly every up to date business farmer wants a horse or team that he can hitch up and drive from fifteen to twenty-five miles and not be half a day doing it and at the same time do as much work as the draft horse at ordinary farm labor.

20 1-2 POUND LUNGE AND A 4 1-2 POUND BLACK BASS;

The ambitious fishermen at the lakes this year don't have to be so patient this year as they have had to be in some former seasons. Not that the lakes are not always capital fishing grounds, but the fish never bite to order, and some summers they are naturally a little bit more backward than others. This year, however, they are not a bit reluctant to take a chance at the whirling spoon, and the success the trawlers have been meeting with has more than come up to their ante-season expectations. In all parts of the Kawartha Lakes the big fellows are catching on, and many of the sportsmen frequently get the full complement when they go out for a day's fishing. The bass are keeping up their reputation well in the rod and line department, and some exceptionally large ones are meeting "an out of the water into the 'frying pan'" fate.

The biggest lunge of the season in the Stoney Lake district was captured on Thursday in Clark's Bay, by Mr. John Cooper, of Lakefield. It tilted the measure at 20 1-2 pounds and gave its captor the usual hard battle. Mr. Clarke very kindly sent the fish to the House of Refuge at Lakefield, and the dependent ones will be abundantly supplied for a choice fish dinner. Mr. Baird, of Pittsburg, caught a black bass at Burleigh Falls the other day that qualified for the heavyweight class. It weighed over four pounds and is one of the finest catches of the season.

VALUABLE MARL BEDS IN BOTTOM OF SANDY LAKE

Toronto, July 12.—Marl beds of considerable value are reputed to invade the land under the waters of Sandy Lake, in the township of Harvey, in Peterborough County. Reports are very sanguine in character, and it is understood that British capitalists are desirous to exploit the deposits.

In view of pending negotiations with the Provincial Government, Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, has decided to withdraw the property from general prospecting and staking out, and from sale or lease under the Mining Act. The order in Council to this effect was gazetted on Saturday.

"The Government has merely reports to go upon," said Hon. Mr. Cochrane, when interviewed, "but they will be looked into with a view to development."

It is well known in Peterborough that the bottom of Sandy Lake is practically a large bed of marl. It is white in color, and the lake is very clear as a result.

REVIEW'S STONEY LAKE NEWS THE LATEST HAPPENINGS

The Review's budget of happenings at the Kawartha Lakes contains all the latest and most readable intelligence. Summer visitors and cottagers desirous of getting all the lake news would do well to subscribe for the Review during the summer season.

About a week ago Mr. Kenneth Shook, of Peterborough, found his skiff had been stolen from the house boat owned by his father, Mr. J. C. Shook. The boat was on the Trent Canal about three-quarters of a mile above the lift lock. The skiff that was missed was cedar stripped and was vauled about $50. The oars and boat cushions were taken with the boat.

On Saturday Mr Harry Munroe, of New York, who is staying at Clear Lake, bought a boat which turned out to be the stolen skiff from two young fellows who claimed that they came from Smith's Falls. They said they had been camping at the lakes for the past two weeks. They were prepared to sell the boat at a bargain as they did not want to take it home with them. They disposed of it to Mr. Munroe for $20 and the sale included the boat cushions steel fishing roads and a tin cabinet of fishing tackle of splendid quality. After the sale had been made some of the cottagers recognized the cushions as belonging to Mr. R. B. Rogers and Mr. Dave Carlyle identified the skiff as being Mr. Shook's.

Mr Munroe and Mr. Carlyle went to Burleigh where the police at Peterborough were communicated with and instructed to hold the thieves if they could be detected as they passed through Peterborough. The police have been on the lookout but at the time of going to press the pair had not been apprehended.

One of the longest skiff trips that has been made in the Kawartha region was accomplished last week by Mr. Louis Cunningham, of Pittsburg. The route of the lengthy trip was from Burleigh to Bobcaygeon and return a distance of fifty miles.

Mr. Cunningham made the trip in a day.

He is only 18 years of age and was accompanied by two others, his grandfather and another American visitor to the lakes.

Little Tommy Darcy, the four-year-old son of Mr. Warren Darcy, proprietor of the Park Hotel, Burleigh, had a close call to being drowned in Lovesick Lake one day last week. The boy was conducting a juvenile inspection of a yacht owned by Mr. Blewett, when he fell overboard.

It was a most fortunate thing that a rope was strung across near the surface of the water where he fell in and when Tommy made his appearance above the surface he clutched the rope and hung on to it managing to work his way over to some cribwork where he was rescued.

There was another good Sunday morning attendance at the pavilion at Juniper Island yesterday. Rev. Dr. Crummy was unable to be present to conduct the services and Mr. Rutherford, of the Bible Training school, Toronto, officiated in his place.

There was no service at Burleigh yesterday.

SOME LIVE NEWS FROM MT. JULIAN

Women's Institute had Successful Meeting—Many Summer Visitors

Special to the Review.

Mount Julian, July 10.—Mr. S. Keyes, of the Peterborough Normal School, with Mrs. Keyes and some friends, are occupying Mrs. William Church's cottage, Cedar Brae, for a month.

We regret to announce the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Spence and family for Toronto this month. Mr. Spence taught the upper school here for several years with success, and Mrs. Spence is the daughter of Mr. Layfette Reid, one of our oldest residents.

Mrs. Lander and Mrs. Israel Church were in Toronto attending the wedding of the latter's brother, Mr. Jas. Arnott, in June. On the way home Mrs. Lander spent a few days in Peterborough.

A number of tourists are enjoying the invigorating breezes of Stoney Lake at the Mount Julian Hotel, where tourists are well entertained by the obliging host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson.

The Women's Institute held a meeting in June and had the pleasure of listening to an interesting talk on Institute Work by Miss Gilborn, of Oxford. Then a bazaar was held 1st of July, by which $27.00 was added to the exchequer of the Institute, and the public were favored afterwards by our town chairman, Mr William Wigg, giving out the numbers of this programme:—

Ups and Downs.

"Ups and downs," said an etymologist, "is a phrase of curious aptness.

"Take ups. Aviators tell us, balloonists tell us, alpinists tell us, that the higher one ascends, the more exhilarating grows the air, so that it is quite common, at a height of a mile or so, for men to sing and shout in pure hilarity and joy. So much for ups.

"Take downs. Submarine boatmen and divers and miners tell us that the deeper one descends below the earth's surface, the sadder one becomes. Those depths resound with oaths, groans, sobs. So much for downs.

"Ups and downs—an apt phrase, truly."

Crime and Penalty.

Aunt Jane—I think the young man who tried to steal a kiss should be punished. Dorothy—So do I, aunty, dear. Aunt Jane—I am glad to hear you say that, child. Dorothy—Yes; he—he should be punished severely for only trying.

Pandemonium.

"Nature knew what she was doing when she deprived fishes of a voice."

"How do you make that out?"

"What if a fish had to cackle over every egg it laid?"

Money may not be able to buy happiness, but it can buy off a great deal of unhappiness.—Lyndon.

STONEY LAKE VISITORS

Special Staff Correspondent.

Despite the very inclement and disagreeable condition of the weather on Saturday, the number of week-end visitors to the lake was very large. All day the rain never ceased to come down in torrents, and one electric storm followed another. The many campers in tents on the various islands put in an exceedingly uninteresting day, and on Sunday many camps were the scene of disorder, while wet blankets, etc., adorned the rocks and neighboring trees.

Mr. Acton, of Toronto, came up to his cottage on Saturday.

Mr. J. S. Knapman and Mrs. Knapman are at "Forest Nook."

Mr. F. D. Kerr was a guest at Mr. Collins' cottage near Juniper Sunday.

Mr. Richard Hall came to his cottage near Mt. Julian on Saturday.

Mr. D. Walker, principal of the Normal school, is spending a few days at "Oak Dene."

Mr. B. Shortley sepnt Sunday at his cottage.

Mr. Wm. Ferguson is at the "Syndicate."

Messrs. Alex. Gibson, J. D. Craig and Richard Lees came up to their cottages, near Crow's Landing, Saturday.

Mr. George Duffield, of Norwood, opened his cottage, "Oak Crest," on Thursday.

Mr. H. D. Buck, of Norwood, moved up to his cottage Thursday.

Miss Bessie Reynolds, of Toronto, is a guest of Miss Ruby Buck.

Miss Jessie Starr, of Toronto, is a guest of Miss Mary Gibson.

Mrs. W. A. Sanderson and daughters opened their cottage at Boschink on Thursday.

Miss Williams, of Norwood, opened her cottage, "Maple Hurst," last week.

Mr. John Davidson, of Sudbury, opened his cottage a short time ago.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Pakenham, of Norwood, are spending a few days at their new cottage, near Crow's Landing.

Mr Lennox, proprietor of Bellvidere, reports a successful season so far, and is making preparations for the arrival of a large party this week.

The Majestic brought a large party to Viamede on Saturday, and Saturday evening the number of guests at McCracken's and Burleigh was increased by the arrival of several fish hunters from Toronto and the States.

The logs that have caused so much inconvenience to campers and captains by blocking the channel at Boschink have been towed down to Clear Lake, leaving the "narrows" open.

The "Bob Hall" has been engaged for some time in painting the old buoys on the lake and putting out new ones. As a result many new buoys are in the lake, which adds much to the pleasure of the campers by eliminating the danger of running on sunken rocks. However, there are still some places where buoys are needed, but these are mostly above Boschink.

Fishing on all parts of the lake is reported as first class, and many fishermen have been catching the limit every day. Several large catches have been reported, and altogether the prospects are very bright for the angler.

Miss Mayme Lewis and W. Lewis, E. Roberts, and Werthy Sharpe, of Toronto, are at Beverly.

Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Fox, Miss Edith Fox and Mr. Charles C. Dilley, of Cincinnati, and Miss C. Marsten, of Danvers, Mass., are at Viamede.

Mr. Paul E. Allen, of Toledo, O., is holidaying at the lakes.

Mrs. J. A. Breckenridge, of Nottawa, is at Partree.

Mr. A. Lisle Reed, of the Barbadoes, is at Kiluna.

Mr. T. A. McClellan, of Peterborough, Miss Muriel Birchard, "Sis" McGinnis, James C. Roland, of Peterborough, and M. E. Bailey, of Rochester, N.Y., are at Forest Nook.

W. M. Perks, J. H. Wallis, H. M. Wallis, and W. F. Fortye, of Peterborough, are at Stoney Lake.

J. H. Belt, M.D., Miss Ada Belt, E. W. Gloan, Mrs. E. W. Gloan, J. B. McGee and wife, Elsie A. McGee, Hilda J. McGee, Edna and Laura Gloan, of Cleveland, are at Glenwood.

Mr. Frank R. Lacey, of Dubuque, Iowa, is at Fairy Lake Villa.

Mr. Robert M. Stewart and wife are at South Beach.

Happenings at Some of the Neighboring Summer Resorts

GORE'S LANDING

Gore's Landing, July 10.

That the maskinonge fishing is better than it has been for years is the concensus of opinion.

A party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McBean, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. John Dawson, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Dawson, Mrs. J. B. McBean, Millbrook; Miss Eleanor McBean, and Miss Patterson, of Winnipeg, who have been attending College in Toronto, and Mr. Fred. Collins, Millbrook, took a trip from the head of the lake to Hastings on Wedlock's yacht, and had some very lucky experiences fishing.

Smith Bros., Mr. F. C. Bonnycastle, and Mr. F. W. Wood, Campbellford, all have new launches, adding considerable to the fleet plying upon Bradley's Bay.

Miss McArthur, of Toronto, is at Hastings, the guest of her sister, Mrs. H. B. Bingham.

Miss L. Buxton, Toronto, is staying with Hastings friends.

Mr. Sam Clarke, M.P.P., and Mr. J. T. Field, Cobourg, were out to enjoy the fishing at the lake. They made Rainy Point their headquarters

Mr. Wm. Haig and wife, Johannesburg, South Africa, were among the visitors of the week at teh lake.

Mrs. R. Coughlin has returned to open her cottage at Hastings for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Webb, Miss Lillian, Mr. Ross Webb, and Mr. Harry Cameron are camping at Robin's Landing.

Miss Elizabeth Nelson, Toronto, is holidaying at her home in Otonabee.

There is some consternation at Hastings because the boathouses will have to be removed in order to make way for the new pier and public works to be erected by the Dominion Government.

Miss Lillian Campbell, Keene, is holidaying with friends in Toronto.

Capt. and Mrs. Miller, Toronto, were holidaying for some time with Peterborough friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kent, Miss Richardson, and Miss Anna Kent, Toronto, were staying with Peterborough friends this week.

Quite a commotion was raised a few days ago by the intelligence that a bush fire was raging in South Monaghan. Persons passing on the river saw the flames, which were fanned by a stiff breeze and making great progress in a field of pine stumps. Several of the farmers ploughed a wide furrow and succeeded in stopping the progress of the fire.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Jackson have returned to Peterborough after a delightful holiday at Bunker's Hill. Mr. Jackson had good success with rod and trawl.

Miss Leo Elmhirst, Toronto, is holidaying with friends at Hastings.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Thompson, stock, were guests of friends in this vicinity during the past week.

Miss Nellie Heard, of Toronto, is spending her holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Heard.

Mr. and Mrs. Beatty, Toronto, are guests at the Brooks House.

At 5.30 a.m. a party of forty-five glassblowers from Pittsburg, Pa., arrived by a special train and are camping below the Falls on Fenelon river.

Dr. and Mrs. Coulter, of Toronto, are guests at the Kawartha Hotel.

Miss Mabel Kennedy, Toronto, is camping with friends on Cameron Lake

Mrs. T. McCready, Toronto, is camping on Cameron Lake.

The Misses Eleanor and Beatrice Kacin, Toronto, are the guests of Miss Gertrude Graham.

Mr. H. J. Pessink, Mr. A. C. Keller, Mr. A. E. Pike, all of Cleveland, S., are at the Kawartha Hotel, as also are Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Burns and Mr. W. W. Horn, of Cincinnati.

The guests at the Kawartha Hotel Fenelon Falls, are pleased with the fishing in these waters. Mr. A. E. Pike while fishing one day caught sixteen black bass. Mr. Keller and Mr. Pessink on the same day caught forty-five pounds of black bass, the largest fish weighing five pounds. On Friday morning Mr. Kellar was successful in landing a fine maskinonge weighing 14 pounds.

ROSEDALE

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Hamilton and daughters, Vera and Alica, and Miss Kerr, of Toronto, are spending a vacation at their summer cottage on Balsam Lake.

The Bessie Butler, the Government boat, arrived here on Wednesday with a party of Belgian engineers, among whom was the original designer of the Belgian lift locks. They came up from Peterborough on the Bessie Butler, and are interviewing the works on the Kawartha Lakes, and intend to do the same at the Sault and the Welland locks.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer, Mr. F. Medcalf and Mr. Geo. Calder, had a unique experience in the fishing line on Tuesday last. Mr. George Calder hooked a fine maskinonge near Rosedale and while hauling the fish into the boat, it dived under the boat, and, coming up on the other side, made a leap into the air and landed in the lap of Mrs. Spence. The fish was a fine one and weighed seven or eight pounds, and was heartily enjoyed.

Miss Marize Graham, of Peterborough, is visiting at the Bungalow, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Spence.

MANY ORANGE CELEBRATIONS THROUGHOUT THE PROVINCE

Grand Master Sproule in Brampton Makes Appeal for Religious Liberty for all Classes and no Interference by Any Church.

Brampton, July 13.—The greatest crowd that ever visited Brampton took possession of the town yesterday. Every Orange lodge in the County of Peel, fifteen lodges from Dufferin and a number from Wellington and Halton were in evidence. The town was decorated with flags, bunting and arches. The procession was the largest ever, fifteen hundred being in line. They marched to the park for the speeches. Richard Blain, M.P., presided. The platform was filled with prominent men of the county and short addresses were delivered by Revs. Peter Campbell of Maple; J. K. Bell, Laurel; Charles Langford, Alton; and Wm. Walsh of Brampton, grand chaplain of British North America; and Messrs. W. A. McCulla, R. Blain, M.P., Samuel Charters, M.P.P., W. S. Morphy, S. A. Egan and others.

The chief speaker was Dr. Sproule, grand sovereign, who was received with a hearty outburst of cheering. The Orange order, he said, consisted of 4,404 lodges scattered throughout the world, whose principles of liberty and freedom were courageously taught and maintained. Of these lodges, which contained half a million members, there are 67 in New Zealand, 247 in Australia, 269 in the United States, 290 in Scotland, 300 in England, 1,594 in British North America, and 1,660 in Ireland.

"I am here to-day to ask you to hand down these great principles to posterity, as they were bequeathed to you unsullied in their integrity and strength," said the doctor. "They were bought with blood, with pain and suffering, and it is the duty of every brother of the order to uphold them, not only where the task is easy, but where they must be fought for with self-sacrifice and loss.

"The great Roman Catholic Church is fighting for power, is fighting to gain supremacy in our great Dominion. Driven from other great powers because of her tyrannical assumption of authority, she is endeavoring to make good her standing in Canada, and while every liberty to worship is given her, as loyal Canadians we must maintain our rights and be subject to no authority but that of Christ and of the state."

In Toronto.

Toronto, July 13.—Under the scorching rays of the traditional perspiration-producing 12th of July sun, over 4,000 stalwart sons of King William kept alive the memories of Derry, Aughrim, Enniskillen and the Boyne in one of the biggest Orange processions on record in Toronto, followed by sports and speeches at exhibition park.

At Trenton.

Trenton, July 13.—Trenton Orange Lodge, No. 208, conducted a large demonstration in which over 2,000 members of the order took part from Northumberland East, West and North Hastings, and Prince Edward. In the afternoon there was a parade.

At Hagersville.

Hagersville, July 13.—Hagersville had its first Orange demonstration for nine years and it was a great success. About 2,000 lined up in the procession, which was headed by a mounted brigade of 100 men. After parading through the town, a fine meeting was held in the park.

At Ottawa.

Ottawa, July 13.—Eight thousand Orangemen, Young Britons and Loyal True Blues invaded the capital yesterday morning, coming in by special trains from points throughout the Ottawa Valley and eastern Ontario. The parade to Lansdowne Park yesterday afternoon was one of the largest ever witnessed in this section of the province.

At Port Hope.

At Walkerville.

Walkerton, July 13.—The celebration here was most successful, fully 6,000 people being on the grounds. The weather was fine. Speeches were made by Robert Birmingham, who presided in place of the deputy grand master, Col. Scott, who is in Liverpool; Archy Todd and W. J. McNally.

At Parry Sound.

Parry Sound, July 13.—The Orangemen of the north held a great celebration here yesterday, under perfect weather conditions. Upwards of 43 lodges were represented, and from Sudbury in the north to Pefferlaw in the south.

At Glencoe.

Glencoe, July 13.—Lodges were here from Lambton, Kent and Middlesex. The fine day brought in a couple of thousand spectators. In the afternoon the fair grounds were crowded.

At Kingston.

Kingston, July 13.—The Orangemen had a cool day for their celebration yesterday. It rained heavily in the morning hours. Later the Orangemen assembled in the fair grounds, heard some short addresses, and gave up the rest of the days to sports, dancing, etc.

At Clinton.

Clinton, July 13.—The town yesterday was resplendent with flags and bunting, with several fine arches of evergreen. There were 40 lodges in procession from South Perth, South Huron and North Huron.

Great Time at Galt.

Galt, July 13.—To-day's celebration was on a scale never equalled here. The local Orange Lodge, Enniskillen No. 478, carried out the affair and the celebration was a credit both to the Orange Order and the Town of Galt.

There were 5,000 Orangemen and their friends gathered, representing many lodges of the district.

MONUMENT TO JOHN CALVIN

Geneva, Switzerland, July 13.—An historic pageant, representing the growth of science and literature in the 15th and 16th centuries, brought to a close Geneva's ten-day celebration of the 400th anniversary of the birth of John Calvin. Nations of the world, through representatives, united in according homage to the memory of the great thinker, writer and reformer.

Geneva, where Calvin performed his great work, where in 1659 he founded the Academy of Geneva, and where in 1564, he died, devoted itself completely to these memorable tributes to Calvin.

TWO ARE KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Penetanguishene, July 13.—Theodore Moreau, Joseph Lalonde and Thomas Nault were building a cottage on a small island near Maxwell Island on Saturday and during the electric storm sought refuge under the verandah, sitting on a bunch of shingles.

Lightning struck the building and went down one of the posts, killing Moreau and Lalonde. Nault had moved a little to one side and was only stunned.

Moreau leaves a wife and four children without any insurance, having allowed his policy to lapse. His watch had a hole burned into it near the stem. Lalonde was unmarried.

THE NEWS AS TOLD IN DESPATCHES

Didn't Want the Minister.

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 13.—Because their petition to disallow the reappointment of Rev. A. E. Lavelle as pastor of Lundy's Lane Methodist Church was disregarded by the Hamilton Methodist Conference, over 100 members of Lundy's Lane Methodist Church have organised the People's Church, Rev. Dr. Schremshaw of Buffalo being engaged for a year by the dissenters. The disagreement was over doctrine.

He left Milton for home about 10 o'clock, was caught in the thunder storm, and his clothes were soaked. Irish Girl Shoots Negro Lover.

New York, July 13.—Mary L. Leppin, a pretty Irish girl, 17 years old, walked up behind Joseph Thompson, a West Indian negro youth, in a downtown apartment house, where he ran the elevator, and shattered his spine with a bullet. ## MAN WAS HURT BARRED AT LINE

Buffalo, July 13.—Sunday evening Frank Scopic of Sherkston, Ont., a town about five miles back of Crystal Beach, was tossing stones with other young men of the village and was struck on the head. Dr. George B. Snyder of Ridgeway saw that the man had a severe fracture of the skull and telephoned the Sisters Hospital to have an ambulance meet the steamer Americana of the Crystal Beach line when she docked in Buffalo at 11.15.

When the boat reached the foot of Main street the ambulance was waiting. So was Inspector Sparkling, an immigration officer, who demanded the name and residence of the unconscious man on the stretcher. Dr. Snyder explained that the wounded man had a fractured skull and that an operation before morning was necessary to save his life. Inspector Sparkling protested violently against admitting a disabled alien under any pretext.

Later Chief Inspector Buchanan allowed Scopic to be landed on an understanding from the surgeons that he would not become a public charge. Scopic is 25 years old, with a wife and two children.

WOMEN LEAD THE ATTACK

Belgian Miner's Wives Among Pickets at Inverness—Situation Unchanged

Inverness, N.S., July 13.—The strike situation here is still causing anxiety.

Belgian women were out in full force with U.M.W. pickets at 4 o'clock yesterday morning to prevent men going to work. The R.C.R military pickets had been posted, and some of the men were badly abused with the tongues and occasionally a small stick or stone. One man was arrested for interfering with the police, but was discharged. At 4 o'clock, when the men knocked off work, the soldier pickets had been placed, and no great crowd assembled, and not a man was interfered with.

A sergeant and squad of five men guard the railway trestle a mile out of town night and day. A magistrate to read the Riot Act, if necessary, and a number of special police are also at the trestle. While the soldiers are here no serious trouble is anticipated.

Something over four hundred tons of coal were got out, which is about one-third the usual.

Miners In Parade.

Glace Bay, N.S., July 13.—Hostilities at the collieries were to a large extent suspended yesterday morning and both U.M.W. and P.W.A. men met at Sydney and took part in a big Orange demonstration there.

Notwithstanding the large number of men off work for this reason, and contrary to expectations, more men reported for work at the collieries than did on Saturday. Reports from No. 1 are to the effect that over 700 men went to work. Reports from No. 3 indicate more men at work than on Saturday. The situation at Caledonia and Reserve remains unchanged. Many new men reported for work at Bridgeport yesterday. No effort will be made for the present to start operations at Dominion No. 6.

MORE DAYLIGHT FOR CHATHAM

The City Council is considering the advisability of putting a tax on laundries, as provided for by statute. Chatham has over 50 Chinese laundrymen, most of whom are wealthy

KAISER TO BE THE BOSS

German Emperor Will Chose Successor to Von Buelow to His Liking

Berlin, July 13.—To-day Wilhelm II. appoints his fifth chancellor. Whatever personal sympathy may be felt for Prince Von Buelow, it cannot be denied that the holders of that high office have gone in a descending scale in merit. The successors of Bismarck—Caprivi, Hohenlohe and Buelow—have marked a growing diminution in the importance of the office and a growing increase in the influence of the throne.

The Kaiser's personality has, in an ever-increasing degree, overshadowed that of the Imperial chancellor, and for this reason the name of Prince Von Buelow's successor is awaited with a feeling of curiosity, nothing more.

PRINCE VON BUELOW.
Whose Successor Is to Be Chosen To-day.

Whether he be Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, Count Von Wedel, Count de Monts or any other official is practically a matter of indifference to the country at large. The conviction that the Kaiser, to use Bismarck's words, will be his own chancellor renders the choice almost without importance.

D.F. MacWATT FOR GRAND MASTER

Toronto, July 13.—R. W. Bro D. F. MacWatt will be elected grand master to succeed M. W. Bro. A. T. Freed at the 54th annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Masons of Canada to be held in London on 20th, 21st and 22nd inst. R. W. Bro. Aubrey White, Toronto, will probably be elected deputy grand master.

There were 42,100 masons in the jurisdiction last year, and this year the number exceeds 46,000.

The representatives of the 22 districts meet on Wednesday evening, 21st inst., for the purpose of electing the D.D.G.M.'s.

LITTLE FELLOW SHOWS PLUCK

Bobcaygeon, July 12.—Young Frankie Turner, aged 4, while playing around the canal, fell into the water and would have been drowned only for the presence of mind of Master Clarence Read, aged 11 years, who jumped in and pulled Frankie out when he was going down for the second time. He had a hard time getting the youngster to land. Both boys are not any the worse for the plunge.

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY IN PORTUGAL

Lisbon, July 12.—A gambling tragedy is reported from Marin, in Spain. A man named Marcos, had been losing heavily at roulette, and, suspecting that he had been unfairly dealt with, he pulled out a revolver and threatened to shoot the two croupiers unless his money was returned.

The croupiers also whipped out revolvers, and the fight became general, part of the players supporting Marcos and the other the croupiers. Revolver shots and stiletto thrusts were freely exchanged with murderous effect.

Then a warning cry was raised and the civil guards came on the scene. The electric lights were turned out, and there was a general scramble for safety. When the lights were turned up, a fearful spectacle was revealed. The whole saloon was wrecked and spattered with blood. On the floor lay three dead bodies, and five men were seriously injured, including the croupiers.

Some one taking advantage of the confusion and darkness, cleared off with the money on the table and in the bank to the extent of £5,000 in gold and notes.

CHINAMEN ARE DISTURBED

The Peterborough Chinamen are considerably aroused over the entrance of robbers into Hop Lee's laundry, George street, on Sunday evening. Depredations outside of their own sphere don't have nearly as much effect on the Chinese brethren as when they occur in their own colony and they fear for themselves when a fellow Chinaman experiences disaster or trouble.

CHARGE AGAINST HUDSON BAY CO.

Toronto, July 13.—Some years ago the Hudson Bay Co. was acquitted of a charge of having otter and beaver skins, unlawfully in possession. Another charge has now been brought, and the Attorney-General's Department has taken up the case of the Fisheries Department against the company. An important test case will result when the trial comes on at North Bay. The company is charged with having the skins in its possession in the store at North Bay, which is contrary to law. When the company was acquitted it was claimed that the skins had been brought into Ontario from Keewatin for shipment to England, but Edward Bayley, K.C., solicitor for the Department, will fight any such contention this time.

HARRY THAW NEARS LIBERTY

White Plains, N.Y., July 13.—If counsel can agree, a commission of three alienists, mutually selected, will pass on the question of Harry K. Thaw's sanity.

With all of yesterday's testimony in favor of Thaw and with the indication that his wife, Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw, will take the stand in his behalf; with District Attorney W. Travers Jerome eliminated, Thaw's chances for release appear brighter than at any time since his commitment.

WEST PETERBORO' ELECTION PROTEST

The motion to have been argued this morning herein, on behalf of the respondent, Mr. Stratton, to compel Mr. Burnham, the petitioner, to submit to examination during long vacation and to answer certain questions, etc., has been enlarged to come up with the respondent's renewed motion for "better particulars," which comes up on July 20th. The petitioner says, in reply, that an examination in long vacation is expressly forbidden by the Consolidated Rules of Procedure and Practice, the words "shall not be held" being used, which counsel for respondent argue, do not apply. Respecting the questions, the petitioner says the respondent cannot compel him to reveal his evidence, but expresses willingness to produce all documents in his possession or power relating to his election.

FOURTEEN MEN ARE DROWNED FREIGHTER SINKS NEAR SOO

Isaac M. Scott Rams the Ill-Fated Vessel in a Fog off Whitefish Point and in Three Minutes the Cowle Goes Down Carrying to Their Death all But Three of Her Crew.

Sault Ste. Marie, July 13.—Three minutes after the steel steamers Isaac M. Scott and John B. Cowle had collided in Lake Superior early yesterday morning, about a mile and a half off Whitefish Point lighthouse, the Cowle had gone to the bottom in 50 fathoms of water, carrying with her 14 members of her crew. The Scott, although badly damaged about the bows, put back to this port, where she arrived yesterday afternoon with part of the crew of the Cowle.

A heavy fog was responsible for the collision. The Scott, a new boat, on her maiden trip to the head of the lakes, had just passed the light at Whitefish Point and straightened out her course up the lake, when suddenly the John B. Cowle loomed up through the fog, broadside on to the Scott, and only a few feet away. The Cowle was down bound with 8,000 tons of iron ore in her hold.

The Scott crashed into the side of the heavily-laden Cowle. For 15 feet her bow penetrated. Tons of water rushed into the great opening and in three minutes the Cowle had settled to the bottom of Lake Superior.

Immediatly after the collision a line was thrown from the deck of the Scott to the Cowle, and three members of the crew escaped to the deck of the upbound boat by this means.

The rest of the crew, who were saved, jumped from the sinking steamer into the lake, some without life preservers, and were picked up by the Scott and the steamer Goodyear, which was a short distance astern of the Scott when the collision occurred.

Capt. Rogers of the Cowle was one of those rescued by the Goodyear.

Until he is heard from it is impossible to secure the names of the men who perished. Survivors say they include both engineers, the four firemen, four deck hands, the second cook, porter and an oiler named Patten.

The Scott received serious injuries in the collision, which would have probably sent her to the bottom had she been loaded.

The John B. Cowle was 445 feet long, 50 feet beam and owned by the Cowle Transit Co. of Cleveland. The Cowle went into commission in 1902.

LOCAL MAN IS MISSING; MAY BE A SUICIDE

Mr. H. Ball Left His Wife and Family Sunday Afternoon and Has Not Been Heard of Since — Left a Note for His Wife.

Mr. H. Ball, who, for the past several months has conducted a grocery business at the corner of McDonnell and Aylmer streets, has disappeared and no trace of his whereabouts can be secured. Mrs. Ball, who, with her three children, lives in the rear of the store, fears that her husband has committed suicide. She says he left a note in which he stated that he was in financial difficulties and did not expect to live long. He was in the store on Saturday, but Sunday afternoon he told his wife that he intended going out for a walk, and this was the last seen of him.

Mrs. Ball says he had been acting queerly of late, and she is of the opinion that something has happened to her husband.

The police authorities have been notified, and the case is being investigated.

LATE NEWS FROM MANY LOCALITIES

Fainting Fit Prevents Suicide.

Woodstock, July 13.—After reading a letter from his wife in New York, who scolded him severely for not properly supporting her, Joseph Castano, an Italian navvy, employed on C.P.R. construction here, borrowed a 32-calibre revolver from a fellow-workman at noon yesterday, and placing the muzzle to his head, was about to pull the trigger when he collapsed from the heat and excitement.

He was brought up town to the lock-up, where he will be charged with attempted suicide.

The New Owners.

St. John, N.B., July 13.—The purchase of the Rhodes, Curry Co. by a Montreal and St. John syndicate is announced. The new owners are C. Meredith & Co., and the Royal Securities Corporation, Montreal, and W. S. Tennant, and J. M. Robinson and Son, St. John. N. Curry, active head of the business, remains for four years as manager.

Suspect Foul Play.

Ottawa, July 13.—The body of Edouard De Courcey, a shoemaker, aged 55, who left his boarding-house at five o'clock yesterday morning, was found floating in the Ottawa River some hours laters.

From a large wound on the forehead it is suspected that he met with foul play, and an inquest will be held.

Floods Drown Three.

Mexico City, July 13.—Further details received here of the cloudburst last Friday at Ohizaba place the loss at $500,000. The Rio Blanco Cotton Mills were wrecked and three operatives were killed.

It is estimated that the total loss of life will exceed 100.

Very Cold In Alps.

Vevey, Switzerland, July 13.—It has been snowing heavily up in the Alps during the week. It is many years since there has been such a wintry July.

KELSEY
Zig-Zag Heat Tubes

Make the KELSEY WARM AIR GENERATOR the most powerful apparatus.

¶ The "Kelsey" warms fresh air by the best method; warms large volumes of air properly and forces to exposed or distant rooms; has double the weight and heating surfaces of the ordinary furnace, and utilizes all the heat to much better advantage; does not heat the cellar or waste heat up the chimney.

¶ The "Kelsey" does not warm the same air over and over like steam or hot water systems with radiators; costs less to install, and for management and repairs; and is more efficient, healthful and economical.

¶ These are a few of the reasons why the Kelsey Fresh Air System has been installed in so many of the finest class of City and Country Homes, Churches and Schools, and why it is being specified in preference to other systems.

¶ Send for Kelsey Booklet.

The Daily Review

TUESDAY, JULY 13, 1909.

THE NEWS'S VIEW

The Toronto News in its trenchant article on saw-offs, advocates the appointment of a public prosecutor to "take hold" of electoral corruption and deal with it as a court of law deals with it when brought before it, i.e., on its merits. This, no doubt, is the only way to secure a fair inquiry into "all that goes on" during an election on both sides. A fair discussion of an "inquiry into the conduct of elections" must necessarily begin with the assumption that all parties are equally corrupt (or equally innocent !) The only way to find out what the real situation is is for all inquiries to go on to a finish, but that form of inquiry known as the protest cannot go on as the law now provides, unless the private prosecutor says so, which lays upon the private prosecutor, therefore, the whole duty of standing as prosecutor in the interests of the public.

If once, however, the case comes to trial the court may be relied upon to get down to the facts. When both parties stand within view of the judges and both stand liable for the consequences of their sins, then justice can and will be done to both. No fear of that. But how many private prosecutors will care to assume the expense of thus acting for the public ?

That "saw-offs" should be "arranged" on the "equally guilty" assumption may be natural, but it is monstrous. None but the man wedded to his idols can so far suppress the honest desire that is in him, as to excuse it. A public prosecutor would ignore the artifices of both sides and would make it as risky for the briber, grafter, or Montreal city style of filcher of the public good for private gain that he would no longer depend upon a saw-off for his salvation, but would observe the law in the first place. In this view the News is undoubtedly correct.

TAKE IT EASY

An American gentleman, now living in France, regards America as the victim of a craze. Rush is the last thing a general, a financier, a large employer, a designer, a tactician, a strategist or in fact any man of brains would wish to be accused of. As a consequence, France, Great Britain, etc. are immeasurably ahead of the U. S. in these respects. If it were not for the energy, natural resources and immunity from attack of the U. S. it would not last a day. It is their luck to have been by nature a vast and rich country. The thrift of the French has made France the banker of the world. But this has not in the least interfered with the quiet, simple and thoroughly happy life of the French. They know too much to become money mad. They are cool, sane, thrifty, married and happy

But the "great" curse of Canada, he says, and of this continent in particular, is social rivalry, the love of display, which is a negrolike quality and it is supposed to be due to the proximity of negroes. The "citizen of France" is not the author of the above solution, but he is the author of the remark that while the European standard of desire is personal comfort and happiness, the American standard of desire is to outrank rivals. One woman loves to outshine another all the way from the remarried divorcee with her tens of thousands a year to the wife of the small shopkeeper who makes her display on a few hundreds. This is the foundation of the society column in the newspapers, without which Mrs. Snobby could not tease her social intimates into an early grave. We have very very much to learn, he says, and much of it of a very elementary character. Why women are so strenuous here he is at a loss to say. It must be he thinks that the climate is getting in the people's nerves and driving them literally to death.

CHINESE IMMIGRATION

What the Laurier Government means by letting the tariff against Chinese remain a dead letter is more than we can understand, except upon the theory of cheap labour for the G.T.P. et al. The militia is called out to assist unharmed capital in the east, and the Chinese poll-tax is ignored to depress the price of labour in the west. Surely no sane and healthy statesman seeking the welfare of his people can honestly continue such an unwise and detrimental policy. It is the great mass of the people who should be first considered.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Globe seems to object to everything, including the denaturing of alcohol.

So they can't get a successor to Lumsden ! The Globe said he retired because of his age, but this appears to have been a mistake.

The Orangemen who attended church in Ottawa on Sunday did so to the tune of "Shall we gather at the River?" As they didn't say which river, no riots occurred.

Why is it the county of Peterborough is ignored with respect to free Rural Mail and Parcel delivery? The farmers were promised it and other counties have received it.

Rockefeller interests were so much affected by the increasing hostility of the American people that he got a press-agent, they say, and now he is always before the gaze of the people in various presentable capacities. This is the age of the press-agent.

Judge Cassels statement in his report on the Marine and Fisheries Department, is as follows, page 77 of the Government blue book ;—"The chief remedy for amelioration of the conditions I have sought to portray lies in the awakening of the public conscience. If the public generally could be brought to view with abhorrence graft and abuse of trust on the part of those administering the public moneys and property, the end of such abuses as have occurred in the past would be in sight."

Serious rioting in Liverpool resulted from a Roman Catholic procession. Orangemen paraded in opposition to it. A free fight followed, windows were smashed, a house was set on fire, about a dozen policemen were injured, and on a recent Sunday and the following days some 100 persons arrested. On the following Tuesday, as a consequence of disputes between the children of Protestant and Roman Catholic schools, and reprisals by their mothers, it was found necessary to close fifty schools for a week.—Montreal Witness.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Hogs Lower at Buffalo and Chicago.

LONDON, July 12.—London cables for cattle are firm, at 12 3-4c to 14 1-4c per lb, for Canadian steers, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 11 1-2c per pound.

Toronto Junction Live Stock.

TORONTO, July 12.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 98 carloads, consisting of 1981 cattle, 13 hogs, 226 sheep and lambs, and 11 calves.

Exporters.

There was nothing doing in the way of selling exporters, drovers waiting for Tuesday's market, when the buyers of this class will be on hand.

Butchers.

The number of buyers was not as large as usual, but there was enough to buy all the butchers' cattle on sale. Trade for them was slow early in the day, but later on became better. Prices were considered fair by drovers, who had cattle on sale. One drover said he did better than he expected. Prime picked lots were quoted by one of the heaviest buyers at $5.60 to $5.70; loads of good, $5.20 to $5.40, and one load at $5.50; medium, $4.80 to $5.10; common, $4 to $4.50; cows, $3.25 to $4.70.

Veal Calves.

Not many calves were on sale and prices were unchanged at $3 to $6 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts of 226 sheep and lambs, found ready sale and more could have been sold. Export ewes, $3.50 to $4.12½; rams, $2.50 to $3 per cwt.; lambs, the bulk sold at $6.50 to $7.50 per cwt., and one lot of extra choice brought $8 per cwt., or 8c per lb.

Hogs.

Market for hogs is firm at $8.15 per cwt. for selects, fed and watered, and $7.90, f.o.b., cars, at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, July 12.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending July 10, were 2250 cattle, 750 sheep and lambs, 2150 hogs and 1300 calves. The offerings this morning consisted of 1100 cattle, 250 sheep and lambs, 150 hogs and 675 calves.

There was a stronger undertone to the market for cattle and prices show an advance, as compared with those paid on Wednesday last, but they show no change with the market of a week ago. The strength was attributed to the fact that supplies were smaller and especially so of the top grades, as the bulk of the offerings consisted of half finished grassers. The demand for good, useful stock was good and the trade in such was fairly active, notwithstanding the close sultry weather; but the lower grades moved slow. There was no demand from exporters on account of the weaker cable advices received from Liverpool, which noted a decline in prices since this day week of ½c to 1c per lb., owing to warm weather and a very slow trade. Choice steers sold here at 6c to 6¼c; good, at 5½c to 5¾c; fair at 5c to 5¼c; medium, at 4½c to 4¾c; common, at 3½c to 4¼c, and inferior, at 2½c to 3¼c per lb.

The demand for sheep and lambs was good, of which supplies were somewhat limited and in consequence the tone of the market was steady, with no change in prices to note. Sheep sold at 3¾c and lambs, at 7½c to 8c per lb. A fairly active trade was done in calves at prices ranging from $2 to $8 each, as to size and quality. A much stronger feeling developed in the market for hogs to-day and prices advanced 25c per cwt., which was due principally to the keen competition between buyers for supplies and the fact that receipts do not increase any. Sales of selected lots were made at $8.75 to $8.85 per cwt., weighed off the cars. Cables from Liverpool, London and Bristol on Saturday were very strong on Canadian bacon and noted an advance in prices for the week of 4s to 7s per cwt., which probably had some influence on the local market for live hogs.

WONDERS OF THE HUMAN BODY

Why Many People Never Need a Doctor.

You have a natural laxative in your body. Why, then, should you use a false purgative to move the bowels?

Bile is nature's laxative. It is bile—and bile alone—which moves the bowels as they should be moved. The liver is the store-house for the bile. The liver pours forth the bile into the bowels, which stimulates them to move, and thus causes the waste matter to pass from the body.

Constipation is a disease, OF the bowels, but CAUSED by the liver. When the bowels do not move regularly and naturally, it is because the liver is not giving up enough bile. And the only possible way to cure Constipation, is to cure the liver.

Calomel, cascara, salts, senna, common pills and sweet lozengers and all the other purgatives do not act on the liver at all. They merely irritate and inflame the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" cure Constipation because they act on the liver. The fruit principles stimulate the liver to secrete and give up enough bile to move the bowels, while the tonics and antiseptics tone up and invigorate the muscles. "Fruit-a-tives" are the only medicine ever discovered that will cure Constipation, Biliousness and all other troubles due to a Torpid or Disordered Liver. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. But Chilcote's irritability was started. He pushed back his chair. "I don't like the idea," he said.

The other eyed him amusedly. "What a queer beggar you are!" he said. "You waive the danger of a man signing your checks and shy at wearing a piece of jewelry. I'll have a fair share of individuality to study."

Chilcote moved restlessly. "Everybody knows I detest jewelry."

"Everybody knows you are capricious. It's got to be the rings or nothing, so far as I make out."

Chilcote again altered his position, avoiding the other's eyes. At last, after a struggle with himself, he looked up.

"I suppose you're right!" he said. "Have it your own way." It was the first small, tangible concession to the stronger will.

Loder took his victory quietly. "Good!" he said. "Then it's all straight-sailing?"

"Except for the matter of the—the remuneration." Chilcote hazarded the word uncertainly.

There was a faint pause; then Loder laughed brusquely. "My pay?"

The other was embarrassed. "I didn't want to put it quite like that."

"But that was what you thought. Why are you never honest—even with yourself?"

Chilcote drew his chair closer to the table. He did not attend to the other's remark, but his fingers strayed to his waistcoat pocket and fumbled there.

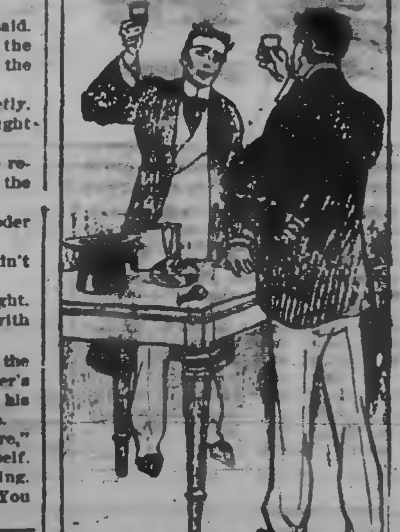
Loder saw the gesture. "Look here," he said, "you are overtaxing yourself. The affair of the pay isn't pressing. We'll shelve it to another night. You look tired out."

Chilcote lifted his eyes with a relieved glance. "Thanks. I do feel a bit fagged. If I may, I'll have that whisky that I refused last night."

"Why, certainly!" Loder rose at once and crossed to a cupboard in the wall. In silence he brought out whisky, glasses, and a siphon of soda water. "Say when!" he said, lifting the whisky.

"Now. And I'll have plain water instead of soda, if it's all the same."

"Oh, quite." Loder recrossed the room. Instantly his back was turned, Chilcote drew a couple of tabloids from his pocket and dropped them into his glass. As the other came slowly back he laughed nervously.



"To the career of John Chilcote!"

"Thanks. See to your own drink now. I can manage this." He took the jug unceremoniously, and, carefully guarding his glass from the light, poured in the water with excited haste.

"What shall we drink to?" he said.

Loder methodically mixed his own drink and lifted the glass. "Oh, to the career of John Chilcote!" he answered.

For an instant the other hesitated. There was something prophetic in the sound of the toast. But he shook the feeling off and held up his glass.

"To the career of John Chilcote!" he said with another unsteady laugh.

CHAPTER VII.

It was a little less than three weeks since Chilcote and Loder had drunk their toast and again Loder was seated at his desk.

His head was bent and his hand moved carefully as he traced line after line of meaningless words on a sheet of foolscap. Having covered the page with writing, he rose, moved to the center table and compared his task with an open letter that lay there. The comparison seemed to please him. He straightened his shoulders and threw back his head in an attitude of critical satisfaction. So absorbed was he that when a step sounded on the stairs outside he did not notice it, and only raised his head when the door was thrown open unceremoniously. Even then his interest was momentary.

"Hello!" he said, his eyes returning to their scrutiny of his task.

Chilcote shut the door and came hastily across the room. He looked ill and harassed. As he reached Loder he put out his hand nervously and touched his arm.

Loder looked up. "What is it?" he asked. "Any new development?"

Chilcote tried to smile. "Yes," he said huskily. "It's come."

Loder freed his arm. "What? The end of the world?"

"No. The end of me." The words came jerkily, the strain that had enforced them showing in every syllable.

Still Loder was uncomprehending. He could not or would not understand.

Again Chilcote caught and jerked at his sleeve. "Don't you see? Can't you see?"

"No."

Chilcote dropped the sleeve and passed his handkerchief across his forehead. "It's come," he repeated. "Don't you understand? I want you." He drew away, then stepped back again anxiously. "I know I'm taking you unawares," he said. "But it's not my fault. On my soul, it's not! The thing seems to spring at me and grip me"—He stopped, sinking weakly into a chair.

For a moment Loder stood erect and immovable. Then, almost with reluctance, his glance turned to the figure beside him.

"You want me to take your place tonight, without preparation?" His voice was distinct and firm, but it was free from contempt.

"Yes; yes, I do." Chilcote spoke without looking up.

"That you may spend the night in morphia—this and other nights?"

Chilcote lifted a flushed, unsettled face. "You have no right to preach. You accepted the bargain."

Loder raised his head quickly. "I never"—he began. Then both his face and voice altered. "You are quite right," he said coldly. "You won't have to complain again."

Chilcote stirred uncomfortably. "My dear chap," he said, "I meant no offense. It's merely"—

"Your nerves. I know. But come to business. What am I to do?"

Chilcote rose excitedly. "Yes, business. Let's come to business. It's rough on you, taking you short like this. But you have an erratic person to deal with. I've had a horrible day—a horrible day." His face had paled again, and in the green lamplight it possessed a grayish hue. Involuntarily Loder turned away.

Chilcote watched him as he passed to the desk and began mechanically sorting papers. "A horrible day," he repeated, "so bad that I daren't face the night. You have read De Quincey?" he asked, with a sudden change of tone.

"Yes."

"Then read him again and you'll understand. I have all the horrors without any art. I have no 'ladies of sorrow,' but I have worse monsters than his 'crocodile.'" He laughed unpleasantly.

Loder turned. "Why, in the devil's name"—he began; then again he halted. Something in Chilcote's drawn, excited face checked him. The strange sense of predestination that we sometimes see in the eyes of another struck cold upon him, chilling his last attempt at remonstrance. "What do you want me to do?" he substituted in an ordinary voice.

The words steadied Chilcote. He laughed a little. The laugh was still shaky, but it was pitched in a lower key.

"You—you're quite right to pull me up. We have no time to waste. It must be 1 o'clock." He pulled out his watch, then walked to the window and stood looking down into the shadowy court. "How quiet you are here!" he said. Then abruptly a new thought struck him, and he wheeled back into the room. "Loder," he said quickly—"Loder, I have an idea! While you are me, why shouldn't I be you? Why shouldn't I be John Loder instead of the vagrant we contemplated? It covers everything; it explains everything. It's magnificent! I'm amazed we never thought of it before."

Loder was still beside the desk. "I thought of it," he said without looking back.

"And didn't suggest it?"

"No."

"Why?"

Loder said nothing, and the other colored.

"Jealous of your reputation?" he said satirically.

"I have none to be jealous of."

Chilcote laughed disagreeably. "Then you aren't so far gone in philosophy as I thought. You have a niche in your own good opinion."

Again Loder was silent; then he smiled. "You have an oddly correct perception at times," he said. "I suppose I have had a lame sort of pride in keeping my name clean, but pride like that is out of fashion, and I've got to float with the tide." He laughed a short laugh that Chilcote had heard once or twice before, and, crossing the room, he stood beside his visitor. "After all," he said, "what business have I with pride, straight or lame? Have my identity, if you want it. When all defenses have been broken down one barrier won't save the town." Laughing again, he laid his hand on the other's arm. "Come," he said, "give your orders. I capitulate."

An hour later the two men passed from Loder's bedroom, where the final arrangements had been completed, back into the sitting room. Loder came first in faultless evening dress. His hair was carefully brushed, the clothes he wore fitted him perfectly. To any glance, critical or casual, he was the man who had mounted the stairs and entered the rooms earlier in the evening. Chilcote's manner of walking and poise of the head seemed to have descended upon him with Chilcote's clothes. He came into the room hastily and passed to the desk.

"I have no private papers," he said, "so I have nothing to lock up. Everything can stand as it is. A woman named Robins comes in the mornings to clean up and light the fire; otherwise you must shift for yourself. Nobody will disturb you. Quiet, dead quiet, is about the one thing you can count on."

Chilcote, half halting in the doorway, made an attempt to laugh. Of the two he was noticeably the more embarrassed. In Loder's well worn, well brushed tweed suit he felt stranded on his own personality, bereft for the moment of the familiar accessories that helped to cloak deficiencies and keep the wheel of conventionality comfortably rolling. He stood unpleasantly conscious of himself, unable to shape his sensations even in thought. He glanced at the fire, at the table, finally at the chair on which he had thrown his overcoat before entering the bedroom. At the sight of the coat his gaze brightened, the aimlessness forsook him, and he gave an exclamation of relief.

"By Jove!" he said. "I clean forgot."

"What?" Loder looked round.

"The rings." He crossed to the coat and thrust his hand into the pocket. "The duplicates arrived only this afternoon—the nick of time, eh?" He spoke fast, his fingers searching busily. Occupation of any kind came as a boon.

Loder slowly followed him, and as the box was brought to light he leaned forward interestedly.

"As I told you, one is the copy of an old signet ring, the other a plain band—a plain gold band like a wedding ring." Chilcote laughed as he placed the four rings side by side on his palm. "I could think of nothing else that would be wide and not ostentatious. You know how I detest display."

Loder touched the rings. "You have good taste," he said. "Let's see if they serve their purpose." He picked them up and carried them to the lamp.

Chilcote followed him. "That was an ugly wound," he said, his curiosity reawakening as Loder extended his finger. "How did you come by it?"

The other smiled. "It's a memento," he said.

"Of bravery?"

"No; quite the reverse." He looked again at his hand, then glanced back at Chilcote. "No," he repeated, with an unusual impulse of confidence. "It serves to remind me that I am not exempt—that I have been fooled like other men."

"That implies a woman?"

"Yes." Again Loder looked at the scar on his finger. "I seldom recall the thing, it's so absolutely past. But I rather like to remember it tonight. I rather want you to know that I've been through the fire. It's a sort of guarantee."

Chilcote made a hasty gesture, but the other interrupted it.

"Oh, I know you trust me. But you're giving me a risky post. I want you to see that women are out of my line—quite out of it."

"But, my dear chap"—

Loder went on without heeding. "This thing happened eight years ago at Santasalare," he said, "a little place between Luna and Pistoria—a mere handful of houses wedged between two hills; a regular relic of old Italy crumbling away under flowers and sunshine, with nothing to suggest the present century except the occasional passing of a train round the base of one of the hills. I had literally stumbled upon the place on a long tramp south from Switzerland and had been tempted into a stay at the little inn. The night after my arrival something unusual occurred. There was an accident to the train at the point where it skirted the village.

"There was a small excitement. All the inhabitants were anxious to help, and I took my share. As a matter of fact, the smash was not disastrous; the passengers were hurt and frightened, but nobody was killed."

He paused and looked at his companion; but, seeing him interested, went on.

"Among these passengers was an English lady. Of all concerned in the business, she was the least upset. When I came upon her she was sitting on the shattered door of one of the carriages calmly arranging her hat. On seeing me she looked up with the most charming smile imaginable.

"'I have just been waiting for somebody like you,' she said. 'My stupid maid has got herself smashed up somewhere in the second class carriages, and I have nobody to help me find my dog.'

"Of course, that first speech ought to have enlightened me, but it didn't. I only saw the smile and heard the voice. I knew nothing of whether they were deep or shallow. So I found the maid and found the dog. The first expressed gratitude, the other didn't. I extricated him with enormous difficulty from the wreck of the luggage van, and this was how he marked his appreciation." He held out his hand and nodded toward the scar.

Chilcote glanced up. "So that's the explanation?"

"Yes. I tried to conceal the thing when I restored the dog, but I was bleeding abominably and I failed. Then the whole business was changed. It was I who needed seeing to, my new friend insisted; I who should be looked after and not she. She forgot the dog in the newer interest of my wounded finger. The maid, who was practically unhurt, was sent on to engage rooms at the little inn, and she and I followed slowly.

"That walk impressed me. There was an attractive mistiness of atmosphere in the warm night, a sensation more than attractive in being made much of by a woman of one's own class and country after five years' wandering."

He laughed with a touch of irony.

"But I won't take up your time with details. You know the progress of an ordinary love affair. Throw in a few more flowers and a little more sunshine than is usual, a man who is practically a hermit and a woman who knows the world by heart and you have the whole thing.

"She insisted on staying in Santasalare for three days in order to keep my finger bandaged. She ended by staying three weeks in the hope of smashing up my life.

"On coming to the hotel she had given no name, and in our first explanations to each other she led me to conclude her an unmarried girl. It was at the end of the three weeks that I learned that she was not a free agent, as I had innocently imagined, but possessed a husband whom she had left ill with malaria at Florence or Rome.

"The news disconcerted me, and I took no pains to hide it. After that the end came abruptly. In her eyes I had become a fool with middle class principles; in my eyes— But there is no need for that. She left Santasalare the same night in a great confusion of trunks and hatboxes, and next morning I strapped on my knapsack and turned my face to the south."

"And women don't count ever after?" Chilcote smiled, beguiled out of himself.

Loder laughed. "That's what I've been trying to convey. Once bitten, twice shy!" He laughed again and slipped the two rings over his finger with an air of finality.

"Now, shall I start? This is the latchkey?" He drew a key from the pocket of Chilcote's evening clothes. "When I get to Grosvenor square I am to find your house, go straight in, mount the stairs and there on my right hand will be the door of your—I mean my own—private rooms. I think I've got it by heart. I feel inspired. I feel that I can't go wrong." He handed the two remaining rings to Chilcote and picked up the overcoat.

"I'll stick on till I get a wire," he said. "Then I'll come back and we'll reverse again." He slipped on the coat and moved back toward the table. Now that the decisive moment had come it embarrassed him. Scarcely knowing how to bring it to an end, he held out his hand.

Chilcote took it, paling a little. "'Twill be all right!" he said, with a sudden return of nervousness. "'Twill be all right! And I've made it plain about—about the remuneration? A hundred a week, besides all expenses."

Loder smiled again. "My pay? Oh, yes, you've made it clear as day. Shall we say good night now?"

"Yes. Good night."

There was a strange, distant note in Chilcote's voice, but the other did not pretend to hear it. He pressed the hand he was holding, though the cold dampness of it repelled him.

"Good night," he said again.

"Good night."

They stood for a moment awkwardly looking at each other, then Loder quietly disengaged his hand, crossed the room and passed through the door.

Chilcote, left standing alone in the middle of the room, listened while the last sound of the other's footsteps was audible on the uncarpeted stairs. Then, with a furtive, hurried gesture, he caught up the green shaded lamp and passed into Loder's bedroom.

Man Found Sleeping in Vacant Lot Early this Morning

Some early risers who were passing along the Grand Trunk Belleville line about five o'clock this morning became aware of the presence of a man lying down in a vacant lot nearby. He was found asleep when discovered and apparently had used the turf as a bed for the night. He said he had been having a good time on the twelfth and had become a little mixed in his bearings. He got to his feet and started along the track towards the diamond.

Mr. Vint is 77 years of age and has attended the annual walk of the order in Canada for the past 55 years, and looks fit to take part in many more. In the early part of his life he was considered the best fifer in the country, and for over thirty years played in the same lodge as Mr. R. E. Juby, of No. 1175, of this city.

Young Man Who Has Been Delaying Case May be Present Tomorrow Morning at Police Court

The laundry robbery case was again discussed at Police Court this morning, but another enlargement was made until to-morrow morning. Both Crouter and Innis were present, but the other young man implicated in the theft of the watch and money was absent.

Mr. G. N. Gordon promised to have the absentee at court to-morrow morning, and there is a prospect of case being settled.

HISTORY OF PETERBOROUGH

(Clara G. Adams, in "P. N. S. Review.)

In the spring of 1825 the city of Peterborough was without a single inhabitant, save the proprietor of a mill, and one or two workmen who assisted him. Moreover, the settlers in the adjoining townships were few in number and their prospects far from encouraging. Indeed, the prospect of a town ever being built in what seemed so remote a situation was regarded as incredible.

However, during the autumn of that year, Hon. Peter Robinson brought out, chiefly from the south of Ireland, a large number of emigrants under the auspices of the British Government. Needless to say this greatly conduced to the speedy settlement and improvement of the country.

It was with great difficulty that the emigrants succeeded in reaching "Scott's Plains," as Peterborough was then called, because the Otonabee, up which they were conveyed in boats, was very rapid in many places and the water was lower than it had been for many years. Nor did their difficulties cease when they had at last reached their destination. They immediately set about constructing rude huts, composed of slabs, bark or the branches of trees, and slabs to shelter them from the weather until they could erect more permanent dwelling places.

The erection of other buildings was commenced and in short time "the plains" was dotted with small log houses interspersed with several stores. Then a saw and grist mill were built and from the date of their erection the prosperity of the town and the success of the adjoining settlement were fully assured. "The Plains" was rapidly converted into a busy and prosperous village, and a new name, "Peterborough," was selected for it in compliment to Hon. Peter Robinson, to whose exertions in promoting the settlement the people felt so much indebted.

Peterborough had the rank of a village until the close of 1849, when it was incorporated as a town, with a population of 1,800. With the passing of the incorporation act a new era may be said to have commenced in its history. Property greatly increased in value, and, in a few years, new and fine blocks of buildings took the place of the first wooden houses which, till then, had occupied the best sites in the leading thoroughfares.

From that time also attention turned to a large extent to the manufacturing of sawn lumber for the American market, and the magnificent water power furnished by the Otonabee were largely utilized for this purpose. A great many mills were built in the town and its vicinity which gave employment to a large number of strangers.

The building of the Cobourg railroad secured the advantages of an outlet by rail and this greatly facilitated the exporting of lumber. Although this line did not prove permanent another railroad was built to Millbrook connecting Peterborough by rail to the front; this has proved permanent and of indispensible utility to the town.

In 1858, Peterborough East, known as the "Scotch Village" was incorporated as a separate municipality, under the name of the "Village of Ashburnham," and continued to grow steadily side by side with the town until 1904, when the two were united to form one municipality, and, in the following year, were incorporated as a city.

The Peterborough of today, famed as the "Electric City," stands in the foremost ranks of the cities of Eastern Canada, with a population of 17,000. Its magnificent prosperity is due largely to the number of manufacturing concerns which have sprung up within the last 25 years. The Canadian General Electrical Company and the Quaker Oats Company, which are located here, are the largest concerns of the kind in Canada.

Peterborough is neatly located on the Otonabee River and lies about thirty miles north of Lake Ontario. The city is close to Stoney Lake and Rice Lake, which are known all over the continent of America as some of the most beautiful and pleasant summer resorts in Canada.

As a place of residence Peterborough now stands pre-eminent. Her homes are well built and surrounded by well-kept lawns and beautiful shade trees. Many handsome public buildings, such as the Normal School and the new Collegiate Institute, adorn her streets. Then, too, the hydraulic lift lock is located at Peterborough. It is one of the wonders of the world and is annually visited by thousands of sightseers.

Peterborough is a city of which one can justly feel proud for it has had a steady and lasting growth. However there is still room for growth and, as the Normal school is situated in the northern part of the city it is safe to prophesy that, before many years this part of the city will be as thickly populated as the southern part now is.

AN INTERESTING RUMOR

There is talk of an airship line being established between Peterborough and Rice Lake. If the project is carried through it will prove a great convenience to the public generally and the summer tourists especially. It is understood that the roadbed of the old Cobourg-Peterborough railway will be utilized in establishing the line thereby keeping down the expense of construction. Passengers who do not care to ride on the airship will be allowed to walk, (which on the whole is the safer form of transportation. In connection with the aerial line shower baths will be established at several points along the river so that those who get hot at the poor service that will be given can cool down by having a refreshing spray. Those patronizing the new route will be charged as much as possible, the object of the promoters being to make money. It is expected that the proposed project will result in a great increase in trade between Peterborough and Hiawatha. Billy Naughan has already been selected as one of the pilots, and as he is an accomplished walker he should make a hit on the job.

P.S.—The above is a hot weather story.

SPLENDID ORDER AT PORT HOPE

No Disturbance of any Sort During the Day Despite the Immense Crowd in the Town

Chief Bond, of Port Hope, had an easy day yesterday, as there was no disturbance or any sign of ill-feeling during the celebration. Only two arrests were made and these were two well-known trouble-makers whom the chief thought advisable to place in the lockup, as they were rather noisy in one of the hotels. Taking into consideration the immense crowd, composed of all classes of people, taxing the accommodation of Port Hope to its utmost, it is a matter of considerable commendation to those who had all the arrangements in hand, for the orderly and splendid manner in which the celebration was carried out.

Chas. H. More, member of an Inwood, Ont., firm, hanged himself at Lyons, N.Y., Ill-health is given as the cause of his act.

THE POWER QUESTION

It is gratifying to note that the City Council has made the first step towards securing a supply of municipal power. In whatever direction it may end there can be no two opinions of the absolute necessity of securing power, for upon power the future prosperity of Peterborough depends. The next five years will see quite a change in the city. Permanent public works such as the waterworks dam and the Smith street bridge, will make for the proper organizing of the city into a well-balanced system connected in its various parts by permanent ways. The Auburn district to be opened up will add in a few years perhaps half a million to the assessment which will yield $9,000 in taxes. In the acquisition of power the city cannot falter. We learn by experience and experience has taught us that power is our first essential.

Edward G. Wordsworth and Gustav Eikenstane, of North Bay, are reported drowned in the Missanable river.

WHEN WHISKEY WAS PLENTIFUL IN PETERBOROUGH DISTRICT

Old Timer on Otonabe River Tells of Time During Logging When a Bucket of Water and a Bucket of Whiskey Would be Carried Together.

The following interesting article is from a recent issue of the Weekly Sun:

It was on a steamboat, proceeding slowly down the Otonabee River, on the way from Peterborough to Rice Lake, with a farmers' picnic at Jubilee Point as the object of the journey. On both sides of the river were well-tilled farms, with here and there a summer resort, with its accompaniment of canoes and motor launches. A stranger, on viewing the scene, could be forgiven for regarding the picture presented as the finished product of centuries of civilization. But there was on the boat one, still possessing the mental vigor of manhood's prime, whose memory went back to a time when the river banks presented a vastly different aspect.

"When I was a lad," said Dawson Kennedy, "most of these farms were covered with bush; the work of clearing had just begun; logging bees, not picnics, were then the social events of the year. At these bees there would be six or eight yoke of oxen, and a gang of men to each yoke, and there was always a race between the gangs, each trying to finish its share of work first. As a stimulus to effort one man went from gang to gang carrying a pail of whisky. By about three o'clock steam would be at full head, and two or three men would take hold of a log and carry it bodily to the heap, a log they would not think of attempting to carry if they were sober. Only the heaviest of the timber was left for the oxen. Then, after the strenuous work of the day, dancing or wrestling would be kept up until 10 o'clock or later. It was said, and not without truth, that it was whisky that cleared the fields you see before you."

George Berry, another of the old-timers, continued his quota to the stories of the day that is past. "In my boyhood days," he said, "there were sixteen taverns between our place and Port Hope. As the distance is only fifteen miles, that was at the rate of over one to the mile.

"At an even later time," went on Warden Scott of Peterborough, "when the first locks were being built at Buckhorn, special police had to be maintained to preserve order, and it was a common thing to see them throwing drunken men out of the bar four and five at a time."

But it is different now. When a new dam was being built at Buckhorn last year there was no drinking and no quarreling, the place was as quiet as a country village on Sunday. Between the Berry home and Port Hope there is not one of the sixteen hotels left, and there are only two licensed drinking places in the whole of Peterborough county.

The talk shifted back to other incidents connected with the old days. "The Otonabee was full of fish when the first settlers came in," said Mr. Kennedy. "I have gone down to the river at daylight and caught anywhere from thirteen to twenty bass before breakfast, and anything under a pound and a half was thrown away. The settlers almost lived on pork and bass, the pork being merely sufficient to provide the fat in which to fry the fish. If a bee was to be held enough could be caught in an hour to feed the thirty or forty men who would attend."

It was of a later period Mr. Kennedy spoke next—in the days of the Russian war. "Prices of produce went up with a bound," said he, "and land values advanced in proportion. For farms bought at $4 per acre in 1851 people refused $40 an acre less than four years later. To those who were content with their holdings the war meant the foundation of prosperity; but many believing high prices for wheat would continue indefinitely, mortgaged their farms and bought more land to grow more wheat. After the war, when prices fell, and interest charges continued, some of these were wiped out. On the whole, the war produced as much distress as it did in prosperity for the Canadian farmer."

ANOTHER OPPORTUNITY MISSED.

When Mr. Kennedy's father came to this country he had $500 in cash, and his idea was to use this in laying the foundations of a great landed estate. He was offered for $40 a property in Peterborough that is now worth $200,000, and refused it because it was not large enough. Instead, he bought a hundred acre farm in Douro at $4 an acre, and, after paying the money, found he had no title, and the money was lost. It was hard at the time, but things turned out well in the end. The Kennedy homestead, consisting of 130 acres, bought a short time afterwards, was sold last year for $12,500.

FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS FOR BURLEIGH FALLS POWER

This is the Sum the Central Ontario Power Company Will be Offered if Recommendation of Special Power Committee is Acted Upon.

Fifty thousand dollars is the amount which the special power committee decided to offer the Central Ontario Power Co. for Burleigh Falls power. The company set as their price $125,000, but at the meeting last night it was felt that this price was too high. It is practically agreed that the city needs the power, but the aldermen do not feel willing to pay a sum which they think is exorbitant. The report of an independent engineer has not yet been received upon Burleigh Falls, but the Council will make this offer without the report. If the Company accepts this offer the committee will recommend to the Council that a by-law be submitted to the people authorizing the raising of sufficient money to buy the company's claim and to develop and transmit the power.

Ald. McIntyre was in the chair with the following present:—Mayor Rush, Ald Phelan, Gillespie, Bradburn, Hicks Morgan and the City Solicitor.

City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall, reported on the property the Central Ontario Power Company owns at and around Burleigh Falls. He said that the whole description of the property was taken from compass bearings. He therefore could not say how much property the company owned. It was a job for a surveyor. The company owns a small Burleigh Island and the easterly part of large Burleigh; they have squatters' rights on one lot; the company has the right to dam back the water; the government owns Perry's creek; and therefore the company owns the whole water power.

At the present where the best development can be made is owned by Darcy of the Burleigh Falls power, and to develop at this point Darcy's property will have to be purchased. This the company claims that they have an agreement to secure from Darcy.

The chief thing to find out, said the solicitor, was if the power was worth buying. To do this the city would have to secure the services of an engineer to make a report.

EXTENSION TO EXPIRE.

The chairman read a letter from Mr. R. J. McLaughlin, stating that the city's option would expire on July 16th and that the city should be able to tell by that time whether they wanted the property or not. If the city does not decide by that time the company would be free to proceed with other negotiations.

It was moved by Ald. Phelan and Ald. Gillespie, that the city clerk write the Ontario Government re lot 5, con. 1, Harvey Township, and ascertain who has the right to its ownership.

The aldermen had a long discussion upon the price asked fro Burleigh Falls Power, viz., $125,000. This they claim is too high, and very few, if any of them are willing to pay it.

Finally it was decided to make the company an offer and the following motion was passed;

Moved by Ald. Gillespie and Ald. Bradburn, that the committee would be willing to recommend to the City Council and the people that they pay the Company $50,000 for Burleigh Falls power, providing that their titles etc., are all right and if the company will accept that offer.—Carried.

THE SELKIRK CENTENNIAL OUTLINED BY WINNIPEG MAN WHO IS IN CITY TO-DAY

What is Being Done to Make the Great Western Exposition a Success—Will be Held in 1912—City of Winnipeg to Provide Half a Million Dollars.

The great advantage which the holding of the Selkirk Centennial Exposition, to be held at Winnipeg, in 1912, will bring to Canada were fully set forth today by Mr. Charles F. Roland, who is manager of the associated business organizations of Winnipeg, and who has acted as secretary to the Selkirk Centennial Exposition Committee since its inception, nine months ago. Speaking on the subject, Mr. Roland, who is in the city today, said to a representative of The Review:

"There are many thousands of people in Europe and the United States who undoubtedly still have but a crude idea of this Canada of ours; its immense area of arable land; its great wealth of undeveloped mineral resources; its timber areas, fisheries and its great opportunities for the creation of wealth by the manufacturer of the raw materials. In spite of all our expenditures on publicity it is still looked upon as a new country in a somewhat raw state. Now, so long as this impression prevails, it is going to be difficult, if not impossible, to induce the desirable classes to come here in any great numbers. We can get them by such a combination of force and co-operation as is planned for 1912. We have got to show to the people of the world that Canada is not crude, raw, undeveloped, or unorganized, but a nation sufficiently advanced to invite the world to bring the best products they have to Canada in 1912 to compare and compete with our own. Yes, the Exposition will attract thousands of people who could be got here in no other way. They would no doubt view with amazement the exhibit of Canadian resources, and would travel over Canada and view with interest the actual locations of such, and seeing the absolutely gilt-edged nature of the security they could get for their money would, without doubt, arrange for the investment of large sums, which next to the urgent need for population is the greatest need of Canada. The experience of our friends in the United States shows conclusively that in every instance the after results from a national standpoint has been beneficial, both in the increase of trade, general development and in population."

Mr. Roland mentioned that the financial results would, of course, be indirect, but would be certain, as it only remains for us to populate the country more speedily and resultant revenue would much more than compensate the Government of Canada, as, after all, it is only necessary to keep well oiled the wheels of industry and progress, and the ordinary revenue of a country goes up very fastly. Mr. Roland, who was one of a delegation that waited on Sir Wilfrid Laurier ten days ago, said that the committee in charge were very well satisfied with the results of the two conferences held at Ottawa, but they of course could not expect any definite reply until the return of Hon. Mr. Fielding and other Ministers, who were now abroad. The business men of the West who have taken the Exposition project up are men who did not jump at the idea without investigating. Sub-committees were sent to St. Louis, Portland, Seattle and other places, and the pulse of our own country was felt before the Government were approached. In thirty-six cities and towns in Western Canada local committees have been formed to work in conjunction with the central committee at Winnipeg. Deputations have waited on the Provincial governments of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia and Ontario, and have received every encouragement. The boards of trade at Toronto, Montreal, St. John and Halifax have been interviewed, with the result that strong resolutions endorsing the Exposition have been passed and forwarded to the Dominion Government, praying that aid be given the project in such form as to make it worthy of Canada.

"Yes, the total cost will be in the neighborhood of $5000,000. The federal government has been asked to guarantee half this amount, and the balance will be solicited from the various provinces, the railways and other sources. The city of Winnipeg alone agrees to furnish half a million dollars."

THE ONTARIO BANK LOTS SALE

The big red posters all over the town announce this sale. There is a big plan of the lots at Might's Land Office, it shows the new King Edward street going through the land now occupied by the old house and barn. Much interest is felt in this sale as a number of people are waiting for it. The terms are easy, just such as suit people of moderate means. The lane at the back of all the lots will make nice unbroken frontages. The sidewalk will be at the outside of a 20 ft. boulevard. We are glad to see this improved method of laying out streets.

THINKS JOHNSTON IS DUE FOR A SEVERE TRIMMING SPORTING WRITER THERE

Mr. Fred LaVelle, of Buffalo, a well known New York State sporting man, is in the city for a couple of days. Mr. LaVelle is on his way to Muskoka and is registered at the Munro House. He has been prominent in sport in New York State for years and is managing director of the Elmira Athletic Club of Elmira, N.Y., and one of the prominent shareholders in the American Club, Albany. Mr. LaVelle is a sporting writer of ability and a contributor to several American papers including the New York Telegraph, the Chicago Inter-Ocean and the Utica Globe.

Mr. LaVelle in discussing sport expressed the opinion that the new champion of the world in the heavyweight pugilistic arena would be Stanley Ketchel.

"I don't think Johnson will be able to stand up before Ketchel's fierce onslaughts," he said, "he is a regular demon in the ring. He fights fast and hits hard and at the same time guards himself carefully. Johnson in my opinion, is a pig-headed cur and I look to see Ketchel give him a severe trimming. One thing is certain, and that is, that Ketchel will wade into him from the tap of the gong and he don't know the meaning of quit."

LINES ON SPORT

Buffalo whitewashed Toronto 6—0 yesterday. Kellogg was wild, and despite brilliant fielding, could not keep the game safe.

Lafitte, of Providence a not hit game against the Skeeters, but lost the game on account of errors by his team.

The paid attendance at the six series games between Chicago and Pittsburg was 30,000.

In an exhibition game here to-day Barrie beat Meaford, 5 to 2, although the visitors used a Park Nine, Toronto, battery, Scott and Lynd. Rowe, for Barrie, pitched a great game, having thirteen strikeouts. He allowed only three hits, and neither run scored off him was earned. Scott fanned six and gave seven hits, including a triple and two doubles.

Meaford scored in the first and third. Barrie landed on Scott in the seventh scoring five by hard hitting after two were out. Barrie erred twice and Meaford once. Batteries—Barrie, Rowe and Scott; Meaford, Scott and Lynd.

Bobby Kerr got more than even with Cartmell yesterday, when he beat his rival by inches at Stourbridge in the fast time of 9 4-5 seconds.

Havelock football team, winners of the Midland league, have entered for the Intermediate Ontario championship. Two games will be played with Claremont and the winners will go to the finals for the Provincial championship.

INTERESTING INTERVIEW WITH MR. FRED ROUILLE

Old Peterborough Boy Talks Entertainingly of the Big Fellows in the Sporting World — Is a Close Follower of the Champions—On Visit After Three Years Absence.

Mr. Fred Rouille, of Chicago, is in the city on a visit to Mr. L. Potvin, 215 Lake street, after an absence of three years.

Mr. Rouille, who is very well-known in Peterborough, is in the saloon business in the Windy City, and runs "The Spot," at the corner of Randolph and Peoria. He is a prominent sporting follower, and has a line on all the good ones in the wrestling and boxing world. He talks very interestingly of the big lights in all departments of sporting activity and makes it a point to be on hand at the important fixtures.

"BATTLER'S HUMBLE BEGINNING

The very humble circumstances of Battling Nelson, the lightweight champion of the world, are perhaps not generally known. Mr. Rouille remembers when Nelson was in Chicago without a cent or prospects. In those days the famous "Battler" used to sleep in a barber's chair at the Monarch barber shop in Chicago and do inconsequential boxing and wrestling performances for little more than would buy him a decent meal. But Nelson was ambitious and had some confidence in his ability, and with a friend bumped his way to Salt Lake City, Utah, where he fought his first real ring battle and was remunerated for winning to the extent of $200. Since then he has had a long string of victories broken only by decisions against him in favor of Gans and Britt, both of whom he disposed of later. Nelson is still true to the barber shop in which he was allowed to have his repose in the upholstered chair and patronizes it for tonsorial work and baths when he is in the city.

FANCIES KETCHEL

Mr. Rouille offers the opinion that Stanley Ketchel will be the man to take the title away from Jack Johnson when the two meet. He saw the "Michigan Assassin" in his bout with Papke in Milwaukee, and says he is a wonderful fighter. He doubts Ketchel's ability, however, to get away with Langford, the negro middleweight. Langford, in Mr. Rouille's opinion, is a better man than Johnson, and thinks if the two ever come together the hard hitting Sam will do the necessary towards annexing the heavyweight belt for himself.

THE LION TAMER A WONDER.

Although he prefers the ring game to any sport, Mr. Rouille is interested in wrestling when the top-notchers are busy, and was an interested spectator at the Gotch-Mahmout bout in Chicago for the worlds championship, when Gotch won from the Turk in remarkably easy fashion.

"At that Gotch wasn't killing himself to win," he said, "and the audience could see that he was doing considerable fooling with the big Turk. The American is easily his superior, and everybody was surprised that he had such a cinch."

HAS HELPED LOCAL BOYS.

Mr. Rouille has a warm spot in his heart for Peterborough and has secured good positions for several Peterborough boys. He is acquainted with quite a number from this city who are in Chicago. He states that Percy Rubidge and "Bill" Cavanagh are two of the most brilliant and effective members of the Calumet lacrosse team.

Mr. Rouille will remain here for about two weeks longer, during which time he will pay visits to places of interest, including the Kawartha lakes.

THE RING

New York, July 12.—The fight between Sam Langford and Stanley Ketchel, which was to have taken place at Ely, Nevada, has been declared off by Joe Woodman, manager of the negro pugilist. Woodman declares that Ketchel is not entitled to demand $20,000 out of a purse of $25,000, and that Langford won't fight for a few cents. Woodman says that his man is willing to fight Ketchel for a fair division of the purse.

EDUCATION FOR THE MASSES

Industrial Education and Manual Training--Every Man Must be a Specialist From the Start--A Valuable Article

Obviously, the most effective plan ready to our hands is industrial education and manual training. General education in the public school helps, so far as it gives control over essentials and really sharpens the mind; but for definite economic progress it is very far from sufficient. As yet it may be safely said that industrial education is almost untried in our country, at least for the classes—such as the A class—most in need of it. For many poor people among us, who need the direct means of earning a subsistence it is rather absurd to give them the studies of the leisure class. Also, many a boy dull in mathematics or science may have a good eye and a steady arm, and may make a skillful carpenter or bricklayer. Of course, possibilities are as wide as the diversity of men. Germany is far ahead of us in providing technical schools for the artisan class. In short, we should make it as easy in our public schools for a boy or girl to obtain training in mechanics, plumbing, wood-working, cooking, telegraphy, etc., as in geometry or chemistry. All this applies to women as well as to men. Women's wages are low because they are usually unskilled and also in a crowded class. Our cities and our towns should be dotted with training schools, suitable for giving practical preparation for agriculture, manufactures, and commerce. At present the unemployed or the very poor have no trade of any kind, or are confined to some one habitual task, like sewing on clothing cut by machinery. To-day, when carpenters or plumbers get four dollars for a day of short hours, and even "make work," no man handy with tools need be poor or out of employment long. It should not be necessary to press this matter upon the reader; its effectiveness for increasing the wages of the very poor must appear at a glance. In addition, its ultimate end is to inculcate individual independence and self-respect; it frees the laborer from servile dependence for his post upon the mere caprice of an employer. The increased efficiency given to an unskilled man increases his utility to his employer, and increases the demand for his services.—J. Laurence Laughlin, in Scribner's Magazine.

THE LATEST THING IN BUTTER

Chicago, July 12.—A special from Alton, Ill., to the "Record-Herald," says;—The first roll of petroleum butter, the Standard Oil Companys' latest product, is to be turned out at the Wood River refinery, near here. Preparations are being made to manufacture the product here and the machinery has been shipped. The new product will be known as "petrol butter." It is said to be of the same consistency as lacteal butter, but brown in color. It lasts a great deal longer than real butter, it is said, and does not become rancid.

Rev. D. A. Thompson, Hastings, Attending the Meeting There To-Day

Rev. D. A. Thomson, of Hastings, clerk of the Presbytery of Peterborough, was in the city this morning on his way to Port Hope, where he will attend a meeting of the Presbytery at St. Paul's Presbyterian church this afternoon. ## THE SEA ELEPHANT.

His Fearful Jaws the Chief Danger In an Attack.

The chief danger attending the killing of the sea elephant is in approaching too near his terrible jaws, which are capable of biting in two an iron rod the thickness of one's finger. The hunter, however, must get pretty close, as the thick hide and blubber have rendered the animal practically impervious to attack, the only vulnerable point being a spot about the size of a walnut above each eye. Careless hunters have at times got within reach of the brute's teeth and have escaped only by dexterously wriggling from their clothes. I had occasion once to shed my coat with great agility, one of the smaller beasts having caught me by the sleeve, says Captain B. D. Cleveland in the American Magazine.

One afternoon's kill had been about forty animals, some of which had given me and my four hunters considerable trouble. This was mainly due to the treacherous footing and the heavy nature of the work, not only in killing, but in stripping the ponderous brutes. We were anxious to make the afternoon's kill an even fifty, and night was fast coming on.

In cutting out two particularly hard fighters, a male and female, I had overlooked a young bull partly hidden behind an ice hummock. We had stripped both animals and, walking over to the hummock where our guns were stacked, I was leaning to pick mine up when, with a bellow of rage, the young bull reared and whipped his flail-like flippers at me. Luckily the guns were stacked so as to form a temporary barrier, but unluckily one thick paw was impaled on a bayonet. Rearing in fresh rage, the animal lunged at me with incredible speed, snapping the gun between his javelin teeth as though it were a straw. I leaped backward, but slipped.

Instantly he clutched at my body, but missed in the semidarkness, lunged and clutched again, catching my right arm in his powerful maw. His awkwardness enabled me to regain my feet, but, with a ripping tug, the animal fastened on to the sleeve of my heavy skin jacket, out of which I slipped just as one of my men drove a harpoon into him just above the eye.

EUGENIE'S WEDDING DAY.

The Gift of Violets From the Market Women of Paris.

Even on her wedding day the Empress Eugenie received a sign of ill omen. The market women of Paris presented her with a mountain of violets on the day of her marriage to Louis Napoleon.

And those market women—they boiled over! They yelled and pushed and crowded into the palace gardens. They screeched and screamed for the empress until at last a window opened, and Eugenie stepped out on the balcony, and, ever eager to please, she held in her hands a great mass of the violets the market women had sent her.

Then suddenly one old fish wife shrieked out at those of the committee: "Pigs! Idiots! It is the flower of sorrow you have sent to her." While quick another raved out: "It is the color of mourning that you send the bride of the emperor! Violets—purple violets to a bride! Pigs! Idiots! Devils! It is an omen—a sign of evil!"

And then the fight began! Oh, mon Dieu! They are terrible! They tear one another like wild beasts! The gendarmes try hard to make order, when a voice up above us says out clear and gentle, "Oh, soldiers, don't hurt them!" And the idea that any soldier on earth could hurt a dame des Halles was so funny that everybody stopped fighting to laugh. And they laugh and laugh and wipe off the blood and slap the gendarmes and say, "Don't hurt us, messieurs—don't!" And they dance and shout, and the beautiful empress stands now by the emperor and bows and throws violets to the crowd, and all below cry, "Vive l'Imperatrice!" And she smiles and smiles and so retires. But that old witch was right! Yes, madame, though the violet was the flower of the Bonaparte, it is the flower of sorrow, not fit to send a bride! It was an omen and given at the Tuileries it pointed to Chiselhurst. —Clara Morris in Woman's Home Companion.

"What's the matter, old chap?" queried the chowder. "You look troubled."

"Yes," replied the oyster, "I'm in an awful stew."

"And I believe I'm going to have a chill," said the chowder. "I feel so clammy."—St. Louis Republic.

TO INTRODUCE WORK OF READING CAMP ASSOCIATION

Mr. Alfred T. Miller, B.A., assistant secretary for Ontario of the Reading Camp Association, is in the city and will spend about a week here introducing the work of the organization in Peterborough.

The association is engaged in the work of bringing reading matter, education and the Gospel, to the frontiersmen of Canada, those who are engaged in mines, lumber camps, and in construction work in the almost uninhabited parts of the Dominion. At the present time there is a full in the operations in the lumber camps, but in the latter part of the summer this phase of the work of the association will come actively to the fore.

As outlined in the eighth annual report of the association, the Reading Camp Association is an organization bringing school, reading room, library, club and church to frontier. Why? Because nearly a quarter of a million sturdy Canadians must live six, eight, ten months a year in camp that Canada may have lumber, railway ties, coal, fish, may get her railways built and her minerals marketed, and because the R.C.A. thinks these Canadians ought to get a chance.

What's doing?

The R.C.A. gives them a chance to get their three R's, to get a comfortable reading room, to get a library of good clean reading, to get some good entertainment without sacrificing manhood, to get the Gospel.

What's been done?

During eight years ten thousand men have gone to school from one to two hours a night, ten months in the year. During eight years, twenty thousand men and more have had a chance to live like decent Christian citizens by reason of school, reading room, library, club and church.

The work of the association is supported by grants from the government, churches and subscriptions from those interested.

Mr. Miller is here to place the work of the association before the people of Peterborough.

FOLLOWERS OF ORANGE PRINCE AT PORT HOPE

One of the Largest Celebrations Ever Held in This Part of the Province---Fifty Lodges in Procession—Over 1,200 in Attendance From Peterborough---Several Good Addresses

The two hundred and nineteenth anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne was loyally and enthusiastically celebrated in Port Hope yesterday, and according to several of the old boys of that place, the largest crowd ever in Port Hope took part in the demonstration. Special trains all drawn by double headers, began to arrive early in the morning filled with Orangemen and their friends from all over the country. A special from Peterborough at 12.15 brought ten coaches filled with over one thousand visitors, and the regular shortly after pulled in with another large crowd.

The town was appropriately decorated with flags and banners, in fact everybody and everything that could be decorated wore an emblem of the Orange Order. The mottoes across the streets in the line of the parade included "Derry Walls." "No Surrender." "The Pioneer of Civil and Religious Liberty," "We Revere the Memory of William Prince of Orange," "Unity is Strength." Splendid accommodation had been prepared for the visitors, and every vacant lot or store was utilized for the feeding of the mighty throng. Meals were served in hardware stores, butcher shops and in every place conceivable. The Y.M.C.A. served dinner at the Market Hall, and so great was their business that those in charge ran out of edibles shortly after noon. St. Paul's Presbyterian church had made preparations for a big day, and served meals in the basement of the Sunday school, while the Salvation Army threw open their rooms on Walton street, and served a large number.

The parade, which was billed to start at 1.30 p.m., did not get moving until after two o'clock, and the sight of the hundreds of Orangemen, Orange Young Britons, Royal True Blues and Prentice Boys, marching to the strains of "Boyne Water," "Rise, Sons of William," and the "Protestant Boys," by the fife and drum and brass bands, was an inspiring one, and left little doubt in the minds of the thousands of onlookers that the adherents of William of Orange are a strong and united organization.

The procession formed at the Market Square, and the following was the order of march—

THE SPEECHES.

On arriving at the town park the Orangemen and their friends listened to the addresses of the several distinguished members of their order. The first speaker was Lieut.-Col. Sam Hughes, M.P., of Lindsay. He said he was glad to be able to attend another anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne and see such a large number of his brother Orangemen. He dealt for some time on the political situation of Canada in regard to the Protestant and Roman Catholic party. It was necessary that the Orangemen do their utmost for the advancement of their cause and they should always be found in the front ranks fighting every minute. The order was a powerful one and the members should show their colors and support their members who have been elected to represent their constituencies. He referred to the able address that had been delivered by the Rev. E. M. Wilson to the Orangemen at Lindsay on Sunday and said it had never been surpassed in the history of the country. The speaker claimed that he had never asked a man for his vote as he regarded it an insult to the man to be asked for his vote. He should act on his own intelligence as to the right line to follow. Britain needed men of this class to help uplift the old flag and he was satisfied that the Orangemen would respond. Every member should be a trained volunteer and be ever ready to defend his country. Rome is ever plotting and scheming and it was necessary that every Orangeman should be alert and stand true to the principles of the order.

The Rev. R. B. Nelles, of Kingston, was next called upon to speak. He paid a tribute to Bro. Holland, the grand old man of the district of East Durham. Everything he (the speaker) had done had been through the instigation of this member. Canada was facing a difficult problem now that there were so many nationalities coming to her shores. During a recent visit to Quebec he had witnessed a demonstration which had been led by priests who had been dispelled from Rome. These priests were trouble makers and every Orangeman should be alive to the problems of the day and be always watchful of the enemy. He appealed to the young men of every lodge to say and mean no surrender. We are harboring those who mean ruin to our country and as Canada is now in the century which will determine its power in the world, he hoped in the time to come that our country will have been held with that no surrender which will make it a land of freedom as in no other quarter of the globe.

Rev. A. H. Brace, of Cobourg, congratulated the town of Port Hope and those who had all the arrangements in hand for the celebration of the two hundred and nineteenth aniversary of the Battle of the Boyne. It had been a great success and the number of Orangemen to-day was greater than that of last year. He told the story of the Frenchman, the German and the Britisher who were drinking toasts. Said the German, "Here's to the sun of the world," and the Frenchman's toast was "Here's to the moon of the world" and the Britisher replied with, "Here's to the Joshua of the world who commanded the moon and the sun to stand still." If you are true to the principles of the Orange Order, say to Rome, "Stand still." All through the ages she has been aggressive and is still aggressive. To-day we are commemorating a glorious victory, which was earned by our forefathers. The Government of Quebec was exercising a great power over the land owners of that province and it was up to the Orangemen to say whether we shall be controlled by any such Government. The speaker claimed that there was no danger of the coronation oath being changed as the Britishers are true to the very love of Protestantism. It will never change and we can trust them. Orangemen should be always watchful and should hand down to future generations the liberty given us by the martyrs. He spoke of the significance of the Plenary Council, which will be held by the Church of Rome in Canada next September. This is the first ever held on Canadian shores and it was necessary that Orangemen be awake and true to their principles as the object of the Council was against the interests of Ontario. All should stand together and show determined opposition to the political system of Rome.

FRENCH TREATY WAS APPROVED

Special to Review.

Ottawa, Ont., July 13.—Official announcement was received in Government circles here today of the final passing by the French parliament of the new French-Canadian treaty. The treaty will now have to be formally ratified by the Canadian parliament, as some amendments have been made to the original draft.

IS AUNT OF MAN THAT BIRCHALL TRIED TO DROWN

It is of interest to note that Lady Snagge is the aunt of Rev. Mr. Pelly a Church of England clergyman in England and the man that the notorious murderer, Burchell, tried to muderr by attempting to push him into the whirlpool at Niagara Falls.

SAYS THAT ELSIE SEIGEL WAS POISONED TO DEATH

Special to the Review.

New York, July 13.—Prof. George E. Ferguson, chemist at Columbia University, said to-day that while he has not yet completed his analysis of the organs of Elsie Siegel, he has gone far enough to satisfy himself the girl was poisoned.

Prof. Ferguson says he has not yet determined what poison the girl took or was given. The police has discovered that an Americanized Chinaman bought poison at a drug store near the house where Leon Ling lived shortly before the girl was killed.

They have not identified the Chinaman who bought the drug.

EPWORTH LEAGUE HAD FINE OUTING

A most enjoyable picnic was held at Inverlea Park last evening under the auspices of the Social Committee of the George street Methodist League.

The most interesting feature of the evening was the baseball game between the ladies and gentlemen, the score being 12—3, in favor of the ladies. Other sports were indulged in, such as races and tag, the latter ending somewhat disastrously, however, as one of the younger gentlemen unfortunately fell and sprained his ankle.

After the programme of sports was finished, refreshments were served each and every one doing ample justice to all the good things prepared by the ladies.

A toast to Mr. Norman Allison, the genial president of the committee, was proposed and seconded,

Later on in the evening the members of the committee were entertained by Miss Gertrude Allison at her home.

Money Found

SHAH'S CAPITAL IS HELD TROUBLE IN TEHERAN NOW

History of the Overthrow of Abdul Hamid is Being Repeated in Persia—Royalists are Decoyed to One Side of the City While Surgents Enter at the Other

Teheran, Persia, July 14. Recent events in Turkey are being repeated in Persia. The Constitutionalist forces, the advance of which on Teheran for a time was not considered serious, are now in possession of the greater part of the city, which they entered yesterday morning without encountering an organized resistance.

While the leaders in the movement concentrated the attention of the Royalists by demonstrations to the west, a strong body of Nationalists and Bakhtiaris made their way unnoticed around to the north, from which point the capture of the capital was not difficult.

The guards at the north gate were disarmed and the invaders marched in, the foreign section leaders taking up their quarters in the old Mejliss building.

This gives the Nationalists command of the city, with the exception of the artillery square and the drill ground adjoining. The Royalists are badly situated to make resistance, and the Cossacks, under command of Russian officers, remain outside the city, entirely cut off from their comrades in the artillery square.

The strictest discipline is being maintained by the Nationalists. The Nationalist leader in a note to the Russian and British legations guarantees security of life and property to foreigners, adding that nothing is demanded from the Shah but a real constitution. Sipahdar already has summoned the members of the Mejliss to witness the opening of Parliament.

The invaders lost only one man while making their entry into the city. The loss to the Royalists is unknown, but cannot be heavy, as the Cossacks were the only defenders to offer resistance. They kept up a desultory fire last night.

There is much ill-feeling against the Russians, and the Nationalists are endeavoring to prevent any incident that might justify a Russian force entering the city.

Detroit, July 12—The following is a list of attacks on girls in Detroit to date—

Nettie Lapham, 20 years, home on Dearborn road; clothes torn and badly beaten, Sunday, on lonely stretch of road.

Louise Krueger, 19 years, home 125 Inglis avenue; attacked and choaked into insensibility, Saturday night, near her home.

Mildred Pegouskie, aged 16, home near Pepper road; dragged from road to ditch and choaked. On giving assailant $5.11 she was let go.

Ida Ikestead, aged 19, living on Pepper road; accosted by man, who threatened her.

Girl of 20, name not yet known, held up in same district and robbed of $9.

The last three attacks took place June 12.

The suspects are—

Frank Radley, aged 27, living at 436 Springwells avenue; has wife and three children. Is positively identified by Opficius and Pegouskie girls, but stoutly maintains his own innocence. Held to Circuit Court in $5,000 bail.

Arthur Murphy, 18 Austin place; identified by Krueger girl and warrant issued against him for assault and battery. He stoutly claims to be innocent.

Theodore L. Barry, arrested and later released.

PRISONER IS NOW PROVEN INNOCENT

Chatham, July 14.—Robert Hallinan, butcher, had a piece of glass removed from his back yesterday. It had been in his body for twenty-eight years.

On New Year's night Hallinan got mixed up in a fight in the Idlewild Hotel. He fell through a window. Afterwards, it was discovered that he had a wound in his back. He was taken to the office of Dr. Springer who thought it must have been inflicted with a knife. Quigley, the man he was fighting with, was then accused of sticking him in the back with a knife, and was sentenced to six months for his supposed deed.

No glass was found in the wound at the time, and only now has it made its appearance.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

HANDCUFFED TO POST AND STILL GOT AWAY

London, July 14.—Cornelius Antone and Thomas King, two husky Oneida Indians, were arrested for fighting. Both resisted, and broke away. Antone was recaptured and handcuffed to the tiepost in front of the hotel, and the constable started after King. When he returned with him, he was surprised to find Antone and the tiepost both missing. After sending King to the station in the wagon, he found Antone a long way down the road towards home, dragging the tiepost along and still handcuffed. A man named Whitaker was arrested on a charge of aiding a prisoner to escape, but it was proved he was not the man. The two Indians were also discharged.

A thunderstorm broke suddenly where a number of laborers were at work in the yards, and four of them sought shelter under a standing train of freight cars. While they were crouched there the yard engine came along and moved the train. They all made a dash to escape, but only one was so fortunate as to get out uninjured. The other three, Constantine Stengel, a German; Michael Omchiski, a Pole, and James McLeod, were caught under the wheels and all terribly maimed. ## JUDGMENT GIVEN IN FAVOR OF MR. M. PAPPAS

In order to correct any wrong impressions which may have been made in regard to the case in which Mr. M. Pappas, of this city, has been interested, the Review gives the following facts concerning the case, in which judgment was given in favor of Mr. Pappas. It appears that Thos. Vathos and a partner wished to open up a restaurant in Toronto and as he was a fellow countryman of Mr. Pappas, he presented his proposition to him and asked for a loan of $1,380. This amount was provided by Mr. Pappas, but only $630 was returned, and Vathos gave a chattel mortgage for the remainder. But no payments were made, and proceedings were taken to enforce the payment of the money. Vathos entered a suit against Pappas in the High Court, asking for the setting aside of the chattel mortgage on the grounds of attempted fraud, but when the case was heard before Judge Winchester, judgment was given in favor of Mr. Pappas for $502.30, thereby establishing beyond doubt that the defendant had acted with perfect honesty and good faith. In view of the fact that misleading articles regarding the case have appeared in the daily papers it is only fair to Mr. Pappas that the case be correctly explained.

His descent was rather brusque, and the propeller of his machine sustained slight damage in the manoeuvre. His average altitude on the trip was 100 feet.

BISHOP IS A PEACEMAKER INTERVIEWS PRESIDENT ROSS

Head of Dominion Coal Co. Says He Will Give Every Man on Strike at Glace Bay a Chance to Go Back—More Soldiers May be Ordered Out.

Glace Bay, July 14.—Reports have been rife that Bishop Cameron (Roman Catholic) was using his influence to end the strike. These were revived yesterday morning when President Ross arrived on a special train and proceeded immediately to the Glebe House in the bishop's automobile. Later, he said:

"His Lordship, Bishop Cameron, did me the honor of calling on me at my house in Sydney, which distinction I appreciated very highly and I have to-day returned his lordship's call.

"The chief topic of conversation was naturally the present labor troubles, and his lordship was imbued with anxiety over the danger and distress which might result among his people at this critical period. I was particularly impressed by the lofty humanity and earnestness of his sentiments and assured him that all danger of possible violence had been removed by the presence of the troops and that furthermore, when the unfortunate strike was over, our managers and officials had been cautioned to take measure to remove all cause of bitterness and recrimination. I further stated that it would be our policy to give every man now absenting himself a chance to get back to work.

"I hesitated before saying anything to the newspapers about these interviews, which were really of a personal and friendly character, but that I informed his lordship that his interest in the present situation had been misrepresented in some quarters, and I think it only right to say that his lordship's sole object is to do what he possibly can as a Christian gentleman and as the honored leader of a church which embraces a large body of our employes, to prevent harm and distress befalling these people."

A well-defined report was persistently circulated yesterday that more troops, about 150 in number, were to be brought to Glace Bay in order to more efficiently look after the different collieries. The soldiers are not now located at all the mines, owing, it is said, to the unwillingness of the officer in charge to break up the force into small sections. The report yesterday was that the soldiers would be brought from Quebec. The citizens, almost to a man, would resent the bringing of more troops to this already armed camp.

The site of the first Marconi wireless telegraph station, known as Table Head, is now the camping ground of the larger portion of the troops.

President Ross Denies Rumor.

Montreal, July 14.—A rumor was published in Toronto yesterday that the president of the Dominion Coal Co. had been deceived by his officials to the effect that 5,000 men would continue at work, and that Mr. Ross was now endeavoring to settle the strike. A wire having been sent to the president, he replied as follows:

"Glace Bay, July 14.—The story published in Toronto is absolutely false. I have been fully in touch with the situation from the first and am entirely in accord with the action of the company's officials. I have announced that the company will never meet the representatives of the U.M.W.A. This is final."

CANADIANS MURDERED BY INDIANS

Montreal, July 14.—Out in Rudolph, South Dakota, lived a family of the name of Christie, formerly of St. Stephen's, N.B., a husband, his wife and daughter. Christie pursued the business of grain buyer, and had frequent dealings with the Indians. Whether through some haggle over the price or other cause is not known, but an attack was organized on the Christie house and the mother and daughter shot dead. The father had his skull fractured. He was 57 years of age. The bodies left here for New Brunswick last night.

An Auto Funeral.

Montreal, July 14.—For the first time in the history of Montreal a funeral by automobiles took place yesterday morning. The deceased was Jas. Twohey, who, with Charles Batchelder, was killed in the auto races on Friday afternoon. The coffin was borne from the house to St. Patrick's Church, thence to Mount Royal cemetery on an auto. The total number of cars in the cortege was about sixty.

UNDERWRITTEN BY ROTHCHILDS

London, July 14.—The Canadian Associated Press is informed that Messrs. Rothschild yesterday underwrote the £2,000,000 G.T.P. three per cent. debentures guaranteed by the Dominion Government for issue at 82 1-2 and 1 per cent. for underwriting. The price is considered extraordinarily low in many quarters.

The Glasgow Herald, referring to the "comparative failure" of the Canadian loan, says that the London operators estimate 97 as a high enough price and quite justified.

Suicide Was From Near Buffalo.

Franco-Canadian Treaty Adopted.

Paris, July 14.—The Chamber of Deputies yesterday adopted almost unanimously the amended Franco-Canadian commercial treaty, with the concurrence of the Senate.

Cameron, a young man who came in from Avonmore on Monday to attend the Orange celebration, was given a month in jail by Magistrate O'Keefe yesterday. ### Reports Exaggerated.

Albany, N.Y., July 14.—That the number of self-inflicted deaths is increasing in this state is shown by records in the State Department of Health. There were 1,207 suicides in 1907 and 1,409 last year, an average of 117 a month. The five months of 1909 show a monthly average.

Fatal Freak of Lightning.

Santa Fe, New Mexico, July 14.—During a thunderstorm lightning struck the house of W. E. Rail, and H. N. Rutherford, who with his family was at the Rail home, was killed. Following this, at intervals of one minute, eleven more bolts struck the house, each shocking an occupant, though not fatally. The last stroke set the house on fire, but the flames were extinguished by Mrs. Rail with buckets of water.

THE WINNIPEG EXPOSITION

It is customary for governments to aid exhibitions. They are the best form of advertisement because they show the actual fruits of the field and the actual condition, resources, fertility, climate, etc., of the country. A grant will promote federal unity in that it will show the middle west that the east is not unmindful of the west's opportunities and of the east's responsibilities. The exhibition will promote knowledge of the different parts of the Dominion in an intimate, interested and practical way. The sum asked for is not too large. It represents merely what is wasted in graft in about two years by the Government at Ottawa. The exhibition will be a success for the people of Manitoba are capable, the other provinces are sympathetic, the time is commemorative and opportune. We suppport the proposition with enthusiasm.

TO SUCH BASE USES

Buffalo, N.Y., July 11.—This evening Frank S. Cope, of Sherkston, Ont., a town about five miles back of Crystal Beach, was tossing stones with other young men of the village, and was struck on the head with one of the missiles. Dr. George B. Snyder, of Ridgeway, was summoned, and he saw that the man had suffered a severe fracture of the skull. An operation was immediately necessary so he took the wounded man to his office and telephoned the Sisters' hospital to have an ambulance meet the steamer "Americana" of the Crystal Beach line, when she docked in Buffalo at 11.15 to-night. When the boat reached the foot of Main street, the Sisters' Hospital ambulance was waiting. So was Inspector Sparkling, an immigration officer. Inspector Sparkling demanded the name and residence of the unconscious man on the stretcher. Dr. Snyder explained that the wounded man had a fractured skull and that an operation before morning was necessary to save his life.

"But," declared Inspector Sparkling "if this disabled man is a Canadian, an alien, he cannot be landed in the United States."

"But," protested the astonished surgeon, "the man must have surgical attention within a very few hours. Proper attention cannot be given him in Canada. We must operate, and operate without delay. It is a question of life and death."

"The man is a disabled alien, and I cannot allow him to be admitted to this country," reiterated Inspector Sparling.

Aghast at the steadfastness of the official, the surgeon endeavored to find Inspector Buchanan, his superior. Mr. Buchanan could not be found. The precious minutes were slipping by. The ambulance was waiting in vain. Then a solution of the difficulty was presented by the owners of the Crystal Beach boat.

An improvised operating room was offered the surgeons aboard the "Americana." The big boat having unloaded her passengers, was moored over under the Kellogg elevator, and there, in a hastily arranged room, the white-clad surgeon set to work on the unconscious man. Dr. Snyder was assisted by the surgeons from the Sisters' Hospital.

The fracture of the man's skull was a very severe one, and after the operation the doctors would not hold out much hope for his recovery. Scovie is 25 years old, is married, and has two small children.

If we are to judge of ourselves and of our times by the usual signs it must strike even the most casehardened and obstinate bigot that the present method of moral development is not producing a high type of civilization. Such an inhuman farce as the above could not take place in a real war. It is only in the folly of our crass materialism that we could devise or tolerate such an exhibition of the carrying-out of orders. Caricatures or burlesques drawn by a Dickens, a Thackeray, or a Rabelais or Dean Swift might have pictured an equal absurdity, but not in the whole range of literature is there an instance of such Godless inhumanity even as a burlesque. It is true such cases are not frequent. Neither are fractured skulls. It is doubtful also if the refusing officer's skull is susceptible of fracture. It is not for lack of preaching that such things can occur, nor for free and ample scope in interpreting and assimilating the scriptures. It is probably due, however, to "a lack of conscience," as Judge Cassels called it of which conduct, as such, has become a jest and productive of jests while preaching is allowed full swing so long as it does not necessitate anything more serious.

ONE FLAG, ONE FLEET

The Liberal party seems about to adopt the policy outlined by the editor of the Globe at the press conference in London last month. That policy is the creation of a wholly Canadian navy. It means the advent into the council of nations of another baby power, which, under the name of a part of the British Empire, is, nevertheless, to masquerade as an independent country. At first the Globe and the Toronto Star were for one flag, one fleet. But for some unaccountable reason they slumped and hurried to take shelter under their leader's wing. It was evidently not discreet to continue declaring for one flag, one fleet. Instead of placing at the disposal of the Empire in case of need something worth while, it was decided to formulate a "wholly Canadian" policy, the creation of an independent Canadian navy.

It is true that Great Britain advised it also. It is true and has always been true, at least for the last quarter of a century, that Great Britain has fed our spirit of autonomy rather than starved it. She acted wisely no doubt. She is too proud to ask of her children what they are not willing of their own accord to give. Therefore she has said, "Act without reference to our wishes. Consult your own." It will be noticed, however, that not one voice was raised in Britain against our contributing ships to an imperial navy. A good and capable fighting machine standing off one of our ports or standing away to join the Imperial fleet is of course the the first suggestion of common sense let alone patriotism. The idea of a Canadian navy of cruisers, destroyers, &c., of always an uncertain state of fitness, (for if wholly Canadian, they must remain so in or out of repair), is enough to make us all throw up our hands in despair. It is to bring the whole scheme for the solidarity of the Empire into well-merited contempt. If we are to be an Empire and are to carry on the trend of British civilization, then it must be under one flag and by means of one fleet. In times of peace we are our own master, in times of war, rallying to the King and under the Empire's head.

A few years of quasi-independence and we will have forgotten and have been forgotten. Of this change we must beware. It is the foe of peace and unity.

EDITORIAL NOTES

"Grotesque competition" is how the Rev. Canon Henson, of Westminster Abbey, who is at present in Winnipeg, characterizes the overlapping of Protestant denominations in the North-West.—The Montreal Witness.

The effectiveness of really good work is so minimized by overlapping, western papers say, that it amounts to wickedness. There is a suspicion creeping in that much of it is due to rivalry, rather than to an earnest desire for the glory of God and the salvation of the overlapped. Overlapping, however, is not confined to the west. It is everywhere.

THE UNIONS AND PIERPONT MORGAN

The Detroit News Makes Interesting Analysis—Men Who Have to Begin Life Over Again—A Perplexing Problem

From Detroit News

Nine years ago, so the story runs, J. Pierpont Morgan, during the adjournment of the steel workers' strike of 1901, in a burst of rage said to Theodore Shaffer, then president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel and Tin Workers:

"I'll smash your union for this!"

There is another strike in progress in the mills of the United States Steel corporation now, and not a union man is at work in any of them. Morgan has driven the union out, just as he vowed he would drive it from shops employing about 130,000 men, most of them skilled mechanics. In 1901 there were 80,000 union men in the steel mills and 40,000 other workers were non-union. Morganized men. In 1906 the same mills were employing 21,000 union and 37,000 non-union men. In the early part of the present year the figures stood at 8,000 unionists and 118,000 non-unionists. When these 8,000 men struck against a reduction in wages, the steel corporation declared that the 15 mills in which the men struck would hereafter run as "open shops." The affected mills are in Newcastle and Sharon, Pa., Wheeling, W. Va., Martin's Ferry, Bridgeport, Piqua and Struthers, O., and Elwood, Anderson and Gas City, Ind.

If the trust is able to defeat these 8,000 men, Morgan will have kept his word. The union will be smashed in the mills of the steel trust. When the job is completed Mr. Morgan will be able to say just how many nickels and dimes per day he will pay to each of 130,000 men without the fear of interference. Unorganized, the men will not be able to force wages upward toward the rising cost of living. True, if they don't like conditions and pay in the mills they may hunt work elsewhere. But if they try to find employment in independent mills they will simply glut the market with surplus labor and compel lower wages thereby. If they go into other lines of employment they must leave all their previous skill and experience behind them and begin in the apprentice class—and that won't raise their wages. There will be nothing for these men to do but to accept the conditions and make the best of them—or perhaps join the ranks of socialism and revolution.

The Steel Trust, with its heel on the necks of 120,000 men, will more than ever be able to dictate legislation in the National Congress for its own benefit, make such prices for its products as it pleases and devise such snares as it may deem surest to crush competition. More than ever will it furnish an example to the whole people of what to expect from unbridled corporation greed and power—and perhaps the crushing of the union to gratify the spite of J. Pierpont Morgan may some day rouse the whole people to apply the purversing power of the law to this and other like corporations—with a Roosevelt to apply it.

The crushing out of unionism may precipitate greater dangers in this great American republic than are even dreamed of by the Morgans, the Parrys and the rest of the industrial Napoleons who are opposed to the only organizations which now voice the protests of the great, toiling industrial enemy.

THERE IS PROFIT RAISING HOGS

(The Weekly Sun.)

There is one clause in the letter of Alex. McNeill, dealing with the present situation in regard to hog raising, to which the Sun must take exception. This is the statement that hogs do not pay as well as other things. The Sun believes there is no branch of farming, with the possible exception of dairying, that has given better returns to those who have followed it intelligently and persistently than has hog raising. The business certainly has not paid those who have rushed into it just as prices were on the eve of decline and have gone out again as the market was about to revive. Neither have the best results been obtained by those who have depended wholly on high-priced grain for feed. On the other hand where hogs have been kept right along, and merely in sufficient numbers to turn to best account the by-products of the dairy, where clover or alfalfa has been used as part of the ration, and where grain has been used as it came from the machine, there has been a profit and a good profit.

This statement is borne out by the experiences of practical farmers which have been given in The Sun from time to time. It is borne out again by the statements of W. G. Rennie on page five of this week's issue. It is sustained, too, by the experiments carried out by eighty farmers under the leadership of Prof. Cory in the year 1906. The results of these experiments showed that on the average it cost these farmers a little less than $4.50 to make 100 lbs. of pork with grain valued at $23 per ton. At the present relative price of grain and hogs this shows an excellent margin.

So far as co-operation is concerned it is to be feared, after the experience of some years ago, it will be some time before Ontario farmers can be induced to undertake the operation of a packing house on the co-operative system. What there is reason to hope for is that packers and farmers may come together, the latter agreeing to furnish a steady supply of hogs direct to factory owners, without the intervention of middlemen. Such a scheme could not be carried through without an organization on the part of the farmers similar to that which prevails in a smaller way in the case of cheese factories and creameries. The mere existence of such organization would be to a considerable extent a guarantee of fair treatment by the packers, as the latter would not risk taking a course in regard to prices that they could not justify to the organized body on which they would be dependent for their raw material.

A SHATTERED IDOL.

The Music Teacher Had Been Under a Misapprehension.

The friend found the pretty girl, who earns a living teaching music, staring blankly at the wall.

"What on earth is the matter?" demanded the friend. "You look as if you were in a trance!"

"Did you see him?" asked the pretty music teacher faintly.

"See whom?"

"That horrid man who just went out!" And the pretty music teacher shuddered.

"If that man insulted you, why didn't you call the police?" demanded the friend.

"I am afraid that the police wouldn't have anything to do with it. I have been giving his daughter lessons on the piano lately, and I instructed her to practice very softly, as I know how annoying it is to the neighbors when one is learning to play. And just now that great big brute of a man came charging in here and roared that the only reason that he allowed his daughter to take music lessons was to get even with a man living next door who played the flute and if I couldn't instruct his daughter to put enough music into her playing so it could be heard through a six inch wall he would get some one who could!

"And to think that I have always considered music a divine art to which I had consecrated my life!"

And the pretty music teacher broke down and cried.—Detroit Free Press.

M. Bakso, convicted during the recent trial of the so-called sugar scandal cases, committed suicide in Tokio.

INFANTS DELIGHT
Taylor's Soap

$1 a Cake Could Buy No Better Soap

If you were to offer us $1 for a single cake of soap, we could make no better than our Infants' Delight.

For we have put our very best into this cake. We go to the gardens of France for pure vegetable oil. There we pay often double what we might pay. We bring cocoanut oil more than 12,000 miles from the isle of Ceylon. Then we mix these oils and boil them doubly long.

After this we send them through our own special milling process — one that we have perfected only in our 43 years of experience.

From here they fall like flakes of snow into huge bins and are then crushed under a weight of 30 tons to press out the moisture.

Then they pass through granite rollers and come out in miles of silky ribbons, after which they are dried eight times. The result is the most perfect and delightful soap.

It is so pure and clean that it leaves the skin fair as an infant's. So we call this soap Infants' Delight.

Order one cake today and see for yourself how different it is. Note the rich, creamy lather and see how it leaves the skin as soft as velvet and as smooth as silk.

Note the dainty perfume — it comes from Bulgaria and costs us $100 a pound. But it requires 3,000 pounds of rose leaves to make a single ounce of this Otto of Roses. The fragrance is simply exquisite. Please try it and see.

How to Manicure.

File your nails to the desired length. Then soak them in warm water with a thick lather of Infants' Delight. Remove your fingers from the water and push back the cuticle at the base of the nails until the white crescent appears. After this, trim and polish the nails as usual.

STEAMER FASHIONS.

How to Be Well Groomed While Crossing the Atlantic.

HAIR NETS A NECESSITY.

A Convenient Way to Carry One's Toilet Articles—Mannerisms of the College Graduate—The Girl That Is Welcomed Heartily as a Guest.

My Dear Elsa—I am so glad you are sailing from New York on the Lusitania, for then we will get a glimpse of you before you cross the pond. This is your first venture as a transatlantic voyager, and you want me, as an old globe trotter, to give you a tip or two about steamer clothes? Well, my dear, whether the trip over is physically for better or worse, for sickness or health, do make wise provision before starting to protect and cherish your personal appearance while on the briny deep. Don't get the mistaken idea into your cerebellum that you can revel in frumpiness and be happy at the same time or that most of the feminine part of the ship's company will be equally ungroomed, for they won't.

The girl who has naturally curly hair can afford to laugh at the antics of old Boreas, but she with the straight locks that get salt soaked and blow across the face in unsightly long wisps will rue the day that she left her native shore without a generous supply of hair nets, for they add more to one's comfort and beauty on shipboard than one has any idea of until they experiment. No; the sea wind always blows and makes the notorious March ones seem like a zephyr, so be warned in time and get a half dozen good, big twenty-five cent hair nets and be grateful to me for the rest of your life.

The last time I went over a pretty girl in our party spent most of her time manipulating the electric curling irons that are to be found in every stateroom. And her persistency was greatly to be admired, but, alas, not her wavy locks, for no curls but real ones can withstand the combined effects of sea and wind to destroy them. Electric pads to take the place of the hot water bottle are fine to take along.

And, dear, provide yourself with a voluminous automobile veil. A brown chiffon one is best, for it doesn't give you the ghastly look that green, blue or gray will when you may not be feeling quite up to the mark. Then unless you want the A.'s to think when you arrive on the other side that your complexion has gone off tremendously avoid using water to wash the face while at sea and, I might add, while traveling by rail. Use your cleansing cream night and morning, and you will not have a rough gray skin when you land at Queenstown. If you do not feel refreshed after sleeping without the accustomed dash of cold water a good toilet water will be found stimulating. By the way, don't fail to have a good sized bottle with you, because it will be found the greatest comfort if you are unfortunate enough to suffer the horrors of mal de mer or, barring this, the less strenuous headache. And I have found that when treating the face to a cream bath is out of the question a mixture of alcohol and borax rubbed over the face with a piece of old linen takes off the dirt and the uncomely shine.

Now I am going to let you in for a pet traveling invention of mine.

It's a low, broad tin box the depth of my largest pot of face cream, which I divide into compartments with pasteboard strips that will just hold each article without rattling. Little aluminium boxes for the cream are the lightest and best to carry, for when abroad weight counts. Then night and morning you can place this box on your dressing table. All your toilet things will be just where you want them, and that tedious looking through the trunk will be avoided. Speaking of luggage, this broad, low box is easy to pack in your steamer trunk. But stock your box completely before leaving home; otherwise you will find you must pay exorbitantly for whatever you need. You doubtless have read what Mr. Bok and his bevy of fair lady contributors have had to say about "what clothes to take on a trip to Europe," and your traveled friends have all added their "do" and "don't" on this particular phase of the situation, so regardless of the fact that my information has been sought I am going to exercise the privilege of withholding it. But let me whisper soft and low that I have a nice little set of chair cushions waiting to be tucked in with your steamer things—dear little snuggly affairs that can be poked in behind a suffering head or back—and the comfort of owning cushions is a little thing, but it passeth all understanding of a landlubber.

Now, I will, with your permission, ease my mind about the visiting ways of the up to date young girl. I've had two of them stopping with me for a week, one a college brand new creature and the other a product of a fashionable school. Well, there's all the difference in the world between what for a better word I'll call the mannerisms of these two girls. The college girl was conspicuous for her lack of manners—that is to say, she had bad manners. The boarding school graduate had the most charming way of doing and saying the simplest thing. This week as hostess has made me think of all kinds of hints for the girl we're glad to see, and I'm going to unload some of my theories upon you instanter. In the first place, the guest we enjoy having with us has definite ideas about what she does and does not want to do. She does not reply, "Oh, I don't mind," to every suggestion for her amusement, but says frankly, "I should like that very much," or else, "I'd rather not, thanks, unless you're very keen on it." She falls in with the ways of the household. She comes down to breakfast and in to lunch and dinner at your fixed times and does not expect the household arrangements turned upside down to suit her convenience. If for any reason she wants to stay away for a meal she asks you first if you mind. She appreciates the little things done for her and does not take them all as a matter of course, and she does not have to be perpetually amused or expect her hostess to be trailing after her continually. She realizes that she wants to be left alone sometimes and either has "some letters to write" or "some shopping to do" till it is convenient for her to be in evidence again.

Without making herself obtrusively at home the girl is glad to help her hostess to entertain other guests. She tries to be agreeable to every one she meets at your house, whether they appeal to her or not. She will sing or play without needing a heap of persuasion, but is under no false impression as to the quality of her accomplishments and does not attempt to monopolize the piano stool. She is just as much at home with the children and with the old folk as she is with those of her own age. The little ones adore her, for she is never too tired to play with them, receive their childish confidences, comfort their little sorrows and make peace among them. She never rubs you the wrong way. She is good tempered and cheerful and does not suffer with moods and nerves. She makes the best of the weather, she looks on the bright side of things, and somehow or other after she has gone you always say: "I'm so glad Nellie came. She is always so jolly. I feel so much brighter after she has been here awhile." And, to close this discourse, she arrives when and how she said she would. And she does not leave a heap of odds and ends to be sent on after her. And she never forgets to write and tell you she reached home safely and how much she enjoyed her stay with you. Don't you think my summing up of a guest's duties toward her hostess is a just one? And do you not think the filet of tortoise shell picked out with a daisy design in tiny pearls and the barrette to match were a charming little gift for my college guest to send me?

Do arrange your plans so that you can spend at least a week with me before sailing, and until then believe me ever most sincerely yours, MABEL.

VARIES IN QUANTITY.

A Cord of Wood Is a Rather Uncertain Proposition.

ODD FACTS ABOUT ITS BULK.

There Are Many Different Conditions That Affect the Measurement of the Pile—The Interesting Result of an Experimental Test.

When is a cord not a cord?

To the farmer harvesting his small wood lot and to the man laying in logs for the large fireplace of his country or seaside home, to the paper manufacturer buying pulp wood and to the proprietor of the ordinary city wood yard, to all of these men this question has an important financial meaning.

Queer to say and contrary to the belief of most people, there are many times when a cord is less than a cord and many conditions when it is more. School arithmetics say that a cord of wood is 128 cubic feet, or the contents of a pile eight feet long, four feet high and four feet wide. Wood is marketed on this basis. A pile whose length, breadth and height multiplied together gives this number of cubic feet fills this requirement, no matter whether the sticks are long or short, straight or crooked, round or split, unless there is an understanding to the contrary. Nevertheless, a cord, though it comes up to legal measurements, is an uncertain quantity, even when the seller is honest and the buyer satisfied.

A lumberman may have a tract of pulp wood which he sells to a paper mill at $5 a cord for as many cords as it will make. It is in the contract that he shall cut and stack it. He cuts it in twelve foot lengths, and when the job is complete it measures 200 cords, and he receives $1,000 for it. Would he have made or lost by cutting four foot lengths instead of twelve?

He would have lost in the first place from the additional labor required to cut four foot wood, but his principal loss would have resulted from a greatly diminished number of cubic feet, due to the fact that short sticks lie closer together than large.

Measurements and experimental tests have been made to ascertain exactly how much actual wood is in cords of different lengths, sizes, shapes and species.

Had the 200 cords of twelve foot wood been cut in four foot lengths there would have been only 176 cords, and the owner would have received for it $880 instead of $1,000. It was, therefore, clearly to his advantage to cut twelve foot lengths, but it would have been to the buyer's advantage to have it cut in four foot lengths. He would have received the same actual quantity of wood for $120 less.

It also makes considerable difference to the seller whether wood is chopped or sawed. If chopped, the chips are lost. Where the logs are large this loss amounts to no small total. In a cord of four foot wood, with sticks six inches in diameter, the chip loss is from 6 to 8 per cent, and, of course, the shorter the sticks are cut the greater the loss. If the wood is sawed the sawdust loss is scarcely the half of 1 per cent.

The difference due to spaces between the sticks, of course, depends very much on the shape and size of the sticks. Straight, smooth sticks lie close together, and a cord contains more wood and less air. For given lengths sticks of soft woods are usually straighter and smoother and when stacked lie closer together. But whatever the kind, cords of long sticks are pretty sure to contain more empty space than cords made of short pieces. Likewise cords of split wood contain less than cords of round sticks. The finer the wood is split the more it makes; hence wood dealers are often willing to sell kindlings, all sawed and split, for the same price per cord as unsplit wood. They get back the cost of labor in the increased bulk.

A cord (128 cubic feet) of four foot hardwood usually contains about eighty-three cubic feet of solid wood, a cord of three foot wood averages eighty-three and one-half feet, of two foot wood eighty-four feet and of one foot wood eighty-five feet. The conifers, soft woods, contain ninety to ninety-six cubic feet. Thus the purchaser receives on an average about two-thirds of a cord of real wood and one-third of a cord of spaces.

In some countries wood is bought by weight, and the buyer comes more nearly getting what he bargains for, but even then he may miss it if he receives green wood when he wants dry. According to timber testing engineers of the United States forest service, wood may lose half or more its green weight in seasoning. Cedar for lead pencils is bought by weight in this country. The pieces are so small and of such irregular size that they cannot conveniently be stacked and measured as cordwood.

The bulk of nearly all woods decreases as seasoning goes on. A hundred cords green will make from eighty-nine to ninety-three cords when dry. This is a factor of no small importance to dealers who handle large quantities.

Wood lot owners and farmers who have small forest tracts from which they expect to sell cord wood are no less interested than contractors who buy and sell large quantities. It will stand them in hand to know how much difference it makes whether wood is cut long or short, chopped or sawed, whether the sticks are round or split, whether large or small and whether the measurements are to be made while the wood is green or after it is seasoned.

CLAY'S FIRST SPEECH.

It Began In Confusion, but Ended In a Triumph.

Henry Clay as a young man was extremely bashful, although he possessed uncommon brightness of intellect and fascinating address, without effort making the little he knew pass for much more. In the early part of his career he settled in Lexington, Va., where he found the society most congenial, though the clients seemed somewhat recalcitrant to the young lawyer. He joined a debating society at length, but for several meetings he remained a silent listener.

One evening after a lengthy debate the subject was being put to a vote when Clay was heard to observe softly to a friend that the matter in question was by no means exhausted. He was at once asked to speak and after some hesitation rose to his feet. Finding himself thus unexpectedly confronted by an audience, he was covered with confusion and began, as he had frequently done, in imaginary appeals to the court, "Gentlemen of the jury."

A titter that ran through the audience only served to heighten his embarrassment, and the obnoxious phrase fell from his lips again. Then he gathered himself together and launched into a peroration so brilliantly lucid and impassioned that it carried the house by storm and laid the cornerstone to his future greatness, his first case coming to him as a result of this speech, which some consider the finest he ever made.

SAM HOUSTON'S MOTHER.

For the Children's Sake She Faced the Perils of the Wilderness.

The mother of Sam Houston was another woman who for the sake of her children hazarded the dangers of the wilderness journey without the protection of a man's strong arm. Houston's friend and biographer, C. Edwards Lester, portrayed her as "an extraordinary woman, distinguished by an impressive and dignified countenance and gifted with intellectual and moral qualities which elevated her in a still more striking manner above most of her sex."

The death of her husband left Mrs. Houston in poor circumstances and with a growing family of six sons and three daughters. Knowing that many of her neighbors who had gone west had prospered, she determined to follow their example in order that her children might get a good start in life, sold her Virginia farm and journeyed to Tennessee, ending her migration only when within eight miles of the boundary between the settlements of the whites and the wigwams of the Cherokees.

There she erected a rude cabin with the help of her oldest boys, and there she labored diligently to bring up her children to be useful men and women. It was for them that she toiled and prayed and denied herself, personifying in her devotion another trait of the mothers of the early west.—Smith's Magazine.

The Greater Less.

Tragedies innumerable culminate in the emergency hospital.

"What has happened to me?" asked the patient when he had recovered from the effects of the ether.

"You were in a trolley car accident," said the nurse, "and it has been found necessary to amputate your right hand." He sank back on the pillow, sobbing aloud. "Cheer up," said the nurse, patting him on the head; "you'll soon learn to get along all right with your left hand."

"Oh, it wasn't the loss of the hand itself that I was thinking of," sighed the victim. "But on the forefinger was a string that my wife tied around it to remind me to get something for her this morning, and now I'll never be able to remember what it was."—Argonaut.

Argentina.

The land of Argentina is fertile and under proper conditions would support an immense population and could own practically all of South America. It is one of the three large countries of the earth that could support a large population if absolutely cut off from all other countries. Foreigners fall into the sluggish habits of the Spanish there. The Grain Exchange opens at 4 p. m. and closes at 5. Breakfast is generally about 11 a. m., dinner 7 to 8, and the theaters begin at 10. It is not a country for the vigorous, energetic, money making immigrant. People live there to enjoy life and not to accumulate dollars.

The Garden and the Hen.

Did you ever work for ten hours and make a beautiful garden about the size of a large pocket handkerchief? And then after it was all planted and up did you ever find a hen that looked like a cross between a greyhound and a buzzsaw right in the middle of it with the air full of young lettuce and radishes? Did you then remember that the hen was made for some useful purpose and that innocent children might be in hearing distance?

His Complaint.

Countryman (to doctor)—Think I bain't well, doctor. The more I eats the less I wants loike. Doctor (impressively)—Ah, yes, of course. You see, everything you eat flies to your stomach.

Letting the Cat Out.

"Say, grandpa, make a noise like a frog," coaxed little Tommy.

"What for, my son?"

"Why, papa says that when you croak we'll get $5,000.—Success Magazine.

GROUND BROKEN TODAY FOR PETERBOROUGH'S NEW LIBRARY

Mr. Jas. Bogue Who Has Contract for Foundation has a Number of Men at Work—Committee Picks Out Exact Site of Building—Some Historical Information

Ground was broken this morning for the new public library at the corner of McDonnell and George streets. Mr. Jas. Bogue, who has the contract for the foundation, has a number of men at work taking out the foundation of an old cellar, in order to make way for the new building. Work on the job will be rushed and the building will be well advanced before the snow flies.

Yesterday afternoon the Property Committee of the Council visited the site to assist in pegging out the ground area of the new library building. Mr. T. Rutherford, of Rutherford Bros., the contractors; Mr. J. Belcher, of the joint architects, and a sprinkling of spectators were on the grounds. As laid out, the building will stand about thirty feet from McDonnell street, and the same distance from George street, though the entrance on George street will project some sixteen feet nearer the street line. In fact, the north side of the building will be in a line with Dr. Burnham's residence, on Water St.

Mr. Bogue had asked the architect to point out where the water pipes would enter the building, so that connection could be made at once, and bring the water into the lot for building purposes.

The north side of the lot shows an old cellar, and the foundation wall of the library building just misses the cellar by a few inches. The contractors will have to use material taken from the library building foundation to fill up the cellar, a sort of robbing Peter to pay Paul.

With the exception of the building, a clapboarded house, that covered the old cellar, and in which the Camerons lived for many years, the last building on the library lot was the axe factory of William Mocock. This was in the early sixties. It was a rough board concern, and went up in smoke one windy day in September. Mocock held a reputation as an axe maker, for there were connoisseurs in axes in those days. Chopping in the timber woods was an industry of some magnitude, and men were mighty particular as to the kind and make of axe used. The weight, width of blade, and camber given to the edges were all matters of discussion and individual preference. Steel cost money—much more than to-day—so axes were made of wrought iron with about two inches of the cutting edge of steel.

When Mr. Mocock set up in business he did not need to advertise in the papers. He had something nearly as effective, and which called attention to his trade. It was the trip-hammer—a fiendish contrivance that kicked up more row than a C.P.R. locomotive on an up-grade, with the throttle wide open. It was used to pound the axe into its first rough form. A log of wood was pivoted at a point about one-thirds its length—being on trunnions very much the same as a cannon is hung. From the short end protruded a shaft of iron, and this was struck by a cam on the driving shaft, raising the other end of the log and letting it fall. To the free end was attached a huge piece of steel, like a hammer-head. Set in the ground below, was a five or six-foot section of a hardwood tree, standing like a post, and on top an anvil. The glowing piece of iron was snatched from the forge, placed on the anvil, and the power shifted on. The results were decisive, ample and satisfactory. The noise was hideous. It could be heard from the Auburn Mills to the Little Lake cemetery. It frightened horses and drove men to drink, but the red-hot iron was flattened out in short order. As a pleasing diversion, and to add to the general hilarity of the proceedings, water would be thrown on the hot iron, and when the hammer fell the noise was redoubled. Afterwards the large building was used by the late Mr. Henry Owens as a pump factory.

THE DISGRACEFUL ACTIONS OF LOCAL YOUNG MEN

The disgraceful action of some young men from Peterborough, who pay week end visits to Hiawatha is arousing considerable indignation. The offenders in question go down to the reserve in busloads on Saturday nights and remain over Sunday.

During their stay they have a high old time and become hilarious by drinking whiskey and beer freely. They also supply liquor to Indians and from a standpoint of decent behaviour make themselves most objectionthree o'clock they raise very noisy to the city on Sunday morning about othree o'clock they raise very noisy disturbances.

These actions are not only lawless but are becoming intolerable and it is imperative that it should be stopped at once.

CANADA CORDAGE COMPANY HAS THE GOVERNMENT ORDER

The Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Co., Limited, of this city, has been successful in gaining the Canadian Government order for rope for the year. In previous years the Government received its supply of rope from Great Britain, but have now decided to have its rope made in the Dominion.

Considering that the Government rope must be of a very superior class of goods, free from defects and imperfections of every description, having to stand the highest official tests, the award speaks highly for the product made by the Canadian Cordage Company.

Great improvements have been made in the product of these mills, the product of its output having met a ready sale to the best of houses against sharp competition. The Canadian Cordage Co. have solved the pure rope and twine question, by making honest goods—a rope and twine that is Manila, and good Manila too, both in name and substance, which is affording the highest satisfaction to its customers.

Mr. Stocker has not yet decided where he will move the board to, but there are several places in the city where he can place it. It will not be a hard matter to take it down and put it up again, as it is in sections seven feet wide and ten feet high.

LOST A TOOTH CAUGHT FISH

Interesting Story of a Fishing Trip on the Otonabee Many Years Ago

The following appears in a recent issue of a Saginaw, Mich., paper;—

Along the banks of a small city called Peterborough, situated in Ontario, Canada, flows the Otonabee river. Nature has apparently seen fit to beautify the river by painting scenery along its shores which cannot be excelled by any thought wrought work of man. But, like life, it must encounter obstacles to impede its smooth course. Many are the times that I have seen huge logs floating along, some rafted, others scattered here and there. Others, also, having become water soaked, sink to the bottom, making it difficult and dangerous for a fisherman dragging a trawl line, being apt to hook on a log.

I remember with an incident which I shall never forget. I was 10 years old then and weighed about sixty pounds. In those days, thirty-five years ago, this wild river was one of the greatest fishing grounds in upper Canada.

Now, trawling in a canoe requires a more difficult method of holding the line than that which is used by modern sportsmen. In a canoe you face the bow, while it is vice versa in the ordinary rowboat.

It was on a bright, sunshiny day that I started out with the intention of making a good haul. The board around which my line was wound lay in the bottom of the canoe, while I had some encircling my leg a few times and passed times and passed through my mouth, thereby enabling me to detect anything which might cause to stop the twirling of the spoon dragging behind me.

I was gliding smoothly along, when I felt an awful jerk, and before I could realize it I was in the water gasping for breath, I thought at first I had hooked a log, but on looking down stream I noticed that I had something "real live" at the end of my line. Being a good swimmer, I struck out for the shore, which was about forty feet from where I was.

On reaching dry land I commenced pulling out my prize, which proved to be a muskalonge weighing fourteen and a half pounds. In the meantime I was minus one tooth and plus a bruised mouth.

The proofs are still evident. It was a case in which I lost little and won much.

NATIONAL MISSIONARY CAMPAIGN

The Canadian Council of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, which has the direction of the work throughout the Dominion, has just issued a statement as to its policy and plans for the immediate future.

The policy was adopted and then submitted to the different denominational committees and heartily endorsed by them. The denominational secretaries each agreed that the best results come to their work through the larger inter-denominational meeting, and will therefore all co-operate in the campaign of the fall and winter. This will include district meetings covering two days each, in every province of the Dominion, so located that every church may be able to send one or more delegates without great outlay of time or money.

It is expected that invitations will be received from different centres, and the council will make selections with the best interests of the entire work in mind. The first ten meetings will probably be held in Ontario in September, and those in the western provinces in October and November.

An earnest call to prayer for wisdom in locating and planning these meetings has been issued to co-operating clergy and laymen throughout the Dominion.

ANCIENT GLORIES OF HIS RACE

Gallant Rescue by Madden Howard--Two Tourists Saved From Drowning

That the age of chivalry is not gone is apparent from the daring deed of Madden Howard, the well-known Indian champion paddler of Hiawatha, who rescued two Americans in a wild storm on Rice Lake some weeks ago and refused reward.

It has just leaked through, on good authority however, that some weeks ago one of the sudden squalls for which Rice Lake is famous came down with unwonted fury and lashed the waters into a plentiful supply of billows and foam. Some Indians standing on shore taking in the fury of the storm which prevented their going out to fish, saw two men in a boat rise up in the distance and disappear. It was plain they were in great danger. Howard thought for a moment and then, crying out "I can't stand that boys," stripped off his clothes and pushed off in his light canoe. He, too, soon disappeared from the view of those on shore. After a long, hard struggle against wind and waves, Howard reached the men, who were exhausted, and clinging to their upturned boat. He grasped one by the hair and lifted him off the crest of a wave into his canoe, and, taking the other in tow, he paddled with the wind for Paudash Point, which was safely reached. Each of the rescued Americans offered him money in rolls, and a gold watch into the bargain, but Madden shook his head. "No, me not want anything; didn't do it for money."

Needless to say when the tourists arrived home they didn't forget him and he now wears a handsome testimonial of his unselfish courage and skill. These facts are vouched for.

LAST WEEKS GAMES TO BE PLAYED SATURDAY

The president of the City League has ordered that the games scheduled to be played last Saturday, but were not, as a result of the wet weather, must be played this Saturday. The teams can play the games where they wish, and as they have lately taken a liking to Nicholls Oval, the contests will probably be pulled off there. Both the Straths and T.A.S. would have been up against it had the weather permitted the games to be played last Saturday. The Abstainers were without a catcher and the Strathconas were minus several players. Both teams will be strengthened for their struggle, and the tailenders are confident of a win. The West Ends and Park St. always put up a good game, but when they clash on Saturday the fans should be treated to one of the best exhibitions of the season.

RUNS WERE FREQUENT IN BASEBALL MATCH AT NORWOOD

Special to the Review.

Norwood, July 13—For the second time this season the Catholic and Baptist ball teams met the Presbyterians and Church of England.

The first game was one of great interest, the latter winning by an up-hill struggle by 7—6.

The game of Wednesday evening was loaded with runs, full of excitement and with a heavy order of errors. The Catholics were determined to win, and at the close of the 3rd innings had the game safely stowed in their pockets.

The first innings only three men faced Kempt, who was on the slab for the Presbyterians. In the Presbyterian half one run was scored by some fine base running.

The Catholics with full determination went to bat. From the start they fell on Kempt's twisters to the tune of eight runs; errors were common and costly. The best the Presbyterians could do was to get 2, the score now being 8—3.

The third innings was another slaughter, 5 being added, giving the Catholics a lead of 10 runs.

The Presbyterian tide had turned. Nicoll, the first man up, made a two bagger, and then by quick work on bases and timely hitting they succeeded in getting 6 runs before being retired.

The fourth innings counted 3 apiece, bringing the score up to 16—14.

Kempt again got to form, the result being only four men facing him with no runs.

With two to tie the Presbyterians lined up for the last innings, the darkness however, being a great disadvantage. With two out Nicoll again hammered another two-bagger reaching home on Rogers's single. On a steal and a passed ball Rogers scored, tieing the score, 16 all.

Becket at bat was unable to follow the ball owing to darkness, and fanned (an unusual thing for him) with a man on third.

This made the second game last week. The Catholics have two, and great excitement prevails.

The attendance was large.

JUDGMENT RESERVED IN ROBBERY CASE AT POLICE COURT TO-DAY

Joseph Keegan, Howard Innis and Wesley Crouter are charged with stealing a watch and $5 from the residence of Mr. John Laundry, Bethune street, on June 9th, were given their trial at the Police Court this morning. The case occupied nearly three hours and at the conclusion of the evidence the Magistrate reserved judgment until tomorrow morning.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for Keegan and Mr. F. D. Kerr acted for Innis.

Mrs. Mary Laundry was the first witness for the Crown and she stated that on the day of the robbery she saw two or three boys in her house. Two of them were coming down from the upstairs and one was standing by the dinner table. She could not tell who the boys were and could not identify the prisoners as the parties who were in her house. She missed a gold watch, which had been left on a dresser upstairs, also $5 on a box, but the money later in her evidence turned out to be the value of a glass eye which had been taken. A few coppers in a pasteboard box had also been taken. The watch was produced in court and she identified it as the one stolen.

John Laundry next called stated that he knew Keegan as he came to the crossing where he (Laundry) was employed, and asked if Mrs. Laundry had got her watch yet. Keegan said to him that nothing had been taken from the house except twenty cents in coppers. He also identified the watch as the one belonging to his wife.

Wm. Foster, who resides in Smith, said he was near the house the day of the robbery. The flagman at Brock street had asked him to drive after some boys. He did not see any at the time, but on driving down the street saw two boys coming out of a lane on Bethune street between Hunter and Simcoe streets. One pulled out some articles from his pocket and his companion said "It's a good one," and then when they saw him ran away. He recognized Innes as one of the boys as he got a look at his face as a result of the fence falling down which he (Innis) was trying to see over.

To Mr. Gordon witness could not say which boy pulled the articles from his pocket, nor could he say what it was.

Elmer and Bruce Fowler stated they lived next door to Mrs. Laundry's, but they had not seen anything of the boys around there the day of the robbery.

P. C. Newhall stated he received word of the robbery at 2.45 p.m. Previous to this time he had seen the three prisoners with Killenbeck and Wright on the track north of Brock street on Bethune and they were walking south. He had also saw them at the corner of Hunter and Bethune street before dinner. After the message came into the Police Station he went out and saw Killenbeck, Crouter and Wright hurrying along Stewart street between Hunter and Simcoe. They turned down Simcoe and unto Charlotte street. He then went around the block and he met Crouter coming up King near the Grand Trunk station, and asked him where the other two were. Crouter stated that be had not seen them. He took the prisoner up near the scene of the robbery and then to the police station, where he was placed in a cell. Crouter wanted to know why he was arrested, and when told said he was not in the house at all. Killenbeck and he were on the lawn of the house, while Keegan, Wright and Innis were inside. Wright brought out some meat and potatoes, but he did not see any of the articles that ahd been stolen.

Witness further stated that Innes ahd walked into the police station on the third of July and given himself up. When asked the cause of his delay, he admitted being in the house, but none of the party had taken anything.

To Mr. Kerr witness said that Innis had stated the arrangement among the boys was that one of their number was to go to the door and ask for a drink of water, and if nobody was at home, they were all to go in.

Mrs. Laundry, recalled, said that the Monday morning after the robbery the watch had been returned to her. She found it in the latter box by the door. There was a slip of paper on which was written "Mrs. Laundry's watch."

P. C. Newhall, recalled, gave considerable evidence relating to the movements of the boys. It was to the effect that they had been riding around the country on freight trains and this caused the delay in their arrest.

Wesley Crouter said he was out on the lawn of Laundry's house the day of the robbery and did not enter the house. He came to the house from the direction of the corner of Bethune and Brock streets. The other boys, Keegan, Wright, and Innis, went to the back door and entered, and Wright brought out some beefsteak, potatoes and peas, which were eaten by Wright and Killenbeck. The reason for going in the house was to get a drink of water, but did not know of any arrangement made. Did not see any of the articles that had been stolen. Mrs. Laundry was in the back door with an armful of wood, but he did not know what caused her to scream, as he walked down street. He did not meet the boys afterwards, but met Newhall down near the Grand Trunk station. The first he knew of the articles being stolen was when P.C. Newhall told him. He did not tell Newhall of any plan arranged by the boys. They all met shortly after dinner on Bethune street, and three of the number went up near Hamilton's foundry. He was found shortly after by Keegan, and they both went up the track and met the others, and all went back to Brock street crossing, and it was after this affair at the house took place.

Joseph Keegan said he came home Monday evening from Belleville to stand his trial. Wright and he were together in the morning. After dinner the met several fellows where Killenbeck and Ennis and Wright were. He had arranged to meet Wright in the afternoon. Crouter said they were gone up the track and soon after both went on up to the boarding car near Hamilton's foundry, where the rest of the boys were met. All returned down the track into Landry's for a drink, but there was no cup. He rapped at the back door, but nobody answered and he then went in and took a cup off the table. Wright followed him in and he went out for a drink. Later Wright came out with the beef and potatoes, but he did not know who eat it. Mrs. Landry had come along when Wright was coming out with the meat, and she dropped the wood and screamed. He did not know of anybody being upstairs. Innes and he went across the vacant lot to Brock street, then up to Stewart street and over to Dickson's Point near the C.P.R. bridge. That night he went to Toronto, accompanied by Innes, Killenbeck and Wright for the purpose of securing a job. He came back alone, got some money and went to Belleville.

In regard to the conversation with Mr Landry he said the reason for his asking if the watch was returned was because he heard that the watch was found by Mrs. Landry in a vacant bedroom.

This concluded the evidence and the Magistrate reserved judgment until to-morrow morning at ten o'clock.

'BUS DRIVER WAS OVERCOME; HE FELL OFF THE SEAT

Jack Fallon, aged about thirty-five, and a bus driver for the Oriental, was suddenly overcome at the Grand Trunk station this morning while there for the Lakefield train and fell off the bus seat unconscious. He was removed to the Oriental and Dr. McPherson was summoned to attend him. At about two o'clock this afternoon he was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital in the ambulance and had not recovered consciousness at the time. The physician in attendance stated that he was apparently suffering an hemmorhage of the brain and very slight hopes are held out for his recovery.

Mr. Fallon is about thirty-five years of age and has a wife and three children. He resides on Murray street. He was subject to sudden attacks of weakness.

MR. REED SHOWS THE WAY; GETS LIMIT IN SHORT TIME

The expert fishermen of the Kawartha Lakes is Mr. Harry Reed, of New York, and if the history of the lakes is ever compiled Mr. Reed will be entitled to the most prominent place in the piscatorial section. A short time ago reference was made to the success of the New York angler, who is registered at "Islands," Buckhorn Lake.

He is keeping up his good showing, and Friday he caught the limit of bass in Sandy Lake in record time. The limit number is eight, and Mr. Reed managed to secure all that the law would allow in the remarkably short time of thirty-five minutes. He commenced fishing at 3.25 and at 4.10 he had obtained the full complement.

SOME ADVANTAGES OF PUTTING THE CLOCK BACK ONE HOUR

How would you like to have to get up an hour earlier that you do now? Doesn't look very attractive, does it?

Chatham has an agitation to put the clock back one hour during the summer months, and some people are suggesting that similar action be taken here. By putting the clock back sixty minutes one would go to work one hour earlier than at present and would have more time for recreation in the evening. Some of the advantages of the proposed change are;—

1.—Less time to [illegible] breakfast and a saving in food as a result.

2.—Less time to grumble about the breakfast. Housewives would appreciate this.

3.—Less time in which to get to work in the morning. This would result in faster walking and increased health from the additional exercise.

4.—Less time in which to get a drink on the way to work. This will result in considerable saving—in the amount of beer consumed.

5.—More time in the evening in which to be bitten by the mosquitoes. The mosquitoes are [illegible] favor of the proposed change.

[illegible] advantages [illegible] obvious.

YOUNG MAN WAS DISCHARGED

Samuel Innes, who was charged with the theft of a horse at police court last Saturday, was discharged by Magistrate Dumble this morning when his case came up for a hearing.

According to the lady who owned the horse, Innes had been given authority by her to sell the animal if he got a good opportunity. The trouble was mostly brought about by the defendant getting intoxicated, and His Worship advised him to let the whiskey alone and thus save further trouble.

CHAPTER VIII.

TO all men come portentous moments, difficult moments, triumphant moments. Loder had had his examples of all three, but no moment in his career ever equaled in strangeness of sensation that in which, dressed in another man's clothes, he fitted the latchkey for the first time into the door of the other man's house.

The act was quietly done. The key fitted the lock smoothly, and his fingers turned it without hesitation, though his heart, usually extremely steady, beat sharply for a second. The hall loomed massive and somber, despite the modernity of electric lights. It was darkly and expensively decorated in black and brown; a frieze of wrought bronze, representing peacocks with outspread tails, ornamented the walls; the banisters were of heavy ironwork, and the somewhat formidable fireplace was of the same dark metal.

Loder looked about him, then advanced, his heart again beating quickly as his hand touched the cold banister and he began his ascent of the stairs. But at each step his confidence strengthened, his feet became more firm until, at the head of the stairs, as if to disprove his assurance, his pulses played him false once more, this time to a more serious tune. From the farther end of a well lighted corridor a maid was coming straight in his direction.

For one short second all things seemed to whiz about him; the certainty of detection overpowered his mind. The indisputable knowledge that he was John Loder and no other, despite all armor of effrontery and dress, so dominated him that all other considerations shrank before it. It wanted but one word, one simple word of denunciation, and the whole scheme was shattered. In the dismay of the moment he almost wished that the word might be spoken and the suspense ended.

But the maid came on in silence, and so incredible was the silence that Loder moved onward too. He came within a yard of her, and still she did not speak. Then, as he passed her, she drew back respectfully against the wall.

The strain, so astonishingly short, had been immense, but with its slackening came a strong reaction. The expected humiliation seethed suddenly to a desire to dare fate. Pausing quickly, he turned and called the woman back.

The spot where he had halted was vividly bright, the ceiling light being directly above his head, and as she came toward him he raised his face deliberately and waited.

She looked at him without surprise or interest. "Yes, sir?" she said.

"Is your mistress in?" he asked. He could think of no other question, but it served his purpose as a test of his voice.

Still the woman showed no surprise. "She's not in, sir," she answered. "But she's expected in half an hour."

"In half an hour? All right. That's all I wanted." With a movement of decision Loder walked back to the stair head, turned to the right and opened the door of Chilcote's rooms.

The door opened on a short, wide passage. On one side stood the study, on the other the bed, bath and dressing rooms. With a blind sense of knowledge and unfamiliarity, bred of much description on Chilcote's part, he put his hand on the study door and, still exalted by the omen of his first success, turned the handle.

Inside the room there was firelight and lamplight and a studious air of peace. The realization of this and a slow incredulity at Chilcote's voluntary renunciation were his first impressions. Then his attention was needed for more imminent things.

As he entered the new secretary was returning a volume to its place on the book shelves. At sight of him he pushed it hastily into position and turned round.

"I was making a few notes on the political position of Khorassan," he said, glancing with slight apprehensiveness at the other's face. He was a small, shy man, with few social attainments, but an extraordinary amount of learning—the antithesis of the alert Blessington, whom he had replaced.

Loder bore his scrutiny without flinching. Indeed, it struck him suddenly that there was a fund of interest, almost of excitement, in the encountering of each new pair of eyes. At the thought he moved forward to the desk.

"Thank you, Greening," he said. "A very useful bit of work."

The secretary glanced up, slightly puzzled. His endurance had been severely taxed in the fourteen days that he had filled his new post.

"I'm glad you think so, sir," he said, hesitatingly. "You rather poohpoohed the matter this morning, if you remember."

Loder was taking off his coat, but stopped in the operation.

"This morning?" he said. "Oh, did I? Did I?" Then struck by the opportunity the words gave him he turned toward the secretary. "You've got to get used to me, Greening," he said. "You haven't quite grasped me yet, I can see. I'm a man of moods, you know. Up to the present you've seen my slack side, my jarred side, but I have quite another when I care to show it. I'm a sort of Jekyll and Hyde affair." Again he laughed, and Greening echoed the sound diffidently. Chilcote had evidently discouraged familiarity.

Loder eyed him with abrupt understanding. He recognized the loneliness in the anxious, conciliatory manner.

"You're tired," he said kindly. "Go to bed. I've got some thinking to do. Good night." He held out his hand.

Greening took it, still half distrustful of this fresh side to so complex a man.

"Good night, sir," he said. "Tomorrow, if you approve, I shall go on with my notes. I hope you will have a restful night."

For a second Loder's eyebrows went up, but he recovered himself instantly.

"Ah, thanks, Greening," he said. "That is—I think your hope will be fulfilled."

He watched the little secretary move softly and apologetically to the door, then he walked to the fire and, resting his elbows on the mantelpiece, he took his face in his hands.

For a space he stood absolutely quiet, then his hands dropped to his sides, and he turned slowly round. In that short space he had balanced things and found his bearings. The slight nervousness shown in his brusque sentences and overconfident manner faded out, and he faced facts steadily.

With the return of his calmness he took a long survey of the room. His glance brightened appreciatively as it traveled from the walls lined with well bound books to the lamps modulated to the proper light; from the lamps to the desk fitted with every requirement. Nothing was lacking. All he had once possessed, all he had since dreamed of, was here, but on a greater scale. To enjoy the luxuries of life a man must go long without them. Loder had lived severely—so severely that until three weeks ago he had believed himself exempt from the temptations of humanity. Then the voice of the world had spoken, and within him another voice had answered with a tone so clamorous and insistent that it had outcried his surprised and incredulous wonder at its existence and its claims. That had been the voice of suppressed ambition, and now as he stood in the new atmosphere a newer voice lifted itself. The joy of material things rose suddenly, overbalancing the last remnant of the philosophy he had reared. He saw all things in a fresh light—the soft carpets, the soft lights, the numberless pleasant, unnecessary things that color the passing landscape and oil the wheels of life. This was power—power made manifest. The choice bindings of one's books, the quiet harmony of one's surroundings, the gratifying deference of one's dependents—these were the visible, the outward signs, the thing she had forgotten.

Crossing the room slowly, he lifted and looked at the different papers on the desk. They had a substantial feeling, an importance, an air of value. They were like the solemn keys to so many vexed problems. Beside the papers were a heap of letters neatly arranged and as yet unopened. He turned them over one by one. They were all thick and interesting to look at. He smiled as he recalled his own scanty mail—envelopes long and bulky or narrow and thin, unwelcome manuscripts or very welcome checks. Having sorted the letters, he hesitated. It was his life task to open them, but he had never in his life opened an envelope addressed to another man.

He stood uncertain, weighing them in his hand. Then all at once a look of attention and surprise crossed his face, and he raised his head. Some one had unmistakably paused outside the door which Greening had left ajar.

There was a moment of apparent doubt, then a stir of skirts, a quick, uncertain knock, and the intruder entered.

For a couple of seconds she stood in the doorway; then as Loder made no effort to speak she moved into the room. She had apparently but just returned from some entertainment, for, though she had drawn off her long gloves, she was still wearing an evening cloak of lace and fur.

That she was Chilcote's wife Loder instinctively realized the moment she entered the room. But a disconcerting confusion of ideas was all that followed the knowledge. He stood by the desk, silent and awkward, trying to fit his expectations to his knowledge. Then, faced by the hopelessness of the task, he turned abruptly and looked at her again.

She had taken off her cloak and was standing by the fire. The compulsion of moving through life alone had set its seal upon her in a certain self possession, a certain confidence of pose, yet her figure as Loder then saw it, backgrounded by the dark books and gowned in pale blue, had a suggestion of youthfulness that seemed a contradiction. The remembrance of Chilcote's epithets "cold" and "unsympathetic" came back to him with something like astonishment. He felt no uncertainty, no dread of discovery and humiliation in her presence as he had felt in the maid's, yet there was something in her face that made him infinitely more uncomfortable, a look he could find no name for, a friendliness that studiously covered another feeling, whether question, distrust or actual dislike he could not say. With a strange sensation of awkwardness he sorted Chilcote's letters, waiting for her to speak.

As if divining his thought she turned toward him. "I'm afraid I rather intrude," she said. "If you are busy"—

His sense of courtesy was touched. He had begun life with a high opinion of women, and the words shook up an echo of the old sentiment.

"Don't think that," he said hastily. "I was only looking through—my letters. You mustn't rate yourself below letters." He was conscious that his tone was hurried, that his words were a little jagged, but Eve did not appear to notice. Unlike Greening, she took the new manner without surprise. She had known Chilcote for six years.

"I dined with the Fraides tonight," she said. "Mr. Fraide sent you a message."

Unconsciously Loder smiled. There was humor in the thought of a message to him from the great Fraide. To hide his amusement he wheeled one of the big lounge chairs forward.

"Indeed," he said. "Won't you sit down?"

They were near together now, and he saw her face more fully. Again he was taken aback. Chilcote had spoken of her as successful and intelligent, but never as beautiful. Yet her beauty was a rare and uncommon fact. Her hair was black—not a glossy black, but the dusky black that is softer than any brown—her eyes were large and of a peculiarly pure blue, and her eyelashes were black, beautifully curved and of remarkable thickness.

"Won't you sit down?" he said again, cutting short his thoughts with some confusion.

"Thank you." She gravely accepted the proffered chair. But he saw that without any ostentation she drew her skirts aside as she passed him. The action displeased him unaccountably.

"Well," he said shortly, "what had Fraide to say?" He walked to the mantelpiece with his customary movement and stood watching her. The instinct toward hiding his face had left him. Her instant and uninterested acceptance of him almost nettled him. His own half contemptuous impression of Chilcote came to him unpleasantly and with it the first desire to assert his own individuality. Stung by the conflicting emotions, he felt in Chilcote's pockets for something to smoke.

Eve saw and interpreted the action. "Are these your cigarettes?" She leaned toward a small table and took up a box made of lizard skin.

"Thanks." He took the box from her, and as it passed from one to the other he saw her glance at his rings. The glance was momentary. Her lips parted to express question or surprise, then closed again without comment. More than any spoken words the incident showed him the gulf that separated husband and wife.

"Well," he said again, "what about Fraide?"

At his words she sat straighter and looked at him more directly, as if bracing herself to a task.

"Mr. Fraide is—is as interested as ever in you," she began.

"Or in you?" Loder made the interruption precisely as he felt Chilcote would have made it. Then instantly he wished the words back.

Eve's warm skin colored more deeply. For a second the inscrutable underlying expression that puzzled him showed in her eyes, then she sank back into a corner of the chair.

"Why do you make such a point of sneering at my friends?" she asked quietly. "I overlook it when you are—nervous." She halted slightly on the word. "But you are not nervous tonight."

Loder, to his great humiliation, reddened. Except for an occasional outburst on the part of Mrs. Robins, his charwoman, he had not merited a woman's displeasure for years.

"The sneer was unintentional," he said.

For the first time Eve showed a personal interest. She looked at him in a puzzled way. "If your apology was meant," she said hesitatingly, "I should be glad to accept it."

Loder, uncertain of how to take the words, moved back to the desk. He carried an unlighted cigarette between his fingers.

There was an interval in which neither spoke. Then at last, conscious of its awkwardness, Eve rose. With one hand on the back of her chair she looked at him.

"Mr. Fraide thinks it's such a pity that"—she stopped to choose her words—"that you should lose hold on things—lose interest in things—as you are doing. He has been thinking a good deal about you in the last three weeks, ever since the day of your—your illness in the house, and it seems to him"—again she broke off, watching Loder's averted head—"it seems to him that if you made one real effort now, even now, to shake off your restlessness that your—your health might improve. He thinks that the present crisis would be"—she hesitated—"would give you a tremendous opportunity. Your trade interests, bound up as they are with Persia, would give any opinion you might hold a double weight." Almost unconsciously a touch of warmth crept into her words.

"I'll think over what you've said," he repeated.

"Mr. Fraide talked very seriously about the beginning of your career. He said that if only the spirit of your first days could come back"— Her tone grew quicker, as though she feared ridicule in Loder's silence. "He asked me to use my influence. I know that I have little—none, perhaps—but I couldn't tell him that, and so—so I promised."

"And have kept the promise?" Loder spoke at random. Her manner and her words had both affected him. There was a sensation of unreality in his brain.

"Yes," she answered. "I always want to do—what I can."

As she spoke a sudden realization of the effort she was making struck upon him, and with it his scorn of Chilcote rose in renewed force.

"My intention"— he began, turning to her. Then the futility of any declaration silenced him. "I shall think over what you say," he added after a minute's wait. "I suppose I can't say more than that."

Their eyes met and she smiled a little.

"I don't believe I expected as much," she said. "I think I'll go now. You have been wonderfully patient." Again she smiled slightly, at the same time extending her hand. The gesture was quite friendly, but in Loder's eyes it held relief as well as friendliness, and when their hands met he noticed that her fingers barely brushed his.

He picked up her cloak and carried it across the room. As he held the door open he laid it quietly across her arm.

"I'll think over what you've said," he repeated.

Again she glanced at him as if suspecting sarcasm. Then, partly reassured, she paused. "You will always despise your opportunities, and I suppose I shall always envy them," she said. "That's the way with men and women. Good night." With another faint smile she passed out into the corridor.

Loder waited until he heard the outer door close, then he crossed the room thoughtfully and dropped into the chair she had vacated. He sat for a time looking at the hand her fingers had touched. Then he lifted his head with a characteristic movement.

"By Jove," he said aloud, "how cordially she detests him!"

CHAPTER IX.

LODER slept soundly and dreamlessly in Chilcote's canopied bed. To him the big room, with its severe magnificence, suggested nothing of the gloom and solitude that it held in its owner's eyes. The ponderous furniture, the high ceiling, the heavy curtains, unchanged since the days of Chilcote's grandfather, all hinted at a far-reaching ownership that stirred him. The ownership was mythical in his regard and the possessions a mirage, but they filled the day and surely sufficient for the day.

That was his frame of mind as he opened his eyes on the following morning and lay appreciative of his comfort, of the surrounding space, even of the light that filtered through the curtain chinks, suggestive of a world recreated. With day all things seemed possible to a healthy man. He stretched his arms luxuriously, delighting in the glossy smoothness of the sheets.

What was it Chilcote had said? "Better live for a day than exist for a lifetime." That was true, and life had begun. At thirty-six he began to know it for the first time.

He smiled, but without irony. "Man is at his best at thirty-six," he mused. He has retained his enthusiasms and shed his exuberances; he has learned what to pick up and what to pass by; he no longer imagines that to drain a cup one must taste the dregs. He closed his eyes and stretched again not his arms only, but his whole body. The pleasure of his mental state insisted on a physical expression. Then, sitting up in bed, he pressed the electric bell.

Chilcote's new valet responded.

"Pull those curtains, Renwick," he said. "What's the time?" He had passed the ordeal of Renwick's eyes the night before.

The man was slow, even a little stupid. He drew back the curtains carefully, then looked at the small clock on the dressing table. "Eight o'clock, sir. I didn't expect the bell so early, sir."

Loder felt reproved, and a pause followed.

"May I bring your cup of tea, sir?"

"No, not just yet. I'll have a bath first."

Renwick showed ponderous uncertainty. "Warm, sir?" he hazarded.

"No, cold."

Still perplexed, the man left the room.

Loder smiled to himself. The chances of discovery in that quarter were not large. He was inclined to think that Chilcote had even overstepped necessity in the matter of his valet's dullness.

He breakfasted alone, following Chilcote's habit, and after breakfast found his way to the study.

As he entered Greening rose with the same conciliatory haste that he had shown the night before.

Loder nodded to him. "Early at work?" he said pleasantly.

The little man showed instant, almost ridiculous, relief. "Good morning, sir," he said. "You, too, are early. I rather feared your nerves troubled you after I left last night, for I found your letters still unopened this morning. But I am glad to see you look so well."

Loder promptly turned his back to the light. "Oh, last night's letters!" he said. "To tell you the truth, Greening, my wife"—his hesitation was very slight—"my wife looked me up after you left, and we gossiped. I clean forgot the post." He smiled in an explanatory way as he moved to the desk and picked up the letters.

WHAT'S WRONG?

This is the open season for new potatoes; likewise for the man with the wilted collar and the "is-this-hot-enough-for-you" greeting.

Although the Middle of July is here no ambitious gardener has called at the Review office with a "number of well developed tubers that are ready for the table." This is regrettable; something is surely wrong. In order that lack of interest in early potatoes may not develop, a member of the Review staff offers a second-hand pipe (broken) to the person bringing the first batch of potatoes to this office. The only conditions are that the potatoes must be hand-picked, have well-defined eyes and thicker skins even than those of the ordinary run of Grit politicians. Early potatoes can be left at this office any time between two and four o'clock a.m.

APSLEY MAN IS CALLED AWAY

Death of Mr. Albert Smith at Age of 32--Other News

Special to the Review.

Apsley, July 13—The death occurred on July 8th, at his home in Anstruther, of Mr. Albert Smith, at the age of 32 years. Deceased had not been in very robust health for some time, but his condition was not thought to be serious till during the last month, when the dreaded disease, consumption, claimed him as its victim. All that medical skill and tender care could do was of no avail, and his untimely death is much regretted. In September, 1906, he was married to Miss Ena Hawes, who, with two small children, is left to mourn his death. He also leaves a father, mother and two brothers, Harry and Charles, all of whom have our heartfelt sympathy in their hour of affliction. The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon from his late residence to the Church of England, Apsley, of which the deceased was a member. A very touching sermon was preached by Mr. Harris, assistant to Rev. C. Lord. He preached from the following text: "Behold, I stand at the door and knock," dwelling on the fact that we should so live as to be ready at any time to answer the call to meet our Redeemer; also speaking of the resignation of the deceased to submit to the will of the inevitable. Being a member of the True Blue Lodge, that order attended in a body, heading the funeral procession from their lodge room to the church. The pallbearers were: Wilbert Lean, Dan Thom and Jas. Lean, Philip Tanner and Robert Scott. The remains were laid in the family plot in the Church of England cemetery.

There is no death. What seems so is transition.
This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life Elysian,
Whose portal we call death.

Mrs. Wm. Sharp, of Peterborough, is visiting friends in and around our village.

Mrs. Almond Harris and Masters Charlie and Tommy are visiting with friends in Peterborough.

Mrs. Walter Lean and Master Colonel, of Lakefield, are the guests of relatives here.

Miss Maggie Hales is visiting her parents and other relatives here.

The Orangemen attended divine service in a body at the Church of England on Sunday last. The sermon was preached by Rev. C. Lord. He read to them the obligations they had taken by the joining of the order, impressing upon them that in order to live up to the vow they had taken they must be true Christian gentlemen leaving off all evil habits of untruthfulness, blaspheming, quarrelling, drunkenness and all other vices that are degrading to them as loyal Orangemen.

People who went to Warsaw report that everything was carried out in good order.

Hastings displayed more of the boisterous spirit. Drunkenness was much in evidence. The parade, however, and the Orangemen in general were very orderly and showed due respect to the order to which they belonged. Some six or seven lodges took part in the parade. Two brass bands from Roseneath made things lively by their martial music, while the usual fife and drum bands struggled heriocially for the supremacy.

In the afternoon a baseball match between Campbellford and Hastings was hotly contested, which resulted in a victory for Campbellford to the tune of 24—12.

The Methodist congregation of Norwood have subscribed about $600, which will be expended in the much needed renovation of the interior of the church and Sunday school. # COMMITTEE ACTIVE IN REGARD TO PROPOSED NEW ISOLATION HOSPITAL

The Property Committee of the City Council are hard at work completing arrangements for proceeding with the erection of the Isolation Hospital. It is likely that tenders will be asked for at an early date. It is the intention of the committee to have an up-to-date institution and to have it as soon as possible.

The committee held a meeting last night when Dr. McPherson, M. H. O., was present and imparted some valuable information regarding the kind of building that will be required. The Medical Health Officer is now going over the plans with the architects and some revisions are being made.

Those present at the meeting were Ald. Bradburn, chairman; Mayor Rush Ald. Duncan, Ald. Morgan and Dr. McPherson.

As has already been announced the plans for the hospital have already been prepared by Mr. Blackwell and the estimated cost runs from $7,000 to $8,000. The plans provide for a three-storey building with a solid brick wall through the centre making two separate sections, kitchen in the basement with dumb waiters to deliver the meals. In connection with the wards will be little pantries from which the meals could be served and where the dishes are washed.

Ald. Morgan asked if it would not be sufficient to have a plain frame structure.

Dr. McPherson said in his opinion and in the opinion of many doctors the city should put up a good structure for the reason that if things are not comfortable and convenient there would be very few private ward patients, and if there were no private ward patients to pay for the attention received the city would have to bear the full cost of maintenance. With a good hospital and comfortable wards those who could afford it, would be glad to pay, and would send their children to the hospital when they had contagious diseases.

The doctor also said that a very necessary provision was a sun parlor for the convalescents. In cold weather the children must have some place to run around in the sun, and still be warm and comfortable. In the summer the glass could be taken off and the verandah used.

Other necessities were an operating room where patients could be examined and sometimes an operation is necessary. There should also be a small laboratory.

DISINFECTING PLANT.

Aside from the isolation hospital, and whether the city has or not, the city should have a disinfecting plant. This would consist of a large metal chamber connected up with steam pipes. In this chamber is placed the clothing and bedding from the rooms where patients have been and there they are disinfected in a short time. Not only will the clothes from the hospital be disinfected in a short time, but from the houses in which there is scarlet fever.

So far as the laboratory and operating room is concerned they need not have them finished up just now. They should, however, be placed in the building so they can be fitted up when the city can do so.

The members of the committee saw the merit of Dr. McPherson's suggestions and thought that he had better take the matter up with Mr. Blackwell and have the plans arranged as soon as possible.

It was moved by Aldermen Duncan and Morgan, that Dr. McPherson consult with Mr. Blackwell re the plans so that the city will have a complete hospital, and report to this committee in one week.—Carried.

The hospital will be used for diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and smallpox. It is not likely, however, that smallpox patients would be taken to the hospital if diphtheria or scarlet or measles patients were already there.

LEAVE TROOPS THERE SAYS LABOR LEADER PATTERSON

President of Canadian Federation of Labor Says War Against International Unions is Now on—Strike Situation Remains Unchanged.

Ottawa, July 15.—J. W. Patterson, president of the Canadian Federation of Labor, discussing the demand for the withdrawal of troops sent by the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, says:

"This is the beginning of the war for the emancipation of the Canadian workmen from American domination. The troops have a perfect right to be there, when there are imported Belgians going around with knives in their hands.

"I believe that when the Government investigates this strike, as it will surely do, it will find the source from which the pay of these American agitators are coming is American capitalists, rather than from the United Mine Workers. I have every confidence that there is a conspiracy on foot, else what is bringing in all these men, some of whom do not even belong to the United Mine Workers, who are willing to take their lives in their hands and do violence on the slightest urging?"

"The demand for the withdrawal of the troops contains no subterfuge on our part for the use of violence when they have been withdrawn," said P. M. Draper, secretary of the Trades Congress. "Violence in any form is against every principal of international trades unionism."

"The United Mine Workers have a membership of nearly 400,000, and funds of over a million for strike purposes. They stand ready to support the men on strike in Cape Breton for an indefinite period. I have authority for making this statement."

Will Push His Case.

Glace Bay, July 15.—When the Union of Canadian Municipalities convenes this month in Medicine Hat, it is likely that more than one phase of the Glace Bay strike will be discussed.

Mayor Douglas has decided to send a stated case to Controller J. J. Ward of Toronto, who is president of the union, on the military question as it has developed at Glace Bay. The union comprises most of the important municipalities in Canada. Halifax will send a delegate, probably Mayor Chisholm, and it is likely that the city will suggest the danger of allowing too much power to the military in civil matters.

A telegram from the Deputy Minister informs Mayor Douglas that the law does not allow municipal authorities to control the military, but that Gen. Drury has power to consult with him.

Mayor Douglas wired a reply complaining of the sheriff appointing magistrates without conference with the town authorities, and adding that he would ask Gen. Drury to withdraw at least half of the troops, as it is locally a matter of great concern that the town should be "saddled" with the $1,600 a day expense.

The company and the P.W.A. claim that nearly 3,800 men are at work out of 6,500 men employed in April, though two-thirds of the workers are not coal producers. The U.M.W. officials, however, say the figures are greatly exaggerated.

Quiet prevails at Inverness. The company says strikers are gradually returning to work. A Belgian has been committed for trial on a charge of assault. The presence of the troops is having the desired effect, and they will not be withdrawn, the company says, until the trouble is settled.

Thomas Roper of Barnsley, Yorkshire, Eng., a miner, has deserted from the coal company. He claims he was engaged in England June 28 last after replying to an advertisement for 30 experienced miners. When he arrived and found he was a strikebreaker, he quit as soon as he could.

It is reported that the company is importing two cargoes of coal from Wales and Philadelphia.

Lots of Coal.

Montreal, July 15.—F. L. Wanklyn yesterday said: "We have lots of coal. We have 200,000 tons at Sydney; 80,000 tons at Montreal; 25,000 tons at Three Rivers, and 10,000 tons at Quebec.

Miners Refuse Award.

Lethbridge, Alba., July 15.—Miners district board No. 18 has refused to accept the arbitration award in the Hillcrest Mine dispute, disregarding the agreement that the decision of the arbitrator, H. R. Grant, of Fernie, who was nominated by the miners, should be binding.

9 YEAR OLD BOY DROWNED IN THE OTONABEE LAST NIGHT

Maxwell Martyn Went Out Over His Depth, With Fatal Results—Two Young Companions Could Offer Him No Assistance—The Body Was Recovered by James McMartin.

The first life this season was claimed by the Otonabee last night at six o'clock. The victim was Maxwell Martyn, the 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Martyn, 134 Lock street. In company with the other two lads the boy went down to the Otonabee last night for a swim. He went in for a while and the other two stopped on the bank. The little fellow was unable to swim and the place he went in swimming, which is just a short distance below the street car wharf, suddenly deepens and he stepped into a hole out of his depth, with fatal results.

The boys who were with him were young and became alarmed when they saw their companion was in danger, and could render no assistance. When the news of the accident became known a large number of persons gathered, at the scene of the drowning and several boats were employed in the search for the body. About an hour and twenty minutes after the drowning the body was brought to the surface by James McMartin, after he had dived repeatedly.

Dr. Gray was notified, but decided that an inquest was uncalled for.

The funeral will take place to-morrow morning at nine o'clock from the family residence, to Little Lake cemetery.

PROBABILITIES.

THE NEWS AS TOLD IN DESPATCHES

Methodism Invades Zion City.

Condemned Man Wanted to Talk.

Edmonton, July 15.—Declaring that he had killed Deputy Warden Stedman of Alberta Penitentiary, formerly of Toronto, in self-defence, Gary R. Barrett was hanged yesterday morning. Death was due to strangulation and not a broken neck. His son, who was not permitted to be present at the execution, was given the body, which will be taken to Butte, Montana. The condemned man showed the utmost unconcern, save that he objected to the oration he wished to deliver being cut short.

Convicts' Daring Escape.

Edmonton, Alberta, July 15.—Two convicts, Atkinson of Regina, serving five years, and Johnson serving six years for assault on a guard, made a daring escape from the penitentiary. Working in an excavation, they seized long planks, which were cleats and used for running their wheelbarrows up to the surface, ran to the fence about eight feet distant, and, placing it against the wall, were soon up and over, taking cover in the bush.

Auto Fatality at Woodstock.

Woodstock, July 15.—Harry Campbell, a ledgerkeeper in the Molsons Bank here, and formerly in Toronto, was fatally hurt Tuesday night in an auto accident while returning with five others from a football match, one of the crowd said there was fire in the engine. Campbell jumped out before the car had stopped, alighting on his head, and receiving concussion of the brain. He died early yesterday morning.

CALLS MILKMAN AN ASSASSIN

Montreal, July 15.—"You're an assassin, that's what you are," declared Recorder Dupuis, from the bench yesterday morning to a Longue Pointe milk dealer, who was for the fourth time convicted of selling diluted milk that contained very little that was nourishing and otherwise unfit for consumption.

"A man who will sell milk like that for use by little children is nothing but an assassin," continued the recorder in the course of a severe lecture to the accused, and several other milkmen who were arrested on a charge of selling milk below the standard and otherwise unfit.

Fighting at Teheran.

Teheran, July 15.—Rifle and artillery fire has been practically continuous since Tuesday morning.

Sipahdar and Sadarassad, the Nationalist leaders, have just transmitted the following message to the British and Russian diplomatic representatives:

"In spite of the fact that the Russian flag is flying over the house of Col. Liekhoff, Nationalist forces are being fired on by Persian Cossacks stationed under the roof of this house."

EVELYN THAW IS DOUBTFUL

Uncertainty Exists Whether She Wants Thaw's Release

White Plains, N.Y., July 15.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's lips were still closed by legal technicalities yesterday, and she did not resume the stand as expected, to testify for the state in opposing Harry K. Thaw's attempt to prove himself sane, and his confinement in the asylum for the criminal insane illegal.

It is not generally known whether she would rather see him a free man or confined as a lunatic. While she has been quoted often as repeating "I'll stand by you, Harry," it is reported that in the event of her testimony ultimately goes against Thaw, his attorney will call witnesses to show that she had remarked that she was glad to see him in Matteawan.

Tuesday Mrs. Thaw said that her husband was not supporting her properly, but it was brought out yesterday that he is paying her more than $500 a month.

In court Tuesday Harry and Evelyn seemed to regard each other as strangers.

WHEAT IS SOARING EXCITING SCENES

Short Operators Buy up all the Cereal in Sight—Additional Rainfalls on Tuesday Night in Kansas and Missouri is Responsible for the Flurry.

Chicago, July 15.—Wheat for July delivery advanced seven cents to $1.27 a bushel during a stormy session on the Board of Trade yesterday, establishing a new high record for the season and giving promise of a repetition of the recent deal headed by James A. Patten and his colleagues in the May option.

The immediate cause of the buying flurry was additional rainfalls Tuesday night in Kansas and Missouri, where the new crop of wheat is now harvesting or is awaiting the thresher, and despatches from other harvesting and wheat-shipping regions, telling of damage to the new crop by excessive rains. In addition, the official forecast for to-day for the principal wheat-growing states predicted additional thunderstorms.

A large "sleeping" short interest has existed for some time in the July option, and the action of the market yesterday indicated that many of these traders had become alarmed at crop reports. Warehousemen and professional traders were said to be the principal shorts. Elevator men weeks ago bought wheat in the fields in Kansas, Oklahoma and other winter wheat states, and hedged against their country purchases by selling July wheat in this market. Since that time, wet weather has interfered with threshing operations, and the houses prevented quick delivery of the new crop in Chicago and the southwestern markets.

There is little contract wheat for delivery in Chicago now, and that little belongs to the Patten clique, which succeeded in merchandising the grain delivered to it during the closing days of the May corner, and now demands the wheat sold to it for this month's delivery. When shorts went to Mr. Patten early in the day with offers of settlement, it is said they were told to buy the grain in the pit. The attempt to carry out his line of action was the cause of the seven cent advance.

Demand was so fierce at the start that the price between sales jumped from 1-4 to 1 cent at a leap. A wild shout rose when the price touched $1.25 and predictions were freely made that $1.50 would be reached before the end of the month. The market closed at almost the top. Final quotations on July were recorded at $1.26 5-8 to 3-4.

As a result of the sharp advance in wheat, flour was marked up 10 to 20 cents for the best descriptions of old wheat varied, while new wheat flour was advanced ten cents a barrel.

MRS. BALL TO BE TAKEN CARE OF BY FRIENDS

Children Will Be Returned to Her—Mr. and Mrs. B. Laster Will Take Charge of the Family in the Future

Mrs. H. Ball, the unfortunate woman who attempted to take her life Tuesday night, with a dose of carbolic acid, but was prevented from carrying out her intention by Acting Bailiff Archie Moore and the timely arrival of Dr. McPherson, was brought to the Police Court this morning. Beyond a rather hopeless look, she appeared none the worse for the trying ordeal, which she has passed through during the last few days.

Mr B Lastar was present and asked the Magistrate to be allowed to take Mrs Ball to his home, where he and his wife would do all in their power to comfort and provide for her.

The children, who are at present in the Shelter, will also be given back to the mother.

The Magistrate, however, would not give any decision on what would be done with the one hundred dollars taken from Mrs. Ball at her home, on the night of the closing of the store by the acting bailiff. Mr. Laster stated that the money was the property of Mrs. Ball, but his Worship said it was a case for the Civil Court.

ENGINE CRASHED INTO A HANDCAR NEAR HASTINGS

Hastings, July 14—The Hastings section crew on the G.T.R. had a rather exciting time on Wednesday morning of last week in running down to Campbellford, on the lorry, when they were overtaken by a double-header freight, which came onto them around a curve, and before the crew had time to get the pumper and lorry off the tracks the engine crashed into them, spilling a large assortment of bolts, spikes, etc., as well as the lorry and pumper all over the landscape. The crew left here before the station was open in the morning with considerable material for the gang in Campbellford, which was needed to start the Campbellford men to work, and consequently had no warning of the train coming until they heard the first whistle about seventy-five yards behind them. It was fortunate that no one was hurt as the men stuck to the cars trying to clear the tracks until the engine struck them.

LINDSAY TAKES OVER OZONE PLANT; A COMPLETE SUCCESS

Water of Sluggish Stream Fully Pumped — First on Continent—50 Cents Per Million Gallons.

Special to the Review.

Lindsay, Ont., July 15.—The town of Lindsay has accepted the ozone purification plant recently installed on the Howard Bridge system, to treat its entire water supply.

The plant was tested by Dr. Archibald, of the Toronto University, and was found to have practical sterility to the water which is taken from a sluggish swampy stream, highly polluted with decaying vegetable matter. This is the first municipal plant on the American continent to purify a town's entire water supply by electrically produced ozone. The cost of purification amounts to less than fifty cents per million gallons.

The City Council will meet in committee of the whole to-morrow night to consider several matters.

ALMOST A DROWNING ACCIDENT

Hastings, July 14.—On Tuesday evening of last week, the Trent was near being the scene of a second drowning accident, when little Pat Lemoire, son of Mr. Peter Lemoire, who was fishing on the pier at the foot of the slide, lost his balance and tumbled into the swift water.

Louis "Wee" Marchand, who was near the youngster, tried to pull him back when the youngster lost his balance, but the lad's shirt gave way and he tumbled in. "Wee" lost no time in going right after, and after a hard fight got himself and the youngster right out of the current and into the backwater, and up to the pier, after which Master Lemoire went home, a wiser and a wetter lad.

This is the sixth person who has been rescued from a watery grave in the last two years by Louis Marchand. We doubt if any town or village in the province can show a record of life saving to beat this, and every rescue he has made he has had to go into the water and pull the victim of the accident out.

UNDERWRITERS ARE IN SESSON

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 15.—The International Association of Accident Underwriters have opened a four-day convention.

After discussing what should be the proper method of treatment of the accident and health claims for disability sustained by Christian Scientists, the consensus of opinion was that, although the duration of illness was increased by the adoption of Christian Science methods, yet claims from this source must be paid on the same basis as those which came from people who employed a doctor of medicine instead of a doctor of mind.

FEDERAL FINANCES FOR YEARS 1908-09

Ottawa, July 15.—The Finance Department yesterday gave out the corrected figures for the financial year 1908-09.

THE KAISER CHOOSES NEW CHANCELLOR FOR GERMANY

An Old Eriend and Adviser to be His Prime Minisfer—Von Bethmann-Hollweg is a Quiet, Studious Man, of Jewish Extraction.

Berlin, July 15.—Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg was yesterday appointed chancellor of the Empire in succession to Prince Von Buelow. The Emperor has presented the prince with the order of the Black Eagle in diamonds.

The new chancellor is a college friend of the Emperor, 53 years of age and of Jewish origin. He has had but little experience in foreign affairs.

In his youth he studied law and was appointed assistant judge. Before he was thirty years old he had been made district governor of Ober-Barnim, and later became provincial president of Potsdam, where the suburban palace of Emperor William is situated. During his three years at Potsdam he saw much of His Majesty, and the two men took long walks and rides in the environs. It was his custom to ride out with His Majesty and the two men took long walks and rides in the environs. It was his custom to ride out with His Majesty in an old tweed suit of sober cut, and he always selected a quiet horse.

Following his sojourn at Potsdam Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg's promotion was rapid. He is without the graces of expression found with Prince von Buelow, but he is a man of convincing thought and substance.

He is a man of reserved and thoughtful habits and sometimes has been called the "philosopher statesman," and even at his own receptions he sometimes wears an air of preoccupation. He is a tall man with a long face, that looks longer than it really is because of a small, dark, pointed beard. He has a habit of stooping from his greater height and looking at smaller men in a searching way through his spectacles.

Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg has devoted himself to improving the condition of the artisan class, whereas almost all social legislation has been applied up to the present time to the working proletariat. Since he became Minister of the Interior, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg has distinguished himself by preparing an imperial insurance law and a law controlling a right of assemblage, which passed the Reichstag.

MONTREAL GOT IN WRONG THERE

London, July 16.—(C.A.P. Cable)—Under the heading "Montreal Offends the City," The Mail, regarding the refusal of recent tenders for the Montreal loan, says the explanation for the refusal seems to be that the tenders were insufficient to cover the loan, but that explanation is not regarded in the city as satisfactory. Friends of Montreal in London, whose opinion undoubtedly commands the highest respect, are expressing regret over the short-sightedness of Montreal in conducting its financial affairs in such a manner as to evoke criticism.

The matter need not perhaps reflect upon Canadian municipal credit, but it nevertheless is one of those regrettable incidents which should not be allowed to occur to mar the security of Canadian financial arrangements.

THE FARMER'S LIFE

The strenuous life of the city man has at last led him to change his opinions. He no longer thinks that proximity to theatres, lecture halls, steamboats, railways, acquaintances and friends, baseball and lacrosse grounds, is compensation for the nerve-stress of a crowd, the lack of fresh air, the expense of living, the narrow limits of his daily activities, the iron rule of systems, the lack of days of rest when rest is needed most, the absence of the soothing pastoral pleasures of the eye and of the first principles of natural production. Mankind has its limits, and they are prescribed by Nature. This must be remembered. They are not prescribed by man. He cannot make the city his natural habitat, nor the stuffy street his soul's natural refreshment. The city life is pre-eminently artificial.

There was a time, perhaps, when bad roads, isolated life, poor communication, poor returns, etc., discouraged the farmer and made him look upon his calling as the most arduous of all. But his condition has improved. If prices are not what they ought to be, all the other conditions of life have changed for the better. In comparison with his city friend of the same financial standing he is immeasurably superior. He is his own master, and not a creature of artificial conditions. The world of business life depends upon him, not he upon the business world. If he has had a fair degree of success; if he has, in other words, been a good careful farmer, his reward is greater than that of anyone similarly conditioned in a town. As for mere toil, he works no harder, if as hard, as the city man. Confinement and constant attention to detail, dependence upon bank discounts, the greater problem of dealing with more numerous employees, all combine to make the city man, employer or employee, a slave to unremitting toil, such as the farmer or the farmhand rarely knows.

With regard to the development of the moral welfare of family and self, there is no comparison. The yellow glitter of the city betrays. It is not there to betray the farmer or his family. He escapes the foetid breath of the moral leper. He is not compelled to live in constant contact with him.

Intellectually, the farmer is the best informed of any. He reads slowly, he is in no hurry. He thinks the matter out, and in ten years or so with his magazines and papers, he has learned a lot, and has had time to absorb it. He is, therefore, intellectually a stronger man.

The brief holiday of the city man in the country does him a vast deal of good. The holiday of the countryman in the city gives him a shaking-up that helps his activities. Both conditions are necessary to progress, but the pleasures of life are more apparent and more real on the farm than elsewhere. To doubt the fact and to look elsewhere on that account is to have a view of human affairs that needs correcting.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The word "whiskey" is derived from the Keltic word "uisge," meaning water. Both word and liquid have changed in course of time.

When we see photographs of children gasping at night on New York roofs, of people sleeping in the street, all the wild rush for a piece of ice to quiet the torments of a literal hell, we may be well satisfied in Canada that even if we do shiver sometimes in winter we rarely roast in summer.

NEW DERIVATION OF WORD "CANADA"

Three versions have been given of the origin of the name, none of which is satisfactory, to say the least. The first is that early Spanish navigators exclaimed on landing upon the then uncompromising shores of this country: "Aca Nado"—Nothing here—hence the name Canada. An objection to this etymology is that the Spanish "Aca" is not 'here,' but 'hither,' while 'acqi' means here or hereabouts. Moreover, as no Spaniard settled there and then, unless written down at the time, the expression would hardly have been preserved, and the appellation being neither descriptive nor historical, we may dismiss it as thoroughly childish.

The second etymology suggested is from the Indian words 'Kan'—mouth, and 'ado'—a country. Of course this appellation might have fitted the great expanse of water which is the door to the inland settlements, the St. Lawrence, and have been extended to the whole country.

The third etymology, the one commonly accepted, would be derived from another Indian word: 'Kanatha'—a collection of huts. No doubt the last two derivations of written tradition which is claimed for a fourth version. The name Canada is very like Spanish, indeed, if pronounced with the middle syllable accented, and anyone familiar with old Spanish maps and early Spanish map-making will find it a more reasonable supposition, that 'Tierra Canada'—land canyoned or gullied, or 'Tierra de la Canada'—land of the valley or gorge, was noted on the map of an early historic Spanish voyage from the West Indies up the Atlantic Coast and into the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Such original and authoritative maps were properly held to be of great value, and, when copied for subsequent navigators, the notes made upon them became part of the new maps, and thus the nomenclature was perpetuated. — Queen's Quarterly.

THE GRAND TRUNK IN LONDON, ENG.

The crowning importance of the Grand Trunk Railway System, the expansion and extension of business has necessitated the building of a new Grand Trunk building in London, Eng. The need of more room has been made all the more apparent since the Grand Trunk Pacific was projected. The company has been fortunate enough to secure a site at No. 17-19 Cockspur st., S.W., from the London County Council. Upon this site they have erected a splendid building. The Canadian Government Emigration offices are at Charing Cross, but a stone's throw from the Grand Trunk building. It is at the very hub of London. It is within five minutes of half a dozen leading hotels and near the intake to the tube at Trafalgar Square Station. Motor busses pass the door every few seconds to all parts of London, North, South, East and West.

The inside furnishings of the new building are luxuriously complete; mail is picked up every hour of the day.

A noticeable feature of the building is the range of circular fronted balconies on the fifth floor in front of deeply recessed windows, which are surmounted by a very effective heavy moulded and medallioned main cornice.

The carving on the front wall, which includes the Coat of Arms of the Canadian provinces traversed by the Grand Trunk System, was executed by Mr. W. S. Frith. The graceful figures over the principal entrance, emblematic of travel by land and sea, are the work of Mr. Albert Drury, A.R.A.

The public offices entered from Cockspur street, through the great central doorway, is a fine room forty feet long and eighteen feet high. The floor is marble, the walls are panelled in teak, with inlays of ebony and holly. In this room there is a magnificent freize, by Mr. Frank Brangwyn, A.R.A., which pictures Canada in the wild hunting scenes; Indian life; the meeting of the athfinder—the engineer—with the Indian chief, and finally the civilized influence in the railway and the white man upon the red man's country.

The new offices were opened on Dominion Day, and hereafter the European Traffic Department of the Grand Trunk Railway System and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will occupy these new premises, which have already become one of the sights to be seen in London.

MILLIONS OF CELLS.

The human body is composed of countless millions of cells. These cells are constantly dying and new ones are being created. Dead cells are removed from the blood by the bowels, kidneys and skin. These great eliminating organs filter this waste matter from the blood, and thus purify the blood.

If there is Constipation, or non-action of the bowels—if the kidneys are strained or weakened—if there is defective skin action—then the dead cells are not removed from the body. The blood thus becomes loaded with impurities, and we suffer for it.

The only way to purify the blood is to cure the skin, bowels and kidneys. When these organs are healthy and doing their work as nature intended them to do it, waste matter is promptly removed and the blood is kept pure and rich. "Fruit-a-tives"—the famous fruit liver tablets—act directly on the skin, the bowels and the kidneys. "Fruit-a-tives" purify the blood because they keep the whole body strong, vigorous and healthy. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

FIRST NEW READER HAS BEEN ISSUED

Toronto, July 15.— There arrived at the offices of the Board of Education yesterday, the first copy of the new Public school fourth reader, published by the T. Eaton Company, Limited. The new readers are 16 cents each while under the old contract, the price was 40 cents.

The book was compiled by a committee of which Dr. Goggin was the chairman, and an effort has been made to introduce as many modern and Canadian authors as possible.

The selections start off with "The Children's Song," by Rudyard Kipling and concludes with the same author's "Recessional." Other authors to whom the Minister of Education expresses his indebtedness for selections are Goldwin Smith, Henry Newbolt, the Earl of Dunraven, Sir W. F. Butler, Frank J. Butler, Chas. G. D. Roberts, W. Wilfred Campbell, Frederick George Scott, Agnes Maude Machar, Agnes C. Laut, Marjorie L. C. Pickthall and S. J. Wood.

Louis Stevenson's "Kidnapped," to C. Egerton Ryerson for permission to reproduce an extract from Egerton Ryerson's "The Loyalists of America and Their Times," and also to several publishing companies.

THEATRICAL

GAY MUSICIAN CO.

Through the efforts of Manager A. J. Small, who controls the theatrical field in Canada, he has induced Manager John P. Slocum, of New York, to present the comic opera, "The Gay Musician," by the noted composer, Julian Edwards, for a short tour of the principal Canadian cities, during the annual dates of the fair weeks.

Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa will have the opportunity of hearing the charming music of "The Gay Musician" during the fair weeks of the respective cities, and thousands of visitors who will visit the fairs will be delighted to learn that they will have the chance of listening to one of the most successful musical compositions of the day, through the energy of Managers Small and Slocum.

In addition to the cities mentioned, Manager Small has arranged with Manager Slocum for the presentation of "The Gay Musician" at some principal points in Canada, including Kingston, Belleville, Peterborough, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Brantford, Guelph, Galt, Woodstock, London and St. Thomas.

Following the preliminary tour of Canada, Manager Slocum will present "The Gay Musician" for a period of thirty-five weeks in the United States in the principal cities only. The demand of local managers in the United States to secure an engagement of "The Gay Musician" was so pronounced, that Manager Slocum was compelled to refuse the requests to present the famous comic opera in any other than the large cities, and the fact that the noted composition is to be heard in many Canadian cities is a tribute to the untiring energy of Manager Small, the Nestor of Canadian theatricals.

The engagement of "The Gay Musician" in this city will be on Wednesday, September 22nd, at the Grand Opera House.

The break in the Welland canal was thought to be repaired, but when the water was let in the old break gave way and the break is worse than ever.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Hogs Higher at Buffalo and Chicago.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, July 14.—(Special.)—A feature of the export live stock situation of late has been the stronger undertone to the market for ocean freight space and rates have advanced fully 5s per head for August shipment, but up to the present the volume of business done has been small and the demand from both Canadian and American exporters is still very limited. Liverpool space is offering at 32s 6d for the first half of August and at 30s for the second half; London, 35s; Glasgow, the same as Liverpool, while some engagements to Manchester have been for the first half at 32s 6d with 35s asked for the second.

At the Canadian Pacific live stock market this morning, the offerings were 300 steers, 225 cows, 25 bulls, 500 sheep, 100 lambs, 1000 calves and 800 hogs. Altho the supply of cattle was fairly large and the weather very warm, the undertone to the market was stronger than on Monday and prices show an advance of 15c to 25c per cwt., but the trade in common stock was slow and bulls were not wanted at any price. Choice steers sold at 6⅛c; good, at 5¾c to 6¼c, and lower grades at 4c to 5c; cows, at 3½c to 3¾c, and bulls, at 3¼c to 3c per lb.

In small meats trade was active, there being a good demand for all lines and as the offerings were not excessive, a steady feeling prevailed in the market and prices show no change, as compared with those of Monday.

Sheep sold at 3⅞c per lb., and lambs brought from $2.50 to $5.50 each, while calves sold freely at from $1.25 to $8 each as to size and quality. The market for hogs was stronger under a good demand and sales of selected lots were made at $8.75 per cwt., weighed off cars.

At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the supply of live stock consisted of 300 cattle, 175 sheep and lambs, 700 calves and 500 hogs. The only new feature in the trade since Monday was the stronger feeling in the market for hogs, owing to the small offerings and the good demand for the same, and sales of selected lots were made at $8.75 to $8.90 per cwt., weighed off the cars. The demand for cattle, sheep, lambs and calves was fair and the prices realized were much the same as those realized at the above market.

TABLE NOVELTIES.

New Things Brought Out by the Silversmiths.

A UNIQUE TEA STRAINER.

No More Wrestling With Bottle Fastenings if the New Corkscrew Is Used—A Dainty Silver Spade For Serving Cheese.

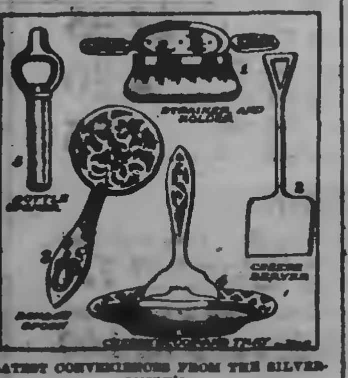
It pays to keep track of the new things that the silversmith is constantly bringing out. To be sure, these trifles are not always novel, but that does not detract from their interest for the housewife who prides herself on keeping informed with regard to everything that concerns the table or household equipment in general. It is in regard to the little things that the silversmith finds his best field for the introduction of novelties or modifications of familiar designs.

In the serving of tea a strainer is an essential part of the table equipment. But unless a stand is especially provided it becomes something of a problem to dispose of the strainer when it is out of commission. In the accompanying sketch one method of meeting this difficulty is indicated by having a strainer and holder to match.

Another convenience and one certain to be appreciated in most households is a cheese server such as illustrated. This is simply a miniature spade in silver, and it fills every requirement in the serving of all but cream cheese.

There is another style of cheese server which is designed for use with cream cheese. It comes in the form of a special tray and scoop, and the combination articles are among the attractions in the season's collection of table silver. Both articles are simple in design, as seen in the accompanying picture, and their usefulness is certain to be recognized by every up to date housewife.



LATEST CONVENIENCES FROM THE SILVERSMITH'S.

Any one who has ever wrestled with the fastening of a bottle of ginger ale, beer or the like knows the value of an opener that will prove effective when it is necessary to remove the cork from such a bottle. The corkscrew and bottle opener here illustrated has been designed to meet this need, and it is likely to prove of value in the average home.

The bonbon spoon is a handy addition to the silver chest, and the style here pictured is to be recommended for its simplicity.

These are but a half dozen of the many new things that attract attention these days in the silver shops.

Dragged in Mowing Machine.

Kingston, July 15.—Charles Vanhorne, a farmer of Pittsburg Township, is in the General Hospital with severe mutilation. He was thrown in a runaway upon the knives of a mowing machine while the horses dragged across a field.

PURSE FOR TRAVELING.

An Old Norwegian Pattern That Will Appeal to Those Who Knit.

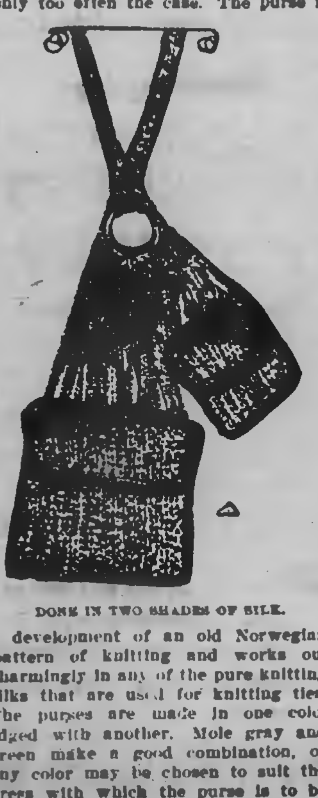
This small double purse is intended for the traveler in foreign lands, where gold and silver coins must be carefully guarded and kept apart lest the tarnished gold be given for copper, as is only too often the case. The purse is a development of an old Norwegian pattern of knitting and works out charmingly in any of the pure knitting silks that are used for knitting ties. The purses are made in one color edged with another. Mole gray and green make a good combination, or any color may be chosen to suit the dress with which the purse is to be worn.



DONE IN TWO SHADES OF SILK.

No Great Loss.

"Now, Mr. Knox," said the professor of physiology, "can you tell me with what faculty a man could most easily dispense?"

"Yes, sir," answered the student.

"Good!" said the professor. "Which one?"

"The college faculty," replied young Knox soberly.—Minneapolis Journal.

LADY ARTHUR GROSVENOR.

A Titled Englishwoman Who Plays Gypsy During the Summer Months.

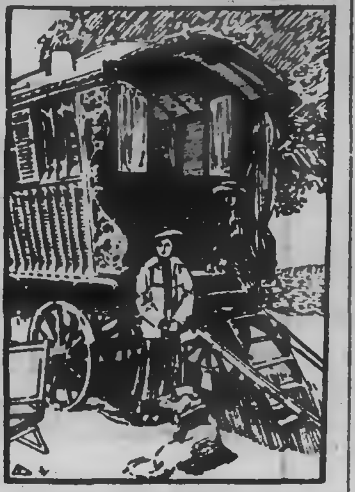
In these days of rapid travel by motor and electric traction there is something refreshingly novel about the adventures of a titled Englishwoman—Lady Arthur Grosvenor's method of holiday making by caravan. The illustration shows this lady on one of her expeditions, accompanied by a friend and her favorite dogs. While out on these journeys Lady Arthur Grosvenor does all her own cooking over a regular campfire. She makes it a rule to rise at 5 every morning. Breakfast is ready "in the open" by 6, and a little later the wagon is on the move for the day's journey, covering usually about fifteen miles. Now and then some of Lady Arthur Grosvenor's society friends accompany her for a day or two; but, as a rule, the life proves too strenuous for them. Lord Arthur Grosvenor frequently goes along with his wife on these strange tours, but he is not so fond of the life as Lady Arthur Grosvenor herself. In her own social circle she has become known by the nickname of Sarah Lee.



THE CARAVAN IN WHICH LADY GROSVENOR TRAVELS.

Lady Arthur Grosvenor's camping out life has given rise to a fad among the upper ten in England. A month or two out of the year many of them attempt to practice the "simple life" by camping out on the lawns of their country mansions, walking barefooted on the grass and limiting themselves to farinaceous diet. There are not many, however, who have the hardihood to go in for the "real thing" to the extent indulged in by Lady Arthur Grosvenor.

These gypsy adventures have made her the talk of England for some little time, and quite a number of her society friends cut her because of her strange whim. She goes all over England, however, and seldom takes the trouble to explain her identity. On one or two occasions she found it necessary to extricate herself from an embarrassing position by letting it be known that she was a titled lady simply enjoying an outing. As a rule, English farmers are not at all partial to nomads of the tramp persuasion, as Lady Grosvenor often found to her great inconvenience. Gypsy wagons are not permitted to camp by the roadside, nor can they occupy a field or a meadow without the consent of the landlord. Lady Arthur Grosvenor on several occasions found great difficulty in obtaining the necessary permission and was often moved on by the police from place to place. Now and again, when arriving late at night at some village, her van has been surrounded and somewhat unceremoniously moved on before her ladyship could explain her identity.

Gypsies have an unenviable reputation for pilfering and wherever they go are looked upon with great suspicion. However, despite all the drawbacks, Lady Arthur Grosvenor has stuck to gypsying for several months out of each year and is said to have become quite proficient in the art of buying and selling. She often carries a stock of household necessities, such as brooms, mats and wickerware, and enjoys the experience of going into the farmers' cottages and disposing of her goods.

Warns Against Votes For Women.

A scientific warning against all this suffrage business has been spoken by Dr. Max G. Schlapp, professor in the Cornell University Medical school. The professor addressed the women members of a New York club and made clear his opinion that women can't vote and maintain the birth rate. His views seem sufficient to give every suffragette sober reflection. "Women are becoming more and more active," he says. "They seem about to assume the suffrage. But the sex already is overburdened. The curves on statistical tables show a tremendous decrease in the birth rate since 1870. Other curves show an increase in insanity and nervous diseases. The lesson is that life processes have been disturbed and that an acute pathological condition exists. Statisticians contend that the mother love, the love of offspring, is diminishing with the greater functional activity. Woman is spending too much energy by adding to her functional burdens, robbing herself of her formative powers." Whatever the aggressive leaders in the fight for equal rights may say about it, there can be no doubt Dr. Schlapp has presented a new aspect of this growing suffragette problem.

MUSIC SCRAP BOOKS.

A New Venture For the Feminine Collectors' Talent.

The scrap book—that heterogeneous collection of fugitive verse, anecdote, humor or general information in which for some reason we are interested—is always satisfactory in the making and, if at all intelligently put together, bound to be of value later on. Let any one who doubts starts a scrap book instantly and find out the truth.

But of all scrap books the one likely to prove most profitable for the young girl, particularly one who sings and plays, is the music scrap book, in which are treasured the vocal and instrumental waifs that constantly appear in magazines and journals.

These fugitive productions which interest the young girl include the ballad which just suits her young, fresh voice, the simple nocturnes or the fetching twostep which even her not overlimber fingers can render effectively.

The main difficulty—procuring a proper sized and shaped book—is obviated by cutting heavy packing paper into the right dimensions and tacking firmly together in the back. Two or even three such volumes are better than one very thick one for convenient handling on the piano rack. A simple decoration on the outer leaf or, still better, a decorated pasteboard cover gives the desired artistic touch.

A scrap book of this kind—given as a valentine years ago to a sixteen-year-old lassie—merits description. It is made of the smooth, thick wrapping paper procurable at any big stationery store for 5 cents the huge sheet. It is decorated with a violin and bow, the former in the shape of a heart in deference to St. Valentine's day, on the outside. The name of the recipient and the date beautifully lettered appear just below. The book was quite blank but for the first pages, upon which were neatly pasted two charming child songs, by Michael Kergise, which appeared in a series of twenty or more in the magazine section of a New York paper some five or six years ago. Since then the book has been gradually filled by clippings from well known papers, an American magazine and two celebrated German house magazines. The series of Kergise songs before mentioned is plentifully represented. Opening the book haphazard one finds the largo from Dvorak's "New World Symphony," a "Fanfare Militaire," by Golde; an "Air de Ballet," by De Koven; Rubinstein's "Du Bist Wie Eine Blume" and Kergise's "Congo Bongo" and "When I'm a Man." Some of them are the best of their kind, many of them not easily obtained and all of them charming bits of melody secured at small cost and the effort of cutting out and pasting in.

A FALSE ECONOMY.

The Housewife Who Boils Her Window Shades.

Here is a new one for the frugally minded housewife:

"Whenever I have old window shades which have become too soiled to put up again," writes a housewife in a certain magazine for women, "I take them off the rollers, give them a thorough boiling, then wash and dry and iron the same and"—now listen to this; they don't turn out to be piano scarfs or mantel drapes or even little girls' petticoats, but says this careful person—"I have excellent cloths, which are good for dusting, cleaning windows or drying cut glass." Now, will you listen to that—"excellent dust cloths"—and how would you like the task of boiling up a lot of old window shades? 'Twould be a pleasant undertaking, wouldn't it?

There can be no question that the effort to economize is in every way commendable and, dear knows, rare enough in these days of prodigality, but there is a limit past which economy ceases to be a virtue.

There are women with whom economy has become almost a mania.

Doubtless she of the boiled window shades is suffering from such a malady, else she wouldn't be boiling up her old shades to make dusters when she ought to be standing in front of her looking glass curling her front hair or sitting down and studying her Sunday school lesson.

But this is only one example of the false economy that saves and makes over to poor purpose. Economy is doubtless a poor name for this particular sort of thing. It is, in truth, more of an overpowering desire to make something out of nothing, which generally ends in exactly the other, very much the other, way about.

Old dresses made over at great labor and expense and leftover food reheated with more eggs and butter than a new dish would be worth are examples of this same mania, which possesses many a good woman.

A Question of Nerves.

A nerve expert says that when women begin to long for the right to vote or feel inclined to fritter away their time at card parties and in a general way are no particular good to their families it is a sign of disease if husbands would only consult the doctors when family conditions become unbearable he thinks much trouble might be avoided.

Potatoes a la Princesse.

To one pint of mashed potatoes add one tablespoonful melted butter and one egg well beaten. Cut the potatoes into strips two inches long, one inch wide and half an inch thick. Dip the strips first into the melted butter, then into the egg and lay them with a knife on lightly buttered tin pans. Cook in hot oven for ten minutes and serve.

Three masked men held up the hotel at Utah Hot Springs and got away with nearly $800.

MAKING GLASS RINGS.

An Interesting Experiment With Oil and a Bottle.

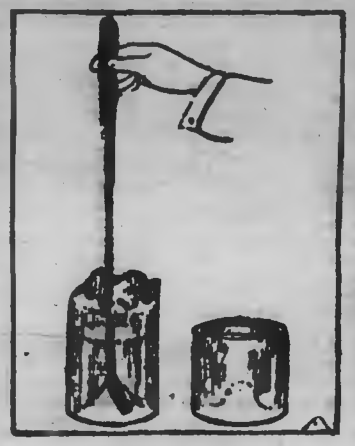
It is always a great satisfaction to make something out of nothing, and a bottle with a broken off neck is worth just about nothing and is generally considered as fit only for the ash pile. But there is a better way to treat it than that. In fact, it may be turned into a neat and serviceable vessel, or you may make out of it a number of glass rings that may not be of any particular service, but they certainly will be curiosities.

Place the broken bottle on the table and pour oil into it until it reaches a point just below the jagged edge.



BEFORE AND AFTER.

Your object is to cut off this jagged part and leave the rim smooth all around. In other words, you wish to convert the broken bottle into a sort of tumbler. All you have to do is to plunge into the oil a redhot poker and the glass will suddenly break straight around on a level with the oil.

That will give you a vessel that the cook will be sure to find use for. The only trouble is that she will bring you all the broken bottles she can find for similar treatment.

Now, if you want to make rings, say, half an inch in width, pour out half an inch of the oil each time and use the redhot poker as above directed.—Philadelphia Record.

FACTS ABOUT PINS.

How These Indispensable Little Articles Are Manufactured.

A few centuries ago pins were so expensive that only the rich could afford them. The poorer people used long thorns, fishbones or splinters of wood.

At the time of the Revolutionary war pins were made of iron and had one end filed to a point and a piece of fine wire twisted around the other end for a head.

In the early days of the United States pins were all made in Europe, and they became so scarce when the war of 1812 stopped their importation that the price rose to a dollar a package.

Nowadays in our big pin factories pins are made of fine wire just the thickness of pins. This wire is first straightened to take out the kinks and is then cut into pin lengths. One end of the wire is then struck so sharply that it flattens out and forms the head. Next the pins fall through a slot just wide enough to allow the stems of the pins to pass through. Hanging thus by their heads, the lower end of the pin blank is filed to a point.

The pins are now ready for the finishing touches. They are boiled in weak beer to remove the grease and dirt. Then a caldron is filled with alternate layers of pins and tin grains, over which certain chemicals are poured, and it is then put on the fire to boil. The pins emerge from this bath coated with tin, and after being washed in clean water and polished until they shine they are ready to be stuck in the papers in which we buy them.

To Make New Colors.

Have you ever tried mixing together two or three of the colors in your paint box, chicks, just to see what sort of tints you'll get?

Supposing you want to get a pretty shade of pink, all you have to do is to mix together a little white and a little crimson paint. You can make it lighter or darker by adding more white or more crimson. Try one day mixing together equal quantities of red, yellow and dark blue. What do you suppose you'll get as a result? You'll have a pretty shade of dark brown. Use black instead of the blue and you'll get quite a different shade of brown.

Mix one part black paint with three parts white and you'll have a pretty shade of gray, a sort of steel. Add a tiny bit of light blue and it will be almost the color of silver.

Try mixing yellow with blue. You'll be surprised to see what a pretty green it makes.

Stronger Than Steel.

It is not generally known that, size for size, a thread of spider silk is tougher than a bar of steel. An ordinary thread will bear a weight of three grains. This is as strong again as a steel thread of the same thickness.

Suppose.

Sometimes I think—I really think—
That fairies live in trees;
That Brownies come from Brownie Land
And ride on bumblebees.
Sometimes I think—I really think—
That fairy tales are true.
I don't believe in ugly things
Like witches, though. Do you?

SENTENCED TO SERVE SIX MONTHS IN CENTRAL

Joseph Keegan and Howard Innis Received Heavy Punishment at Police Court This Morning---Wesley Crouter Was Discharged.

A heavy sentence was meted out to Joseph Keegan and Howard Innis this morning when they appeared in Police Court to hear the judgment of Magistrate Dumble. Both were sentenced to six months in the Central Prison. Wesley Crouter, who with the other two young men was implicated in the theft of a gold watch, and other articles from the house of Mr. John Laundry, Bethune street, was discharged.

Mr. F. D. Kerr, who has been defending Crouter in his plea, submitted that the evidence disclosed the fact that Crouter was in the company of the other boys, but he had not been in the house, only on the lawn. He naturally cleared off when the rest of his companions did. P. C. Newhall recollected at the trial that Crouter stated when arrested that there had been a prearranged plan in which the boys were to go to the house. The true explanation of it was that the boys had innocently gone to get a drink of water, and had helped themselves to the food on the table. Mr. Kerr did not think there was sufficient evidence to justify Crouter being implicated in the theft of the watch. It had been shown he was not in the house, and had not had the watch. The boy may have been confused when talking to P. C. Newhall, and had said something which the officer had misunderstood. He submitted that Crouter could not be found guilty.

His Worship said he was satisfied the gang were working together. The evidence showed that the boys were to rap to see if anybody was at home. There must have been a plan. He did not feel sure that Crouter was in the house, although one witness stated all the boys went in, but there was no strong evidence against him. No doubt they had all been together participating in wrongdoing but he was willing to give Crouter the benefit of the doubt. The evidence clearly showed that Keegan and Innis were in the house, and he must come to the conclusion that they were guilty. The gang had a bad history and the members were going step by step to a criminal life. They had been beating their way around the country and had a good education in this line. It was time they were stopped. He did not know the history of Keegan, but he had admitted in his own evidence they had taken some money, and he believed it was he who returned the watch to Mrs. Laundry.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, counsel for Keegan, asked that the magistrate take into consideration the fact that Keegan had given himself up, but the judgment had been given and remained unchanged.

PIANO FOR THE PAVILION AT CROWE'S LANDING PURCHASED

Dances Can Be Held Only Three Nights a Week—Annual Regatta of U.S.C.C.A. to be Held First Monday in August—Other Lake News.

Special to the Review.

Stoney Lake, July 14.—The continued weather of the last two days has been a damper to the pleasure of camping, but the success of the fisherman continues unabated. Monday was an ideal day for angling and many large catches were the result. Those who prefer trawling also report success.

MEETING OF DIRECTORS OF U.S. L. C. C. A.

On Monday a meeting of the Upper Stoney Lake Campers and Cottagers' Association was held in the pavilion at Crow's Landing. Those present were, Messrs. H. S. Buck, Treasurer; R. Lees, Secretary-Treasurer; C. W. Waters and Alex. Gilmon.

A piano for use in the pavilion was purchased and is expected at the lake in a few days.

The following rules to govern the use of the pavilion were drawn up;

The pavilion is to be opened and lighted every evening for the use of members of the association.

There is to be no dancing except on three nights only of each week, namely, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

There is to be no dancing after 11 p.m.

In case of concerts or public gatherings exception may be taken to the above rules.

Standing committees are to be as follows;

Regatta Committee—J. R. McKelvie, Logan Craig, C. W. Waters, Alex. Gibson, Colin W. Lees.

Concert Committee—H. G. Buck, Miss Duffield, Mrs. Callender, Mrs. LeBrun, E. P. Cuff.

Sunday Services Committee — R. Lees, T. E. Finlay, H. P. Gould, C. E. Packenham.

It was also decided to purchase fifty additional chairs for the pavilion.

The annual regatta will be held on the first Monday in August.

The youths and maidens that frequent the pavilion are not altogether in love with the new rules, but the directors claim that dances only three times a week will result in larger crowds and better times and will afford more time for sleep than heretofore. With the arrival of the new piano the dances which have been of a desultory character, will be regular and no doubt enjoyed by the many young people now on the islands in this vicinity.

RECENT ARRIVALS.

The stream of campers and cottagers to the lake still continues.

Mrs. W. Finlay opened her cottage a short time ago.

Miss Clara Cummings of Norwood, is a guest of Miss Grace Reynolds at Cedar Lodge.

Mr. J. C. Rogers, of Brooklyn, with his wife and sons, Clark and Horace, are holidaying at their cottage, "Gray Rock."

Mr. J. E. Roxborough, of Norwood, opened his cottage on Monday.

Mr. H. E. Nicol and family in enjoying the holiday at their cottage near Crow's Landing.

Mr. Moore was a guest at the Y.M.C.A., and during the time here visited the Lift Lock and other points of interest.

WAS SCALDED ON THE FACE

Man Working on Steam Drill at Hastings Victim of Accident

The dredge was put in operation on Monday just above the buoyed channel and is being conveyed by the Maple Leaf. One of the scows was launched on Thursday and the drill scow and other dump scow will be put in at once.

Mr. Will Barry met with a painful accident on Friday while assisting at the steam drill, in the cut above the locks, when he received a severe scald across the face from the exhaust from the drill. He had stooped down to loosen the drill, which had become stuck, and in raising his head met the blast of steam. He went on the sick list for more than a week. All the boathouses have gone off the waterfront along here, and make a decided improvement to that part of the river.—Hastings Star.

SHOW ME THE WAY, TO GO HOME

A local man who has recently purchased an automobile, and is not very well acquainted with the country roads, invited some of his freinds to enjoy a spin last night. The party boarded the car, having perfect faith in the ability of their motor friend to take them to their destination and return. But unfortunately the night was dark and cloudy, and when out several miles on the Buckhorn road, the driver, who had neglected to take any particular notice as to the direction he was driving the machine, finally, had to admit to his friends that he was up against it, and was unable to say in what locality they were. However, the machine came to a turn on the highway and the driver, congratulating himself that he had struck the right road, assured his anxious fellow travellers that they would soon be in Chemong. But that place was never reached, for the machine was brought to a stop, and the driver had to admit he did not know where he was, or which way to go. After a long discussion on the subject, he assented to the demands of the rest of the party and rapped at the door of a farmer, who kindly told him the direction to pursue in order to reach the city. The return trip was made in silence and without incident, but there will likely be some questions asked by the next party who are asked to go out motoring by the owner of this automobile.

WAS TAKEN SUDDENLY ILL

Mr. Robt. Fanning, an employee of the Canadian General Electric Co. was taken suddenly ill while at work this morning. The Dan Spence ambulance was called and he was taken to his home on Bethune street, where he was attended by Dr. Marshall. Mr. Fanning had taken an over-dose of cough medicine, and this caused the trouble, but it is not thought that any serious results will follow.

Concert To-morrow Evening

A Shy Hero.

By the display of remarkable presence of mind, an unknown man performed an act of heroism in Algonquin Park a few days ago which prevented the slaughter of a number of persons and saved considerable quantity of property from destruction.

H. Armour, Grand Trunk agent at Algonquin Park, was drowned. His body could not be found, and it was suggested that dynamite be used to bring the body to the surface. While thirty sticks were being thawed out around the fire, the fuse of one became ignited. An unknown section man seeing the danger, instead of running away, rushed in and picked up the stick with the burning fuse and hastened to the lake. He hurled it with all his might into the water, but before it had traveled half the distance, it exploded. If the explosion had occurred by the fire, the entire thirty sticks would have been exploded, wrecking a house full of people nearby and bringing most of them to their death.

Park Superintendent Bartlett, who heard the detonation, sent a messenger to the camp, but the obscure hero could not be found.

MAY ABOLISH HOME WORK

The Guelph Herald says:—The greatly discussed question of home work was brought before the Board of Education last night in the form of a resolution which is expected to draw from the School Management Committee an opinion regarding the wisdom of its continuance in the Guelph Public schools.

There was no discussion on the question. Just before the Board adjourned until the regular meeting night in September, Mr. Dawson moved, seconded by Mr. Gow, that the School Management Committee report on the question of home work in the Public schools with regard to its discontinuance.

The motion carried, and to the School Management Committee, therefore, the matter goes, to be threshed out there.

ORANGEMAN FOR SIXTY YEARS

John Kelly, of Lindsay, known to every Orangeman as "Father Kelly," attended the celebration yesterday, and had a right jolly time. Mr. Kelly has been an Orangeman for sixty years, and during that time has only missed one celebration. On that occasion he was on the ocean, but whistled "The Protestant Boys" and proudly marched two and fro on he deck.

Mr. Kelly's numerous friends were pleased to see him taking an active part yesterday, and hope that he will be spared to celebrate many more anniversaries.—Port Hope Guide.

JIM JEFFERIES BIG, STRONG, WONDERFULLY FAST AND HANDY

Toronto Star.

First impressions of Jim Jeffries are that he is big and heavy, clumsy and lumbering — anything but a champion fighter.

That is outside the ring.

Once within the squared circle in fighting togs, Jeffries gives an entirely different impression. Big he undoubtedly is, and fat, etc. He weights 235 pounds, and that is not his best fighting weight. Slow! Anything but that. He is wonderfully fast and agile on his feet and quick and clever with both hands.

Everybody knows that he has the punch. Fitzsimmons, Corbett, Sharkey, and lesser lights of the prize ring were put to sleep with that mighty wallop. Fitz told the writer once that he thought he had a pretty good punch, but the one that Jeffries stowed him away with made all other wallops appear like finger-taps on a window pane.

The big fellow gives evidence of his theatrical tour by introducing some novelty stunts in his boxing with Sam Berger. Last night in the ring at Hanlan's Point the two mixed it up in lively fashoin, some somewhat spoiled the exhibition, from a boxing standpoint, by doing a lot of fancy ducking. It looks pretty, but never happens in a real fight.

When Jeffries meets Jack Johnson next winter—and he says he will if he has to chase him out of the country —he won't do any head-ducking. He'll never take his eye off the black fellow. If he does he'll commit suicide. Jeff has developed a whole lot in his boxing since the first time he met Fitzsimmons, when he mystified the Cornishman with a crouch that would put a panther to shame.

Last night was not the best in the world for an outdoor entertainment, but 1,200 people, including many ladies, were in the oval during the performance. Jeffries showed his speed by rope-skipping and shadow-boxing, and then took on Berger for three lively rounds, which pleased the crowd mightily.

After the bout Jeffries was called upon for a speech, and in reply stated that he would surely fight Johnson, and would post $5,000 immediately on the conclusion of his tour, which will take place in Kansas City in two weeks' time.

Jeffries is not given to talking much but the few words he does say give the impression that he is deadly in earnest regarding his battle with Johnson. His sparring partner Sam Berger, is also his manager, and he issued the following signed statement last night:

"There is absolutely no truth in the stories in circulation that Jeffries will not meet Johnson. Neither Jeffries nor myself gave out any interview from which such a story could have originated. Some weeks ago Jeffries made the statement to the public that at the termination of his theatrical contracts he would be ready to arrange a meeting with Johnson. That time is only two weeks off, and, as has always been his policy with the public he will make good by his promise by posting a forfeit. We hope then to satisfy those who doubted his intention to defend his title as champion of the world."

Jeffries will appear twice today and tomorrow at 4 and 8 p.m., at the Island.

LINES ON SPORT

Battling Nelson ran up against a snag in Ad Wolgast, of Milwaukee, at Los Angeles in a ten-round bout. Nine of the ten rounds were in favor of the Milwaukee boxer, and Battler was badly marked up at the finish of the fight.

The Torontos have made ten home runs this season, while the Skeeters have made twenty-one. The Leafs have made more errors than any team in the league, except Jersey City.

Tom Longboat says he will run the fifteen miles against Svanberg in Toronto on Saturday night in 1:23.30.

Bobby Kerr may be back home about August 10th.

Jeffries and Johnson may fight and again they may not. The big boilermaker is probably willing, but as he is making bunches of money touring the country, which is a lot easier way of making it than in the ring, it is likely that he will want the lion's share of the purse, and to this the negro is sure to make a big kick.

Marathon dancing is the latest. Recently a couple stayed on the floor for 10 1-4 hours, thus showing that all the bug people are not caged up yet.

A real crazy youth out west ran forty miles in four hours. The obvious deduction is that the crazier you are the more and faster you run.

Krause, of the Phillies, has won nine games and suffered no defeats. That's pitching some.

While the decoration ceremonies are going on it might not be a bad idea to place a few flowers on the grave of baseball in Lindsay.

No news has come out of Belleville since the Marathon race on Dominion Day.

"Bill" Metheral says the Strathconas find the cellar delightfully cool these hot days.

In the local building race the new Public Library is about three laps ahead of the isolation hospital and is going strong.

With Doc. Newton on the firing line, Toronto beat Buffalo yesterday 3—1.

Cleveland defeated the Athletics by 4—3 in a twelve innings battle. Cy. Young pitched for Cleveland.

WOLGAST GAVE NELSON THE WORST OF THE ARGUMENT

Los Angeles, Cal., July 13.—Wolgast, of Milwaukee, despite the fact that he weighed five pounds less than Battling Nelson, gave the terrible Dane a thorough whipping in a ten-round bout before the Pacific Atlantic Club tonight.

After an eventful first round Wolgast waded in and had the advantage in six of the remaining rounds. The champion did not have a single round in his favor, an even break being the best he could get.

Nelson's face was badly swollen and blood streamed from his nose and mouth at the close of the fight. Wolgast was unmarked.

It was a terrific fight from the start and it was not until the ninth and tenth rounds that Wolgast succeeded in stopping Nelson's steady rushes.

Round 1—Nelson met Wolgast in his own corner and followed his usual tactics of advancing steadily to his opponent. Wolgast put a light right to Nelson's face and took a right and left to the face in return. A ripping left reached Nelson's jaw. They exchanged body blow in a clinch and Nelson reached the face with a straight left. Wolgast sent a right across to the jaw in return. Even round.

Round 2—Wolgast reached the head with right and went into a lively mixup in the centre of the ring. Wolgast fought viciously, but was backed to the ropes. Nelson fought his way to the centre of the ring with body punches. In close quarters Wolgast sent a right and left to the head. Blood flowed from Nelson's nose. Wolgast sent two right uppercuts to the mouth as the round closed.

Round 3—They went at it hammer and tongs, Wolgast landing right and left to head and body. Wolgast sent a light left to the face and followed with a hard right to the jaw. Wolgast sent a right swing to the ear, landing right and left to the head, and put another left to the body and a right to the face. Wolgast showered Nelson with rights and lefts to the head, and Nelson fought back for the stomach. Wolgast landed repeatedly to the face and body. In close quarters Wolgast had all the better of the fighting and had a big lead at the end of the round.

Round 4—Both missed right wings, Nelson being first to land, getting a left to the stomach. In close quarters Wolgast sent two swift rights to the face. Nelson's right eye began to swell. Nelson was missing and talking. Wolgast shot a terrific right to Nelson's stomach and then landed half a dozen rights and lefts to the face without a return.

Round 5—Wolgast continued to back away at the start. Nelson landed several effective rights to the body. In a neutral corner Wolgast chopped Nelson with a right and left to the body.

Round 6—Nelson continued to force his man. They exchanged lefts to the face, and Wolgast put in two rights to the head. Nelson reached Wolgast's face with a right uppercut. Nelson forced Wolgast to the ropes, but did not land effectively. Wolgast swung left to the head and sent Nelson back, but he came on fighting hard.

Round 7—Wolgast put a left to Nelson's eye. With head down Nelson bored in, but Wolgast continued to land the greater number of blows. They clinched against the ropes. Wolgast landed on the head and Nelson on the body. Nelson's nose and lips were badly swollen.

Round 8—They clinched and fought about the ring at close quarters. Nelson landed a hard right and left to the face. Wolgast came back with rights and lefts to the body. Nelson put right and left to the head and Wolgast reached the ear with a right. Wolgast put a left to the head and then shot his right to the nose.

Round 9 — From the gong they fought around the ring, Wolgast landing two blows to Nelson's one. Wolgast rushed in with a strong right to the face, and landed an overhand right to the head. Wolgast sent Nelson back with a left swing to the face and swung [illegible] a dozen blows to the head.

Round 10 — Nelson fell short with a right and Wolgast smothered him with rights and lefts. Wolgast hammered Nelson's stomach. Wolgast fought to the ropes. Another left landed squarely on Nelson's stomach. They were fighting in the centre of the ring at the end of the round.

BATHING HINTS.

Advice to Those Who Slight Important Details.

Have you ever used bath bags? No? Well, they are cheap, quickly made, and, once tried, you will never be without them. To make them, cut pieces of cheesecloth 9 by 15 inches and run these up to form bags. Fill each one with the following mixture: A gill of bran, a gill of oatmeal, a gill of cornmeal, a gill of pulverized orris root, a saltspoonful of ground cloves, the same of powdered borax and a gill of shaved toilet soap. The bag should not be stuffed full, but the contents should be loose. Allow the bag to soak in the bath water a few minutes, so its fragrance will be imparted. One of these little bags will last two months and must be hung up to dry each time after using. Should you enjoy a stronger perfume it is obtained by adding half an ounce of lavender flowers to the bag or by pouring a little lavender or violet water in the tub or basin in connection with this. The skin feels delightful if gone over with a bath brush. It seems to start the circulation as nothing else will. Then sponge off with the bath bag. Twice a week is sufficiently often for this perfumed bath, and upon retiring is decidedly the best time. Don't take very hot baths, and don't be foolish enough to take a "cold dip" in the mornings unless ordered by the family physician. Let the water be as near the temperature of the body as possible. Don't use the old fashioned sponge for bathing. It is decidedly obnoxious and insanitary. Don't bathe directly after eating—not for half an hour at least. Don't ever take a bath in a cold room. Don't take a cold bath when tired, but a warm one will rest and refresh you greatly.

Don't wash the face too frequently when traveling. Cold cream removes dirt better than hard water, and don't forget the alcohol bottle; also cheesecloth wash cloths, which can be used and then thrown away.

Don't attempt to remove dirt and dust from the face with cold water, and don't wash the face and hands with hard water if you can get soft. A small quantity of powdered borax makes the hardest water soft and agreeable. Don't wash the face with cold water when warm from exertion or when overheated. Don't remain long in a bath, but don't neglect a daily one of some sort. Don't dress immediately after it, and, above all, don't neglect the "sun bath" as well as the one of fresh air.

Don't think you are getting rid of wrinkles by filling them with powder, but before retiring bathe the face with hot water, so hot it has to be sopped, then with very cold water, and pat it dry with a soft linen towel. Don't rub it. By careful bathing, paying attention to these suggestions, the average woman will realize that cleanliness does come next to godliness. Don't worry if you want to look youthful. Fears, doubts, care and anxieties leave furrows that nothing will obliterate. Retire as early as you can, with no thoughts of tomorrow. Remember that sufficient unto the day is the good thereof (not evil).

Bathe yourself freely with clean, pure, uplifting thoughts, and face powders as well as all other cosmetics will find small sales if depending upon you for support.

A VERY BUSY MAN.

Charming Experience With an Overworked Irish Watchmaker.

I fell in with a delightful man at a little town in County Fermanagh. I wanted a little thing done to my watch, and I asked him how long it would take to do it. He assured me that he was driven to death with work and was up till late every night trying to get ahead, but that he would try to find time to mend my watch some time before 7 o'clock, when he nominally closed. Then he followed me to the door of his shop and began to ask me questions about America. He pointed out different passersby and told me their life histories. And every once in a while he would say: "I've not had a day off for nearly a year, not even bank holiday. Never a minute for anything but work. I've an order now that's going to keep me busy, except for the time I'll give to your watch, all the rest of the day. And dinner eaten in my worshop to save time."

I bade him good day and didn't go near there until 7 o'clock in the evening. I found him outside the shop discussing the strike of the constabulary at Belfast with a neighbor.

"Awfully sorry, sir, but I've been so busy today that I've been unable to finish that job. It'll not take over twenty minutes when I get to it." Can you come in the morning?"

Next morning I was at his shop at 9 o'clock, and he was just taking down the shutters. Said he worked until 10 o'clock the night before, but seemed farther behind than before. If I'd come up into his workroom he'd fix my watch while I waited.

Up there he had some photographs to show me that he had taken a year ago and had only just found time to develop. We talked photography for twenty minutes, and then he fixed my watch in a jiffy when he got to work.—From "Just Irish," by Charles Battell Loomis.

A VOTE OF THANKS.

The Way Dwight L. Moody Handled the Question In England.

Possibly the most novel response ever made to a request to return a vote of thanks to a chairman was that made by Dwight L. Moody during his first visit to England.

He had attended a meeting at which the Earl of Shaftesbury was chairman. The duty of proposing a vote of thanks was assigned to him and the announcement made:

"Our American cousin, the Rev. Mr. Moody of Chicago, will now move a vote of thanks to the noble earl who has presided on this occasion."

The whole thing was quite out of Mr. Moody's line. English formalities might or might not have come gracefully from his lips had he attempted them, but he did not. With an utter disregard of conventionality he burst upon the audience with the bold announcement:

"The speaker has made two mistakes. To begin with, I'm not the Rev. Mr. Moody at all. I'm plain Dwight L. Moody, a Sunday school worker. And then I'm not your American cousin. By the grace of God I'm your brother, interested with you in our Father's work for his children.

"And now about this vote of thanks to the 'noble earl for being our chairman this evening.' I don't see why we should thank him any more than he should thank us. When at one time they offered to thank our Mr. Lincoln for presiding over a meeting in Illinois he stopped it. He said he'd tried to do his duty and they'd tried to do theirs. He thought it was about an even thing all round."

That opening fairly took the breath away from Mr. Moody's hearers. Such a talk could not be gauged by any known standard. Mr. Moody carried his English audiences with him from that beginning to his latest labors.

Who He Was.

At the crossing of the river Styx Death met a stranger with a grin on his face.

"Who are you?" demanded Death.

"I am your manservant," replied the stranger.

"My manservant!" repeated Death, somewhat puzzled to know what the new arrival meant.

"In other words, the valet of the shadow of Death," chortled the stranger.

It is perhaps superfluous to add that before journeying hence the stranger had been a professional jokesmith.

Three Meals at Once.

"Now, Mary," said her mistress, "you must come to the door of the drawing room and say, 'Breakfast is ready, and supper is ready, but dinner is served.'"

The newly corralled domestic inwardly digested the concise instructions and that evening convulsed the guests who were awaiting the announcement of dinner by stepping between the portieres, dropping a courtesy and repeating. "Breakfast is ready and supper is ready, but dinner is ser-r-ved!"

Badly Expressed.

"The human monstrosity!" said a young lady attending a fair with her sweetheart. "Threepence! Wouldn't you like to have a look at that, Herbert?"

"No, dear," answered Herbert, anxious to bestow a neat compliment; "I am quite content to look at you."—London Mail.

—THE— Masquerader

By KATHERINE CECIL THURSTON,

Author of "The Circle," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, 1906, by Harper & Brothers

With Greening's eyes upon him there was no time for scruples. With very creditable coolness he began opening the envelopes one by one. The letters were unimportant, and he passed them one after another to the secretary, experiencing a slight thrill of authority as each left his hand. Again the fact that power is visible in little things came to his mind.

"Give me my engagement book, Greening," he said when the letters had been disposed of.

The book that Greening handed him was neat in shape and bound, like Chilcote's cigarette case, in lizard skin.

As Loder took it the gold monogram "J. C." winked at him in the bright morning light. The incident moved his sense of humor. He and the book were co-operators in the fraud, it seemed. He felt an inclination to wink back. Nevertheless he opened it with proper gravity and skimmed the pages.

The page devoted to the day was almost full. On every other line were jottings in Chilcote's irregular hand, and twice among the entries appeared a prominent cross in blue penciling. Loder's interest quickened as his eye caught the mark. It had been agreed between them that only engagements essential to Chilcote's public life need be carried through during his absence, and these to save his confusion were to be crossed in blue pencil. The rest, for the most part social claims, were to be left to circumstance and Loder's inclination, Chilcote's erratic memory always accounting for the breaking of trivial promises.

But Loder in his new energy was anxious for obligations. The desire for fresh and greater tests grew with indulgence. He scanned the two lines with eagerness. The first was an interview with Cresham, one of Chilcote's supporters in Wark; the other an engagement to lunch with Fraide. At the idea of the former his interest quickened, but at thought of the latter it quailed momentarily. Had the entry been a royal command it would have affected him infinitely less. For a space his assurance faltered. Then by coincidence the recollection of Eve and Eve's words of last night came back to him, and his mind was filled with a new sensation.

Because of Chilcote he was despised by Chilcote's wife! There was no denying that in all the pleasant excitement of the adventure that knowledge had rankled. It came to him now linked with remembrance of the slight, reluctant touch of her fingers, the faintly evasive dislike underlying her glance. It was a trivial thing, but it touched his pride as a man. That was how he put it to himself. It wasn't that he valued this woman's opinion—any woman's opinion. It was merely that it touched his pride. He turned again to the window and gazed out, the engagement book still between his hands. What if he compelled her respect? What if by his own personality cloaked under Chilcote's identity he forced her to admit his capability? It was a matter of pride, after all—scarcely even of pride; self respect was a better word.

Satisfied by his own reasoning, he turned back into the room.

"See to those letters, Greening," he said. "And for the rest of the morning's work you might go on with your Khorasan notes. I believe we'll all want every inch of knowledge we can get in that quarter before we're much older. I'll see you again later." With a reassuring nod he crossed the room and passed through the door.

He lunched with Fraide at his club and afterward walked with him to Westminster. The walk and lunch were both memorable. In that hour he learned many things that had been sealed to him before. He tasted his first draft of real elation, his first drop of real discomfiture. He saw for the first time how a great man may condescend—how unostentatiously, how fully, how delightfully. He felt what tact and kindness perfectly combined may accomplish, and he burned inwardly with a sense of duplicity that crushed and elated him alternately. He was John Loder, friendless, penniless, with no present and no future, yet he walked down Whitehall in the full light of day with one of the greatest statesmen England has known.

Some strangers were being shown over the terrace when he and Fraide reached the house, and, noticing the open door, the old man paused.

"I never refuse fresh air," he said. "Shall we take another breath of it before settling down?" He took Loder's arm and drew him forward. As they passed through the doorway the pressure of his fingers tightened. "I shall reckon today among my pleasantest memories, Chilcote," he said gravely. "I can't explain the feeling, but I seem to have touched Eve's husband, the real you, more closely this morning than I ever did before. It has been a genuine happiness." He looked up with the eyes that through all his years of action and responsibility had remained so bright.

But Loder paled suddenly, and his glance turned to the river—wide, mysterious, secret. Unconsciously Fraide had stripped the illusion. It was not John Loder who walked here; it was Chilcote—Chilcote with his position, his constituency—his wife. He half extricated his arm, but Fraide held it.

"No," he said. "Don't draw away from me. You have always been too ready to do that. It is not often I have a pleasant truth to tell. I won't be deprived of the enjoyment."

"Can the truth ever be pleasant, sir?" Involuntarily Loder echoed Chilcote.

Fraide looked up. He was half a head shorter than his companion, though his dignity concealed the fact. "Chilcote," he said seriously, "give up cynicism! It is the trademark of failure, and I do not like it in my—friends."

Loder said nothing. The quiet insight of the reproof, its mitigating kindness, touched him sharply. In that moment he saw the rails down which he had sent his little car of existence spinning, and the sight daunted him. The track was steeper, the gauge narrower, than he had guessed; there were curves and sidings upon which he had not reckoned. He turned his head and met Fraide's glance.

"Don't count too much on me, sir," he said slowly. "I might disappoint you again." His voice broke off on the last word, for the sound of other voices and of laughter came to them across the terrace as a group of two women and three men passed through the open door. At a glance he realized that the slighter of the two women was Eve.

Seeing them, she disengaged herself from her party and came quickly forward. He saw her cheeks flush and her eyes brighten pleasantly as they rested on his companion, but he noticed also that after her first cursory glance she avoided his own direction.

As she came toward them Fraide drew away his hand in readiness to greet her.

"Here comes my godchild!" he said. "I often wish, Chilcote, that I could do away with the prefix." He added the last words in an undertone as he reached them, then he responded warmly to her smile.

"What!" he said. "Turning the terrace into the garden of Eden in January! We cannot allow this."

Eve laughed. "Blame Lady Sarah!" she said. "We met at lunch, and she carried me off. Needless to say I hadn't to ask where."

They both laughed, and Loder joined, a little uncertainly. He had yet to learn that the devotion of Fraide and his wife was a long standing jest in their particular set.

At the sound of his tardy laugh Eve turned to him. "I hope I didn't rob you of all sleep last night," she said. "I caught him in his den," she explained, turning to Fraide, "and invaded it most courageously. I believe we talked till 2."

Again Loder noticed how quickly she looked from him to Fraide. The knowledge roused his self assertion.

"I had an excellent night," he said. "Do I look as if I hadn't slept?"

Somewhat slowly and reluctantly Eve looked back. "No," she said truthfully and with a faint surprise that to Loder seemed the first genuine emotion she had shown regarding him. "No, I don't think I ever saw you look so well." She was quite unconscious and very charming as she made the admission. It struck Loder that her coloring of hair and eyes gained by daylight—were brightened and vivified by their setting of somber river and somber stone.

Fraide smiled at her affectionately, then looked at Loder. "Chilcote has got a new lease of nerves, Eve," he said quietly. "And I—believe—I have got a new henchman. But I see my wife beckoning to me. I must have a word with her before she flits away. May I be excused?" He made a courteous gesture of apology, then smiled at Eve.

She looked after him as he moved away. "I sometimes wonder what I should do if anything were to happen to the Fraides," she said, a little wistfully. Then almost at once she laughed, as if regretting her impulsiveness. "You heard what he said," she went on in a different voice. "Am I really to congratulate you?"

The change of tone stung Loder unaccountably. "Will you always disbelieve in me?" he asked.

Without answering, she walked slowly across the deserted terrace and, pausing by the parapet, laid her hand on the stonework. Still in silence, she looked out across the river.

Loder had followed closely. Again her aloofness seemed a challenge. "Will you always disbelieve in me?" he repeated.

At last she looked up at him slowly.

"Have you ever given me cause to believe?" she asked in a quiet tone.

To this truth he found no answer, though the subdued incredulity nettled him afresh.

Prompted to a further effort, he spoke again. "Patience is necessary with every person and every circumstance," he said. "We've all got to wait and see."

She did not lower her gaze as he spoke, and there seemed to him something disconcerting in the clear, candid blue of her eyes. With a sudden dread of her next words, he moved forward and laid his hand beside hers on the parapet.

"Patience is needed for every one," he repeated quickly. "Sometimes a man is like a bit of wreckage. He drifts till some force stronger than himself gets in his way and stops him." He looked again at her face. He scarcely knew what he was saying. He only felt that he was a man in an egregiously false position, trying stupidly to justify himself. "Don't you believe that flotsam can sometimes be washed ashore?" he asked.

High above them Big Ben chimed the hour.

Eve raised her head. It almost seemed to him that he could see her answer trembling on her lips. Then the voice of Lady Sarah Fraide came cheerfully from behind them.

"Eve!" she called. "Eve! We must fly. It's absolutely 3 o'clock!"

CHAPTER X.

In the days that followed Fraide's marked adoption of him Loder behaved with a discretion that spoke well for his qualities. Many a man placed in the same responsible and yet strangely irresponsible position might have been excused if, for the time at least, he gave himself a loose rein. But Loder kept free of the temptation.

Like all other experiments, his showed unlooked for features when put to a working test. Its expected difficulties smoothed themselves away, while others, scarcely anticipated, came into prominence. Most notable of all, the physical likeness between himself and Chilcote, the bedrock of the whole scheme, which had been counted on to offer most danger, worked without a hitch. He stood literally amazed before the sweeping credulity that met him on every hand. Men who had known Chilcote from his youth, servants who had been in his employment for years, joined issue in the unquestioning acceptance. At times the ease of deception bewildered him. There were moments when he realized that, should circumstances force him to a declaration of the truth, he would not be believed. Human nature prefers its own eyesight to the testimony of any man.

But in face of this astonishing success he steered a steady course. In the first exhilaration of Fraide's favor, in the first egotistical wish to break down Eve's skepticism, he might possibly have plunged into a vortex of action, let it be in what direction it might; but, fortunately for himself, for Chilcote and for their scheme, he was liable to strenuous second thoughts—those wise and necessary curbs that go further to the steadying of the universe than the universe guesses. Sitting in the quiet of the house on the same day that he had spoken with Eve on the terrace he had weighed possibilities slowly and cautiously. Impressed to the full by the atmosphere of the place that in his eyes could never lack character, however dull its momentary business, however prosy the voice that filled it, he had sifted impulse from expedience as only a man who has lived within himself can sift and distinguish, and at the close of that first day his programme had been formed. There must be no rush, no headlong plunge, he had decided. Things must work around. It was his first expedition into the new country, and it lay with fate to say whether it would be his last.

He had been leaning back in his seat, his eyes on the ministers opposite, his arms folded in imitation of Chilcote's most natural attitude, when this final speculation had come to him, and as it came his lips had tightened for a moment and his face become hard and cold. It is an unpleasant thing when a man first unconsciously reckons on the weakness of another, and the look that expresses the idea is not good to see. He had stirred uneasily, then his lips had closed again. He was tenacious by nature, and by nature intolerant of weakness. At the first suggestion of reckoning upon Chilcote's lapses his mind had drawn back in disgust, but as the thought came again the disgust had lessened.

In a week—two weeks, perhaps—Chilcote would reclaim his place. Then would begin the routine of the affair. Chilcote, fresh from indulgence and freedom, would find his obligations a thousand times more irksome than before; he would struggle for a time, then—

A shadowy smile had touched Loder's lips as the idea formed itself.

Then would come the inevitable recall; then in earnest he might venture to put his hand to the plow. He never indulged in day dreams, but something in the nature of a vision had flashed over his mind in that instant. He had seen himself standing in that same building, seen the rows of faces first bored, then hesitatingly transformed under his personal domination, under the one great power he knew himself to possess—the power of eloquence. The strength of the suggestion had been almost painful. Men who have attained self repression are occasionally open to a perilous onrush of feeling. Believing that they know themselves, they walk boldly forward toward the highroad and pitfall alike.

These had been Loder's disconnected ideas and speculations on the first day of his new life. At 4 o'clock on the ninth day he was pacing with quiet confidence up and down Chilcote's study, his mind pleasantly busy and his cigar comfortably alight, when he paused in his walk and frowned, interrupted by the entrance of a servant.

The man came softly into the room, drew a small table toward the fire and proceeded to lay an extremely fine and unserviceable looking cloth.

Loder watched him in silence. He had grown to find silence a very useful commodity. To wait and let things develop was the attitude he oftenest assumed, but on this occasion he was perplexed. He had not rung for tea, and in any case a cup on a salver satisfied his wants. He looked critically at the fragile cloth.

Presently the servant departed and solemnly re-entered carrying a silver tray, with cups, a teapot and cakes. Having adjusted them to his satisfaction, he turned to Loder.

"Mrs. Chilcote will be with you in five minutes, sir," he said.

He waited for some response, but Loder gave none. Again he had found the advantages of silence, but this time it was silence of a compulsory kind. He had nothing to say.

The man, finding him irresponsive, retired, and, left to himself, Loder stared at the array of feminine trifles; then, turning abruptly, he moved to the center of the room.

Since the day they had talked on the terrace he had seen Eve only thrice and always in the presence of others. Since the night of his first coming she had not invaded his domain, and he wondered what this new departure might mean.

His thought of her had been less vivid in the last few days, for, though still using steady discretion, he had been drawn gradually nearer the fascinating whirlpool of new interests and new work. Shut his eyes as he might, there was no denying that this moment, so personally vital to him, was politically vital to the whole country and that by a curious coincidence Chilcote's position well nigh forced him to take an active interest in the situation. Again and again the suggestion had arisen that should the smoldering fire in Persia break into a flame Chilcote's commercial interests would facilitate—would practically compel—his standing in in the campaign against the government.

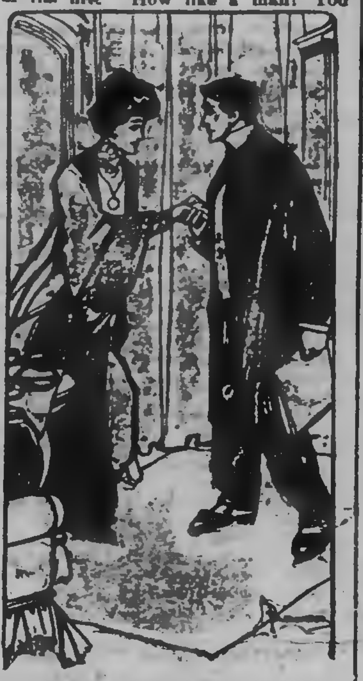
The little incident of the tea table, recalling the social side of his obligations, had aroused the realization of greater things. As he stood meditatively in the middle of the room he saw suddenly how absorbed he had become in these greater things—how, in the swing of congenial interests, he had been borne insensibly forward, his capacities expanding, his intelligence asserting itself. He had so undeniably found his sphere that the idea of usurpation had receded gently as by natural laws until his own personality had begun to color the day's work.

As this knowledge came he wondered quickly if it held a solution of the present little comedy; if Eve had seen what others, he knew, had observed—that Chilcote was showing a grasp of things that he had not exhibited for years. Then, as a sound of skirts came softly down the corridor, he squared his shoulders with his habitual abrupt gesture and threw his cigar into the fire.

Eve entered the room much as she had done on her former visit, but with one difference—in passing Loder she quietly held out her hand.

He took it as quietly. "Why am I so honored?" he asked.

She laughed a little and looked across at the fire. "How like a man! You always want to begin with reasons. Let's have tea first and explanations after." She moved forward toward the table, and he followed. As he did so it struck him that her dress seemed in peculiar harmony with the day and the room, though beyond that he could not follow its details. As she paused beside the table he drew forward a chair with a faint touch of awkwardness.



"Why am I so honored?" he asked.

She thanked him and sat down.

He watched her in silence as she poured out the tea, and the thought crossed his mind that it was incredibly long since he had seen a woman preside over a meal. The deftness of her fingers filled him with an unfamiliar, half inquisitive wonder. So interesting was the sensation that when she held his cup toward him he didn't immediately see it.

"Don't you want any?" She smiled a little.

He started, embarrassed by his own tardiness. "I'm afraid I'm dull," he said. "I've been so"—

"So keen a worker in the last week?"

For a moment he felt relieved. Then, as a fresh silence fell, his sense of awkwardness returned. He sipped his tea and ate a biscuit. He found himself wishing, for almost the first time, for some of the small society talk that came so pleasantly to other men. He felt that the position was ridiculous. He glanced at Eve's averted head and laid his empty cup upon the table.

Almost at once she turned, and their eyes met.

"John," she said, "do you guess at all why I wanted to have tea with you?"

He looked down at her. "No," he said, honestly and without embellishment.

The curtness of the answer might have displeased another woman. Eve seemed to take no offense.

"I had a talk with the Fraides today," she said, "a long talk. Mr. Fraide said great things of you, things I wouldn't have believed from anybody but Mr. Fraide." She altered her position and looked from Loder's face back into the fire.

WILL 57TH PLAY AT THE TORONTO FAIR THIS YEAR?

It's going to be military year at the Canadian National Exhibition, for of the fifteen bands so far engaged only one does not wear Government clothes. The single exception is the Winnipeg Citizens' Band, that was such a favorite last year that it could not be overlooked. The list of bands engaged to date is as follows:

Winnipeg Citizens' Band.
Royal Canadian Regiment Band, of Halifax.
Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, of Kingston.
Queen's Own Bugle Band.
48th Highlanders' Brass Band.
Governor-General's Body Guard.
Cadet Battalion Band.
13th Regiment Band, Hamilton.
91st Highlanders, Hamilton.
38th Battalion, Brantford.
30th Battalion, Guelph.
65th Regiment Band, Buffalo.

The 57th Regiment Band of Peterborough has not received notification of its engagement this year. Word may be to hand later, however. If the band is not engaged it will be the first time in ten years that it has not been booked to play at the fair, and in view of the fact that it is superior to several of the bands that will play, it would be hard to understand why it should not be included. The crack St. Catharines Band is not in the list either.

NO DIVORCE IN THIS COURT SAID MAGISTRATE DUMBLE

Wife's Pitiful Tale of Her Husband's Brutality—Kicked His Child Twice and Struck His Wife on the Face Husband Said Mother-in-law Was the Cause of the Trouble

"The best thing I can advise you both to do is to go back to your home and try and live peaceably together,—I can't give you a divorce." So said Magistrate Dumble at the conclusion of the evidence in a case at the police court yesterday afternoon in which the wife of a south end resident charged him with assaulting her and her child, and asking that he be bound over to keep the peace.

WIFE'S STORY.

On the morning of the twelfth of July he went up town to a liquor store and got a bottle of whiskey in her mother's name, and came back home and drank it. He had been working for the street railway, but quit his job on the preceding Thursday. On the afternoon of Monday, he had gone up to get some more whiskey, but in the meantime she had sent a letter to the store notifying the clerk not to serve him. That evening he came home drunk and she was standing on the step of her mother's house, with her brother, and infant baby. Coming through a vacant field he hollered at her to come home, but she was afraid to go near him and remained with her mother, but sent the key of the door to him by a little boy. He refused to take it and broke in all the doors. Shortly afterwards he left the house and went in the direction of the railway track, to catch a freight, but did not accomplish this, and again came near to where she was standing and asked her to come home and get his supper. But this was said in such an insulting way that she refused. The little four-year-old child was on the sidewalk, and he (the father) beckoned for it to come to him. Instead the child went in the direction of its mother, but before it could get to her it was overtaken, and in the side. She had the little one in her arms, and after putting it on the floor ran to the child's assistance, and received a blow in the face from her husband in so doing. Her mother had in the meantime pulled the child away as she feared it would be killed. Her husband then went back to his own home, took every article of clothing in the house and tore them into shreds, then pulled several pictures from the wall and burned clothes and all. Her sister later on, told her that he was in the house and threatened to on anybody who came near him. This was not the first time he had caused trouble, as he had struck her many times when they lived in Toronto. He behaved fairly well when not intoxicated, but her patience had been exhausted and she refused to live with him and put up with him any more. He had sold most of the articles in the house.

HUSBAND'S TALE.

The husband stated that he had always been a hard worker and always supported the family. He had sold one of the pictures to get car fare to the north end of the city, where he hoped to get work. He denied being drunk on the day mentioned and had not kicked the child at all—it had tripped and fallen. His mother-in-law hit him with a broom and his wife at his head. He blamed the mother-in-law for bringing about all this trouble, as he thought that it was she who had advised his wife not to go home and get the supper. His wife had sold all the things in the home and had kept the money but he was willing to go back and live peacefully with her in the future. But neither party failed to come to any agreement in the court, and the case was dismissed.

THREW A BEER BOTTLE

SHOES GETTING HIGHER IN PRICE

But Retailers Will Not Likely Advance Prices Until the End of the Year

Shoes are going up. Wholesalers have already advanced the price and it will touch most of the retailers about the end of the year.

It is believed that the advance will amount to about fifteen per cent., and the reason for it is that the price of the hides has taken a jump. It is pointed out that hides that could be bought last year for 6 1-2 to 7 cents a pound, now cost 14 cents to 15c., and it was inevitable that shoes should follow the hides in their upward career.

"Yes, it is true that the prices have been advanced," said a local man, when asked today by The Review: "The price of hides and consequently leathers had advanced very rapidly during the past year, and it is impossible to manufacture shoes at teh present selling prices."

The retailers, as yet, have not advanced their prices, but it is almost certain they will shove the prices up as soon as the wholesalers do.

"The consumer will not feel the advance until probably "the new year," said another man. "The dealers who have all their stock in will be all right, but if some of them should run out, and have to give new orders, they will have to meet the advance, and this of course means that they will have to put up the price or sell at less profit."

"KAWARTHA TOURIST" BEING PUBLISHED

New Publication Makes its Appearance at Lindsay—Has Summer Resort News

"Kawartha Tourist" is the name of a new publication printed in Lindsay. This little journal made its first appearance on Monday, July 12, and will be circulated among the various summer resorts along the beautiful chain of Kawartha Lakes.

The Kawartha is a publication issued by Mr. H. Long, the proprietor of the summer Hotel Kawartha at Fenelon Falls, who has had experience in publishing similar publications in Muskoka and other resorts. It is at present issued in the form of four neat pages, although the proprietor states in his "initial bow" to the resort people along the Kawartha lakes that "the size of this paper will increase as space may become necessary."

Besides containing a number of advertisements, The Kawartha Tourist publishes a number of interesting news letters from several of the summer resorts in this district. Short descriptive articles on Lindsay, Sturgeon Falls, Rosedale, Coboconk, Bobcaygeon, Chemong Park, Buckhorn, Sandy Lake, Lovesick, Burleigh Falls, Stoney Lake, Viamede and Young's Point are also printed in the opening issue, and on the whole the publication is bright and attractive.

The Kawartha will have circulation at the various summer resorst along the Kawartha Lakes, and will be distrbiuted free. The proprietor solicits items from people living in the various resorts. The next issue it is announced will appear on July 26th.

DANNY SIMONS HAS HAD A SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Was an Applause Winner as McGee, the Irishman, in "Little Johnny Jones"—Thinks Geo. M. Cohan is a Wonder—Local Boy Recalls His Eary Career

Mr. Danny Simons, who is home on a vacation, has had the best season of his theatrical career in "Little Johnnie Jones," the musical play by George M. Cohan, and the production that earned the versatile comedian-composer the name of the "Yankee Doodle Comedian," a pseudonym that has stayed with him ever since. The local boy played the part of McGee, the Irishman, a stage satire on Big Tim Sullivan, of New York. He made a big hit according to the papers, which speak of his drawing of the hilariously funny McGee as a great bit of comedy acting.

Mr. Simons has been playing western time, and, to use his own expression, "has played all through the west to nowhere." The company presenting the piece was a very capable one, as are all the organizations under the management of Cohan and Harris.

The inimitable and irrepressible Geo. M. Cohan acted as director when the show was being rehearsed in New York before it commenced its tour, and Mr. Simons has the highest regard for the ability and general good qualities of the clever little comedian. His connection with "Little Johnny Jones" marked his first association with Cohan, whom he thinks is one of the greatest directors and managers and can do more work and originate more original ideas than would keep half a dozen other men working overtime. In a popular sense New York is Cohan's. Everybody there tries to imitate him in his walk and actions, and he has found the good-will and appreciation of the theatregoers in the strongest possible fashion.

In conversation with a Review reporter Mr. Simons recalled the early days when he made his first appearance in the comedy line in Peterborough. He had a good laugh, too, when recalling his first endeavors to entertain the old opera house audiences. His giraffe act and tumbling and dancing, notably the marble slab stunt are well remembered to a great many local patrons of amusement. Since that time, however, Danny has branched out in a big way in the show world and has made good on the American comedy stage.

His plans for next season are not definitely formed. He will not draw money on a "Little Johnny Jones" contract for that show has been withdrawn after a long and prosperous life. Mr. Simons is considering a couple of the good propositions and the coming season may see him in vaudeville.

He will stay here for a few days longer and intends to spend a couple of days fishing. Danny is a patient and successful angler, and he considers the good fishing one of the blessings of this part of Canada.

REFUSED TO PAY FINE; WILL SERVE THIRTY DAYS

Fine of $25.00 Imposed on Edward Butler for Buying Liquor for Blacklister.

With a forceful exclamation of "'I won't pay the fine,'" and a disgusted look at the person who brought about his downfall, Edward Butler, a well known character in the city, followed P. C. Adams down the dark narrow stairs leading from the Police Court, to the cells yesterday afternoon as a result of his having been proved guilty of purchasing liquor for James Hayes, a blacklister, and being fined $25 of which amount in worldly goods he did not possess and as a consequence will spend the next thirty days in the county jail.

It will be remembered Jas. Hayes was in the Police Court Monday morning charged with being drunk and when asked where or by whom he secured the liquor, told all particulars to the court. This led to the arrest of Butler and the case was heard yesterday afternoon at four o'clock.

FIRST WITNESS.

Hayes was first called to the witness box and after being sworn stated that he had given Butler 40 cents on Saturday morning to be used in getting a bottle of whiskey and this was done by the obliging Edward. He further explained that Butler knew he was on the blacklist as he (Hayes) had told him so. On one other occasion Butler refused to buy him liquor and gave as his reason for refusing that he knew Hayes to be on the blacklist.

An employee of Elliott's retail store stated that Butler had bought a flask of whiskey either on Friday or Saturday. He would not swear to which day it was. It was not his first appearance at the store in search of liquor and he had been asked often if he was on the blacklist or if he was buying for a blacklisted person and the answer had always been no.

BUTLER'S EVIDENCE.

The defendent gave his version of the affair, which was to the effect that he met Hayes Saturday morning and he was pretty shaky. Hayes asked him to go and get a flask and this he did, with the money given him. On returning he did not think it advisable to give the whiskey to Hayes as he acted as if he had had too much. Both entered into an agreement to meet at five o'clock at a place named, but he (Butler) did not show up, and took the bottle home with him and it remained there still. He stoutly denied having given the liquor to Hayes.

The Magistrate held that his act of taking a drunken man's money was a very despicable proceeding and it went to show what some persons will do in an endeavor to drag a fellow man down, when the law is trying to help him. He dealt with Butler accordingly.

CHEMONG SUMMER SCHOOL

Special to Review.

Saturday morning, in spite of the rain, the delegates attended the session and listened with the same intense interest to Prof. McLaughlin, who conducted the study of Paul's Epistle to the Romans.

Dr. McKenzie gave his third address on the Japanese work, telling of the great things that Japan is doing for Korea. The Bible preaching held there—in Japan—is similar to that in Canada, but they have more need of the spiritual. It is a mistake to say that Japan has no more need for missionaries, for they do need them for the next five years will be critical years.

Prof McCann, of Peterborough, conducted a conference on the junior department, drawing attention to the fact that if there were no junior league, someone was failing to do their duty. There should be a fifth vice-president in every league. At the close of the conference the mission study classes met for their last study.

Votes of thanks were moved to Miss May Dobson, Whitby College; Prof. Doxsee, Albert College, and Rev. J. L. Stewart, West China, for their untiring efforts in making the studies interesting and helpful.

The evening being damp after recent showers, Prof. Doxsee led the prayer meeting in the pavilion, speaking in an earnest and impressive manner for a few minutes before the regular service, which opened with a song service. Prof. McLaughlin was the chairman of the evening.

A recitation was given by Miss Edna Moon, of Orono, after which Miss Dobson sang "Throw Out the Life Line," accompanied by Mr. Stewart in the deaf and dumb sign language.

Mr. J. Denyes, B.A., Newburgh High school, gave a very interesting address on "Christian Endeavor, the Heart of the League." Mr. Denyes said we could be of value to our friends only so far as we could impart the Christian life to them. Let us be very careful that no adhesions come to the Christian Endeavour Department. Let no worldly things clog the heart of the league.

Rev. Mr. Foster read a number of resolutions brought forward at a business meeting of the executive. Among them was a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Brown and all those connected with the hotel, who had helped to make the week one of so much comfort to the delegates. In the absence of Mr. Brown, Rev. Mr. Clarke replied on behalf of Mrs. Brown.

The meeting was closed with prayer.

Sunday, the last and best day of the Summer School, began under favorable auspices. The morning session—as well as the afternoon and evening—was well attended. Prof. McLaughlin spoke on Paul's Epistle to Timothy, closing with Paul's closing words, thus ending one of the most beautiful lesson which had been given in the Summer School.

Mr. Belgrave, of Peterborough, favored us with a solo, "He Will Hold Me Fast," after which a love feast and fellowship service was held and with Rev. A. H. Foster as a leader, a most inspiring and heart-searching half hour was spent in reconsecrating lives to Christ. At the close of this the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was held. The Sunday morning session will always linger in the minds of those present as the most beautiful and profitable ever held in Chemong Park.

In the afternoon two splendid addresses were given, one by Mr. J. Denyes, B.A., and another by Rev. J. L. Stewart. Miss Dobson favored us with a solo. Dr. Stephenson presiding at the meeting.

In the evening Rev. J. L. Stewart occupied the chair, and after the reading of the Bible lesson by Rev. Mr. Cruickshanks, Bridgenorth, Miss Dobson sang and Rev. W. E. Hassard, B. A., B.D., Toronto, addressed the crowd which thronged the pavilion. Mr. Belgrave, of Peterborough, sang "How Sweet is the Love of Jesus," the congregation joining in the chorus.

At the close of the regular session a farewell consecration service was led by Prof. McLaughlin. Mr. Stewart, of Belleville, read resolutions of thanks to all who had in any way contributed to the success of the school.

All united in singing a consecration hymn "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow," and the last session of the Summer School was closed.

NEW TYPE OF GASOLINE AND OIL CAN BEING MADE HERE

A number of Peterborough men secured the Ontario rights for a recently patented oil and gasoline can, and are having them manufactured in this city. The Supreme Can Company is the name of the concern, and as they have a meritorious article, they should meet with success. The Best Stove Co. are manufacturing the cans, which are made in two sizes, two and five gallons. The can is fitted with a siphon, and by blowing on the end of a tube the oil is forced out through another tube. It is only necessary to blow on the tube to start the oil running. Once started, the air pressure in the can will force out nearly a quart of oil before it is necessary to blow again. It is expected that the can will meet with a big demand from those who use coal oil and gasoline.

SEGREGATION IS ONLY CURE

Winnipeg, July 16.—Hon. T. Mayne Daly, public commissioner and magistrate, in a statement yesterday regarding criticisms following a raid on a number of resorts last Saturday night, declares that the raid of five years ago breaking up the "segregated district," has resulted as feared. Since then records show 885 illegitimate births in Winnipeg, including 115 already this year.

"Hundreds of young girls," said Mr. Daly, "are going to the devil, not in houses of ill-repute, but on street corners and in their own homes."

Diehm, Eddie Quinn's accomplice in the Sovereign Bank robbery two years ago on a train between Chatham and Tilbury, has been arrested at Los Angeles, and will be extradited. Swan & Hunter's yard at Newcastle, who were the builders of the Mauretania.

MOVE TO WIDEN DIVORCE LAWS

London, July 16.—Lord Gorrell, who, as Sir John Gorrell Barnes, was president of the Divorce Court, moved in the House of Lords that county courts should have the power to grant divorces, thus bringing the law within the reach of those whose circumstances prevented their proceeding in the High Court, the only tribunal in England empowered to deal with divorces.

Lord Gorrell urged in support of his motion that much immorality resulted from the present law, as the poor, instead of becoming legally separated, simply drifted apart.

The Archbishop of Canterbury and other opponents of the motion cited the experience in the United States as evidence against extending the facilities for securing divorces.

The House of Lords finally decided to institute an enquiry into the whole question.

AFTER THE FORT ERIE LICENSE

Fort Erie, July 16.—A writ for an injunction to restrain the operation of the bar license at the Fort Erie race track has been secured by P. E. Miller of Berti Township. The application will be heard at Osgoode Hall next week. It is argued that the license is a tavern, not a club, license, and that no attempt is made to accommodate the general public as required by law. The supposition is that the temperance forces are behind the application.

IMPALED ON A PITCHFORK

Dunnville, July 16.—Aaron Anger, aged 21, met a horrible death in Dunn Township.

He, his nephew, Arthur Anger, and Harry Dickson, were drawing in a load of hay. Part of the load slid off, and Anger and a fork went with it. The handle of the fork struck the ground first, and before it could turn Anger alighted on the upturned tines with his full weight, entering over the heart and under the left arm. The tines penetrated the lungs and heart five inches.

At his request his companions pulled the fork out, and, with blood gushing from his nostrils, he died without uttering another word.

RETURNS HOME TO FIND FIVE DEAD

Ottawa, July 16.—To get home after an absence of upwards of two years and learn for the first time that five of his loved ones were dead is the sad experience of a youth named St. Armour belonging to Notre Dame de la Sallette, Quebec.

A year ago last April the landslide occurred at La Sallette, and of the thirty-three victims over a dozen have never been recovered. Five of those killed were members of the St. Armour family. Young St. Armour has been working in the bush far north of La Salette ever since.

Voce was not present and Hon. W. A. Weir, Montreal, accepted his medal from D. Murphy, Ottawa, president of the Canadian Railway Accident Co., Arthur I. Voreys, personal representative of President Taft during the last Presidential campaign, suggested federal supervision of insurance companies, and said that if the system were adopted policyholders would run no risk from failing companies.

WHO WILL BE ARCHBISHOP ?

Montreal, July 16.—La Canada contributes the following despatch from Ottawa, touching the question as to whether the next archbishop of Ottawa will be an English or a French-speaking prelate:

"The French-speaking priests are at last under the impression that Mgr. Sbaretti's candidate is the Rev. Father Whelan, an Irish priest of distinction. I am told, however, that Mgr. Begin, Archbishop of Quebec, has been informed as to what is taking place in our archdiocese, and that his grace will see that the interests and aspirations of the French-Canadian clergy in the diocese of Ottawa are looked after."

A BUILDING COLLAPSES

And Seven are Killed in Philadelphia—Twenty-Four Were Seriously Injured

Philadelphia, July 16.—The five-storey building at the northeast corner of Eleventh and Market streets collapsed at 1.15 yesterday afternoon, burying workmen who were employed in the construction works in the ruins, and injuring many men and women who were passing along the sidewalks. The entire Market street end of the building fell, and became a mass of timber, brick, and twisted steel. Of the workmen, seven were killed, one is missing, one is mortally hurt, and twenty-four are more or less seriously injured. In all thirty-three were buried for a time in the ruins.

All the lower portion of the building, which was being remodelled for the United Gas Improvement Co., had been cut away, the weight of the upper stories being supported by heavy beams.

A huge girder that was being slowly hauled into the building struck one of these timbers, knocking it from its position. The rest of the supports were not strong enough to carry the weight, and the sides and front of the building fell, carrying everything away with it.

Hundreds of citizens secured ropes tied to timbers, and helped drag them into the street.

AUSTRALIA AND IMPERIAL DEFENCE

London, July 16.—The royal commission on electoral methods examines Earl Grey to-day.

Sir F. Borden, interviewed, said that the instructions to the Canadian delegates to the defence conference were based on the Ottawa resolution. The delegates intimated that they desire to avoid public dinners and other engagements as far as possible.

In a Melbourne despatch Minister of Defence Cook states: "I am thoroughly in favor of a local squadron provided it becomes the Australian section of the imperial navy. The offer of $10,000,000 is unconditional, but should the home authorities prefer to employ the money in building swift cruisers for the protection of Australian trade routes, so much the better. These could train Australian sailors and work in connection with local destroyers.

IS ARRESTED FOR SHOOTING DEBTOR

Parry Sound, July 16.—About two weeks ago an Italian, Nicola Alelle, shot and attempted to rob a Bulgarian named Dimoff on the C.P.R. near Shawanaga. Dimoff was believed to be carrying $250 in a belt about his waist and Alelle, who claimed the Bulgarian owed him money, approached the man, carrying a shotgun, and on his refusal to give him anything, and as he turned to join some men at a distance Alelle deliberately shot him in the back. Thinking he had killed the man, he advanced toward him, when the wounded man sprang to his feet and ran screaming toward the gang.

Alelle fled. Yesterday Constable Madigan located him at Depot Harbor and arrested him. Dimoff is at Sudbury. The only thing which saved him was that Alelle was some distance from him when he fired and the shot scattered.

TERRIBLE DEATH OF A TWEED MAN

Special to the Review.

Tweed, July 16.—Late last night while firing a shaft in the sulphide mines, Percy Harcey, aged 26, was blown to pieces.

He was a steam driller and was alone at the time. The body was frightfully mangled, head battered to pieces, and the brains oozed out. He leaves a wife and two children.

An inquest has been ordered.

PAYSON'S WEARY WALK IS ENDED

San Francisco, July 16.—When Edward Payson Weston yesterday handed to Postmaster Arthur Riske the letter given him by Postmaster Morgan of New York City on March 15 last, the little ceremony ended one of the most remarkable feats of pedestrianism on record. Although Weston was four days behind the schedule he had set for himself, when he stepped off the ferry Wednesday night the old man was not downhearted.

"It was a great walk," he said, "and but for unforeseen difficulties and hardships in the last three weeks of my journey I would have been here on the hundredth day. Still I am feeling fine and could do it over again."

It is the first time that a bona-fide walk has been made across the American continent. Weston laid so much stress on this fact that he walked over railroad bridges in the far west instead of resorting to ferries.

LEFT ONE WIFE BEHIND HIM

Windsor, July 16.—William Lawson, aged 28, was arrested yesterday on a charge of bigamy preferred by his wife in Utica, N.Y. She married Lawson nine years ago, and is the mother of three children. ## LIE PASSED IN THE HOUSE

London, July 16.—The House of Commons, the tempers of whose members have been sorely tried by the frequent all-night sessions, was thrown into an uproar by a scene between Earl Winterton and William James Thorne, a Labor member.

Earl Winterton, replying to an interruption from the Labor benches, remarked that Thorne was unfit to take part in the debate. Thorne replied by saying that he was as sober as any member of the House, and concluded by saying, "I call him the complete liar that he is."

Thorne left the House, and invited Earl Winterton to follow. The latter apologized, but Thorne refused to withdraw his remark, and was suspended.

WIFE'S TESTIMONY DAMAGES THAW'S CHANCE OF FREEDOM

Forced to Say Whether he Threatened to Kill Her When He Got out of the Asylum, Former Chorus Girl Says He Did.

White Plains, N.Y., July 16.—Harry K. Thaw's pretty little wife, formerly the chorus girl, Evelyn Nesbit, went on the stand here yesterday and gave damaging testimony against him. It was the strongest point scored so far by the state in its fight to keep Thaw in the asylum for the criminal insane at Matteawan. He demands his release on the ground that he is a sane man. Adjournment was taken until July 26.

When Evelyn Thaw took the witness chair yesterday afternoon she told, as if in fear, what Thaw's lawyer has sought most to keep back.

Deputy Attorney Clark asked her: "Did Harry K. Thaw at any time say this to you or this in substance, 'I shall have to kill you when I get out of here?'"

Mrs. Thaw appealed to the court and begged Justice Mills not to make her answer the question. With tears in her eyes, Mrs. Thaw said "I do not want to answer that question. It places me in a terrible position. My husband will refuse to support me the minute I answer it, and I will incur his everlasting enmity, I know it. I am very much afraid to answer it.

"I do not care how he has treated me. I am still married to him and I do not want to answer it."

Justice Mills instructed the witness to answer, and she said with a long-drawn sigh. "Yes, he did. He said, 'When I get out of here I suppose I will have to kill you.' We were discussing his mental condition. I had asked him what he meant and he said, 'You know I was not crazy the night that I shot White.' I asked him again and he said, 'You know that I missed White by two minutes on the day before.'"

Harry K. Thaw, when asked about his wife's testimony after court, said: "It is very plain to everyone that her story is not true. I never threatened to kill her. First, she says one thing and then another."

It has been decided to do away with a physical examination of Thaw by the state's alienists and confine the insanity tests by the experts to the mental examination of Thaw as a witness.

Before leaving for New York, last evening, Evelyn Thaw discussed her testimony yesterday, somewhat at variance to the attitude on the stand.

"If the Thaw family had done the right thing to me, I would never have taken the stand to testify against my husband," she said. "But they would not guarantee me the allowance I asked for when the annulment proceedings were begun. If they had done that I would have been far away from here to-day, and Harry would have a better chance of getting his liberty.

'I can't go back to the stage. My notoriety would prohibit that. I may try to get work as a model. I can do it, too, I am sure.

"When my husband cut my allowance to $70 a week and $200 a month, he left me with many debts on my hands. I used my allowance to clear off my debts. My studio costs $19 a month, and I have to buy food and clothes and the money I get is not much more than enough to get along on."

NEWSPAPER IN THE AIR

Dayton, O., July 16.—Dayton has taken the lead of the world in things aerial through the exploits of the Wright brothers, and it is only natural that the city should strive to maintain its position. Now added to the Wright records is one by The Dayton Journal, which has won the distinction of being the first newspaper in the world to publish an edition in the air. The Journal sent five of its staff into the clouds armed with a hand press, a font of type and some paper, and told them to drop the results of their labors on the towns over which they passed. It was only a very small newspaper that was printed a thousand feet or more above the earth, but it was a newspaper done in the sky, a novel idea successfully carried out.

TWO THOUSAND ARE VACCINATED

Philadelphia, July 16.—While a detail of two hundred policemen kept close guard, physicians vaccinated nearly 2,000 persons in the city block bounded by 26th, 27th, York and Dauphin streets, following the discovery of a case of smallpox in the home of Charles Krimmie, No. 2637 Gordon street, where the seven-year-old son of Krimmie is ill.

Chief Medical Inspector A. A. Cairns of the health bureau, and his staff of forty physicians, went through the entire twenty-seventh ward and vaccinated all persons who desired to take the precaution against the spread of the disease. Several dwellers within the quarantine escaped before the ropes were stretched, and the police are watching for their return, when they will be quarantined until vaccinated.

BAND SERGT. HUGHES WILL LEAVE FOR VERNON, B.C.; LEADER OF BAND THERE

Peterborough will lose one of its most talented and earnest musicians when Band Sergt. Hughes, solo cornetist of the 57th Regimental Band, and the cornetist of the Grand Opera House orchestra, leaves to-morrow for Vernon, B.C., where he has accepted a remunerative position as leader of the Vernon City Band, a body of thirty musicians and a leading musical organization of the Pacific Coast.

Sergt. Hughes is one of the most brilliant cornet player of the province and had a wide and thorough schooling with large military bands of the old country before coming to Canada. He is a soloist and orchestra player deeply interested in his work and one of the most capable and conscientious musicians that has ever been connected with the 57th. His place in the band and the Opera House orchestra will be very difficult to fill. He is highly popular with his associates and thoroughly appreciated by the public and his departure for the west will be very much regretted.

THE RIVER BANKS

The river Otonabee, from the Locks to its mouth, is famous for its beauty. From the locks northward through the city it is ugly in the extreme except in a few places. Along the eastern bank near Riverside Park it is, or was, lovely until in a spirit of making money the strand has been rendered hideous by glaring advertisements. From the old Dickson dam to Smith street bridge the river banks are in a state of complete neglect. A little care and common sense would make this part of the river and that between the Dickson dam and the Hunter street bridge in keeping with the parks and residences that line the river on the high lands.

If not for the reason that it is desirable that ordinary citizens should have something done to satisfy their aesthetic taste and to rest the tired eye, then, as a means of attracting outsiders, something should be done to improve matters. We are far behind the Americans in this respect, and indeed of every other country that has any pretensions to the comforts of civilization.

THE ST. LAWRENCE SHIP CHANNEL

As Winnipeg is the gateway to the great producing areas of the Northwest, so is the St. Lawrence the Canadian portal to the European markets.

The line of route is not only the most direct, but owing to the long stretches of inland navigable waters, it is the cheapest.

Inland vessels and the northern continental railways, in their race to the sea, reach ocean navigation first at Montreal. With the present St. Lawrence canals, the present railways, the existing facilities at Montreal, and the 30-foot ship channel to the sea, the Canadian national route can hold its own with its only dangerous rival, the Buffalo-New York route.

What will happen when the two new transcontinental railways now under construction are completed, when the Georgian Bay, or improved St. Lawrence canals are "ready for traffic, when ample accommodation is given in Montreal Harbour, and when the ship channel has a depth of 35 ft., one can conjecture with satisfaction.

Apart from this the only remaining requirement to place the Canadian route in a position beyond competition, both summer and winter, is a satisfactory winter port, with a railway distance from Montreal comparable in length with the Buffalo-New York lines.

Lord Durham's statement in 1837, to the effect that the State of New York had created her own St. Lawrence, from Buffalo via Albany down the Hudson to the seaboard at New York and captured the trade which Canada had lost by neglect to improve her waterways, bids fair to be comparatively reversed in the near future.

The time occupied by the large ships [illegible] Montreal and Quebec is surprisingly short.

The Allan turbiner "Virginian" holds the record for the upward passage in 9 hours 57 minutes, while the Dominion liner "Ottawa" won by 3 minutes the downward passage in 8 hours 8 minutes.

The passenger and freight type of ship usually makes the upward trip in between 11 and 12 hours, and the downward passage in [illegible].

The thirty-five foot channel was commenced in November, 1907. The completion of the rock work to make 30 feet at low tide at Cap a la Roche, or from 34 to 35 feet at high tide, is expected in about two years. Six or eight years should complete a 35 ft. channel from Montreal to tide water at Cap a la Roche.

It may, therefore, be expected that in ten years or less a channel of 35 feet available depth at low water, will be completed from Montreal to the sea. This would give navigation to Montreal for the largest steamships now afloat.

If the port of Montreal is not to be the weak link connecting the unceasing railway and canal building, from the point of production, with the magnificent St. Lawrence channel, there is no time to be lost.

The depth in the Ship Channel available for navigation, with the greatest and least depth in each year, from May to November, are given in the following table for the last two years:

Average depth of each month in the 30-foot channel. (30 ft. at extreme low water of 1897.)

Great Britain's Wealth

Mr. Geo. Paish, one of the editors of the Statist, speaking to the Royal Statistics Society the other day, said that he estimated the amount of money which the British people had placed in other countries at £2,700,000,000, which obtained 5.2 per cent. return. Further, he estimates that new capital to the extent of £700,000,000, or an average of about £100,000,000 a year, will have been placed abroad by this country in the years between 1905 and 1911. Here are the main points of Mr. Paish's very striking paper:

THE INCOME FROM OUR INVESTMENTS.

Mr. Paish said that the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, recognizing the importance of the great annual income yielded to this country by its investments abroad, had set out in detail the amount of income derived from certain of these capital investments, but their statement was far from comprehensive. He would endeavor to give a more complete account. The Commissioners gave particulars of the income which our investors drew from their holdings in Government bonds—Indian, £8,768,327; Colonial, £13,933,722; Foreign, £8,338,128, being a total of £31,140,083.

The income from this source had rapidly expanded in recent years in consequence mainly of new loans to the Dominions and to our ally Japan, and through our investments in the loans of Continental countries were tending to decline, this tendency might be checked if events caused the British market for capital to be again opened freely to Russian borrowings, as that country needed to raise capital from year to year for the extension of its railway system.

In addition to the income derived from these three sources, the Commissioners also set out the income received from Indian, Colonial and various foreign securities, £16,917,000; coupons, £13,767,000; railways out of the United Kingdom £18,736,000—a total of £48,520,000, which, with that received from Government loans, amounted to £79,860,116. He had analysed that sum, with the result that he placed it at £82,777,000.

OUR MERCHANTS' INCOMES.

Now, the income which the Commissioners earmarked as coming from abroad was that received from Indian, Colonial and Foreign Governments stocks, municipal securities and railways, and the great additional income the country derived from its investments in a vast number of all kinds was excluded. It was impossible for anyone to ascertain the income from the capital our merchants, manufacturers and others had privately placed abroad. There were several thousand public companies operating abroad that had raised capital publicly in this country, and to amplify the statement of the commissioners he had obtained the reports of as many of these companies as it was possible for a private person to secure, classified them, and ascertained the amounts of their capital and of their profits in the aggregate and by groups.

AN INCOME OF £140,000,000.

He had ascertained the income of 2172 of the miscellaneous companies of which the capital had been supplied by our investors, and he found that its income amounted to nearly £58,000,000, obtained as follows:—Breweries and distilleries, £732,000, an insignificant sum having regard to the amount of capital invested; canals and docks, £1,174,000; commercial and industrial companies, £5,000,000; electric lighting and power companies, £321,000; financial, land, and investment companies, £6,000,000 — two-thirds from the Dominions and one-third from foreign companies—; gas companies, £1,200,000; colliery and iron ore undertakings, £500,000; various mining enterprises, £26,000,000; nitrate companies, £1,000,000; oil companies, £642,000; rubber companies, £446,000; tea and coffee plantations, £1,794,000; cable companies and telephone companies, £2,900,000; tramways, £1,500,000; and waterworks £400,000.

Thus if the Commissioners were to bring together all the income of companies trading abroad and distributing interest and profits in this country, the total would be about £140,000,000. This great sum did not include the interest upon money deposited in Indian, Colonial, and foreign banks by persons residing in this country, nor the large amount of income derived from capital privately placed abroad, though, on the other hand, it was essential to recollect that foreign investors drew a good deal of income from capital placed in British companies of one kind and another, and in balancing the account it was essential not to omit this important offset.

A CAPITAL OF £2,700,000,000.

Having thus drawn up the income, Mr. Paish proceeded to discuss the amount of capital which the British people had placed in other countries to yield them so great a result, and he estimated it at £2,700,000,000 which was obtaining an all-round return of 5.2 per cent. Of that sum nearly £1,700,000,000 had been expended upon railway construction.

He further estimated that a total of no less than £250,000,000 has been subscribed in the last two years, and that Canada was the country in which the largest amount of capital has been placed abroad in the period from July 1st, 1908, to June 15, 1909. For a period of enterprise similar to that through which the country was now passing he referred to the later eighties, when vast sums were invested in the Australasian colonies, in the United States, in Argentina, in India, in Canada, and in other lands. At that time the country was not nearly as wealthy, nor were its annual savings available for investment in securities nearly as great.

(£100,000,000 A YEAR INVESTED ABROAD.

Nevertheless, in the seven years from 1884 to 1890 inclusive, Great Britain placed abroad over £400,000,000 of capital. In the seven years from 1898 to 1904—a period of extravagance and war expenditure in this country—the investments in other lands were not much over £100,000,000. Since 1904 there had been an endeavor to make up for lost time, and in four and a half years Great Britain had placed no less than £400,000,000 of new savings in profitable, Colonial, and foreign securities. There were good prospects that in the seven years from 1905 to 1911 inclusive they would place new capital in other lands to the extent of at least £700,000,000, or an average of about £100,000,00 a year.

ADVANTAGE OF FOREIGN INVESTMENT.

In conclusion Mr. Parish directed attention to what he called the immense advantages to this country of the investments in other lands. The investments in the last sixty years of about £2,500,000,000 of British capital had occurred simultaneously with an immense growth of British trade and prosperity, and in his opinion this growth of trade and prosperity was largely the result of the investment of British capital in other countries. By building railways for the world, and especially for the young countries, Great Britain had enabled the world to increase its production of wealth at rate never previously witnessed, and to produce those things which this country was especially desirous of purchasing—foodstuffs and raw materials. Moreover, by assisting other countries to increase their output of the commodities they were specially fitted to produce, British investors had helped those countries to secure the means of purchasing the ggoods that Great Britain manufactured.—Public Opinion, Eng.

THE CREDIT OF CANADA

The Weekly Sun

The statement that the credit of the Dominion is as good as ever is was is scarcely borne out by the facts. In 1888 a Dominion loan was floated on which the actual interest charge was 3.27 per cent. At the same time money was being loaned on private property in Toronto at 6 per cent. to 7 per cent.

In 1897, when the rate on private loans on Toronto property was down to 5 1-2 per cent., a Dominion loan was floated on which the actual rate of interest was 2.96 per cent. To-day, with the rate on private Toronto loans substantially the same as it was in 1897, the Dominion Government is selling bonds at 98 1-2 which carry 3 1-2 per cent. interest, and even at that the underwriters who guaranteed the loan have to take over half of it. All this surely points to a depreciation in the value of our national securities.

Nor is this depreciation cause for surprise. In the fiscal year of 1908 the revenue of the Dominion Government amounted to $96,000,000, as compared with thirty-six and one-half millions in 1896. In the twelve years ending with 1908 the total revenue of the Dominion was $739,000,000 or an average of twenty-five millions per annum in excess of the income of 1896. With this enormous increase in ordinary receipts maturing liabilities should have been wiped out. Instead of that the net debt was increased by 19,000,000 during the twelve years ending with 1908, while the increase during the one year ending March last is estimated at $46,000,000 more. And the borrowing is still going on. Since January Mr. Fielding has floated something like $50,000,000 in bonds on the London money market for the purpose of renewing old loans or meeting new expenditures. No credit would stand such a terrible strain as has been put upon ours, and we are, naturally enough, paying the penalty of our own folly.

72 Days of Dish Washing

You spend two hours every day washing dishes. That's 720 hours a year or 72 days of ten working hours each. This means that half the time is wasted. For with Taylor's Borax Soap you finish your work in one hour instead of two.

Isn't it worth five cents to have 36 days a year to yourself—to have cleaner and sweeter dishes than ever before with less than half the work?

Taylor's Soap

This wonderful soap is unlike any other you have ever known. It digs into the corners of dishes and loosens the dirt almost like magic. It cuts away grease and leaves the surface clean and polished.

Hard water makes hard dish washing, but Taylor's Borax Soap softens the hardest water and so makes the work easy. But it does more than soften the water—it softens the hands and leaves them even whiter than before.

With this soap you save all the bother of rubbing and most of the scouring. You simply have no idea of the work this soap can save—it is the greatest surprise you have ever known.

The glassware has a lustre that fairly sparkles with brilliance. The china ware looks as fresh and inviting as new. Yet you work only half as hard with this astonishing soap.

No soap could be purer than this, for during the boiling process we run thousands of gallons of clean water through the soap. Thus every impurity is carried away and the soap is absolutely clean.

Borax also sterilises and sweetens. It kills every germ and leaves no possibility of contagion. It destroys all odors and leaves a clean scent that is simply delightful.

This wonderful soap costs no more than the ordinary. We spend twenty-one days to make a single cake. We use the labor of more than 200 persons. Yet we make such enormous quantities—millions of cakes every year—that we buy at the lowest prices and give you the very best of quality. Try one bar and judge for yourself.

MOURNING ETIQUETTE.

Conventional Time For Wearing the Trappings of Woe.

A widow may resume her society life after the first month of her widowhood has expired. In so far as paying calls is concerned, and after two months she may attend small informal gatherings and concerts. When three months have expired she may accept and give invitations to small dinners. This is the modern seclusion, but elderly women frequently make a compromise between the short and the long seclusion and do not accept or give invitations until six months have expired.

Next in importance is the period of mourning for a father or mother. This extends over twelve months, but a great difference consists in the period during which half mourning is worn. For instance, an unmarried daughter residing at home would wear black during ten months and half mourning for two months. A married daughter, on the other hand, living at a distance from her girlhood's home, would wear black for eight months and half mourning for four months or black for six months and half mourning for the same time. Then, again, young girls still in the schoolroom, of ages from ten to fourteen, are not expected to wear black longer than three months and to go into half mourning at the expiration of that time, commencing with black and white, followed by grays and half mourning shades. Little children are not put into mourning, but wear white with black trimmings. The seclusion followed on the death of a parent is but slight. Calling is resumed after the first fortnight and invitations accepted, as a rule, after six weeks or two months, save to balls and dances.

Next in order comes the mourning for a brother or sister. This period varies from four to six months. Black is worn during four months and half mourning for two months, or black is worn for three months and half mourning for the same length of time. For relations by marriage, a brother-in-law or sister-in-law, four months is the regulation time. It may be said that the mourning worn by a wife for her husband's brother or sister is usually longer than that worn for her sister's husband.

Formerly the period of mourning for grandparents was nine months, but now it is seldom longer than six months. This is divided into four months of black in the case of the granddaughters being unmarried and two months of half mourning. But if they are married and reside in another town black is usually worn for three months and half mourning for three months.

One word as regards the mourning worn for an uncle or aunt. The period is three months, and black is worn for two months and half mourning for one month, or there may be a shorter period, six weeks, during which time black is worn and no half mourning. This short period is only followed by married nieces who live far away from their relatives.

For a Summer Veranda.

The girl who wishes to render the verandas of the summer cottage attractive should take time by the forelock and make up an assortment of pillow covers. One of the most serviceable tops is of a new material which closely resembles leather and comes in red, blue, green and leather shades made up plainly and fringed with imitation leather fringe.

Burlap covers are embroidered with flower, foliage and bird designs or with fringe made by fraying the edges of the face and back of the pillow top.

Lingerie pillows are of muslin all over embroidery, of batiste banded and frilled with embroidery and of dotted and sprayed swiss. Any of the flowered lawns are pretty if finished with wide ruffles, and so are the Scotch ginghams striped in two tones of one color. Some of them have a broken tartan plaid border that makes an effective ruffle. Scotch madras in two tone or solid colors furnishes a serviceable and smart looking pillow top, and there are most attractive plain French linens in such shades as wistaria, catawba, champagne, vandyke brown and old rose.

Ecru scrim is an excellent material for a porch pillow cover and is charming when decorated with Dalmatian embroidery in oriental color combinations with embroidery silk. Cream colored scrim is used without a pattern, as is also the work.

For the Doeblinger work, done on colored monks' cloth, the eight fold Germantown yarn is used to develop art nouveau or oriental patterns.

AS TO LOSING MONEY.

A Case Showing the Importance a Ten Dollar Bill May Reach.

"To some men," said a man now of amplest means, "the loss of $10,000 might be a joke, and then to some the loss of a ten dollar bill might be a tragedy.

"Poor? Why, we were so poor that we had to count every cent, every penny. Not that we were miserable. We were very far from that. As a matter of fact, we were happy, but we certainly did have all the time to sail very close to the wind.

"There were four of us—wife, two children and myself—and, bless you, how we did have to figure and scrimp to make both ends meet. I've seen the time, many a time, when a nickel was of great importance to us, when it was the last cent for carfare. I often think what a blessing it was that we were none of us ever sick; that nothing ever happened to us. I don't know what we'd done if there had.

"I was going to tell you what it might be to some folks to lose a ten dollar bill.

"Ten dollars was the amount of our monthly rent, and whatever else we did we always saved out of my week's pay the weekly proportion of the rent, to have it ready when it was due. I always used to get a ten dollar bill in my pay envelope, and when it came to the last Saturday in the month we just used to take the ten dollar bill out of the envelope to pay the rent with, and then we had the amount we'd saved out of three weeks to go on for current expenses.

"Well, one last Saturday that happened to come three days before the end of the month we took the ten dollar bill out of the envelope as usual for the rent and as usual my wife put it away—she always looked after the finances—and there we were all comfortable and happy, with the next month's rent all ready, and then on the last day of the month, when she went to get it out to have it handy when the landlord came she couldn't find it!

"If that wasn't a tragedy I don't know a tragedy when I meet it. I don't suppose I took it quite so hard as she did, and I'd have shown it as little as I could anyway on her account, but to her it was nothing less than a calamity.

"When the children had gone to bed we tore the house apart. We looked and looked and looked into every nook and corner over and over again, but that ten dollar bill, with all that it meant to us—and I doubt if you can imagine how much it did mean—was gone. That was the first thing we had on our minds when we woke up in the morning, and gloomy enough for us that morning was. And then when I was eating my breakfast in our modest dining room she looked in at the door from the kitchen, and 'I've found it!' she said, and so she had, just where three days before she had hidden it away, and so was our great gloom changed to joy—to joy with a large, large J.

"Yes, sir. We got more now, by considerable, and now she has what she wants; now she doesn't have to skimp. In these days I take her home myself now and then a ten dollar bouquet. We can afford it. But I never shall forget as long as I live how we felt when we thought we'd lost that ten dollar bill or the joy that came to us when we found it, for, you see, how a loss strikes you depends so much on how much you've got."

Climbs Up the Trunk.

The native elephant driver never has to bother with a step ladder in mounting his beast after he has trained him for a little time, for the easiest way to get up is to ascend by way of the trunk. Standing in front of the elephant, the driver grasps him by the ears, this being a signal that he wishes to mount, and the obedient monster promptly arches his trunk so that the master can easily step upon it and go right on up to the top of the elephant's head.

Tom's Wellwisher.

In a Philadelphia club a member was met not long ago by the announcement from a fellow member that a friend of both had fallen ill.

"I understand from the physician," said the first member, "that Tom has brain fever. He'll recover, but it's thought his mind will be a blank."

"I trust the diagnosis is incorrect," came in fervent tones from the second member, "inasmuch as Tom owes me $100."—Lippincott's.

Fair One's Father — Why did you bring that kodak with you? Poor Lover—That I might catch your expression of astonishment when I asked you for your daughter's hand.—Fliegende Blatter.

Obeying Papa.

Inquisitive.

Small Boy—Papa, where does leather come from? Papa—From animals, my boy, their skins being tanned. Small Boy—And does sole leather come from their souls, papa?

Difference of Opinion.

It takes a great man to make a good listener.—Heine.

HINTS FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS.

Knitting Bag Will Be Helpful For Miladi This Summer.

For the persistent knitter there may be had a yarn holder that is better than human hands in the way it holds and moves the skein. It has four arms, yet it does not provoke the smothered wrath of the winder, who is dependent on some two armed friend who perchance reluctantly consents to hold the skein and hurries off the yarn by waving his arms like a windmill.

There are so few things for the woman who knits that we feel like passing along whatever new ideas we hear of. There is a delightful knitting bag made to serve the same purpose that the bracelet basket is made for. I think we all know the little round or oblong basket that holds the knitting ball and swings over the arm of the knitter.

The new linen canvas bag is cut in two pieces, not unlike the rounded sides of a leather shopping bag in shape, except that these sides slope gradually up into a narrow strip two or three inches wide.

The sides are joined together to hold the knitting. This basket shaped affair is lined, including the strips which are joined together to form a handle. This is slipped over the arm. The bag may be decorated with a design in cross stitching.

LAMP SHADE AND HAT.

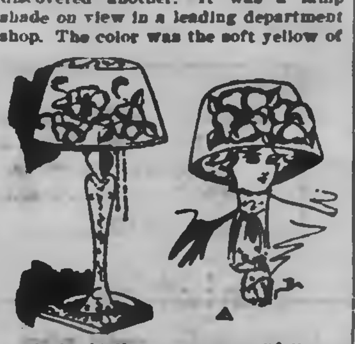
A Close Resemblance Recently Discovered by a Clever Girl.

Resemblance between the new hats and all sorts of household articles has been discovered by observing folk with a sense of humor, and the tub, the wastebasket, the coal scuttle, etc., have been designated as sources of inspiration for the freakish millinery of the season. A bright girl the other day discovered another. It was a lamp shade on view in a leading department shop. The color was the soft yellow of leghorn or natural straw, and the decorative feature was a cluster of roses realistically painted. During a visit a few minutes later to the millinery department an exact duplicate of the shade was seen among the most artistic productions, the hat being fashioned from leghorn braid and adorned with roses in shades of pink. The closeness of the resemblance is indicated in the accompanying illustration of hat and shade.



HARD TO TELL WHICH IS WHICH.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Few skins can stand glycerin, and it should never be used without being diluted. It absorbs all moisture, and the skin becomes dry and parched.

Neuralgia may very often be speedily relieved by applying a cloth saturated with essence of peppermint to the seat of pain and leaving it there.

Do not overeat or wear overtight clothes if you would avoid a red nose. Indigestion and cramped circulation can paint a more vivid hue than the rouge pot.

A good deodorizer is made by applying a hot poker to a lump of camphor gum in a saucer. The strong fumes will clear the atmosphere of a room in a few moments.

The health of the eye must be guarded. The girl who reads in a bad light, who does not care whether print is good or bad, who sits in a huddled position, with her head forward, is deliberately spoiling any beauty of eyes she may possess.

A well known chiropodist has given this hint for shoe comfort: "Never wear a shoe that will not permit the great toe to lie in a straight line." Cramping the toes not only gives corns and bunions, but so affects the feet that general misery follows. Never let vanity force you into a shoe too small. The penalty is too steep. It seemed that this particular form of silliness was disappearing, but the recent action of shoe manufacturers insisting on the correct number being placed in shoes, whether women liked it or not, looks as if common sense in footgear still bore cultivating.

A headache is one of the most tormenting ailments that ever visited humanity, and there are hundreds of different reasons for it. Men have headache, but women are the headache race. Headaches are warnings. Shopping headaches, nervous headaches and several other kinds of different sizes, widths, heights and ages warn one of some physical derangement, usually of stomach disorder. A headache is a fire alarm or any of those things that give a warning. It has been learned that headaches have nothing whatever to do with the brain, since the brain keeps actively at work under many distressing spells of headache, but the trouble is due to the anaemic state of the blood, which does not properly feed the nerves of the head.

Use of Charcoal.

A small dish of charcoal kept in the meat larder will keep the articles sweet and wholesome. Charcoal is a great disinfectant. A dish of charcoal kept in the icebox will also keep it smelling sweet and free from odors.

Seventeen members of a New York variety troupe arrived home. They had been stranded in Venezuela.

KILLED THE JAGUAR.

The Terrible Boa Constrictor of the Mexican Jungle.

I had been traveling for about an hour, trying to locate the source of the Santa Rita and winning every inch of ground by hacking and slashing with the machete, when I was startled by a most fearful scream, which seemed to come from somewhere immediately behind me. Turning round and looking back over the trail I had just made, I saw a great commotion taking place among the vines, dead leaves and decaying branches which carpeted the ground, and the bloodcurdling screams I had heard rang out again and again. Returning a little nearer, I discovered a "tiger," or, properly speaking, a jaguar or American leopard, and it was writhing in the coils of an enormous boa constrictor. The great snake appeared to have the side of the jaguar's head in its mouth and a coil or two of its body around the neck of the beast, which was making frantic efforts to regain its liberty. The snake had its tail coiled round a small ebony tree about a foot in diameter, and whenever the hapless jaguar relaxed its efforts the serpent would swiftly release itself from the tree and make an attempt to get another coil around the body of its opponent.

I stood there fascinated with horror and yet forgetting my fear in the interest I was taking in this terrible fight between beast and reptile. Presently the snake with an incomprehensively quick movement succeeded in getting two more coils around the body of the jaguar, but not without receiving severe laceration from the formidable claws of its victim. Then, letting go the jaguar's head, where it seemed to have a firm hold, the boa constrictor raised its head seemingly in triumph and, with its tail still wrapped round the tree, lifted the body of the jaguar up in the air. I heard the bones crack under the fearful strain, and with one awful, despairing scream the jaguar fell back, dead!—World Wide Magazine.

THE SHIP'S CAPTAIN.

At Sea He Is a Czar, and His Authority Is Absolute.

When you have passed down through the Narrows and then passed Sandy Hook you see a man in whiskers and a reefer climbing down a rope ladder that drops him into a waiting boat.

It is the pilot. You have dropped the last link connecting you with shore except wireless telegraphy, and you are now a member of a community that for a few days, a week, is as much an entity as any nation.

The captain is pacing the bridge. Until you reach shore again he is your overlord. His decision is final and without appeal. He can order you locked in your stateroom or he can put you in irons.

If occasion arises he can alter the course of the ship and land you wherever he pleases. You have recourse when you get ashore, but if he wants to drop you at the Azores when you have paid passage to Bremen he can and will do it.

His authority extends to every part of the ship alike, from the cargo to the saloon deck and from the engine room to the scullery.

Navigating a ship is a ticklish business and one that requires that there be no division of the highest authority. So, for the brief period until he touches port, he is your czar.

The ship is a great community, sometimes with a population of 5,000 souls, living, eating and sleeping under one roof. It has its policemen, its firemen, cooks, butchers, bakers, doctors, clerks, carpenters, electricians, boilermakers and a horde of personal servants.

In the control of this organization the captain has at his right hand his officers. The ship's officers are the important persons in the detail management.—Bookkeeper.

Her Bargain.

An Oil City man, who was detained at the house for a part of the day, handed his wife, who was going downtown, a quarter of a dollar and requested her to get him three cigars for it, according to the Blizzard.

When she returned she handed him the package, remarking exultantly:

"That shows that women can beat men all hollow when it comes to making purchases. I found a place where I could get eight for a quarter instead of three. Isn't that going some?"

And the poor man, as he took his medicine, merely remarked:

"It certainly is, dear."

Stoats Hunt In Packs.

In some years stoats appear to be more numerous than in others, and they are seen not in ones and twos, but in dozens, hunting together in small packs. Stoats will hunt together from scent and in full cry like a pack of hounds, one always keeping the line and followed closely by the others. This sight has been recorded by different observers who have also seen weasels hunting in the same way.—Fur News.

The Resemblance.

Miss (making an unexpected raid on the kitchen)—Who is this, Mary? Mary—M-me b-rother, please 'm. Mistress—Indeed! But he doesn't resemble you in the least. Mary—No'm! But we was remarkable alike before 'e 'ad 'is beard shaved off.—London Sketch.

Professional Relics.

Doctor (to lawyer going through the medical museum)—Your profession does not offer any opportunity for the collection of professional relics. Lawyer—I am not so sure about that. I have a unique collection of family skeletons at my office.—Puck.

A bill giving women owners of property the right to vote at municipal elections was passed at New Haven.

RURAL POPULATION IS DECREASING

An Alarming State of Affairs in Ontario—The Official Report Shows a loss of 114,000

Toronto, July 14.—W. Sutherland, the provincial director, says the decrease of the rural population of Ontario, not including New Ontario, from 1885 to 1905, the last year for which figures are available, was 114,971. He reports 188,000 acres less under wheat and 30,000 less logs this year than last year.—Press dispatch.

(What more is needed to convince the farmer and the rest of the community which depends upon him, of the madness of overhasty development of the west at the double expense of the east? The east pays the bulk of the interest on the great loans and loses in the lessened values of its lands from decreased population as well. Who makes beside the land speculator and the money-lender? The farmers of older Ontario are facing certain ruin if this policy is kept up. Development, like imigration, is a good thing, but both may be sadly overdone. Ed.)

NEW STEEL FRAME BOAT FOR THE KAWARTHA LAKES

It is the intention of the Stoney Lake Navigation Co. to build a new steel frame boat for next season's use on the upper lakes. The plans which are now in the contractor's hands, call for a boat a little smaller than the Stoney Lake. It will be equipped with the most modern engines, mechanical appliances, and will be a useful addition to the already splendid Stoney Lake fleet.

The Stoney Lake Navigation Company have three boats on the lakes now, and although they give satisfactory service in every way, the passenger and freight traffic is increasing yearly to such an extent that a fourth steamer could be used to excellent advantage.

PRICE OF MILK MAY BE ADVANCED CENT PER QUART

There is a probability of milk advancing to seven cents per quart in Peterborough. At present it is selling at six cents, but the milkmen are considering the advisability of boosting the price one cent per quart. They state that the pastures have dried up as the result of the drought, which existed and there has been a great falling off in the milk supply as a result. It is said that there isn't much chance of the milk yield getting back to the normal amount again this year. This will be cheerful news to the housewives.

THE STANDARD TELLS HOW THE THIRD "TEST" WAS WON AND LOST

Perhaps the Most Remarkable Cricket of the Century—Great Excitement of the Crowd—England Cheers the Australians.

The Australia v. England (third test) cricket match has not been equalled in interest perhaps by any of the long series—since 1876. England made 182 (Tyldesley 55, Sharp 61) and 87 (Hobbs 30); Australia made 188 (Gregory 46, Ransford 45, Bardsley 30), and 207 (Armstrong 45, Noble 31, Carter 30).

The Standard's account concludes as follows:

"England lost the Test match with Australia at Leeds on Saturday by 126 runs. The triumph of Australia was a great one. And it was deserved. There can be no possible excuse for England's defeat. The injury to Jessop was a terrible misfortune, but the truth is that England was outplayed. Our cricketers knew not how to fight with the stubborness and fierce determination of their kinsmen; they played as scared men; left 214 runs to win, they failed utterly. They magnified their task in such an unreasonable way that they played as if they were convinced that it was impossible of accomplishment the moment they entered upon it. The wicket was not perfect, but not abnormal; there was nothing in its condition to account for the fact that ten men only made 87 between them. Our batting was bad; its weakness glaringly apparent. The English batsmen were restless, fidgety; they got themselves out by an absurd belief that the wicket must be bad and the bowling wonderfully good. The Australian victory was more of a temperamental triumph than the reward of remarkably good cricket. They believed in themselves: it was their self-confidence, their doggedness, their splendid defence that killed our cricketers. Cotter bowled better than he has ever done in this country; he played more within himself than on any occasion when I have seen him. He was not the wild, erratic young men he has most times been, caring only for speed. On Saturday he was on the wicket, and he bowled his fastest. McCartney was splendid in his subtlety. But both these players were encouraged because our cricketers took fright; the persistency of Australia robbed our men of their talent. The selection committee cannot been paraded as the prime cause of this second English failure. Our team was accepted as almost the best that could have been chosen, but it is plain that for the next game alterations must be made. The experience possessed by many of those who played for England at Headingley is not enough. C. B. Fry is clearly short of big cricket practice. MacLaren is only a leader, not the magnificent batter he was; we want the vigor of youth; there is need for youth and, more than all, there is need for fighting cricketers.

UNNECESSARY FEAR.

The fear of a personal failure amounted to an obsession in this game. Right through, our batting, which has never reached greatness in any one of the present series of matches, was poor. Hobbs and Sharp, however, have completely justified themselves, and plead eloquently on behalf of a new and younger school. Barnes bowled extremely well from the beginning to the end —much better than any set of figures suggests. Rhodes was something like the bowler he once was in the first innings of the Australians; but I am afraid that Hirst, so far as international games are concerned, has had his day. He still bowls well, but not like the Hirst of old, and in an inexcusable way—in Test matches, at all events—has allowed his batting to become stodgy, and, like that of Rhodes dreadfully unenterprising. One has been forced to the conclusion that the cry of the "old man" is perfectly justified."

ICED CARS FOR CHEESE ON THE RAILWAYS

Commencing on Monday to last week, for a period of ten weeks, the usual iced car service for cheese will be provided by the Dominion Government's Cold Storage Branch. Under the arrangement made with the railway companies the Government agrees to pay icing charges up to $5.00 per car on a certain number of cars per week. The cars are supplied by the railway companies on demand of shippers for shipment of cheese in carload lots at the regular tariff rate without extra charge for the icing. The ten weeks period referred to commenced on July 5th and will end on September 11th. Last year between eleven and twelve hundred iced cars were furnished and shipped in the cheese producing districts of Ontario and Quebec without any regard for the ice supply.

DEFENDANT GIVEN THE BENEFIT OF THE DOUBT

Charged With Supplying Blacklister With Liquor on Tuesday—The Evidence in Court This Morning

A charge of having purchased or procured liquor and unlawfully given it to James Wilson, a blacklister, was not proven against Roland Butcher at the police court this morning, and he was discharged, the Magistrate stating that he would give the defendant the benefit of the doubt, but if he was ever found guilty of a like offence, he would be severely dealt with.

James Wilson, who was recently fined $10.00 for being found under the influence of liquor, was called to the witness box, and stated that Butcher, who he thought was intoxicated at the time, gave him the liquor. He had given Butcher one dollar, and he had got a pail of lager and a flask of whiskey. Shortly afterwards he (Wilson) had come across a man in the west part of the city, who was lying under some trees, drunk. When asked what he was doing there the man stated he was sleeping. He asked to be driven to an hotel, and he (Wilson) drove him there. The man asked him to have a drink, but he said he would like to, but was blacklisted. The stranger went into the bar and brought out a flask of whiskey and put it in the waggon, but could not tell who his friend was. He did not remember telling Butcher he was blacklisted.

DEFENDANT'S EVIDENCE.

Butcher stated he had known Wilson for two or three years, but had never drank with him to his knowledge.

"Did you buy him liquor last Tuesday?"

"No," replied witness. "I stopped him on the street and asked for ten cents, but he gave me one dollar. I went to an hotel to get 25 cents' worth of lager, but a quart was all I received. The liquor was put in a four quart pail, and I took it home with me?"

"Did you get any whiskey?"

"No. I got none at all. Wilson drove me to the house, and I had a glass of lager, but could not swear whether Wilson had any or not. I then went back down town and left him at the house with the pail."

"Did you give him back the change?"

"No."

"Do you ever intend to?"

"Yes."

"When did you learn he was blacklisted?"

"I never knew he was?"

James Wilson, recalled, said he had taken drinks with Butcher before being blacklisted, and had drank a bottle of whiskey at the house Tuesday.

"Were you sober at the time you gave him the dollar?"

"Yes."

"Did you tell him to get whiskey?"

"Yes."

"Was the pail more than half full?"

"Yes, I should judge it was."

"Who all were at the house?"

"Mrs. Butcher, Mrs. Crouter and the defendant."

"Why didn't you get the liquor yourself?"

"I couldn't."

The "High Priest," one Sturdivant, of the "Church of God" sect in New Jersey was arrested for keeping a disorderly house.

HOW THE LAKES BECOME KNOWN TO AMERICANS

The rush of visitors to the lakes this year is a big one. Most of the resorts are doing a splendid business, and every year sees them increasing in popularity.

It is often wondered by the people of this part of the country how the lakes become so widely known, and are visited in such large numbers. Outside of the fact of visitors giving their praise of the lakes as a summering region the reason of their popularity may be attributed to a large extent to the fact that the Stony Lake Navigation Company, which controls the traffic on the lakes, has concurrences with over 60 American railroad lines. By reason of these is offered a through trip at a rate and for their own benefit the railroads do considerable circular and newspaper advertising, thus giving the lakes a publicity which attracts many who otherwise would not know them.

JIM JEFFRIES EARNS A LOT OF MONEY WHILE ON TOUR

From The Toronto Star.

Jim Jeffries and Mrs. Jeffries, accompanied by Sam Berger and the announcer, left last night for the west after the show at Hanlan's Point. Jeffries was very nervous about missing the boat, though he had forty minutes in which to get a rubdown and dress.

Mrs. Jeffries was on hand good and early, and the "undefeated champion" said that she was a model wife in that respect, inasmuch as she never missed a train or boat in her life, and was always on the spot from 20 to 30 minutes ahead of schedule time.

"I'm sorry I can't say the same for myself," he said.

Jeffries has great faith in the rope-skipping. He tripped several times last night, and a little 10-year-old girl in the crowd remarked that she could do better herself, but after the champion got going the juvenile admitted that he was a fair skipper. He is very light on his feet for a big man, and bounces around the ring like a toe-dancer. When he is in hard training he skips for 20 minutes without stopping, and has two or three sessions a day. He side-steps both ways, jumps, runs, kicks, and hops while skipping, and if you think its as easy as it looks, just try it yourself.

Jeffries has immense shoulders and arms. That's where most of his weight is located, his underpinning being strong and well-proportioned. He said last night that he astonished himself by the amount of weight he had taken off since he started active training again. His old underclothes are no longer of any service, and have been shipped back home by a frugal wife to do duty at some later date. He told Ed. Barrow that both Barrow and himself could find room in the old clothes, and Ed. is a pretty fair-sized man himself.

The story that his hands have gone beyond redemption was laughed at by Jeffries. He showed both hands after the bandages had been removed, and they looked to be all right.

"That left hand was very sore awhile ago, but it's all right again, and it doesn't hurt when I wallop the bag or Sam Berger," said Jeffries. "Sure, they try to make capital out of everything. I never saw so much knocking in my life. I didn't know I was so unpopular in my own country until I started this trip. However, the knocks don't hurt if they arn't deserved. The only ones that offend are those that are true. 'Pon my word, I think it helps a fellow to be knocked occasionally. At least, that is my experience. Four years ago everybody boosted me so much that nobody would fight me, and I had to get out of the ring. Now there are some knockers abroad, and I'm getting some money. They say I'll never fight Johnson. Well, you'll see, and they'll see. If I can drag him into the ring I'll get him there, and then let the better man win. I have no fear of the outcome."

Jeffries receives $2,500 per week, and his contract calls for forty weeks, so that his present tour, which ends in ten days' time at Kansas City, will earn him exactly $100,000, of which at least $90,000 is clear profit.

Pretty soft for 10 minutes twice a day.

LOCAL GOLFERS DEFEATED LINDSAY PLAYERS YESTERDAY

A number of golf enthusiasts from Lindsay arrived in the city yesterday on the noon train, and in the afternoon played a game with the local golfers, the latter winning by 10 to 5. The visitors were met at the station by several of the local players, and escorted to the golf links, where luncheon was served.

The game occupied the whole of the afternoon, after which all the players and a few friends sat down to tea. The visitors returned home on the nine o'clock train after stating that they had spent a most enjoyable time. The Peterborough golfers will likely go to Lindsay in the near future.

The players and their score were as follows—

SEVERAL DARK HORSES FOR TO-MORROW'S GAMES

The latest rumors in City League doings is to the effect that there will be some big surprises offered by the teams in their games tomorrow at the Oval. At a recent meeting the executive handed out three extra certificates to each team, as it was necessary on account of many of the players leaving the city on holidays. There are several ball tossers of Midland League calibre who have been residing in the city all summer, but their presence here has just lately been found out by the managers. These players have been signed, and, according to reports have showed good form in practice.

Which teams has the players cannot be ascertained, but in view of the keen interest in the games tomorrow, the large number of fans who intend to witness the exhibitions are sure of seeing some fast work. Strathconas and T.A.S. play at two, with the West Ends and P.A.C. at 3.30. The Oval is in great shape at the present time and conditons are more favorable for ball games than in any other place in the city.

LINES ON SPORT

With the New York Giants the sacrifice hit is practically a thing of the past. Four weeks ago McGraw surprised his players by telling them to drop that ancient landmark of the game and to "bust the ball in the eye." They hewed straight to the mark, and as a result they won 16 out of 18 games. The only time they sacrifice now is when a runner is on second and they want to shove him up to third so that a long fly can score him.

While it may not be true to tradition, the Giants have found that in 11 games the percentage on advancing runners to second when the ball was hit hard has been greater than on sacrifices. In Philadelphia they hit the ball out in successive innings, and as the infield was closed in on both occasions, expecting a sacrifice, the raps went for singles, and in a few more minutes the game was sewed up.

The Peterborough Lawn Tennis Association has given the game a big boost here. Mr. Harold Clayton who promoted the organization deserves great credit.

---

Dickie Rudolph, the kid twirler of the Toronto team, and Fred Mitchell, the pitcher-catcher, will pull off a preliminary stunt at the Svanberg-Longboat race to-morrow night in Toronto. Each thinks he can run the fastest and somebody will get the laugh.

---

Q.—Can the players of the losing side go to bat out of their regular order in the ninth inning, or do they have to wait until after two men are out?

A.—No club has the right to send its players to bat in any order but the regular batting order. A batter can be taken out of the game at any time, however, and a player not already in the game can be substituted at bat for them, in which case the player for whom the other was substituted cannot return to the game.

TOMMY BURNS IS POPULAR

Owen Moran Says English People All Like Tommy

Owen Moran, featherweight champion pugilist of England, arrived in town yesterday on his way east. The little champion refused to discuss his present plans, but is awaiting some match, with whom he would not say, but in all probability he may be matched with some of the featherweights for a bout in Windsor or some of the fighters with national reputations may be brought there to meet the English champion.

It has been generally thought that Moran was an Englishman, but he denies that, as he is entirely of French descent. At the present time he is in perfect condition and his muscles are as hard as nails.

Since coming to this country Moran has dropped his foreign accent and, to the surprise of many, is as Americanized as most native Americans.

Moran would not give his opinion on any of the fighters in this country at the present time, except Abe Attel, the American featherweight champion.

"Attel is a clever fighter," said Moran, but he would not be able to go a distance fight with me. He jabs and jumps back. He is a footrunner.

"There are a lot of clever fighters in England that have never been heard of in this country," said the English campion. "They will not come over here, as the only place where they can get good bouts in on the coast and they do not think it worth their while to make the long trip."

In speaking of Tommy Burns, Moran said that the former heavyweight champion is still as popular in England as he was before his defeat by Jack Johnson. "The English people all like Tommy," said Moran.

FOOTBALL

BOWMANVILLE SQUEALING.

The Bowmanville Statesman and the News came to hand last week and they contain accounts of the recent football game at Hampton, which are, to say the least, most unfair to the referee, Mr. E. Brumwell, and entirely misleading in general. They blame the loss of the game on the referee, instead of being honest and manly enough to give the locals credit for their superior play. Mr. Brumwell's decisions were never questioned during the game, and when the teams could not agree on some trivial point he invariably tossed the ball up, thereby giving neither an advantage. Both the Statesman and the News should be ashamed of their false account of the game and should tender Mr. Brumwell an ample and early apology.—Havelock Standard.

TO PLAY CLAREMONT.

The first semi-final game for the provincial championship will take place at Claremont on Saturday evening when the locals will meet the Claremont team.

The Havelock team will leave on the afternoon train, and everyone is hoping that they will continue their victorious record.

The return game with Claremont will take place at the park here on Wednesday afternoon of next week at 2 o'clock.—Havelock Standard.

Homemade Ditch Digger.

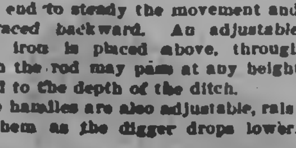
A complete homemade ditch digger may be made by following the description here given.

The bed piece, five and a half inches long, is cut out of a hard plank two and a half inches thick, bolted at each end and in the middle to prevent splitting. The rear half is nine inches wide and the front half six inches wide.

The diggers are made of steel bars two and a half inches wide, three-quarters of an inch thick and twenty-four inches long. They are fastened to the plank by a right angle turn and bolted. The two rear diggers are held firmly by a rod with nuts inside and out, the points being spread out so that the bed piece can easily drop into the space when the ditch is two feet or more in depth. The front digger is the same size, but set in the middle. All are held firmly by brace rods and sharpened like the flat end of a pickax. A wheel is set under the front end to steady the movement and is braced backward. An adjustable draw iron is placed above, through which the rod may pass at any height suited to the depth of the ditch.

The handles are also adjustable, raising them as the digger drops lower.



THE DIGGER EQUIPPED.

In hard subsoils one will save the cost of this simple device in digging seventy-five rods of ditch. In our hardpan sections of the east, which always need drainage, one does not feel encouraged to dig ditches with pick and shovel when more than half the energy is required to loosen the dirt. With this machine the toughest subsoil when dry handles as rapidly as loose sand.

Diarrhea in Fowls.

For white diarrhea in fowls the following is recommended: A teaspoonful of castor oil, followed by five grains of rhubarb and ten grains of carbonate of soda, or a grain of opium. During the attack and for a little time after its abatement the bird should be fed on soft food and have no green vegetables. For young chicks half a teaspoonful of olive oil is preferable to castor oil, and boiled rice should be fed.

A WRONG NOTION.

Every Woman Doesn't Take to Housekeeping Naturally.

The notion seems to be prevalent because a woman is a woman she ought to know how to keep house, just as many think when she becomes a mother she will instinctively know how to care for and bring up the baby.

Both are prevalent notions that have done much harm. The haphazard housekeeping that rules in many a home is often the result of this very belief that knowledge of housework will come as naturally as a duck takes to water.

A girl would not undertake bookkeeping or even the most ordinary business position without having studied for it to some extent. What a sorry mess she would make of it if she did, and how quickly she would lose her position! But a girl will enter blithely into matrimony without the slightest preparation for the housekeeping that is as sure a part of it in nine cases out of ten as the putting on of the wedding ring. And housekeeping is a business, a profession, an art. As compared with the ordinary business life it is as calculus to short division.

If the new housekeeper be an exceptional, earnest, ambitious, conscientious girl she may win out in time, but through much tribulation.

If she be a girl of less fine caliber she struggles along for awhile, then gives up in despair. Housework becomes a synonym of unpleasant, uncongenial work, of drudgery, and she drifts into the haphazard, unthrifty kind that is one of the smoothest worn roads to the divorce court, though it is not often so named in the suit.

Training would have obviated all this and in addition put a keen joy into the work she has elected to do of which the untrained has little comprehension.

When a woman thoroughly and scientifically understands housekeeping it becomes a delight. It is first a joy to know that she is giving her loved ones a home in the truest sense of the word, bright, beautiful, sanitary, healthful; to know she is spending the family income wisely; that she is getting value received for her money; that she is providing nourishing food so combined chemically at each meal as to give the highest food value and the utmost palatableness.

In addition to the joy of this personal science there is the professional delight of meeting and mastering the problems that arise. They are just as big as, often far more important and farreaching than, the problems of the business girl's day. The untrained do not know there are such problems, or if a big matter does come up which they feel they are not capable of coping with they skirt in a dissatisfied way around the edge of it because they know not what else to do with it. Not so the trained woman. She grapples it and conquers it as the stenographer does a hard letter or the bookkeeper her trial balance. And she has the same keen joy the business woman experiences in performing her work well, but with the added happiness of knowing this is not business, but the work of making loved ones happy.

Use Linen Strips in Packing.

If you go off on frequent jaunts it is a great help to have the following articles, which with a machine can be made in a few moments and after using can be laid away for future use. Bind strips of linen in different colors about a yard wide and three-quarters of a yard long with white linen tape or merely hem them if you prefer to save the time. In the green one, we will say, lay your linen and plain white waists. Fold it over and button or pin together with safety pins.

In the blue one place your lingerie waists. In smaller ones of suitable sizes put your stocks and belts, in another your veils, with a stiff square of cardboard to hold them flat. Bind squares fifteen or sixteen inches and sew tapes to one corner for your shoes, which can be rolled up like a package diagonally, with the ends turned in and tied.

Vary these colors for convenience in finding them. You can outline in embroidery cotton, if you care to, "Ties," "Pumps," "Shoes," "Rubbers," or merely pin a written label on each. The cases containing these accessories can be laid in a drawer on your arrival.

She Will Outgrow It.

The hatband shown is the latest device for protecting children from too demonstrative friends. It is suggested that the little maid will outgrow her own motto in the course of time.

Keeping Cakes Fresh.

Cookies put in an earthen jar lined with clean cloth, while they are still hot and kept covered close, will be much more melting and crumbly than if they were allowed to cool in the air.

---

Mrs. Emily Williamson, a famous [illegible] and clubwoman, died in Elizabeth, N.J.

Her Discovery.

A fair maid from the city saw a queer thing on a tree. She said: "Oh, ain't it pretty? Whatever can it be?" With a stick she poked it—to her beauty's ruination, for, alas, it proved to be a hornet's habitation.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Merely a Starter.

Long—Did old Millions kick when he found you in the parlor with his daughter last night?

Short—Oh, not much. He only kicked me from the front step. I went the rest of the way myself.—Boston Globe.

What's the Use?

"Help, help! Save me!"

"Don't waste your breath, man. What d'ye s'pose I rowed all this way fer—to ask ye for a match?"—Browning's Magazine.

A Safe Thing to Do.

When purchasing the material for a blouse or dress it is as well to get half a yard or so more, in view of alteration contingencies. If the dressmaker can be prevailed upon to return any pieces of waste the extra half yard might not be needed; also should the wearer be the maker of the blouse or bodice in question. But, of course, much depends on the style and the quantity purchased, as in many cases the pieces left over are not enough to do much in the way of renovation.

Carmen Sylva on Woman's Rights.

Mrs. Walker Fearn is lecturing in this country for the blind, and incidentally she is telling what she knows about the good queen of Roumania, Carmen Sylva. The queen is not a suffragist, and her opinions upon the subject were quoted as follows: "Women's rights? We have the right to suffer, to be patient, to work, to help, to be virtuous and to make men so. What more do we want?"

THE Masquerader

By KATHERINE CECIL THURSTON,

Author of "The Circle," Etc.

Copyright, 1903, 1904, by Harper & Brothers

He took a step forward. "What thing?" he said. He was almost ashamed of the sudden, inordinate satisfaction that welled up at her words.

"Oh, I mustn't tell you!" She laughed a little. "But you have surprised him." She paused, sipped her tea, then looked up again with a change of expression.

"John," she said more seriously, "there is one point that sticks a little. Will this great change last?" Her voice was direct and even, wonderfully direct for a woman, Loder thought. It came to him with a certain force that beneath her remarkable charm might possibly lie a remarkable character. It was not a possibility that had occurred to him before, and it caused him to look at her a second time. In the new light he saw her beauty differently, and it interested him differently. Heretofore he had been inclined to class women under three heads—idols, amusements and encumbrances. Now it crossed his mind that a woman might possibly fill another place—the place of a companion.

"You are very skeptical," he said, still looking down at her.

She did not return his glance. "I think I have been made skeptical," she said.

As she spoke the image of Chilcote shot through his mind—Chilcote, irritable, vicious, unstable—and a quick compassion for this woman so inevitably shackled to him followed it.

Eve, unconscious of what was passing in his mind, went on with her subject.

"When we were married," she said gently, "I had such a great interest in things, such a great belief in life. I had lived in politics, and I was marrying one of the coming men—everybody said you were one of the coming men. I scarcely felt there was anything left to ask for. You didn't make very ardent love," she smiled, "but I think I had forgotten about love. I wanted nothing so much as to be like Lady Sarah—married to a great man." She paused, then went on more hurriedly: "For awhile things went right; then slowly things went wrong. You got your—your nerves."

Loder changed his position with something of abruptness.

She misconstrued the action.

"Please don't think I want to be disagreeable," she said hastily. "I don't. I'm only trying to make you understand why—why I lost heart."

"I think I know," Loder's voice broke in involuntarily. "Things got worse, then still worse. You found interference useless. At last you ceased to have a husband."

"Until a week ago." She glanced up quickly. Absorbed in her own feelings, she had seen nothing extraordinary in his words.

But at hers Loder changed color.

"It's the most incredible thing in the world," she said. "It's quite incredible, and yet I can't deny it. Against all my reason, all my experience, all my inclination, I seem to feel in the last week something of what I felt at first." She stopped with an embarrassed laugh. "It seems that, as if by magic, life has been picked up where I dropped it six years ago." Again she stopped and laughed.

Loder was keenly uncomfortable, but he could think of nothing to say.

"It seemed to begin that night I dined with the Fraides," she went on. "Mr. Fraide talked so wisely and so kindly about so many things. He recalled all we had hoped for in you, and—and he blamed me a little." She paused and laid her cup aside. "He said that when people have made what they call their last effort they should always make just one effort more. He promised that if I could once persuade you to take an interest in your work he would do the rest. He said all that and a thousand other kinder things, and I sat and listened. But all the time I thought of nothing but their uselessness. Before I left I promised to do my best, but my thought was still the same. It was stronger than ever when I forced myself to come up here"— She paused again and glanced at Loder's averted head. "But I came, and then, as if by conquering myself I had compelled a reward, you seemed, you somehow seemed different. It sounds ridiculous, I know." Her voice was half amused, half deprecating. "It wasn't a difference in your face, though I knew directly that you were free from nerves." Again she hesitated over the word. "It was a difference in yourself, in the things you said, more than in the way you said them." Once more she paused and laughed a little.

Loder's discomfort grew.

"But it didn't affect me then." She spoke more slowly. "I wouldn't admit it then. And the next day when we talked on the terrace I still refused to admit it, though I felt it more strongly than before. But I have watched you since that day, and I know there is a change. Mr. Fraide feels the same, and he is never mistaken. I know it's only nine or ten days, but I've hardly seen you in the same mood for nine or ten hours in the last three years." She stopped, and the silence was impressive. It seemed to plead for confirmation of her instinct.

Still Loder could find no response.

After waiting for a moment she leaned forward in her chair and looked up at him.

"John," she said, "is it going to last? That's what I came to ask. I don't want to believe till I'm sure. I don't want to risk a new disappointment." Loder felt the earnestness of her gaze, though he avoided meeting it.

"I couldn't have said this to you a week ago, but today I can. I don't pretend to explain why. The feeling is too inexplicable. I only know that I can say it now and that I couldn't a week ago. Will you understand—and answer?"

Still Loder remained mute. His position was horribly incongruous. What could he say? What dared he say?

Confused by his silence, Eve rose.

"If it's only a phase, don't try to hide it," she said. "But if it's going to last—if by any possibility it's going to last"— She hesitated and looked up.

She was quite close to him. He would have been less than man had he been unconscious of the subtle contact of her glance, the nearness of her presence, and no one had ever hinted that manhood was lacking in him. It was a moment of temptation. His own energy, his own intentions, seemed so near, Chilcote and Chilcote's claims so distant and unreal. After all, his life, his ambitions, his determinations, were his own. He lifted his eyes and looked at her.

"You want me to tell you that I will go on?" he said.

Her eyes brightened. She took a step forward. "Yes," she said; "I want it more than anything in the world."

There was a wait. The declaration that would satisfy her came to Loder's lips, but he delayed it. The delay was fateful. While he stood silent the door opened, and the servant who had brought in the tea reappeared.

He crossed the room and handed Loder a telegram. "Any answer, sir?" he said.

Eve moved back to her chair. There was a flush on her cheeks, and her eyes were still alertly bright.

Loder tore the telegram open, read it, then threw it into the fire.

"No answer!" he said laconically.

At the brusqueness of his voice Eve looked up. "Disagreeable news?" she said as the servant departed.

He didn't look at her. He was watching the telegram withering in the center of the fire.

"No," he said at last in a strained voice. "No; only news that I—that I had forgotten to expect."

CHAPTER XI.

THERE was a silence, an uneasy break, after Loder spoke. The episode of the telegram was, to all appearances, ordinary enough, calling forth Eve's question and his own reply as a natural sequence, yet in the pause that followed it each was conscious of a jar, each was aware that in some subtle way the thread of sympathy had been dropped, though to one the cause was inexplicable and to the other only too plain.

Loder watched the ghost of his message grow whiter and thinner, then dissolve into airy fragments and flutter up the chimney. As the last morsel wavered out of sight he turned and looked at his companion.

"You almost made me commit myself," he said. In the desire to hide his feelings his tone was short.

Eve returned his glance with a quiet regard, but he scarcely saw it. He had a stupefied sense of disaster, a feeling of bitter self commiseration that for the moment outweighed all other considerations. Almost at the moment of justification the good of life had crumbled in his fingers, the soil given beneath his feet, and with an absence of logic, a lack of justice unusual in him, he let resentment against Chilcote sweep suddenly over his mind.

Eve, still watching him, saw the darkening of his expression and with a quiet movement rose from her chair.

"Lady Sarah has a theater party tonight, and I am dining with her," she said. "It is an early dinner, so I must think about dressing. I'm sorry you think I tried to draw you into anything. I must have explained myself badly." She laughed a little to cover the slight discomfiture that her tone betrayed, and as she laughed she moved across the room toward the door.

Loder, engrossed in the check to his own schemes, incensed at the suddenness of Chilcote's recall and still more incensed at his own folly in not having anticipated it, was oblivious for the moment of both her movement and her words. Then quite abruptly they obtruded themselves upon him, breaking through his egotism with something of the sharpness of pain following a blow. Turning quickly from the fireplace, he faced the shadowy room across which she had passed, but simultaneously with his turning she gained the door.

The knowledge that she was gone struck him with a sense of double loss. "Wait!" he called, suddenly moving forward. But almost at once he paused, chilled by the solitude of the room.

"Eve!" he said, using her name unconsciously for the first time.

But the corridor, as well as the room, was empty; he was too late. He stood irresolute; then he laughed shortly, turned and passed back toward the fireplace.

The blow had fallen, the inevitable come to pass, and nothing remained but to take the fact with as good a grace as possible. Chilcote's telegram had summoned him to Clifford's inn at 7 o'clock, and it was now well on toward 6. He pulled out his watch—Chilcote's watch, he realized with a touch of grim humor as he stooped to examine the dial by the light of the fire—then, as if the humor had verged to another feeling, he stood straight again and felt for the electric button in the wall. His fingers touched it, and simultaneously the room was lighted.

The abrupt alteration from shadow to light came almost as a shock. The feminine arrangement of the tea table seemed incongruous beside the sober books and the desk laden with papers—incongruous as his own presence in the place. The thought was unpleasant, and he turned aside as if to avoid it, but at the movement his eyes fell on Chilcote's cigarette box with its gleaming monogram, and the whimsical suggestion of his first morning rose again. The idea that the inanimate objects in the room knew him for what he was, recognised the interloper where human eyes saw the rightful possessor, returned to his mind. Through all his disgust and chagrin a smile forced itself to his lips, and, crossing the room for the second time, he passed into Chilcote's bedroom.

There the massive furniture and somber atmosphere fitted better with his mood than the energy and action which the study always suggested. Walking directly to the great bed, he sat on its side and for several minutes stared straight in front of him, apparently seeing nothing; then at last the apathy passed from him, as his previous anger against Chilcote had passed. He stood up slowly, drawing his long limbs together, and recrossed the room, passing along the corridor and through the door communicating with the rest of the house. Five minutes later he was in the open air and walking steadily eastward, his hat drawn forward and his overcoat buttoned up.

As he traversed the streets he allowed himself no thought. Once, as he waited in Trafalgar square to find a passage between the vehicles, the remembrance of Chilcote's voice coming out of the fog on their first night made itself prominent, but he rejected it quickly, guarding himself from even an involuntary glance at the place of their meeting. The Strand, with its unceasing life, came to him as something almost unfamiliar. Since his identification with the new life no business had drawn him east of Charing Cross, and his first sight of the narrower stream of traffic struck him as garish and unpleasant. As the impression came he accelerated his steps, moved by the wish to make regret and retrospection alike impossible by a contact with actual forces.

Still walking hastily, he entered Clifford's inn, but there almost unconsciously his feet halted. There was something in the quiet immutability of the place that sobered energy, both mental and physical; a sense of changelessness—the changelessness of inanimate things, that rises in such solemn contrast to the variableness of mere human nature, which a new environment, a new outlook, sometimes even a new presence, has power to upheave and remold. He paused, then with slower and steadier steps crossed the little court and mounted the familiar stairs of his own house.

As he turned the handle of his own door some one stirred inside the sitting room. Still under the influence of the stones and trees that he had just left, he moved directly toward the sound and, without waiting for permission, entered the room. After the darkness of the passage it seemed well alight, for, besides the lamp with its green shade, a large fire burned in the grate and helped to dispel the shadows.

As he entered the room Chilcote rose and came forward, his figure thrown into strong relief by the double light. He was dressed in a shabby tweed suit; his face looked pale and set with a slightly nervous tension. But, besides the look and a certain added restlessness of glance, there was no visible change. Reaching Loder, he held out his hand.

"Well?" he said quickly.

The other looked at him questioningly.

"Well? Well? How has it gone?"

"The scheme? Oh, excellently!" Loder's manner was abrupt. Turning from the restless curiosity in Chilcote's eyes, he moved a little way across the room and began to draw off his coat. Then, as if struck by the incivility of the action, he looked back again. "The scheme has gone extraordinarily," he said. "I could almost say absurdly. There are some things, Chilcote, that fairly bowl a man over."

A great relief tinged Chilcote's face. "Good!" he exclaimed. "Tell me all about it."

But Loder was reticent. The moment was not propitious. It was as if a hungry man had dreamed a great banquet and had awakened to his starvation. He was chary of imparting his visions.

"There's nothing to tell," he said shortly. "All that you'll want to know is here in black and white. I don't think you'll find I have slipped anything. It's a clear business record." From an inner pocket he drew out a bulky notebook and, recrossing the room, laid it open on the table. It was a correct, even a minute, record of every action that had been accomplished in Chilcote's name. "I don't think you'll find any loose ends," he said as he turned back the pages. "I had you and your position in my mind all through." He paused and glanced up from the book. "You have a position that absolutely insists upon attention," he added in a different voice.

At the new tone Chilcote looked up as well. "No moral lectures!" he said, with a nervous laugh. "I was anxious to know if you had pulled it off—and you have reassured me. That's enough. I was in a funk this afternoon to know how things were going—one of those sudden, unreasonable funks. But now that I see you"—he cut himself short and laughed once more—"now that I see you, I'm hanged if I don't want to prolong your engagement."

Loder glanced at him, then glanced away. He felt a quick shame at the eagerness that rose at the words—a surprised contempt at his own readiness to anticipate the man's weakness. But almost as speedily as he had turned away he looked back again.

"Tush, man!" he said, with his old intolerant manner. "You're dreaming. You've had your holiday, and school's begun again. You must remember you are dining with the Charringtons tonight. Young Charrington's coming of age—quite a big business. Come along. I want my clothes." He laughed and, moving closer to Chilcote, slapped him on the shoulder.

Chilcote started; then, suddenly becoming imbued with the other's manner, he echoed the laugh.

"By Jove," he said, "you're right! You're quite right. A man must keep his feet in their own groove." Raising his hand, he began to fumble with his tie.

But Loder kept the same position. "You'll find the check book in its usual drawer," he said. "I've made one entry of £100, pay for the first week. The rest can stand over until"— He paused abruptly.

Chilcote shifted his position. "Don't talk about that. It upsets me to anticipate. I can make out a check tomorrow payable to John Loder."

"No. That can wait. The name of Loder is better out of the book. We can't be too careful." Loder spoke with unusual impetuosity. Already a slight, unreasonable jealousy was coloring his thoughts. Already he grudged the idea of Chilcote with his unstable glance and restless fingers opening the drawers and sorting the papers that for one stupendous fortnight had been his without question. Turning aside, he changed the subject brusquely.

"Come into the bedroom," he said. "It's half past 7 if it's a minute, and the Charrington's show is at 9." Without waiting for a reply, he walked across the room and held the door open.

There was no silence while they exchanged clothes. Loder talked continuously, sometimes in short, curt sentences, sometimes with ironic touches of humor; he talked until Chilcote, strangely affected by contact with another personality after his weeks of solitude, fell under his influence, his excitement rising, his imagination stirring at the novelty of change. At last, garbed once more in the clothes of his own world, he passed from the bedroom back into the sitting room and there halted, waiting for his companion.

Almost directly Loder followed. He came into the room quietly and, moving at once to the table, picked up the notebook.

"I'm not going to preach," he began, "so you needn't shut me up. But I'll say just one thing—a thing that will get said. Try to keep your hold! Remember your responsibilities and keep your hold!" He spoke energetically, looking earnestly into Chilcote's eyes. He did not realize it, but he was pleading for his own career.

Chilcote paled a little, as he always did in face of a reality. Then he extended his hand.

"My dear fellow," he said, with a touch of hauteur, "a man can generally be trusted to look after his own life."

Extricating his hand almost immediately, he turned toward the door and without a word of farewell passed into the little hall, leaving Loder alone in the sitting room.

CHAPTER XII.

ON the night of Chilcote's return to his own Loder tasted the lees of life poignantly for the first time. Before their curious compact had been entered upon he had been, if not content, at least apathetic; but with action the apathy had been dispersed, never again to regain its old position.

He realized with bitter certainty that his was no real home coming. On entering Chilcote's house he had experienced none of the unfamiliarity, none of the unsettled awkwardness, that assailed him now. There he had almost seemed the exile returning after many hardships; here, in the atmosphere made common by years, he felt an alien. It was illustrative of the man's character that sentimentalities found no place in his nature. Sentiments were not lacking, though they lay out of sight, but sentimentalities he altogether denied.

Left alone in the sitting room after Chilcote's departure, his first sensation was one of physical discomfort and unfamiliarity. His own clothes, with their worn looseness, brought no sense of friendliness such as some men find in an old garment. Lounging and the clothes that suggested lounging had no appeal for him. In his eyes the garb that implies responsibility was symbolic and even inspiring.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Canifton, Ont.—"I had been a great sufferer for five years. One doctor told me it was ulcers of the uterus, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor. No one knows what I suffered. I would always be worse at certain periods, and never was regular, and the bearing-down pains were terrible. I was very ill in bed, and the doctor told me I would have to have an operation, and that I might die during the operation. I wrote to my sister about it and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Through personal experience I have found it the best medicine in the world for female troubles, for it has cured me, and I did not have to have the operation after all. The Compound also helped me while passing through Change of Life."—Mrs. LETITIA BLAIR, Canifton, Ontario.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to suffering women.

CARDINAL GIBBONS MAKES AN ATTACK ON MINISTERS

"Eager and Reckless Manner" in Which They Officiate at Marriages—Canada an Example to United States—Peace and Good Order in Family Life Contrasted With the United States.

Baltimore, Md., July 15.—Referring to the views on divorce by former Supreme Court Justice Brown at the State Bar Association, Cardinal Gibbons said yesterday:

"I entertain the highest esteem for Justice Brown, both as a citizen and a jurist. Any deliberate opinion pronounced by this conspicuous citizen is worthy of grave consideration.

"In a recent convention of lawyers held at Old Point Comfort, Justice Brown while referring to myself, in kind and courteous language, has taken exception to my views on divorce and re-marriage. He is reported to have referred to the founder of the Christian religion as an 'idealist' whose sentiments, while suitable to less favored times and circumstances, are not adapted to this enlightened age.

BASIS OF LEGISLATION.

"The learned jurist will permit me to say that the teachings of Christ have been the basis of all Christian legislation for nearly 2,000 years and continue to be the light and guide of hundreds of millions of souls. We are indebted to this divine legislator for the Christian civilization that rules the destinies of Europe, North and South America, Australia and large portions of Asia and Africa.

"Neither Solomon, nor Licurgus, nor Justinian, nor Napoleon, nor any other framer of laws ever exerted a tithe of the influence which the gospel of Christ exercises on the human race. And there is no subject which he treats more fully and clearly than the question of marriage, which is the very foundation stone of our family and social life. In three of the gospels he proclaims the unity of marriage and permits separation of a married couple only in the case of adultry. I don't see why a law which has been enforced and cordially accepted in every age and country where Christianity dominates should be considered obsolete or impracticable in the United States.

RECKLESS MINISTERS.

"The multiplication of divorces," the cardinal continued, "is largely ascribed by some writers, not to our divorce laws, but to the eager and reckless manner in which ministers of God officiate at marriage services. I have no word of apology or excuse for the scandalous conduct of some clergymen in this respect, but are not those persons compounding cause for effect? Divorces are multiplied not because loose legislation or matrimony renders it easy for married parties to annul the marriage bond.

"If the civil laws of all our states were as strict as they are in South Carolina and in Canada, the persons contemplating marriage would seriously and prayerfully reflect, they would study each other's disposition and temperament before engaging in a contract which would bind them for life. And certainly the peace and good order in the family life in South Carolina and Canada can be favorably compared with the domestic conditions existing in those states where divorces can be easily obtained."

A VERY GIFTED FRENCH ACTRESS

Yvette Gulbert Chats of English Audience—Charming Personality

In her charming house, in Paris, Yvette Guilbert, the famous danseuse and singer, chatted most entertainingly of her engagements in London and the United States. When asked if she found the foreign audience a very exigent one, she declared:

"All music hall and vaudeville audiences are difficult, because not only has one to please the stalls and the boxes, but one has also to gain the favor of the pit and gallery. For a singer, especially a singer who for the most part, except when she is in her own country, sings in a foreign tongue, this is particularly difficult. An effect, for example, which would appeal irresistibly to the imagination of the occupants of the stalls, will be totally lost upon those who are in the gallery, and vice versa. It is this necessity of pleasing two kinds of artistic appreciation at the same time which makes singing before such audiences such a difficult matter."

ENGLISH AUDIENCE CHANGED

Madame Guilbert says English audiences have in the last few years undergone a marvelous change from the cool, correct and horribly distant to the gay, witty and generous of applause. Recently in London she saw "The School for Scandal," which she considers one of the most beautiful productions she has ever seen in her life. Asked if the rumor were true that she would shortly appear in London as an actress, Madame Guilbert shook her head. "Alas! I cannot find a play suitable for my talents," she cried. "To appear as an English-speaking woman with my still far from perfect mastery over that language would be ridiculous."

HAS AN INTERESTING PERSONALITY.

In appearance Madame Guilbert is one of the most striking-looking women imaginable—a singularly mobile face, full of wonderful expression and variety that grace of movement and wealth of gesture which have made her famous throughout the world. She is also a particularly brilliant conversationalist and speaks English fluently. Her favorite streets are those in which the second-hand book shops are for her a perpetual delight. It was in one of these shops in London that she discovered a very old volume of English songs with the delectable title, "Pills to Purge Melancholy."

The peculiar methods which were first employed to bring Madame Guilbert into notice are now forgotten, and she is everywhere considered a great artist rather than as the mountebank those first introductions suggested.

GAVE PURSE AND $100 TO OWNER

Woman Well Rewarded for Her Honesty Yesterday.

Gave purse -

Yesterday after she had left the G.T.R. station a Montreal lady discovered that she had lost her purse, containing the sum of one hundred dollars. Mrs. Jobin, a woman who is forced to peddle for a living, owing to her husband having lost both arms and having a family of three children to support, found the purse and when the owner came back gave it to her. The latter was very grateful and substantially rewarded the finder for her honesty.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH WAS OPENED AT GORE'S LANDING

Sermon Preached by His Lordship Archbishop Sweeney—New Edifice Handsome and Complete An Auspicous Occasion.

An occasion of great interest in the progress of the Anglican religion at Gore's Landing, and the surrounding community was signalized yesterday by the opening of St. George's, the handsome new parish church. The function was lent dignity by the presence of His Lordship Archbishop Sweeney of Toronto, and several clergy of the diocese. Other than the Archbishop the clergy present were: Rev. O. E. Newton, St. George's; Rev. Creighton, Lakefield; Rev. H. R. Trumpour, All Saints', Peterborough; Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, St. Luke's; Rev. Rickards, Millbrook; Rev. Canon Spragge, Cobourg; Rev. E. Daniels, Port Hope; Rev. Mr. Summerhayes, a former incumbent of the parish.

On account of the progress of the parish it was found necessary to build a new church at Gore's Landing, and the place of worship opened yesterday is a complete and splendidly designed building. It has a cobblestone exterior, and in its position on the crest of the hill presents an attractive appearance. In the interior the pews are excellently arranged and a seating capacity for 160 persons is afforded. The interior is finished in splendid taste. All the seats are of quarter-cut oak and the woodwork is also finished in quarter cut oak.

The seats are made from a design of Augustus Bugin, the celebrated English architect, and were supplied by the Bronde Lumber Company, of Chatham. The windows were supplied by the Luxifer Prism Company.

Mr. G. F. Ward, of Peterborough, was the contractor for the work, and had largely a free hand in the plans and construction. He did his work in a thoroughly competent and satisfactory way, and Rev. Mr. Newton expressed himself as highly satisfied with the thorough manner in which Mr. Ward had performed his duties.

The interior of the church is set off to much advantage by a beautiful stained glass window in the chancel above the altar. It represents the first Easter morn, and is of artistic and appropriate design.

Yesterday's services were of a most interesting character. The church filled to overflowing, the steamers Stoney Lake and Otonabee taking down large crowds of excursionists. The congregation was so very large that the majority of these could not obtain admittance to the church, which was filled to such an extent that the crowd stood in the porch and on the steps.

Excellent music was given by All Saints' choir, which had rehearsed some time especially for the occasion.

His Lordship preached an impressive sermon.

LOCAL DELEGATES TO GRAND LODGE OF KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS ARE HOME

Messrs. Blewett and S. H. Baker, who worthily represented Marathon Lodge, Knights of Pythias, at the meeting of the Grand Lodge at St. Thomas on Tuesday and Wednesday returned home yesterday at noon. The reports presented at the gathering were of the most encouraging nature, showing the Knights of Pythias to be making rapid strides in the Dominion. The convention was also one of the most harmonious ever held.

The St. Thomas lodge of the order did themselves proud in entertaining the visiting delegates, nothing being spared to give them a good time. Excursions to points of interest in the locality and a sumptuous banquet figured in the entertainment programme. The visitors also had the freedom of the city and were hospitably entertained by the citizens of St. Thomas.

About a hundred delegates were in attendance. The invitation from Marathon Lodge of Peterborough to the Grand Lodge to meet in Peterborough next year was accepted, although other places made strong efforts to secure the gathering. Marathon Lodge is only a young lodge and it is to be congratulated on securing the 1910 meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Order.

FINED FOR CAUSING DISTURBANCE ON STREET

Brock Wright was fined $2.00 at police court this morning for creating a disturbance last night on Dublin street.

A witness stated that he heard several parties in a house at the corner of Division and Dublin streets quarreling, and they used bad language. The disturbance could be plainly heard on the street, but he could not see who the persons were in the house.

There were other witnesses in court, but they were not called upon, as the dewfemdant had pleaded guilty to the charge.

SMART TAILORED WAIST.

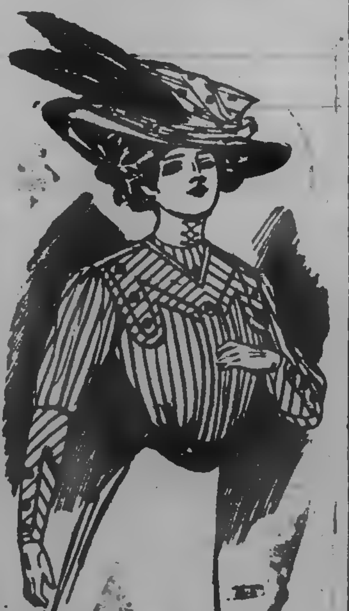
Something Attractive For the Girl In the Office.

As long as there are business women the shirt waist will remain a matter of importance. It is the garment best suited to her needs and whether tailored or fancy fills a place impossible for any form of one piece gown to usurp.

This season the tailored waist has come into its own after being relegated to the background for some time in favor of the lingerie blouse. The plain waist always seems more suitable for the workaday world, although it is rather trying to be forced to wear severe styles when one's heart longs for frilly, dainty clothes, and it is generally women that have never done a day's work downtown in dull offices who are first to criticise a girl for wearing pretty garments to business. The love of the beautiful can never be stifled in womankind no matter how much she may be tied down to iron rules and regulations, and it would indeed be a sorry, dull old world if it were not for the dainty feminine quality.



SHIRT WAIST FOR BUSINESS WEAR.

It is rather difficult to find a new model for the tailored waist, but one unusually smart is shown in the sketch and may be developed in linen, madras or percale. There are a prettily shaped yoke and a double box plait at the front. The buttons form an attractive note and may be of pearl or self covered. The skirt may match the blouse if linen is used or form a contrast. The newest sleeves show more fullness at the elbow or wrist, a number being on the bishop order, popular several seasons ago.

SHOULD BE HEARD.

Children Learn Many Useful Lessons From Conversation at Table.

It is surprising to find young people whose parents are brilliant or at least fluent talkers among the silent, bashful ones who have no gift at all in conversing. The family dinner should always be a feast of good cheer, to which each member of the family brings the best story, the choicest bit of wit he has chanced upon during the day.

This is the place where children are taught first correct table manners and then as they grow up are trained in the art of conversation. From the talk of their elders they will learn a great deal. The mother could enjoy devoting the whole time to conversing with the man of the house, but this she will not do because it would be rude and also because she realizes full well what a priceless chance this is to teach by practice the art of polite conversation. The bashful lad is encouraged to contribute his share. By skillful questions his mother may draw from him some incident he has privately told her. The more talkative children must not be allowed to interrupt the quiet fellow. By persevering care he may, without being aware that any "training" is going on, in this most pleasant way learn to talk freely and naturally.

The rude fashion tolerated in some families of breaking in upon a story with corrections and additions needs to be ruled out. People should have no greater courtesy for the most exalted guest than they habitually accord each other in their homes. Scolding and gossip are both unknown at such a board.

If the family contains other adults besides the parents there is even greater care needed to prevent the whole conversation being monopolized by the adults. There is no danger that young people thus carefully trained will be too much in evidence when guests are present. Do not allow girls and boys in their teens always to sit silent as sticks while parents and maiden aunts do all the talking, for they need to learn at this home table to do their share. The young man or maiden who can always "keep the ball rolling" has acquired an art of value in business as well as social life.

OPEN THE DOOR OF YOUR HEART

Open the door of your heart, my lad,
To the angel of love and truth,
When the world is full of unnumbered joys
In the beautiful dawn of youth.
Casting aside all things that mar,
Saying to wrong, "Depart!"
To the voices of hope that are calling you
Open the door of your heart,
Open the door of your heart, my lass,
To the things that shall abide;
To the holy thoughts that lift your soul
Like the stars at eventide,
All the fadeless flowers that bloom
In the realms of song and art
Are yours if you'll only give them room;
Open the door of your heart,
Open the door of your heart, my friend,
Heedless of class and creed,
When you hear the cry of a brother's voice,
The sob of a soul in need,
To the singing heavens that o'er you bend
You need no map nor chart;
But only the love of the Master;
Open the door of your heart.

CRISIS IN THE DEADLOCK IS EXPECTED ON MONDAY

Biggest Pay of Year is Dealt Out To-day and Drunkenness and Disorder Are Expected—U.M.W. Forces Are Becoming Apathetic.

Glace Bay, N.S., July 17.—President James Ross of the Dominion Coal Co. arrived yesterday morning and spent the day secreted with the company's officials, leaving at night by special train for Sydney. Officials would give no information concerning the meeting.

The town, which has been very quiet since July 5, will probably take on a more lively appearance to-day, when the biggest pay of the year will be distributed.

Since the 5th not one "drunk" has been arrested, but pay day usually sees a large number arrested for drunkenness.

Knowing that a strike was imminent, the men now on strike worked steadily before the strike was begun, hence the big pay sheet, which they will draw on.

The pay is up to June 30, so there is still nearly a week's pay coming to the men at the next fortnightly pay, the last of July.

Between $150,000 and $200,000 will be paid to-day. The men in the outside mines, No. 6, 12 and 14, were paid yesterday. In the afternoon the tin boxes containing the money for the men were taken to different places under an escort.

Strikers Apathetic.

Regarding the strike itself it looks as if the U.M.W. leaders will have to arouse the ardor of the men if they wish to get successfully over the critical period which is acknowledged to be near at hand.

There is danger of many of its adherents deserting, for coal miners as a rule cannot stand periods of inaction and idleness, and a strike of any magnitude is a novelty here.

Although it is thought that many of the U.M.W. men are weary and discouraged, yet the U.M.W. leaders are very optimistic. The test will likely be on Monday.

The output yesterday was about the same as Thursday.

EXCURSION DISASTER

Sunday School Train Wrecked at New Glasgow N. S.—One Man Meets Death

New Glasgow, N.S., July 17.—A special excursion train on the Pictou Landing branch of the Intercolonial Railway, carrying a Sunday school excursion met with an accident near New Glasgow yesterday. Fred Donkin, 16, was fatally injured and many others badly shaken up.

The cars were crowded by the Sunday school of the United Presbyterian Church, about 600 in all, principally children. After leaving the steel works yard at Trenton the end coach left the rails and bumped along the ties for seven hundred feet before becoming detached from the train, plowing into a bank of earth on its side.

Donkin and two others were standing on the platform and jumped as the car careened. Donkin was caught in the wreck and sustained, besides other injuries, a fracture of the skull.

Almost miraculous was the escape of those within the wrecked coach. It was filled principally with ladies and children and a few men, including R. M. McGregor, M.P.P. Though almost frantic with fear the occupants were extricated without difficulty and received but a few scratches from broken glass. The seats were torn up and badly wrecked. The forward coaches of the train kept to the rails and the passengers there were hardly aware that any damage was done.

Aviator a Quitter.

London, July 17.—The proposed channel flight of Herbert Latham, the French aviator, has ended in a fiasco and Latham's return to Paris yesterday morning marks the definite abandonment of the enterprise.

Black Hand Man Hanged.

Hahnville, La., July 17.—Leonardo Gebbia, an Italian, the first person ever sent to the gallows in Louisiana for a crime committed in the name of the so-called Black Hand Society, was hanged here yesterday.

BOILERMAKERS ARE ON STRIKE

Montreal, July 17.—Two hundred boilermakers and blacksmiths employed at the locomotive and machine works at Longue Pointe, a branch of the American Locomotive Co., have gone on strike on account of a new timing system which has been adopted and which the men claim reduces their pay.

This system has been introduced in some departments, but the boilermakers and blacksmiths rebelled against working under it.

Briefly stated the system is one by which clerks compute the time a certain piece of work should take and the workman is credited with that much time, whereas it might take him an additional hour to do the job.

The clerks are supposed to be experts in most cases. The men claim it takes more to pay the clerks than any amount the company might lose under the old system.

MAKE STRONG PLEA FOR PROTECTION

Washington, July 17.—The White House was stormed yesterday by a delegation of twenty-three Republican Congressmen, who spent an hour and a half with the President telling him that their very political lives depended upon the protection of raw minerals.

Many of the Congressmen who composed the delegation, represent southern districts.

"It is merely a question of facts, gentlemen," the President said to the Congressmen, "and in the light of facts we all want to try to do the right thing."

Foreign Police Barred From France.

Paris, July 17.—The remarkable series of revelations regarding the methods of the Russian students and refugees in France, which followed Bourtzeff's exposure of Gen. Harting's complicity in the plot against Alexander III., has led Premier Clemenceau to announce in the Chamber of Deputies that the Government has decided to forbid the maintenance hereafter of foreign police in French territory.

Ashland, N.H., July 17.—One masked robber held three families at bay for more than a quarter of an hour early yesterday, while two robbers, also masked, worked in the glare of an electric light and finally succeeded in blowing open the safe of the Ashland Savings Bank, escaping with $500 in cash. Three explosions were necessary to force the safe and the robbers were at work for more than fifteen minutes after their operations had been discovered.

Liberal Leader Gets Post.

Macdonald and Stuart Henderson, M.P.P. It was decided that Macdonald will be chief justice of the new Court of Appeal, and that Stuart Henderson or John Oliver will lead the Liberal Opposition in the local House.

Rain Causes Washout.

Niagara Falls, July 17.—Caused by heavy rains, which fell for four hours yesterday afternoon, a washout occurred on the Michigan Central lines at St. David's, preventing a movement of traffic which has not yet been resumed. A train load of earth and cinders has been despatched with which to repair damaged lines.

July Wheat Declines.

Chicago, July 17.—Wheat for July delivery declined still further yesterday, following the severe slump of the previous session; final quotations showing a net loss of 1 1-2 cents. The more deferred month closed firm at gains of 1-4 to 1-2 and 5-8 cents. Corn and provisions were weak.

CITY OF GUELPH MAKING STRONG BID FOR INDUSTRIES

Sending Out Letters to Manufacturers All Over the Country—Peterborough Manufacturers Have Been Written To—Municipal Ownership Being Featured.

The city of Guelph has apparently started an active publicity campaign. The Railway and Manufacturers' Committee there is sending out letters to manufacturers all over the country, pointing out the advantages of Guelph as a location for industries. Several Peterborough manufacturers have received these letters, which read in part as follows—

"I may now tell you some of the advantages of our city. First of all, Guelph is spoken of as the Birmingham of Canada. Guelph is known all over Canada as one of the places that have made a success of municipal ownership. She owns her waterworks, electric light plant, gas plant, street railway, and sixteen miles of steam road. These are all paying the city an average of 10 to 12 per cent on the investment. They are all better managed than they were under private ownership, and the rates have been reduced over and over again since the city purchased them. The result is that we had last year a 14 mill tax rate on the dollar, and this year (1909) the rate has been struck 14 1-2 mills, and the time is not very far distant when we will have little or no taxes in Guelph outside local improvements and school tax, and cheaper service than received in other cities. For instance, our street car fares are cheaper than in any other city I know of. We sell one hundred unlimited tickets for $3, 41 children's tickets for $1; 34 workingman's tickets $1, etc.

"We will, of course, have Niagara power here through the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, and Guelph will doubtless be one of the first places served, and we will have the cheapest distribution of any place in the province.

"We have the best water system in Canada—four million gallons a day of pure spring water. Guelph is the healthiest city in the country.

"Guelph is centrally located for shipping, being on the main line from Toronto to Port Huron, on the main line of the C.P.R. from Toronto to Goderich, and on the main line of the G.T.R. from Hamilton to Southampton. Goderich is our port of shipping to the North-west, consequently the freight rates are favorable to

FUNERAL OF A GREAT CANADIAN; THE BURIAL OF SIMON NEWCOMB

Ambassadors His Pallbearers—The President Present—A Man of Light and Leading.

Washington, July 16. — President Taft and many other prominent men in official and scientific circles attended the funeral of the late Simon Newcomb, the famous astronomer. As Prof. Newcomb was a retired officer of the navy the funeral was of a military character. A brief service was held at the church of the Covenant, at which the Rev. Tyler Dennett and the Rev. Dr. Thomas S. Childs officiated. Mr. Dennett referred to the late scientist "as a prince and servant among men," who help to dispel "the shades of superstition and error."

The funeral was conducted in accordance with the military ritual. The casket was draped in an American flag, and was carried by nine bluejackets in white uniforms. The funeral escort consisted of the United States Marine Band, three companies of marines and one company of bluejackets.

The pallbearers included J. J. Jusserand, the French Ambassador; Count J. H. von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador; Prof. Frank W. Clark, of Harvard University; Prof. Fabian Franklin, of Johns Hopkins University, and O. M. Tettman, superintendent of the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

TWO SISTERS DROWNED IN THE ST. CLAIR RIVER

Salvation Army Ensign and Her Sister Slip Into Deep Water While Bathing and Lose Their Lives—Seven-Year-Old Hamilton Boy a Victim.

Sarnia, July 17.—Ensign Bertha Brace of the local Salvation Army Corps and her sister, Miss Daisy Brace of Boston, met death by drowning yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock in the St. Clair River, just below Sarnia. The young ladies, accompanied by Miss Cooper of the local Army, were spending the afternoon by the river and the two sisters were bathing. Miss Daisy, the younger sister, was an expert swimmer. They had been in the water about five minutes, and were splashing about with their arms clasped, when they slipped over the channel bank into deep water and disappeared. Miss Cooper called for help, but no one was in sight at the time. Robt. Harrison, a chainmaker from the Standard Chain Works nearby, and others responded, but the bodies had completely disappeared. Miss Bertha Brace came to Sarnia this spring. Her sister arrived from Boston two weeks ago. Their mother, Mrs. R. K. Brace, resides in Charlottetown, P.E.I.

Hamilton Boy Drowned.

Hamilton, July 17.—Joseph Gower, the seven-year-old son of Alfred Gower, 470 Macnab street north, was drowned in the bay yesterday morning. Although he had been warned by his parents not to go in swimming, the lad, accompanied by Bert Martin, were bathing at the foot of James street, east of the Hamilton Steamboat Co.'s slip. Martin can swim, but Gower started to wade into the water. He got on a pile where the water is five or six feet deep. In some way the lad slipped off the pile into the water and was drowned before help arrived. Martin was too scared to give his companion any assistance. Robert Phillips, an employe of the steamboat company, dived into the water, but it was so roily that he was unable to see the boy. The father of the boy is an employe of the Canada Colored Cotton Co.

The body of young Gower was recovered yesterday afternoon.

Sailboat Sinks; Two Drown.

Halifax, N.S., July 17.—A boating accident with fatal results occurred in the Straits of Canso. Four men, McEachren, Moore, Ryan and Peebles, left Mulgrave in a small sailboat. The hoist of the sail became entangled and one of the men climbed up the mast with the intention of releasing the bound running gear. A heavy squall capsized the frail craft, throwing the men into the swift running current. Ryan became caught in the sail, and as the boat went to the bottom he went with it. Peebles sank shortly afterwards. McEachren and Moore, exceptionally strong swimmers, reached shore.

PLEADS GUILTY TO BIGAMY CHARGE

Whitby, July 17.—Seven years in the penitentiary may be the punishment of Henry Willing, the bigamist, in the opinion of practically everybody who has heard the details of his treatment of Gertrude Lomax, the sweet-faced girl whom he lured from her home in England and married in New York, only to tell her after a fortnight's wedding trip that he had a wife and three children in Canada.

When her father learned of her misfortune, after having sold his home to enable the daughter to marry Willing, he advised her to prosecute him, hence the exposure.

Yesterday Willing pleaded guilty and is to be sentenced next Monday.

ARE ON HUNT FOR SUNKEN TREASURE

Detroit, July 17.—Lure of hidden treasure has led to one more attempt to recover the valuables in the wreck of the steamer Pewabic, which for forty-three years has lain 160 feet below the surface of Lake Huron, off Thunder Bay Island.

A New York syndicate with a diving rig which, it is said, consumed eight years to perfect, has chartered the little steamer Douglas of Detroit, which is fitting out here. She will depart on Saturday on the expedition. William Petry of New York will be in charge.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE LAID

North Bay, July 17.—As a result of the inquest into the death of Elmer Kline at New Liskeard Hospital, Capt. Montgomery, proprietor of the Windsor Hotel, New Liskeard, was arrested Thursday night and brought to North Bay on a charge of manslaughter. Kline's death resulting, it is alleged, from injuries received while being ejected from the Windsor Hotel by Montgomery.

Bail was fixed at $20,000, Montgomery $10,000, John Armstrong, New Liskeard; S. D. Briden, J. A. Dunseath, H. McConkey, Haileybury, giving the balance.

PADDED PAY LISTS CASE

Ottawa, July 17.—Investigation into the serious charges of padding pay lists made against Major de la Ronde, officer commanding No. 5 company, C. A. S. C., police chief of Ottawa, and Capt. de la Ronde, his son, is proceeding slowly. The accused officers have refused to attend afternoon sittings, so that the board will meet in the evening to suit their convenience.

For the defence it was claimed the time had been insufficient to allow of proper evidence to be prepared and an adjournment until next September was requested. The board, however, ordered that the case be proceeded with on Monday evening.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

A severe earthquake was felt 27 miles from Lisbon.

Percy Harvey of Tweed, a miner, was killed by a powder blast.

The strike of the 18,000 miners of the Pittsburg Coal Co. has been called off.

Antonio Amiconi, aged 23, fell into a bank of sulphuric acid at the Trail, B.C., smelter and perished.

A serious bush fire has been raging for nearly two weeks in McCarthy Township along Sturgeon River.

Cholera is increasing to a degree which is beginning to cause widespread anxiety in Russia. On Saturday last 127 cases were registered.

At Roanoke, Va., Claude Minor, who struck Harry Thompson of Montreal, Que., on the head with a dirk, causing death, was sentenced to six years in penitentiary.

Two bricks were hurled through a window in an attempt to wound Thos. French, license inspector, at St. Thomas. He had received intimation of impending troubles.

The Glass Bottle Blowers' Association of the United States and Canada have defeated a proposition to amalgamate with the American Flint Glass Workers' Union. The vote was 197 to 36.

Thomas Sutcliffe, a Sudbury man, on Thursday night was struck on the head by a large stone, and robbed of $15, at Portage Du Fort, Que. It is not thought likely that he will recover.

The monthly financial statement shows that the revenue is ahead of the figures for last year, but that it has not quite reached the record of 1907, the banner year. The expenditure, however, is greater than the two previous years.

Mrs. Baker G. Eddy, founder and leader of the Christian Science denomination, passed her 88th birthday yesterday at Boston. Members of Mrs. Eddy's household said that "the mother," as she is known by her followers, was in splendid health and was attending to her affairs with her usual vigor.

Louis Rosenberg, a cigarmaker of Cleveland, O., was murdered on a lonely island in the St. Clair flats. A few hours later Frank Elbera, also of Cleveland, who is charged with the murder, was also dead from a dose of poison, self-administered. A third Cleveland man, Sam Frisbie, is held as an accomplice.

PROBABILITIES.

ABOUT AID TO MANUFACTURERS

Berlin, July 17.—At a general meeting of the Board of Trade the following important resolution was passed, and, if deemed advisable by the committee appointed, will be sent out to sister Boards of Trade throughout the province for endorsation:

"That the chairman name a committee to report on the provincial statutes dealing with aid to manufacturers, and the advisability of taking steps to secure an amendment by striking out that clause requiring established manufacturers to give their consent before a bylaw can be submitted for aid to concerns in similar lines."

PERSIAN SHAH MAKES TRACKS

Teheran, July 17.—The fact that the Shah of Persia yesterday morning took refuge in the Russian Legation here is accepted as tantamount to his abdication of the throne, and arrangements already are on foot to organize a provisional government.

It is probable that the successful revolutionaries will choose Mohammed Ali, the ex-ruler's son, to rule the state. Mohammed Ali is a minor and will be under a regent. It is possible that the uncle of the dethroned Shah, Zilles Sultan who is at present in Europe, will be given this post.

CANADIAN RIFLEMEN ARE VICTORIOUS IN TWO MATCHES

Bisley Team Makes a Brilliant Start in the Rifle Matches by Carrying off Two Trophies—Canada Has Lead of 21 Points Over Mother Country for Imperial Challenge Prize.

Bisley Rifle Ranges, Eng., July 17.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Canadian riflemen are indeed covering themselves with glory, having on Thursday and yesterday won the MacKinnon and the Kolapore Cups.

The final scores for the Kolapore showed: Canada, 763; Mother Country, 742; Transvaal, 756; Natal, 750; Southern Rhodesia, 730; Guernsey, 747; India, 725; African Protectorates, 671.

The "Rajah of Kolapore's" Imperial Challenge Cup was given in 1871. It is shot for by teams of eight men, who fire seven shots each at 300, 500 and 600 yards.

Canada has won the cup eight times, last winning it twice in succession, in 1905 and 1906. A special commemorative silver bowl is presented by the N.R.S. to the captain, adjutant and members of the winning team.

MacKinnon Cup Totals.

The Transvaal team entered a protest against the use of a hood over the foresight of the Ross rifle by the Canadian team in the MacKinnon Cup competition. The Bisley committee has declined to entertain a protest. The totals were—Canada, 2,609; England, 1,492; Scotland, 1,492; Ireland, 1,448; India, 1,339; Guernsey, 1,345; Natal, 1,491; Transvaal, 1,504; South Rhodesia, 1,422.

Men Entitled to Credit.

London, July 17.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Morning Post thinks its to men, not to rifles, that the Canadian Bisley victories are due. The Telegraph says the present is one of the very best teams the Dominion ever sent. To Bennett Burleigh, Col. Bertram declared also, it was to the men behind the guns, fully as much as the rifles, that the success is due. The Mail says the Kolapore is another triumph for the Ross rifle.

BRITISH COAL STRIKE THREATENS

London, July 17.—The Miners' Confederation of Great Britain after a prolonged meeting, has decided in favor of balloting its million members as to whether or not a national strike shall be declared in support of the Scottish miners, who are resisting a wage reduction of sixpence a day. The executive will meet July 28 to take action on the result.

The present feeling seems to be in favor of the stoppage of all mines, a condition which would entail practically the complete paralyzation of British industry.

In view of the consequent expected shortage in the coal supply, many factories already have served notice to their employes of the termination of contracts.

PANIC ON STEAMER ON LAKE ST. PETER

Montreal, Que., July 17.—There were thrilling scenes on Lake St. Peter, between Montreal and Three Rivers, on Thursday night.

The steamship Prefontaine of the St. Lawrence Canadian Navigation Co. was proceeding up the lake, bound for Montreal with a full load of passengers, mostly women, when the propeller shaft tubing broke.

High winds were prevailing at the time, and the boat began to leak rapidly. Instantly there was a panic on board, and the boat was headed for the shore. She was grounded in about ten feet of water.

Attracted by the whistling, the Government steamer Vercheres and the Imperial, the latter also of the St. Lawrence Co., hurried to the rescue.

Perks, speaking on the land tax question, said that he had been lately in a happy country where problems which perplexed us were not brought under the consideration of the Legislature. When we are told sometimes to copy New Zealand or Germany, he thought we might with advantage turn our eyes to the growing, prosperous Dominion of Canada, where such land regulations as are now being proposed here would not be tolerated for a moment.

Riveters' Awful Fall.

New York, July 17.—Four riveters dropped from the top of the new Manhattan bridge yesterday when the frail plank scaffold on which they were working, 150 feet above the waters of the East River, gave way under their combined weight. ## RURAL POPULATION DECREASING

The press-despatch from Toronto appearing in our issue of yesterday shows a startling state of affairs in older Ontario. The rural population has decreased by 114,000. This is what the overhasty development of the west means to Ontario. Farm-values are sinking and the market for farmers is narrowing. The farmer is between "the devil and the deep sea." He has to pay his share of the huge national loans and interest thereon, and his means of paying them are increasing in value. Was there ever a more unwise and ill-considered expenditure? That Great Britain applauded our seeming prosperity is not to be wondered at, although just now she accuses us of wanting to borrow too much. The policy of the last ten years has been one of spending money recklessly, and now we wake to find our credit slumping, our land in Ontario decreasing in value, our cheese and butter trade a thing of the past. Such is the folly of bad national housekeeping.

A DEFICIT

The national debt of Canada has increased by 46 millions of dollars during the year. The returns are just made public. The G.T.P. has eaten up 26 millions of dollars. The rest is just "going behind" in the usual way. It is not so slow of Mr. Fielding to bring in a surplus of one million on current account. It looks well even if it is really silly. It is just like the case of a man who spends $1,000 of his principal and brags of having expended one dollar less than his income at the end of the year. It will not take long to put him in the poor-house. Is it any wonder that our last loan, although Great Britain was never so abounding in capital for investment was a flat failure. It was barely more than half subscribed and the rate of interest was the highest yet.

It is well for a Government to be up-to-date and enterprising but enterprise and extravagance are two different things. To be truthful all must admit that such daring deeds as the Newmarket canal are more like evidences of insanity than either extravagance or enterprise. However, the "last loan" has brought us to the end of it all. Canada must borrow millions yet. The mad hatter schemes are barely under weigh, let alone finished and yet we find our last loan a warning. Even nonfinancial papers like the Glasgow Herald chide us harshly.

High prices for long loans mean that the people of the country have just so much more to pay in taxes one way or another. They may not see it at first, but even the weakest eyes will discern it in the end. It requires nothing wonderful in mathematics to make the calculation when increased interest is leaving the country. The current account on which the world does its daily business is in Canada far from being a thing of joy.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY

We have seen nothing in the Examiner to give the County the idea that the long overdue promise to give it free rural mail and parcel delivery is to be realized. It is a pity to make promises merely for election purposes. It undermines the faith of the people in promises. Although the Government did not at first endorse Mr. Borden's platform with respect to free rural postal and parcel delivery, it hastened to repent before election day and has made its repentance on a hundred routes, but Peterborough County is not one of them. This is a pity.

SIR JAMES AND THE "STAR"

The Montreal Star.

"Sir James Whitney persists in misrepresenting the 'Star' as to its attitude toward his Hydro-Electric scheme. He said the other day that 'the Montreal Star and the Montreal Gazette have entered the lists,' on behalf of the gentlemen who opposed his policy. Now this statement was utterly without truth, so far as this paper was concerned. We had not uttered a syllable on the subject, one way or the other. All we had done was to publish in our news columns the news about the protest which these gentlemen are making at Ottawa.

We pointed this out in a good natured paragraph and awaited Sir James' apology; and now it has come. He says, with reference to 'the power policy of the Provincial Government,' that 'now we have a declaration of war from the outside. The Montreal Star and the Montreal Gazette have served notice upon us that they are to lead a crusade against the desires of the people of Ontario, and the expressed will of the Legislature.' Will Sir James quote a solitary word from the 'notice' which he says we have 'served.' We have 'served' no such 'notice.' We have not attacked his power policy at all. We do not even now criticise his modest assumption that he represents without question the desires of the people of Ontario.' We want no 'war' upon the subject. though Sir James, perhaps enauied by the dullness of the summer season, seems determined to force a war upon us.

"If we went to war, we can assure him that it would not be upon the power policy, which is, perhaps, the best thing that his Government have done—though they have done it with some little display of the pugnacious and high-handed Whitney manner. The fact is, as our readers know, that our attitude toward the Whitney Administration has been distinctly friendly; and all the unreasonable waspishness of its leader will not make us change our course. We propose, however, to continue to print the news, whether Mr. Whitney likes it or not; and if his local papers have so coddled him by keeping unpleasant statements from his sight that he cannot endure the comments of men whose interests he has put in jeopardy, without wanting—like an Oriental despot—to slay the messengers who bring him the 'bad news,' it will do him good as a servant of a democratic community, to find a refreshing breeze blowing occasionally from the outside."

Far be it from the Review to offer to enter the lists, even as bottle-holder, when these giants are contending. Nevertheless, we feel it necessary to have our little say, especially in view of what is being said regarding Ontario.

The Star and Sir James are two great, strong, honest, outstanding figures. They carry the weight of "honest thought" in all they say. In no sense do they resort to tricks or jollying. That Sir James is quick to wrath is not a matter of wonder. He came into power when square-dealing in the Ontario Legislature was only a thing to laugh at. It was only by a lion's roar that he could convince people that he was in earnest. We must not presume to chide a lion for his kingly fume.

To the Star we look for the very best in Canadian journalistic life, and we usually get it. The "best," of course, can never be "bought," and the Star is at no time a pretender or a sham. The Gazette is of equal influence, and for the same reasons. We must characterize the present contretemps, therefore, as a collision—a sort of railway collision—unpremeditated, though exasperating. When the Montreal press realizes what Sir James has to contend with in the way of "corporate" conspiracies and the artifices of the greedy stock-gambler in Ontario, it will "let it pass" with Sir James, who roars sometimes to keep from getting stale, and it may be said that that same roar is worth a mint of money to Ontario. Moreover, the short, plain statements issued during a crisis of policy, by Sir James, show his people just where he stands and what he means, and that being honest, he is not afraid to put it down in black and white. He is no coward, is Sir James. He is the greatest power for good in the Province of Ontario. He may not be a diplomat, but he is a Nature's gentleman! Who would make the change! However, to make a long story short: Since ever the Ross Government actually gave away two million dollars a year of Ontario's property in Niagara h.p. to its "private enterprise" friends, those same friends have been raising the war-cry of "vested interests." Is it to be wondered at that Sir James is irritated and full of fight.

The land of Argentina is fertile and under proper conditions would support an immense population and could own practically all of South America. ## OF INTEREST

The Chauchard carnival

History is full of the names of men who have won more fame in their death than in their life, but it has remained for a French department store millionaire to win his fame by his funeral. The funeral of Mr. Chauchard, founder and proprietor of the Magasins du Louvre, in which he piled up a vast fortune, is treated as a significant incident in the social life of France. Paris has on several occasions shown its impatience of congested wealth, and when the 3,000 employees of the Louvre found that they had been left only $800,000, instead of the 5,000,000 at least which had been promised them, they showed their rage by turning the funeral of their late employer into a carnival of indignation, curses and mockery. Representatives of the poor, to whom the testator had left only $40,000, joined in the storm of hatred and ribaldry. Mr. Chauchard had made elaborate preparations for his own burial, although his surviving friends found themselves obliged to eliminate some details of the programme. He had superintended the manufacture of a coffin of precious "amaranth" wood from Brazil and sculptured bronze. This casket cost $100,000. The pearl buttons on the waistcoat in which he awaits the Day of Judgment are valued at $100,000, and he was wrapped in a shroud of cloth of gold. Opera singers performed at the four-long service, and the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor was borne on a cushion before the hearse, which was escorted by a troop of cavalry. We learn from the Paris papers that from the church (the Madeleine) to the cemetery Pere La Chaise, hundreds of thousands lined the roads, crushing and clamoring to see what they called Le Carnaval Chauchard, the Chauchard Carnival. Grand stands had been set up, windows hired out, and amid hisses, shouts, and cat-calls, mingled with blasts from motor-horns, sirens, and whistles, the plumed hearse swept along. The efforts of the police to check this roar of execration were in vain, although some arrests were made.

The great Socialist organ, the Humanite (Paris) of Mr. Jaures, says that the voice of the crowd merely echoed "the reprobation of Paris." Forgetful of the poor, and ungrateful toward his employees—such is the light in which this generous philanthropist has shown himself." Mr. Jaures continues:

"Perhaps, in his selfish vanity, this multimillionaire drew up his will with an idea that his triumphant funeral would be attended by the mourning respect of the whole city.

"He perhaps saw, as in an apocalyptic vision, the heart of each Parisian transformed into a censer from which should rise streams of incense wrapping in a glorious cloud of perfume the whole funeral cortege. Dives was mistaken. There are certain things which can not be bought with money, and there are sentiments which cannot be represt even by weights of gold. The soul and the heart of Paris, of the Paris that toils, has never melted or throbbed for the great capitalist who exploits his fellow men, and whose most trifling actions, and most insignificant words, are reported by the papers at so much a line. If we were to ask what is the general verdict of the whole working population on the the will published in the papers, the answer would be: "It is scandalous and disgraceful."

The Gaulois, Paris, which represents the Conservative, monarchist element in French politics, and is therefore almost diametrically opposed to the organ just quoted, chimes in with the note of condemnation, although speaking with more dignified reserve. It declares that by his will Mr. Chauchard has "disappointed our hopes, and has furnished a triumphant argument to those who are opposed to capital rapidly acquired especially when it is misspent." The writer proceeds:

"Those who had assisted in building up his fortune, the employees who sweated that he might enjoy a civil list that was almost imperial, receive from his will a paltry alms, inferior to the tips which it is the custom to dole out at the end of the commercial year. Is it conceivable that such forgetful ingratitude is likely to allay the antagonism of classes, and to bring about a good understanding between masters and men!

"I do not know exactly the amount of the fortune left by Mr. Chauchard, but from the sum paid as legacy tax, we may perhaps roughly estimate it at $20,000,000 in cash."—Translations made for The Literary Digest.

WIDOWER JUDD'S HOUSEKEEPER.

The Surprise That Was In Store For Two Designing Women.

By ANNE HEILMAN.

[Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

Mrs. Platt sat on her front porch, busy in braiding a mat. She was one of those women one likes to have about. There was a certain comforting presence in her large figure and comely face. Although the face when at rest was somewhat sad, yet it was one of those beaming faces that seem full of love for the whole world—that is, for all whom she admitted into her world. For those outside of its bounds she had no use. Just now her thoughts were busy with her neighbor, in whose direction she sent her glances.

"Peter's getting his supper early," she mused. "It's pretty lonely for him, but I hope he won't be inveigled into taking Serena Lamb for a housekeeper. I never was one to promote gossip, but all Clifton knows that her reputation for dressing far outdoes her skill in housekeeping. If I thought"— Just then she turned her head and caught sight of Mrs. Lamb walking up the path.

"Too bad to see that nice home going to rack and ruin," Mrs. Lamb began after settling herself in the rocker. "I hear it's fairly swarming with mice. Peter only uses two rooms. Isn't it a wonder he ain't picked out a housekeeper afore this?"

"I've an idea," said Mrs. Platt, endeavoring to speak unconcernedly, "that he'll probably ask you"—

"Me!" interrupted Mrs. Lamb in an astonished tone. "Me! And with such a famous cook as you next door! Trust a man to get a cook when he's free to pick and choose. Sarah wasn't much on the cooking, and I guess he'll want a change."

"David and I spent twenty-five happy years in this house," sighed Mrs. Platt. "It'd come hard for me to leave it."

"And I couldn't possibly leave my place," protested Mrs. Lamb. "And the garden doing so nicely too. You'd oughter see my strawberries, Emeline. Peter says they are the finest he ever saw. I'd bring you over a saucerful, but as Peter was going on so about your getting so stout I thought I wouldn't encourage your appetite any. Well," looking keenly at her friend to assure herself that the blow had struck home, "I must be getting on."

Serena fared forth slowly along the grassy lane. "Emeline don't care shucks for Peter Judd," she shrewdly conjectured. "David Platt's money is more to her than any living man. But she'd take the place for no other reason than to keep me out of it. As if any one would look at her twice when I'm around," and she glowed with a fine satisfaction as she compared herself to Mrs. Platt.

To be sure, Emeline was an umpire on all the arts of housekeeping; her cookery was town talk, while she had never become proficient in the art, but there were other ways of reaching a man's heart. Serena knew, because she had proved it twice.

In fact, neither lady had deceived the other. Each knew the other, from widely different motives, stood ready at a moment's notice to respond to Peter Judd's call for a housekeeper. Each knew that Clifton was wondering which of the two widows who lived on either side of Peter would be called eventually to fill the departed Sarah's place, for the custom prevailed in Clifton when a man was, in the wisdom of Providence, bereaved to hunt out some widow, respected by the community, to undertake the duties of housekeeper, and generally, after a decent period of mourning, the twain became one.

"If Serena makes up her mind to have Peter he'll have to give in," philosophized Mrs. Platt. "She's already married two that didn't in the least want her. She's comfortably off, too, and don't need to leave her home. I wouldn't be so set against it if I didn't know 'twas her that interfered between him and Floretta Young more'n twenty years ago. Peter up and married Sarah out of pure spite, and Floretta took that good for nothing Cy Blakey. If ever two people were cut out for one another, Peter and Floretta were. Well, as he's held out again Serena for over a year he may escape for good. I'll not worry any more."

But she did. The chance and apparently careless remarks that Serena let fall, as if an understanding existed between herself and Peter Judd, fretted Emeline's spirit. In the depths of her honest soul she believed that Peter was a regular caller at the Lamb home. She waited for the announcement of Serena's engagement as for a blow that was sure to fall.

Still, when it came she was not prepared for it. One afternoon she had just taken her accustomed seat on the porch when the gate opened, and Mrs. Lamb swept up the path with an unusual air of importance.

"Land, ain't it hot!" she exclaimed. "Such a muss as I've got into," carefully arranging the folds of her new organdie skirt before sitting down. Her tone rang with triumph. Mrs. Platt felt the change in the atmosphere, and all her world darkened.

"There's all that house of Peter's to go over this hot weather. Not a [illegible] of cleaning since Sarah died. Such a looking place! And it must be all rid up by the middle of September. I just ran in to ask if your paint and whitewash brushes were in good order. Peter said as how you mentioned having a supply of 'em when you offered to keep house for him months ago. My, how red your face is, Emeline! You hadn't ought to wear pink. Now, if I do say it, I've a complexion that'll stand any color."

"I didn't exactly offer"— stammered Mrs. Platt, tears of mortification smarting her eyes.

"Oh, well, it is all past and done with," interrupted Serena airily. "I just had to give in. He wouldn't take a 'no.' Well, if you'll lend the brushes I'll be goin'."

Armed with the brushes, Serena departed, every movement of the organdie proclaiming victory.

In the days that followed Mrs. Platt gave much time to sitting on the front porch watching her friend's progress in the housecleaning line. Serena called seldom now, and the time passed slowly.

"I just ran in to ask your opinion of these samples," began Serena one day in September. "We're going to have new carpets for the double parlors. Don't you prefer the green?"

Serena wore her best dress. "I shall need a new one soon," she said complacently, smoothing down its silken folds.

"I suppose the affair 'll come off soon," ventured Mrs Platt after the merits of greens and reds in carpets had been duly canvassed, but Serena only smiled consciously as she gathered up the samples and departed.

"I suppose it'll come off after harvest," mused Mrs. Platt despondently, meaning Peter's wedding.

One afternoon as Mrs. Platt was setting her table for tea she was surprised by a call from Peter Judd.

"Coming to invite me to the wedding," she surmised as he sauntered up the path. "Well, if it's foreordained he should marry Serena I'll not be spiteful about it. Sit down and have a cup of tea, Peter," she urged, cutting a great, fat, shaking, four storied jelly cake into generous slices.

Peter Judd, a large man with a pleasant, florid face, seated himself and absorbed tea and cake with much satisfaction.

"You always were a master hand at cake, Emeline," he commented affably. "I never saw your beat. It's something in that line that I called to see you about."

Was it possible that he was going to ask her to initiate Serena in the difficult art? Mrs. Platt's face clouded. "Well?" she asked in a strained voice.

"I want that you should do a little baking for me. Could you?"

"Do some baking for you?" she gasped. "For the land's sakes! When?"

Peter reached for another piece of cake. "For the next Tuesday and the balance of the week. You'll know what's needed."

The wedding was to take place Tuesday, then. Emeline's world was a temporary blank. "Serena wouldn't like it," she faltered.

"What if she don't?" exploded Mr. Judd. "She can't cook. And I want something decent in the house when I get back from Minooka."

"Back from Minooka?" Emeline asked in a dazed fashion. "Are you going away?"

"Why, of course! Going to Minooka to get married. Don't you know that Floretta lives there?"

"Floretta! Are you—is she"—

"Her man's dead, if that's what you're trying to get at. Drank himself to death, I reckon. I thought you knew all along."

Mrs. Platt poured more tea with a shaking hand. A sudden burst of sunshine illuminated her world. "Does Mis' Lamb know?"

"Not she," returned Peter, beginning another attack on the cake. "'Tain't none of her business, anyway. I got her to clean up before Floretta comes. That's all I wanted of her. Will you do them things, Emeline—the cakes and such?"

"Yes, yes!" cried Mrs. Platt. Her voice was joyful, her face aglow. All the gloom of the past few weeks vanished as if by magic. "I'll do more'n that, Peter. I'm so tickled to have Floretta for a neighbor again that I'll invite a lot of her old friends here for Tuesday. And I'll have the best dinner spread out that you ever sat down to."

Sure Enough Tale.

In a certain private school there is a small boy who is always cheerfully miles behind everybody else. He is not a dull boy, but learning does not appeal to him as being a thing especially to be desired. Recently the teacher told the class in composition that on the next day she would expect each of them to be able to write a short anecdote. She explained with great care the meaning of the word anecdote, and next day when she called the class up to write all but the laggard went at once to work.

"Why don't you write an anecdote, Rob?" asked the teacher.

"I forgot what an anecdote is," said Rob, undisturbed.

"I explained to you yesterday, Rob, and you ought to remember," said the teacher, a bit out of patience. "An anecdote is a tale. Now write."

Rob bent over his slate and, with much twisting of brow and writhing of lip, ground out his task. When the slates were collected his was at the very top of the heap. The teacher picked it up, and this is what she read: "Yesterday we had soup made from the anecdote of an ox."—London Mail.

Helped Some.

"He got a check to his career."
"Indeed! Too bad!"
"Not at all."
"Why not?"
"It was for $10,000."

Seventeen members of a New York variety troupe arrived home. They had been stranded in Venezuela.

CREOSOTING FENCEPOSTS.

An Experiment by the United States Forestry Service.

An investigation in the preservative treatment of fenceposts conducted by the United States forest service in cooperation with the University of Minnesota has recently been completed. There are many agricultural sections of that state where much of the land is unfenced, and in such localities it is difficult to obtain good posts, since the only common trees are willow and cottonwood, and these do not make durable posts in their natural condition. The need for information on the best method of preserving fenceposts in that region or elsewhere, therefore, is urged by the department of agriculture.

Much land now lying idle is well adapted for pasturage were it fenced. It is evident that the securing of a durable and comparatively cheap post would give great impetus to the work of fencing and would result in the more intensive utilization of the land. It is believed that creosoting of the native woods will provide such a post.

Considerable data on the best treatment for each of a number of different species was obtained by these experiments, and the feasibility of creosoting posts was clearly demonstrated. Detailed advice on the work will be given to all who request it of the forest service at Washington.

As a result of the interest aroused by this work there has been formed in one locality an association of about twenty-five farmers for the purpose of creosoting their fenceposts. Through such an organization the preservative treatments can be more cheaply accomplished than by individual farmers because of the saving in the initial cost of the apparatus and the cost of the creosote. If the plan proves feasible other associations will doubtless be formed.

Linen Portieres.

Curtains or portieres made of coarse Russian linen, such as kitchen towels are made of, are really stunning.

Of course as the material is narrow several widths are needed, but a clever needlewoman here has an opportunity for displaying her handiwork.

Borders in stenciling add much to the attractiveness of these portieres.

HOW WEAK GIRLS MAY GROW INTO STRONG WOMEN

The Blood Supply Must be Kept Rich, Red and Pure—Good Blood Means Good Health

Healthy girlhood is the only path to healthy womanhood. The merging of girlhood into womanhood lays a new tax upon the blood. It is the overtaxing of the scanty blood supply that makes growing girls suffer from all those headaches, backaches and sideaches—all that paleness, weakness and weariness—all that languor, despondency and constant ill-health.

Unhealthy girlhood is bound to lead to unhealthy womanhood and a life of misery. Nothing but the blood-building qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can save a girl who has undertaken the trials and tasks of womanhood. That is the time when nature makes new demands upon the blood supply. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new, rich blood which meets these new demands with ease. In this simple, scientific way Dr. Williams' Pink Pills fill a girl with overflowing health and strength.

Miss Eva Dennis, Amherst, N.S., says:—"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done me a world of good. I was completely run down, was very pale, easily tired and suffered from frequent severe headaches. Though I tried many medicines I got nothing to do me the least good until I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Even the first box of these seemed to help me, and after taking a half dozen boxes I was again a strong, healthy girl. I have not had any illness since, but should I again feel run down Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will be my only medicine, and I strongly recommend them to every weak and suffering girl."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

PROTECTION FOR PLANTS.

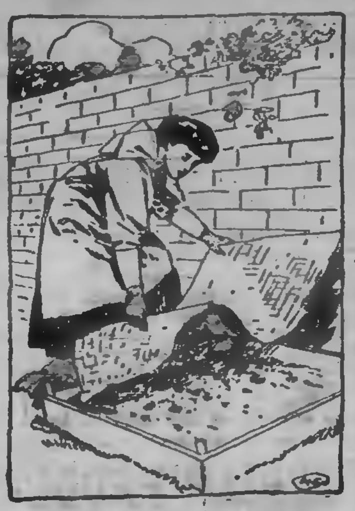
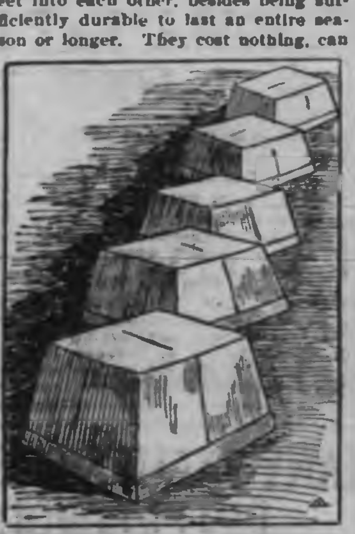
Ways of Shielding Them From the Midday Sun.

If plants are not protected from high winds and too much sun they will not flourish, especially in the early stages of their growth. This is particularly true of the plants in the vegetable garden, and fortunately there are many easy and simple methods of providing them with shade. Empty soap boxes raised on blocks, empty fruit baskets, rolls of carpet and matting spread out on supports to look like awnings may all be used. Old mattings or carpets that have seen their best days may enjoy a new lease of life as plant coverings. The great thing is to cover the plants so that they will be shady, but not without air. Even castoff hats may be used to prop over a delicate new plant, and as straw allows the air to circulate it will not be entirely deprived of oxygen. Stones laid on the hat brims will keep them from blowing away on a windy day.



COVERING LETTUCE WITH MATTING

Castoff fruit baskets are excellent to cover transplanted plants. They provide sufficient shade and do not smother the plants, because the openings let in air. They are very light to handle and easy to store because they set into each other, besides being sufficiently durable to last an entire season or longer. They cost nothing, can be collected and saved for the purpose, and weather does not destroy them quickly or winds blow them easily about. Use peach baskets for the larger plants, plum and grape baskets for smaller plants or for two or three of the very smallest and strawberry baskets for the smallest of all. Even these will span two seedlings set near together.



EMPTY FRUIT BASKETS FOR PROTECTION.

Choose a cool, shaded corner for lettuce. If you have none such make a retreat for the succulent delicacy. Have a movable screen of reeds or woven twigs with which to protect the lettuce bed from the noonday sun. Take it down at night and do not put it up on cloudy days. By a little care in this respect you will secure sweet salad. As the first supply of plants shows a tendency to run to seed, have a second and a third installment ready to take its place. Lettuce that grows in the sun gets bitter, and when the head elongates into a stem it is past use.

Radishes also thrive into juicy mildness in the shade, although they will bear more sunshine than lettuce. If set so near a brick wall as to feel the radiated heat as well as the direct rays of the sun they will develop too fast and become pithy and pungent.

Green peas should be planted early in the season. Give them rich earth, plenty of light and heat, and water often should the season be dry. Train upon sticks against the wall. If you have room for two crops plant a second three weeks after you put the first into the ground.

Cucumbers flourish under direct and radiating sunshine, being of tropical origin. They, too, should be eaten soon after they are gathered.

Cure For Spring "Rooters."

Pigs are more apt to be "rooters" in spring, when the ground is soft, than they are at any other time of the year. Much of this can be prevented by feeding regularly with coal, charcoal, ashes or other mineral matter. Ringing the hogs should be resorted to in extreme cases.

A bill giving women owners of property the right to vote at municipal elections was passed at New Haven.

THE POWER PROJECT

The total cost of placing the Burleigh power in the hands of manufacturers in Peterborough is, roughly speaking, $306,000. The size of this sum makes the public think twice before going farther. But when it is realized that machinery for operating at Burleigh need be put in only as required, and that the total sum required for machinery would be $130,000 or thereabouts, it can be seen at a glance that only the balance, or $176,000 is immediate. For so desirable an end $176,000 in the first instance is not too large an expenditure. We must have several thousand h.p. at our command if we are to go ahead. It is not wise to be too daring, but it is most unwise to be too fearful. There is no ruin involved in the enterprise in any event. But there is a possibility of our being compelled to remain where we are and if once we lose the opportunity it may not knock at our door again. We failed to buy Burleigh once before and we see the consequence. Shall we let it pass the second time? With the other powers available for purchase along the river our power scheme would be one of the best of its size in the world. There seems to be no good reason for shelving our responsibility. The details of the bargain are a mere matter of business arrangement.

DOUBLED-TRACKED TO SMITH'S FALLS BEFORE THE WINTER

Good Progress on C.P.R.—Will Be Continued to Peterborough—Grain Route to be Rushed.

It is understood that it is the intention of the C.P.R. to shortly begin operations on the proposed grain route through to Peterborough. The following despatch goes to show that the rumor is well founded;—

Montreal, July 15.—Announcement is made to-night that the C.P.R. have completed plans for an elevator at Victoria Harbor, having a storage capacity of 12,000,000 bushels or, in all probability, the largest elevator in the world.

Victoria Harbor is the Canadian Pacific's great lake port, which is to be connected with the port of Montreal, with what will practically be a level-double track road. By fall, the line will be double tracked from Montreal to Smith's Falls and later on continued to Peterborough and on to Victoria Harbor, which is to be a great lake shipping port.

ASSYRIAN PEDDLING IN CITY WITHOUT LICENSE

An Assyrian was charged at the police court this morning with peddling without having secured a license. His counsel, Mr. G. N. Gordon, pleaded not guilty. After hearing the statements of the defendant, the case was enlarged until Monday morning.

The Assyrian said he came from Havelock on Thursday, and carried samples of Japanese dress goods, patterns and a small amount of jewellery. His reason for taking to the road was on account of his headquarters at Havelock being destroyed by fire recently. His way of doing business was to go from house to house, but no business had been transacted in the city on this trip, although he had been here before. Not being certain how long he would remain in the city he had not taken out a license.

The magistrate stated he would give the defendant until Monday to decide whether he would remain in the city or not. In case of the former a license must be secured.

PROF. YOUNG WILL GIVE ADDRESS AT MEETING OF LOCAL BOARD OF TRADE

The meeting of the Board of Trade in the City Council chamber on Tuesday night will be of unusual interest. It is called for the purpose of discussing the Smith street bridge by-law and the street extensions by-law which will be passed upon by the ratepayers on July 29th.

In connection with the Smith bridge by-law, Prof. C. R. Young, instructor and lecturer in the School of Practical Science, engineering department, University of Toronto, has been engaged to deliver an address on "Reinforced Concrete Bridge Construction." It will be illustrated by stereopticon views. Mr. H. O. Fiske has kindly loaned a machine for this purpose, and will operate it. Views of bridges in different parts of the world, constructed of reinforced concrete, will be shown, and the methods employed and their application to local conditions will be explained. Prof. Young has made a special study of this class of work, and his address here will not only be interesting, but highly instructive.

The general public is invited to the meeting, which will commence at eight o'clock. In addition to Prof. Young's lecture, there will be a full discussion of the two by-laws.

MANY EXCURSIONS TO PETERBOROUGH ON THE SECOND DAY OF FAIR

Excursions will be run to Peterborough from many points on the second day of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, September 16, 17 and 18. They will swell the attendance at the fair, which promises to be better this fall than ever before. A meeting of the directors was held last night, President R. H. Leary presiding, and it was reported that arrangements had practically been completed for excursions from Picton, Bobcaygeon, Oshawa, Bowmanville and Cobourg.

All the committees reported good progress, and everybody is most optimistic regarding the outlook for a successful exhibition.

The fair will be widely advertised, arrangements for a publicity campaign being made last night.

CLERGYMEN ASKED THE COUNCIL TO MAKE DECISION

The Matter of the Building of a House of Refuge by City Should be Settled—Rev. Father McColl, Rev. H. J. Keith and Rev. Canon Davidson Addressed the Council Last Night.

A deputation composed of several clergymen of the Ministerial Association and Rev. Father McColl waited upon the members of the City Council last night to ask that body to give a decided answer if possible, as to the future building of a House of Refuge for the poor and infirm of this city. Rev. Father McColl, Rev. H. J. Keith and Rev. Canon Davidson spoke on the subject.

After listening to the arguments clearly put forth by the speakers, and after Mayor Rush had suggested that on account of there not being the full number of the aldermen present, he would not favor anything being done in the matter at present, Ald. Buller made a motion to the effect "that the Mayor call another meeting to consider the matter." The motion was seconded by Ald. Hicks and carried.

Those present were Mayor Rush, Ald. Hicks, Buller, McGeral, Duffus, Turner, McIntyre, Duncan and Phelan.

REV. FATHER McCOLL.

The reverend gentleman said that he was only at the meeting to ask for what was fair and just. The Roman Catholics were caring for all people at the present time, irrespective of color or creed. If the city was to build a House of Refuge it would mean that Roman Catholics would be doubly taxed. Again, in case of this building it would mean that greater expense would be incurred by the two religious bodies in question. The Catholics would want their form of religion and the Protestants would want their own. His people were considering the proposition of building a new $30,000 building, from which no one would be turned away. Here was the point. Supposing, if after the completion of this building the city would turn round and erect a House of Refuge. This was the question he wished to have decided.

He stated further that only $1.50 per week was asked from the city for each of the inmates of the House of Providence, but the expenses amounted to nearly 2.50 but he was not complaining about this.

His suggestion was that the Protestants and Roman Catholics each have a House of Refuge and the council make an adequate grant to each.

REV. H. J. KEITH.

The Rev. H. J. Keith said he appreciated the initiative step taken by Rev. Father McColl, and he was at the meeting for the purpose of co-operation. He wanted to know what the council intended doing in the matter of a House of Refuge. Both religious parties should be treated alike. It would not be fair to the Catholics if they were to go ahead and build a House of Refuge, and then the city build one. The present state of the Protestant Home was not favorable and something had to be done in the near future. But the Protestant body did not care to go ahead with any proposition before hearing what the city intended doing.

REV. CANON DAVIDSON

He stated that the question of charity was one in which all were concerned, and anything along reasonable lines would be welcome to all. We had heard the statements of the Grand Juries asking that some adequate provision be made for the poor. But we should be safeguarded. Self-respect among all should be encouraged. The whole of the city's poor was taken care of by the Protestant and Catholic parties, and he thought that this class of people were better looked after in Peterborough than in any other place. Part of the trouble was caused by the lack of interest in the matter. At the present time there are only four in the county gaol, three Protestants and one Roman Catholic. They are treated as well as possible, and their condition might be worse. In the winter the number increases probably to twelve. He would be delighted to have the matter decided to the council.

Ald. Hicks asked Rev. Canon Davidson and Rev. Mr. Keith as representatives of the Ministerial Association, if they had any policy or recommendation to submit to the council.

Rev. Mr. Keith said that if there was to be a House of Refuge they would have to continue in the future as at present. But if not they would prefer the policy of Rev. Father McColl, viz., that the Protestants look after their own poor and the Catholics look after their own.

Ald. Hicks said that he would like the Ministerial Association to submit such a proposition as that they would provide a building for the Protestant poor if the city gives them a certain amount of assistance. Then the two religious bodies will be working along the same lines, and it would be comparatively easy for the city.

Ald. Buller agreed with Ald. Hicks's suggestion, and he said that as far as he could see the Ministerial Association and Rev. Father McColl appeared to agree on the one point, he therefore moved,—That the Committee of the Whole Council go into this matter and endeavor to settle upon a sum to pay per week for the maintenance of the inmates. Ald. Hicks seconded this motion.

Ald. Turner agreed with the proposition made by Rev. Father McColl.

Ald. Hicks said that if the two religious bodies could agree upon the terms and plans that the Council could go to the Legislature and ask for special legislation and in this way overcome the possibility of the erection of a House of Refuge in the future.

Ald. Buller's motion was carried.

HOW TO POUR OIL ON TROUBLED WATERS

Magical Effect on Dangerous Seas—Of Use on Small Waters

When the captain of a wave-beaten ship pours oil upon the waters he does not empty a barrel of kerosene over the side. He stitches up three or four cotton bags, which he fills first with oakum and then with oil, usually equal parts of fish oil and kerosene. The bags are then tied tightly at the tops and pricked all over with a sail needle to permit the oil to exude, and are hung from the boat davits and weather chains to drip their mollifying contents on the raging billows. The bags must not be allowed to get empty, but must be refilled every two hours. For six bags ten gallons of oil are used in thirty hours. Sometimes, if it very cold, the oil congeals and will not run through the holes fast enough, and the mouth of the bag is then loosened to let it escape in that way. Its effect is magical on a rough sea. A huge comber will arise threateningly to bury the laboring vessels under tons of water, but will strike a patch of oil no larger than a common dining table and subside in an instant into a smooth, round swell, which the ship rides like a cork.

The use of oil is also a valuable aid in wearing ship in a gale and high seas. A few gallons of paint oil over the lee quarter enables the vessels to perform the manoeuvre in perfect safety without taking a drop of water on board. When a boat ships so much water that it is impossible to get the oil bags slung into position without running the risk of being swept overboard, an ordinary bed sheet saturated with paint oil, tied to a rope and allowed to float, will soon calm the seas sufficiently to permit men to move about the decks safely. Paint oil is agreed to be the best to use, rape seed oil and porpoise oil rank next, but kerosene is not satisfactory unless mixed with some other oil.

And Considerable Quantities of Fruit on the Market This Morning

Two farmers were apparently in for a day of fruit business this morning, for they offered large quantities of cherries and currants. There was also considerable green stuff on sale at reasonable prices. One lady had a small quantity of this season's potatoes, and was asking 45 cents per peck, which, by the way, she didn't get.

CHARGED WITH THREE OFFENCES

Charles Clarke in Court This Morning--Case Enlarged Until Tuesday

Charles Clark was called upon to face three charges at the Police Court this morning. The first one was for an offence against the Health Act, to which he pleaded not guilty. The second one read was that in April he secured five dollars from Henry Truesdale by pretending he had the right to collect a rent bill. To this charge he pleaded guilty of taking $3, but said the other two dollars was due him from Truesdale.

The third charge was that during the month of April he did unlawfully damage a house on Edinburgh street by taking some posts away from the front of the premises, but pleaded not guilty.

The cases were enlarged until Tuesday morning, July 20th.

PARTY OF AMERICANS GOT SIXTY EXCELLENT BASS IN LAKE KOSHABOGAMOG

(Special to the Review.)

Stony Lake, July 16.—To be overtaken on the lake by a rain storm is the order these days, and one does not know what camping is until after such an experience. However, all the recent storms have been accompanied by very strong winds, and no one can be on the lake in a small craft without serious danger of being upset, which might result in drowning, as the noise of the rain and wind would prevent persons hearing any cry for assistance. Fortunately no serious accidents have been reported, although numerous people have been "caught" but nevertheless the campers can not be too careful, and the recent thunderstorms emphasize the uncertainty of the weather and dangers attendant canoe or sail-boat trips.

GOOD CATCH AT SMALL LAKE.

Dr. Bell, of Cleveland, and party spent two days at Lake Koshambogamog on the trail to the Blue Mountains. They took a skiff and two canoes, which were drawn on wagons from the head of Stony Lake, and report a successful and very enjoyable time, despite the ever-present and always energetic line of mosquitoes they encountered. They brought back no less than sixty bass—all good-sized ones and fine in every way. The trip back to "Kosh" is becoming very popular, and no doubt many parties will avail themselves of the excellent fishing afforded by the waters. The ideal way is to go back for two days, taking a tent and camping near the lake; thus one day may be spent fishing, and the other in a visit to the Blue Mountains, which overlook "Kosh" and are of much interest, not only on account of the excellent view afforded by the height of their peaks, but also on account of the mica and corundum mines there. The mountains are about three miles from the north of Jack's Creek, and a very good road leads directly to them.

COULDN'T STAND IT.

A good story is told about an inexperienced camper from the other side, who came up to spend a few days on the Kawartha Lakes in company with a party of "old-timers." His first night in a tent was a very unlovely experience, to say the least, as he had never experienced mosquitoes before, and when the longed-for morning arrived he pulled up stakes and took the first boat for Lakefield. His friends afterwards told us that he would not stop until he was in Rochester.

VISITORS AT THE LAKE.

Miss Maud Allen, Miss Florence Loomis, and Mrs. H. C. Loomis, of Cleveland, are holidaying at "The Raiters."

Miss J. Crossman, of Peterborough, is spending a few days at "Medawawleek."

Misses Mabel Clar and Hilda Rogers, of Toronto, are at "Chicopee."

A. Goselin, Rochester, N.Y., is spending a few days at the lake.

A. Howard Johnson, Syracuse, is holidaying at Stoney Lake.

Miss Annie G. Pigeon, (Peterborough; Miss Helen Brundrett, Toronto, and Cranston Layfield are among the party at "Ishpeming."

Miss Mina Edmison is holidaying at "Medawawleek."

Miss Ruby Burnham, of Peterborough, is a guest at Miss Bliss's cottage, near Crowe's Landing.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Fry, of Norwood, are the guests of Mr. C. W. Waters at "Bide-a-Wee."

Among the guests at "Belvidere" are;—Mortimer L. Dietzer, Buffalo; C. M. Lyman, Buffalo; S. Sewell, and wife and two children, Toronto; Dr J. B. McGee, Cleveland; O. E. W. Sloan, Cleveland, O.

The following are registered at Viamede;—Arthur F. Peterson, Frank J. Liensen and James J. Harte, of Buffalo; Chas. A. Carpenter and W. C. Goodger, from Rochester.

Mr. J. E. Harris, Toronto; Albert Stewart and wife, Frank G. Stewart, Washington, D.C.; Mrs. T. L. English and Marion J. English, Buffalo; Mrs. A. W. Giddings, Rochester; J. Donald Shook, A. F. Howson, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Doyle, Pitsburg, Pa.; Mrs. B. E. Dilley, Charles Dilley, Cincinnati, O.; Thomas Fox, Cincinnati, O.; Mrs. Mrs. Roper Murton, Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Murton, Toronto.

The first masquerade dance was held in the pavilion last night and was a most successful and enjoyable event. Unmasking took place at 10.30, and the "merry-makers" dispersed at a very respectable time in the morning.

Safe Seat For Joe Martin.

London, July 17.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Joseph Martin, K.C., "stormy petrel of Canadian politics," has been adopted as the Liberal candidate for East St. Pancras in the place of Hugh Cecil Lea, who is retiring. The Liberal majority in 1906 was 1,881 in a riding of about 7,500 votes. On May 5 Mr. Martin was buried under a hostile majority of 2,627 at the Stratford-on-Avon bye-elections. The previous Liberal majority was 148.

Turned Down.

"May I ask how you earned your first salary?" inquired a reporter who was interviewing a celebrated statesman.

"I earned it, sir," said the great man, "by doing just what you are doing now. I was deputed to interview a man, and it may interest you to know that I got a good deal more information out of him than you're likely to get out of me!"

SPORTING NEWS

LINES ON SPORT

The Capital lacrosse team passed through Peterborough this morning on their way to Toronto, where they play the Tecumsehs this afternoon.

Will it be Longboat or Svanberg to-night? The Indian should be able to pull out a victory, although the Swede is credited with better time. The distance to-night is fifteen miles.

An old Peterborough baseball player says that the shortstops in the City League play too far in. He is of the opinion that they would be more effective if they played further out, as it is easier to come in than to go out to get a ball.

Dick Gray is playing ball for Forest at present. The management of that team secured the star local twirler several days ago and Gray will probably spend a few weeks in that town doing the slab work for the team there.

Gray writes that the Forest team play fast ball. He says that the Arkona team, the keen rivals of Forest, have hired a pro. coach from Cleveland. Forest and Arcona play to-day, Friday, and Gray will be on the firing line for Forest.—Lindsay Warder.

Jimmie Jones, of Montreal, has only three runs in the last twenty games.

Alfred Shrubb is of the opinion that Longboat is not fast enough for Svanberg at fifteen miles.

Philadelphia Jack O'Brien will fight ten rounds with Jim O'Flynn, of Pueblo, in Denver, on July 29. The match can only be an exhibition one, and no decision can be given.

Detroit and Washington played for 18 innings yesterday and neither team scored. Each team had 54 put-outs.

Svanberg and Longboat state they are in the best of condition for their fifteen-mile race to-night at Hanlan's Point.

Jack Johnson is reported to have been injured in a automobile collision.

The Leafs won easily from Newark yesterday by the score of 7—1. Pfeffer twirled winning ball throughout.

Ben Houser, first baseman of Toronto, has been sold to the Athletics and is to report at the close of the Eastern League season. The price received was $3,500.

Cleveland was stopped yesterday by Philadelphia, who won by the score of 3—0.

Doc Burton Struck Out Twelve of the Opposing Team and Allowed Only Six Hits

Barrie, July 16.—The Barrie baseball team scored its fifth successive win by beating the Park Nine of Toronto, 5 to . The locals made three in the fourth and two in the sixth, while the Park Nine got their lonely run in the seventh.

Burton allowed six hits, mostly scattered, and struck out twelve. Harding fanned five, gave two bases on balls, hit two men and allowed five hits. Barrie made five errors and the visitors seven, but the latter's were much more costly, rank misses by Benson being responsible for three runs.

JOY RIDERS BEWARE! THE POLICE ARE WATCHING

His Worship Magistrate Dumble, has given orders to Chief Roszel to be on the lookout for automobilists who have the habit of driving carelessly and at a too rapid rate around and about the city. The law says that ten miles is fast enough in the city for these machines, and a special amendment allows a magistrate to determine what rate of speed should be allowed on the busy streets. Magistrate Dumble has decided that six miles an hour is fast enough on George street from Smith to the C.P.R. station, and, of course, there are other streets to which this rate would apply.

The speed with which some automobiles travel around this city has been remarked upon by many, and it is fortunate that no accidents have resulted. Only last night an elderly lady had a lucky escape from being run over by one of these gas wagons. It is up to the drivers to use a little discretion in this matter, and it is to be hoped that this notice will accomplish its purpose.

REVIVED MUSICAL ART.

Young Girls Are Now Playing the Harpsichord and Clavichord.

Quaint musical instruments of a period preceding the advent of the grand and upright pianos are being studied now by the young girl who is bent on broadening her knowledge of music and her powers of appreciating the compositions of great masters. Creators having reached the highest point in the perfection of the mechanism and tone of the modern musical instrument and artists having learned how to understand and enjoy masterpieces through this medium, the time seems to have come when real music lovers revert, and willingly, too, to the days of the tinkling harpsichord, the gentle spinet and the well tempered clavichord.

The girl of today studies art, and she learns quite a little about decoration, so that she finds a great deal of pleasure in planning the decoration of her own harpsichord or clavichord if she does not choose one already finished. Genuine antiquities are rare, and where special instructions as to color and style of case are not to be considered a regulation style is offered, one that will harmonize in almost any room and one that is specially suited to the study hall or school music room. A plain enamel, not too dark, with gold trimmings, is the most satisfactory for general purposes, but where one presides over a French sitting room and music room combined then the decorations of the musical instrument should by all means follow along the lines of the French instruments.

The harpsichord is somewhat more difficult to master than the clavichord or the spinet on account of the double keyboard and the different tones. But a girl who starts with a fair knowledge of piano music and good technique can soon learn to play the harpsichord. The clavichord is simpler. It has a very short keyboard, and this is single, thus obviating the confusion provided by the double one. There are no pedals, and the tones are extremely soft and beautiful.

Improving the Opportunity.

The small boy was ready to start on a long promised week's visit to his grandfather's in the country. There was an exasperating delay in the appearance of the carriage to take them to the station. The young man worked off his impatience in various annoying ways for half an hour. Then suddenly he was seen to kneel beside a chair in the corner and bury his face in his hands. After a few minutes his mother said:

"Why, Kenneth, what are you doing?"

"Just getting my prayers said up for while I'm going to be out at grandpa's. There's nothing to do here, and I spect to be pretty busy while I'm there."

The World's Forests.

There is a forest in the Labrador and Hudson Bay district of the Dominion, which extends, at the least, 1,000 miles wide and 1,700 miles long. South America has one in the basin of the Amazon which is 2,100 by 1,300 miles; Central Africa has a forest region 3,000 miles north and south, and of unknown width east and west. Perhaps, however, all these are cast into the shade by the Siberian "urmans" or "targas," which are vast woods of pine, larch, and cedar at least 3,000 miles from east to west, and 1,000 miles from north to south. They are so thick and gloomy that the natives call them "places where the mind is lost."

Ups and Downs.

"Ups and downs," said an etymologist, "is a phrase of curious aptness.

"Take ups. Aviators tell us, balloonists tell us, alpinists tell us, that the higher one ascends, the more exhilarating grows the air, so that it is quite common, at a height of a mile or so, for men to sing and shout in pure hilarity and joy. So much for ups.

"Take downs. Submarine boatmen and divers and miners tell us that the deeper one descends below the earth's surface, the sadder one becomes. Those depths resound with oaths, groans, sobs. So much for downs.

"Ups and downs—an apt phrase, truly."

Crime and Penalty.

Aunt Jane—I think the young man who tried to steal a kiss should be punished. Dorothy—So do I, aunty, dear. Aunt Jane—I am glad to hear you say that, child. Dorothy—Yes; he—he should be punished severely for only trying.

Pandemonium.

"Nature knew what she was doing when she deprived fishes of a voice."

"How do you make that out?"

"What if a fish had to cackle over every egg it laid?"

THE Masquerader

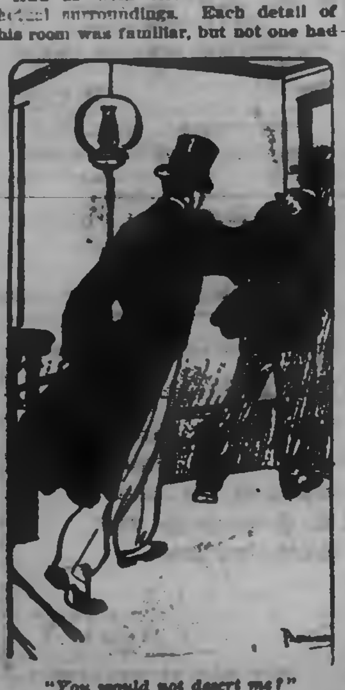
By KATHERINE CECIL THURSTON,
Author of "The Circle," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, 1906, by Harper & Brothers

And as with clothes so with his actual surroundings. Each detail of his room was familiar, but not one had ever become intimately close. He had used the place for years, but he had used it as he might use a hotel, and whatever of his household gods had come with him remained, like himself, on sufferance. His entrance into Chilcote's surroundings had been altogether different. Unknown to himself, he had been in the position of a young artist who, having roughly modeled in clay, is brought into the studio of a sculptor. To his outward vision everything is new, but his inner sight leaps to instant understanding. Amid all the strangeness he recognizes the one essential—the workshop, the atmosphere, the home.



"You would not desert me?"

On this first night of return Loder comprehended something of his position, and, comprehending, he faced the problem and fought with it.

He had made his bargain and must pay his share. Weighing this, he had looked about his room with a quiet gaze. Then at last, as if finding the object really sought for, his eyes had come round to the mantelpiece and rested on the pipe rack. The pipes stood precisely as he had left them. He had looked at them for a long time, then an ironic expression that was almost a smile had touched his lips, and, crossing the room, he had taken the oldest and blackest from its place and slowly filled it with tobacco.

With the first indrawn breath of smoke his attitude had unbent. Without conscious determination he had chosen the one factor capable of easing his mood. A cigarette is for the trivial moments of life; a cigar for its fulfillments, its pleasant, comfortable retrospections; but in real distress—in the solving of question, the fighting of difficulty—a pipe is man's eternal solace.

So he had passed the first night of his return to the actualities of life. Next day his mind was somewhat settled, and outward aid was not so essential; but, though facts faced him more solidly, they were nevertheless very drab in shade. The necessity for work, that blessed antidote to ennui, no longer forced him to endeavor. He was no longer penniless, but the money he possessed brought with it no desires. When a man has lived from hand to mouth for years and suddenly finds himself with £100 in his pocket the result is sometimes curious. He finds with a vague sense of surprise that he has forgotten how to spend. That extravagance, like other artificial passions, requires cultivation.

This he realized even more fully on the days that followed the night of his first return, and with it was born a new bitterness. The man who has friends and no money may find life difficult, but the man who has money and no friend to rejoice in his fortune or benefit by his generosity is aloof indeed. With the leaven of incredulity that works in all strong natures, Loder distrusted the professional beggar; therefore the charity that bestows easily and promiscuously was denied him and of other channels of generosity he was too self contained to have learned the secret.

When depression falls upon a man of usually even temperament it descends with a double weight. The mercurial nature has a hundred counterbalancing devices to rid itself of gloom—a sudden lifting of spirit, a memory of other moods lived through, other blacknesses dispersed by time, but the man of level nature has none of these. Depression when it comes is indeed depression; no phase of mind to be superseded by another phase, but a slackening of all the chords of life.

It was through such a depression as this that he labored during three weeks, while no summons and no hint of remembrance came from Chilcote. His position was peculiarly difficult. He found no action in the present, and toward the future he dared not trust himself to look. He had slipped the old moorings that familiarity had rendered endurable, but, having slipped them, he had found no substitute. Such was his case on the last night of the three weeks and such his frame of mind as he crossed Fleet street from Clifford's inn to Middle Temple lane.

It was scarcely 7 o'clock, but already the dusk was falling. The greater press of vehicles had ceased, and the light of the street lamps gleamed back from the spaces of dry and polished roadway, worn smooth as a mirror by wheels and hoofs. Something of the solitude of night that sits so ill on the strenuous city street was making itself felt, though the throngs of people on the pathway still streamed eastward and westward, and the taverns made a busy trade.

Having crossed the roadway, Loder paused for a moment to survey the scene. But humanity in the abstract made small appeal to him, and his glance wandered from the passersby to the buildings massed like clouds against the dark sky. As his gaze moved slowly from one to the other a clock near at hand struck 7, and an instant later the chorus was taken up by a dozen clamorous tongues. Usually he scarcely heard and never heeded these innumerable chimes, but this evening their effect was strange. Coming out of the darkness, they seemed to possess a personal note, a human declaration. The impression was fantastic, but it was strong. With a species of revolt against life and his own personality, he turned slowly and moved forward in the direction of Ludgate hill.

For a space he continued his course, then, reaching Bouverie street, he turned sharply to the right and made his way down the slight incline that leads to the embankment. There he paused and drew a long breath. The sense of space and darkness soothed him. Pulling his cap over his eyes, he crossed to the river and walked on in the direction of Westminster bridge.

As he walked the great mass of water by his side looked dense and smooth as oil with its sweeping width and network of reflected light. On its farther bank rose the tall buildings, the chimneys, the flaring lights that suggest another and an alien London. Close at hand stretched the solid stone parapet, giving assurance of protection.

All these things he saw with his mental eyes, but with his mental eyes only, for his physical gaze was fixed ahead where the houses of parliament loomed out of the dusk. From the great buildings his eyes never wavered until the embankment was traversed and Westminster bridge reached. Then he paused, resting his arms on the coping of the bridge.

In the tense quietude of the darkness the place looked vast and inspiring. The shadowy terrace, the silent river, the rows of lighted windows, each was significant. Slowly and comprehensively his glance passed from one to the other. He was no sentimentalist and no dreamer. His act was simply the act of a man whose interests, robbed of their natural outlet, turn instinctively toward the forms and symbols of the work that is denied them. His scrutiny was steady—even cold. He was raised to no exaltation by the vastness of the building, nor was he chilled by any dwarfing of himself. He looked at it long and thoughtfully; then, again moving slowly, he turned and retraced his steps.

His mind was full as he walked back, still oblivious of the stone parapet of the embankment, the bare trees and the flaring lights of the advertisements across the water. Turning to the left, he regained Fleet street and made for his own habitation with the quiet accuracy that some men exhibit in moments of absorption.

He crossed Clifford's inn with the same slow, almost listless, step; then, as his own doorway came into view, he stopped. Some one was standing in its recess.

For a moment he wondered if his fancy were playing him a trick. Then his reason sprang to certainty with so fierce a leap that for an instant his mind recoiled. For we more often stand aghast at the strength of our own feelings than before the enormity of our neighbor's actions.

"Is that you, Chilcote?" he said below his breath.

At the sound of his voice the other wheeled round. "Hello!" he said. "I thought you were the ghost of some old inhabitant. I suppose I am very unexpected?"

Loder took the hand that he extended and pressed the fingers unconsciously. The sight of this man was like the finding of an oasis at the point where the desert is sandiest, deadliest, most unbearable.

"Yes, you are—unexpected," he answered.

Chilcote looked at him, then looked out into the court. "I'm done up," he said. "I'm right at the end of the tether." He laughed as he said it, but in the dim light of the hall Loder thought his face looked ill and harassed despite the flush that the excitement of the meeting had brought to it. Taking his arm, he drew him toward the stairs.

"So the rope has run out, eh?" he said, in imitation of the other's tone. But under the quiet of his manner his own nerves were throbbing with the peculiar alertness of anticipation, a sudden sense of mastery over life that lifted him above surroundings and above persons—a sense of stature, mental and physical, from which he surveyed the world. He felt as if fate in the moment of utter darkness had given him a sign.

As they crossed the hall Chilcote had drawn away and was already mounting the stairs. And as Loder followed it came sharply to his mind that here, in the slipshod freedom of a door that was always open and stairs that were innocent of covering, lay his companion's real niche—unrecognized in outward avowal, but acknowledged by the inward, keener sense that manifests the individual.

In silence they mounted the stairs, but on the first landing Chilcote paused and looked back, surveying Loder from the superior height of two steps.

"I did very well at first," he said. "I did very well. I almost followed your example for a week or so. I found myself on a sort of pinnacle, and I clung on. But in the last ten days I've—I've rather lapsed."

"Why?" Loder avoided looking at his face. He kept his eyes fixed determinedly on the spot where his own hand gripped the banister.

"Why?" Chilcote repeated. "Oh, the prehistoric tale—weakness stronger than strength. I'm—I'm sorry to come down on you like this, but it's the social side that bowls me over. It's the social side I can't stick."

"The social side? But I thought"—

"Don't think. I never think; it entails such a constant upsetting of principles and theories. We did arrange for business only, but one can't set up barriers. Society pushes itself everywhere nowadays, into business most of all. I don't want you for theater parties or dinners. But a big reception with a political flavor is different. A man has to be seen at these things. He needn't say anything or do anything, but it's bad form if he fails to show up."

Loder raised his head. "You must explain," he said abruptly.

Chilcote started slightly at the sudden demand.

"I—I suppose I'm rather irrelevant," he said quickly. "Fact is, there's a reception at the Bramfells' tonight. You know Blanche Bramfell—Viscountess Bramfell, sister to Lillian Astrupp." His words conveyed nothing to Loder, but he did not consider that. All explanations were irksome to him and he invariably chafed to be done with them.

"And you've got to put in an appearance—for party reasons?" Loder broke in.

Chilcote showed relief. "Yes. Old Fraide makes rather a point of it—so does Eve." He said the last words carelessly; then, as if their sound recalled something, his expression changed. A touch of satirical amusement touched his lips and he laughed.

"By the way, Loder," he said, "my wife was actually tolerant of me for nine or ten days after my return. I thought your representation was to be quite impersonal? I'm not jealous," he laughed. "I'm not jealous, I assure you, but the burned child shouldn't grow absentminded."

At his tone and his laugh Loder's blood stirred. With a sudden, unexpected impulse his hand tightened on the banister, and, looking up, he caught sight of the face above him—his own face it seemed, alighted with malicious interest. At the sight a strange sensation seized him, his grip on the banister loosened, and, pushing past Chilcote, he hurriedly mounted the stairs.

Outside his own door the other overtook him.

"Loder!" he said. "Loder! I meant no harm. A man must have a laugh sometimes."

But Loder was facing the door and did not turn round.

A sudden fear shook Chilcote. "Loder!" he exclaimed again. "You would not desert me? I can't go back tonight. I can't go back."

Still Loder remained immovable.

Alarmed by his silence, Chilcote stepped closer to him.

"Loder! Loder, you won't desert me?" He caught hastily at his arm.

With a quick repulsion Loder shook him off, then almost as quickly he turned round.

"What fools we all are!" he said abruptly. "We only differ in degree. Come in and let us change our clothes."

CHAPTER XIII.

THE best moments of a man's life are the moments when, strong in himself, he feels that the world lies before him. Gratified ambition may be the summer, but anticipation is the ardent springtime of a man's career.

As Loder drove that night from Fleet street to Grosvenor square he realized this, though scarcely with any degree of consciousness, for he was no accomplished self analyst. But in a wave of feeling too vigorous to be denied he recognized his regained foothold—the step that lifted him at once from the pit to the pinnacle.

In that moment of realization he looked neither backward nor forward. The present was all sufficing. Difficulties might loom ahead, but difficulties had but one object—the testing and sharpening of a man's strength. In the first deep surge of egotistical feeling he almost rejoiced in Chilcote's weakness. The more Chilcote tangled the threads of his life the stronger must be the fingers that unraveled them. He was possessed by a great impatience. The joy of action was stirring in his blood.

Leaving the cab, he walked confidently to the door of Chilcote's house and inserted the latchkey. Even in this small act there was a grain of individual satisfaction. Then very quietly he opened the door and crossed the hall.

As he entered, a footman was arranging the fire that burned in the big grate. Seeing the man, he halted.

"Where is your mistress?" he asked in unconscious repetition of his first question in the same house.

The man looked up. "She has just finished dinner, sir. She dined alone in her own room." He glanced at Loder in the quick, uncertain way that was noticeable in all the servants of the household when they addressed their master. Loder saw the look and wondered what depth of curiosity it betrayed, how much of insight into the domestic life that he must always be content to skim. For an instant the old resentment against Chilcote tinged his exaltation, but he swept it angrily aside. Without further remark he began to mount the stairs.

Gaining the landing, he did not turn, as usual, to the door that shut off Chilcote's rooms, but moved onward down the corridor toward Eve's private sitting room. He moved slowly till the door was reached. Then he paused and lifted his hand. There was a moment's wait while his fingers rested on the handle; then a sensation he could not explain, a reticence, a reluctance to intrude upon this one precinct, caused his fingers to relax. With a slightly embarrassed gesture he drew back slowly and retraced his steps.

Once in Chilcote's bedroom, he walked to the nearest bell and pressed it. Renwick responded, and at sight of him Loder's feelings warmed with the same sense of fitness and familiarity that the great bed and somber furniture of the room had inspired.

But the man did not come forward as he had expected. He remained close to the door with a hesitation that was unusual in a trained servant. It struck Loder that possibly his stolidity had exasperated Chilcote and that possibly Chilcote had been at no pains to conceal the exasperation. The idea caused him to smile involuntarily.

"Come into the room, Renwick," he said. "It's uncomfortable to see you standing there. I want to know if Mrs. Chilcote has sent me any message about tonight."

Renwick studied him furtively as he came forward. "Yes, sir," he said. "Mrs. Chilcote's maid said that the carriage was ordered for 10:15, and she hoped that would suit you." He spoke reluctantly, as if expecting a rebuke.

At the opening sentence Loder had turned aside, but now, as the man finished, he wheeled round again and looked at him closely with his keen, observant eyes.

"Look here," he said. "I can't have you speak to me like that. I may come down on you rather sharply when my—my nerves are bad, but when I'm myself I treat you—well, I treat you decently at any rate. You'll have to learn to discriminate. Look at me now!" A thrill of risk and of rulership passed through him as he spoke. "Look at me now! Do I look as I looked this morning—or yesterday?"

The man eyed him half stupidly, half timidly.

"Well?" Loder insisted.

"Well, sir," Renwick responded, with some slowness, "you look the same and you look different—a healthier color, perhaps, sir, and the eye clearer." He grew more confident under Loder's half humorous, half insistent gaze. "Now that I look closer, sir"—

Loder laughed. "That's it!" he said. "Now that you look closer. You'll have to grow observant. Observation is an excellent quality in a servant. When you come into a room in future, look first of all to me and take you cue from that. Remember that serving a man with nerves is like serving two masters. Now you can go, and tell Mrs. Chilcote's maid that I shall be quite ready at a quarter past 10."

"Yes, sir. And after that?"

"Nothing further. I shan't want you again tonight." He turned away as he spoke and moved toward the great fire that was always kept alight in Chilcote's room. But as the man moved toward the door he wheeled back again. "Oh, one thing more, Renwick! Bring me some sandwiches and a whisky." He remembered for the first time that he had eaten nothing since early afternoon.

A few minutes after 10 Loder left Chilcote's room, resolutely descended the stairs and took up his position in the hall. Resolution is a strong word to apply to such a proceeding, but something in his bearing, in the attitude of his shoulders and head, instinctively suggested it.

Five or six minutes passed, but he waited without impatience. Then at last the sound of a carriage stopping before the house caused him to lift his head, and at the same instant Eve appeared at the head of the staircase.

She stood there for a second, looking down on him, her maid a pace or two behind holding her cloak. The picture she made struck upon his mind with something of a revelation.

On his first sight of her she had appealed to him as a strange blending of youth and self possession—a girl with a woman's clearer perception of life. Later he had been drawn to study her in other respects—as a possible comrade and friend. Now for the first time he saw her as a power in her own world—a woman to whom no man could deny consideration. She looked taller for the distance between them, and the distinction of her carriage added to the effect. Her black gown was exquisitely soft—as soft as her black hair.

BROTHER TOLD BROTHER

One Suffered for Fifteen Years, the Other for Thirteen.

The convincing powers of a testimonial were never more clearly shown than in the case of Mr. Hugh Brown. A brother, Lemuel Brown, of Avondale, N.B., read in the paper about Hon. John Costigan being cured by "Fruit-a-tives." Knowing the Senator would only endorse a medicine which had cured him, Mr. Lemuel Brown tried "Fruit-a-tives." They cured him of Chronic Indigestion and Constipation, so he urged his brother to try them.

Hartland, N.B., Oct. 28th, 1907.

"Three doctors told me that I had Liver Disease and serious Stomach Trouble. My stomach was very weak. I took their medicines for thirteen years and grew worse. My brother (who was cured of terrible Indigestion by "Fruit-a-tives" after suffering for 15 years), recommended me to try these wonderful tablets. I bought half a dozen boxes and have just finished the sixth. I eat all kinds of hearty foods without distress and am greatly improved in every way. "Fruit-a-tives" also cured the Chronic Constipation which was so distressing in my case."

SERGT. HUGHES HONORED BY HIS ASSOCIATES AT BAND ROOM LAST NIGHT

Band Sergt. Hughes was remembered by his fellow bandsmen last night and members of the bugle band, when he was honored with presentations at the conclusion of the band concert at Victoria Park. The bandroom of the 57th was the scene of the occasion and from the expressions of esteem towards him Sergt. Hughes would very naturally judge that he was held in the highest regard by those with whom he had been associated.

The departing cornet soloist of the 57th was presented with a handsome set of pipes by the bandsmen and a similar presentation by the members of the bugle band. Several speeches of a most complimentary nature were made in which the splendid services of Sergt. Hughes were dwelt upon and reference was made to the fact that he was a particularly competent and attentive musician.

Mr. Glidden, the conductor of the band, spoke of Sergt. Hughes' very valuable services since he has been connected with the band and remarked on the ability and attention to duty of the departing member.

In acknowledging the presentation Sergt. Hughes said he regretted leaving Peterborough and told of his pleasant, personal and professional associations here.

The presentation on behalf of the band was made by Bandsman Crook. The bugle band presented Sergt. Hughes with a case of pipes and a picture of the band taken at Barriefield camp last summer. The pipes were presented by Fred Myles and the picture by Amos McWilliams. The following address was read by W. Sharpe:

Peterborough, July 16, 1909.

Dear Walter,—It was with the deepest feelings of regret that we, the members of the 57th Regimental Bugle Band, learned of your intention to leave the city, and try your luck in the far West. We feel that we cannot let the opportunity pass without showing in some tangible manner, our appreciation of your valued services and good fellowship, while one of us.

We ask you to accept this set of pipes, and when you light them up after your day's labor, that you will let your memory wander back, through their smoke, to Peterborough, and remember your bugler friends, who will always wish you good health and prosperity in your new field.

Signed on behalf of the Bugle Band,
SERGT. F. MYLES.

Sergt. Hughes thanked the boys heartily for their gifts and the kind words of the address.

The presentation took place at the home of Mr. R. Beach.

Sergt. Hughes left for Vernon, B.C., this afternoon on the 4.38 C.P.R. train and will take the leadership of the Vernon band.

DEPARTING MEMBER WAS HONORED BY AUXILIARY

A very pleasant event took place yesterday, when the ladies of St. Luke's Woman's Auxiliary were entertained at tea by Mrs. A. Turner. The occasion was a farewell social to Mrs. W. J. Scott, who with her family, is shortly to leave for Chicago. A large table was laid with about 35 covers on the spacious lawn of the court house, and the guests were royally entertained by Mrs. Turner, who proved to be a most attentive host. After ample justice had been done to the splendid repast, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt addressed the ladies, reminding them of the nature of the gathering, and expressing his great regret at the forthcoming leaving of Mrs Scott and her family. Dr. Langfeldt read the following address to her:—

St. Luke's the Evangelist,
Peterborough, July 16, 1909.

Mrs. W. J. Scott:

Dear Mrs. Scott,—On the eve of your departure from our Church to Chicago, we desire to express to you in some tangible manner our great regret at the impending separation. For many years you have been identified with the most active work of the church, and in the carrying out of the church's policy you have taken a leading and foremost part. Whenever the opportunity for work presented itself, whenever a leader was wanted, we would always depend upon you for faithful work. Ever loyal, and sympathetic with the interests of the parish, you possessed the entire confidence of the Rector and presidents of the organizations with which you were connected. As President of the Woman's Auxiliary, as Superintendent of the Mission Band, as Sunday school teacher, you evinced qualities of heart and mind which are most commendable.

We part with you with feelings of affectionate regret. We realize that your place will be difficult to fill. And since your daughters have also actively assisted the work of the church in many capacities, the loss is doubly regrettable.

As we place on record our sincere appreciation of all you have done for us, and as we realize the sorrow of the separation before us, we desire to give you some affectionate proof of the sincerity of our sentiments, and ask you to accept the accompanying gift as a mark of our earnest esteem for you and yours, and of the grateful acknowledgement of your faithful work.

May you be long spared to continue to render such faithful service to your Master, and His Church, wherever you are, as you have done here, and may the Lord watch between you and us, while we are absent from one another.

On behalf of the organizations of St. Luke's Church.

E. A. LANGFELDT,
M.A., Ph.D.,
Rector.
E. GASKINS,
President of W.A.

The address was accompanied by a dinner set of Limoge china, presented by Mrs. Scott's many friends in St. Luke's. The formal presentation was made by Mrs. S. Gaskins, President of the W.A. Mrs. Scott felt very keenly the approaching separation, and appreciated the kindness of her friends.

The rest of the evening was spent in friendly intercourse, everyone regretting the loss of a true co-worker in the cause of Christ.

BIG STORM AT STONEY LAKE

Between 11 and 12 a.m. on Thursday last a tremendous wind and rain storm struck Stony Lake. At Juniper Island where the St. Peter's choir picnic party was tied up it made things lively for a time. A number of the cottages suffered slightly but no accidents are reported. The storm did not reach Peterborough. At Islands Mr. Alexander's pleasure resort in Buckhorn Lake, it wrought havoc, tearing a big flag to ribbands.

He left, however, a good clue to his identity, and Constable Williams, who was at once placed in charge of the case, hopes to capture him in a few days.—Alliston Herald.

NOTHING DEFINITE DONE IN POWER QUESTION

Council Was Addressed Last Night by Mr. R. J. McLaughlin, K. C. in Interests of Central Ontario Power Company.

The members of the City Council were addressed last night by Mr. R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., and Mr. J. A. Culverwell, C.E., who represent Central Power Company. Mr. McLaughlin in rising to speak thanked the Council for their kindness in allowing him to discuss the question with them and no matter whether the city acted on his proposition, or if they turned it down, the pleasant relations existing between the company and the Council would still exist. He did not regard the Council's offer of $50,000 for the Burleigh Falls power as a serious one, but nevertheless it showed that the city were interested in the matter and endeavoring to secure all the information available. It was now two months since he had addressed them and he hoped they had made progress on the subject of which both the company and the city were interested. The price the Council had offered was a very low one. Power operated by a municipal company was a better proposition than if being under the control of a private company. The latter could not develop the power at the same rate, their expenses would be higher and they would also have to pay big dividends to shareholders. The price the company had set was a much lower one than that offered to other cities. The real question was, "Does the city want the power or not." If they do a few thousand should not stop them from buying now. He referred to what western cities were doing in the line of developing power and submitted a copy of the contract signed by the city of Guelph for 2,500 h.p. at $34 per h.p., undistributed for a long term of years. The proposition offered this city is for much less money and a greate amount ofr power will be available. The price was the very low. he had been authorized to make, and their object now was to save time. A power house could be built before fall and power developed for use should industries wish to locate here, but if the matter was left over valuable time and perhaps large concerns would be lost to this city.

Ald. Turner said he was in favor of the city securing all the power available. It was a valuable asset and would allow the city to compete with many of the larger places and he would support any satisfactory solution of the question. He was not in favor of the bonus system and this could be done away with if the city city could offer cheap power. Considerable discussion followed and finally Ald. Buller moved that the matter be left in the hands of the Power Committee. Ald. Duffus seconded the motion.

Ald. McIntyre, chairman of the Power Committee, then said that unless the company reduced the price he was not in favor of calling the committee to consider it.

Early Onions.

Onion sets should be planted as soon as the frost is out of the ground. The bulbs will stand frost without injury. If the ground was plowed in the fall all that is necessary is to harrow the ground over well, then work off and stick the onions in just deep enough to completely cover them with the fine earth. Set out in fifteen inch rows two inches apart in the row if the crop is to be worked with the hand cultivator and twenty inches apart if the horse cultivator is to be used. Onions require a deep, finely pulverized, rich soil. Spread the manure along the drill rows and where the shoots appear sow a little high grade phosphate along the row. One handful will sow twenty feet of the row. For family use the White Portugal and the Silver Skin are the best two kinds, as they are of mild flavor, close grained and a beautiful clear white. For the market plant the Yellow Strassburg and the Red Danvers. These two kinds are hardy and rapid growers and are mostly grown by the German truckers for bunching when half grown and also for selling in midsummer. The truckers raise a crop of onions and a crop of cabbage or celery from the same land each season. The manure given the onions will carry the second crop through.

More than 4,000 Western Union telegraph poles in Iowa were broken during the recent storms and flood. The loss is placed at $280,000.

WM. MACKENZIE PLANS SEVERAL MORE RAILWAYS

Great Canadian Railway Promoters Will Build Steam Road From Toronto to Niagara Falls, Which May be Electrified Later.

Toronto, July 19.—Mr. William Mackenzie, president of the Canadian Northern Railway, and the dominating figure in the electrical situation in Ontario, returned home yesterday. During the past two months Mr. Mackenzie has been in the old country money markets, and has sold debenture stocks for two portions of the Canadian Northern Railway system. The first was an offering of £1,200,000 of four per cent. debenture stock, guaranteed by the two western provinces which the new lines are designed to benefit. These were sold at 97 1-2. The second was an issue of £800,000 four per cent. debenture stock, which sold at 92, and it is in this last issue that public interest in this province was centered. The prospectus of the loan stated that the proceeds of the issue would be applied towards the construction of a line from Toronto to Niagara Falls, with an extension from Toronto to Port Hope, Belleville and Smith's Falls, to Ottawa to join existing lines in Montreal and Quebec via Hawkesbury.

At his home last evening Mr. Mackenzie said that work upon the line to Niagara Falls would be commenced in the near future. Mr. Mackenzie said it was to be expected that the new line would be a steam railway at first, and that a part of the Electrical Development Co.'s right of way would be used.

SUICIDE LOVED A CHICAGO GIRL

Chicago, July 19.—Dr. Rudolph Menn of this city places an authoritative seal upon the story that Baron Oskar Rothschild, the youngest son of Baron Albert Rothschild of Vienna, killed himself because of his family's opposition to his marriage with Olga Menn, the physician's young and beautiful daughter.

The doctor told of his daughter's meeting with the young baron when he arrived in Chicago with a party of friends on their way to Europe from the Orient six weeks ago. A friend of the nobleman was taken ill and was sent to the hospital where Dr. Menn is a staff physician. The baron met the doctor's daughter and from that first meeting they were together much of the time that the young man was in Chicago.

A week after meeting Miss Menn, the doctor said, young Rothschild proposed marriage.

THE LORDS TO DISCUSS BUDGET

London, July 19.—From a statement by Lord Lansdowne, in a political speech, it is apparent that the Unionist Lords intend to disregard precedent and treat the budget, when it reaches them from the House of Commons, as they would any other measure.

Heretofore the House of Lords has not interfered with the financial measures of the Government of the day, the imposition of new taxes and expenditures being considered entirely in the hands of the House of Commons.

Lord Lansdowne said it was not likely that the House of Lords would proclaim that it had no responsibility in the budget bill or that it was obliged to accept the bill whole because it mixed up financial affairs. He contended that it was unthinkable that in a country where there were two chambers it should be left absolutely to one of them to impose a new financial system.

The members of the Government recently threatened that if the House of Lords interfered with the budget they would appeal to the country on the question of the reform, if not the abolition of that House.

IMRORTANT ORDER OF RY. COMMISSION

The Siege of Kandahar.

Lord Robert's march to Kandahar furnishes one of the brightest pages in British history and the fall of the Afghan stronghold furnishes unequalled scenic effects for a great pyrotechnics production. One thousand men in all the brilliant costumes of the East will make this one of the big attractions at the Canadian National Exhibition this year. It will be entertainment and education in one and will help make your evening at the Fair one long to be remembered.

All went well for a few minutes, then the machine suddenly exploded with a report like a cannon. The house took fire and $100 damage was done.

Car of Freight Burns.

BOLD ROBBERS IN GERMANY

Berlin, July 19.—Brigands held the highway between Augustowo and Lipsk on the Russo-German border all one day of the past week and captured some 50 or 60 travelers whom they relieved of money estimated in the aggregate at $25,000. Most of the victims were horse dealers on their way to the annual horse market at Lipsk.

One of the exploits of the highwaymen was to seize a toll gate house. They bound the keeper and his wife, and stationed one of their number, dressed in the gatekeeper's uniform, outside the gate.

Peasants were allowed to pass on the payment of the usual fee, but prosperous-looking travelers were overpowered and robbed and then imprisoned in the attic of the gatekeeper's house. One man was murdered.

Police Killed; Slayer Suicides.

Delaunay committed suicide.

BONUS FOR CHILDREN

French Doctor Proposes a Remedy for Race Suicide—Has Aroused Opposition

Paris, July 19.—The grave problem presented by the declining birth rate again is distressing France, which is engaged particularly at this moment weighing the merits claimed for the plan proposed by Prof. Richet of the Academy of Medicine Leroy Beaulieu.

The scheme proposed a system of bonuses for children, the bonus growing as the number of children in one family increases. That is, while the parents get nothing in consideration for the first child, they are allowed $100 for the second, $200 for the third, and so on. Richet believes births would be increased annually by 750,000, or 1,000,000 at a cost to the state of $6,000,000 yearly. This would be met by death duties, the plan laying a tax of 50 per cent. on all collateral bequests and confiscating half estates in case of only one child.

Richet further would reduce the salaries of unmarried employes of the state as well as those with only one child or none five years after marriage.

Naturally the proposition has aroused warm opposition. It is asked whether the class which would be reached by such an offer, is one worthy to be the parents of future generations.

There are not lacking those who affirm that the prosperity of France rests on the principle of the small family and who see revolution, chaos, and national poverty if large families become general.

PETERBOROUGH GIRL REPORTED MISSING

Annie Coughlin, Said to Be From This City, Left House Where She Was Working, at Ottawa, on July 10th and Has Not Returned.

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Ont., July 19.—Miss Annie Coughlin, thought to hail from Peterborough, a domestic, who worked for Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Phillips, 156 Rochester street, has been missing from there since the 10th inst.

She told them she was going for a walk, and going out has not returned. She left her trunk and belongings there. As she has got $10 or $12 in advance, it will not be given up till the amount is made good. She is about 24 or 26 years of age, and her companion, Miss Marie Linden, says she belongs to Peterborough, and she understands has a mother and brother there.

LABOR MEN THINK THE MINISTER OF LABOR SHOULD BE AT GLACE BAY

Vice-President Simpson of Trades and Labor Congress Believes Labor Minister Ought to be on Hand at Coal Strike—Belgians Arrested.

Glace Bay, N.S., July 19.—James Simpson, vice-president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, considers it of vital importance that Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Minister of Labor, should be in the strike district and the following message was forwarded last evening to P. M. Draper, secretary of Trades and Labor Congress, Ottawa: "Minister of Labor should hasten to scene of strike, not to interfere, but to merely observe. Military accepting favors from company and exceeding their duties in the interests of the company. Strikers are provoked, but remain peaceful."

A manoeuvre of the military Saturday night brought forth adverse criticism of Chief of Police McIsaac and hundreds of citizens. It was about 11 o'clock when men, women, and children were preparing to make their way homeward, that an armed picket of forty men from the R.C.R. marched down upon the town and, with glittering bayonets attached to rifles, made their way through the crowded streets to the business section of the town. The pickets only remained a few minutes, but feeling ran high and had they stayed there might have been trouble.

A report had reached the officers of the coal company during the day that an attempt was going to be made to blow up the company's offices, but there was not the slightest trouble.

Chief McIsaac said he never remembered as quiet a pay-night, and not to make an arrest broke all records. This was due to the saloons being closed at the request of the U.M.W. Over 7,000 men, both U.M.W. and P.W.A., received their wages for two week's work. Over $200,000 was paid out and the tour of pay clerks was carried out with all the pomp of a military review.

At 2 p.m. from fifteen to twenty pay clerks left the company's office in Glace Bay with their heavily-laden tin boxes, and accompanied by a squad of the company's police and a bodyguard of soldiers proceeded to the station, where a special train was waiting. The money was disposed of in less than two hours.

The offices were not only guarded by special police, but at every door a soldier was on guard, while walking up and down the sidewalk were soldiers armed with rifles and bayonets.

The only incident that caused the gathering of a crowd was the arrival of seven colored would-be miners from Barbados. The pickets of the U.M.W. after a little persuasion induced them to go to strike headquarters to register. The colored men said they were not aware there was a strike, and were willing to leave town.

There was a lively scene at the police station Saturday night when 24 strikers, mostly Belgians, were arrested by the company and landed in jail. The men went to the office for pay and writs of capias were served on them for alleged non-payment of passage money. The U.M.W. went bonds for the men.

Good Output at Inverness.

Montreal, July 19.—A despatch received here Saturday by W. D. Barclay, general manager of Mackenzie and Mann, eastern lines, states that on Saturday at the Inverness mines they secured on output equalling 75 per cent. of the normal quantity before the strike. He takes this to indicate that the strike at that point at least is as good as broken.

THE JAPS GET A PREFERENCE

Seattle, Wash., July 19.—According to owners of American halibut fishing vessels here yesterday the recent order forbidding Americans to buy herring bait in British Columbia waters is intended to force Americans to put their ships under the British flag and transfer their business to the Canadian side, as one Boston company has already done.

The American fishermen said that Japanese fishermen are given every privilege over Americans by the regulations just promulgated by the Dominion council. In the harbor of Nanaimo, B.C., alone between November 1, 1908, and February 15, 1909, Japanese fishermen caught and shipped to Japan 20,000 tons of herring.

"The fight was between the McDonalds on one side and Miller and Chisholm on the other, two factions which have quarrelled for many years.

Both Chisholm and the McDonalds claimed ownership of the cow. Miller and Peter McDonald started the row in front of the Union Bank. Revolvers were drawn and the shooting commenced.

The Roxana, Carrying a Party of 22, is Upset in New York Bay and Ten Drown—Three Claimed by Waters at Rochester.

New York, July 19.—Ten persons were drowned yesterday afternoon when the excursion sloop Roxana, carrying 22 passengers capsized by a sudden squall in lower New York Bay, midway between Coney Island and Hoffman Island.

The captain and the twelve survivors were picked up under great difficulties in a rough and choppy sea.

The tug Lamont, which happened at the time to be the only other vessel within sight in waters usually crowded with pleasure craft and motor-boats, performed the rescue.

The Roxana, with her skipper, Captain Samuelson, was chartered at Ulmer Beach, Long Island, yesterday afternoon, by a party of Swedes from Brooklyn for a sail across the bay to Midland Beach, Staten Island, and back. The first leg of the voyage was made without mishap, and all hands piled ashore to make merry. Beer was served, and some of the survivors could give but a hazy account of the accident.

Although several employes of the Grand Trunk were called quickly to the spot, and one of his companions could swim adeptly, no practical effort was made to rescue him, and he was not taken from the water for nearly half an hour, when two men, John Parker, 41 Cherry street, and Fred Hardy, 97 Cherry street dived for him.

The Grand Trunk men tried to fish him out with a pole and the companion that could swim and who had fallen from the same boat, crawled out on the bank and remained watching proceedings.

Drowned In Elk Lake.

Toronto, July 19.—"Hector Mason, 28 Edward street, Toronto, drowned last night in Elk Lake. Body not recovered." (Signed) H. N. Cockburn.

The above telegram was received in Toronto at noon yesterday. The police were notified and on going to the address mentioned, were informed that no person of that name had been residing there. Investigations by the police as to where Mason's friends reside have so far been fruitless.

It is believed that the deceased was J. Hector Mason, a mechanic who for some time was connected with gasoline engine works in the city and who lived on Trinity square and Jarvis street. His wife died some three years ago, but he leaves a child.

PLAYED JOKES ON MR. PUGSLEY

Vancouver, B.C., July 19.—Business and shipping men played rude jokes on Hon. William Pugsley Saturday. They were showing him around the harbor to give him first-hand information of improvemnets, removals of shoals, etc. They had the steamer Joan. Capt. Troup, superintendent of the C.P.R. fleet, was aboard, and when the steamer was off the entrance to False Creek, where for years dredging has been required, Troup purposely piled the vessel up on a sandbank.

The illustration of the need of dredging was very dramatic, for the boat hit with a bump. She was undamaged and backed off in a few moments.

But Mr. Pugsley made no promises.

INDIAN EDITOR PREDICTS TRAGEDY

London, May 19.—Krishnavarma, the notorious editor of The Indian Sociologist, writes a long letter from Paris in defence of Dhingra, the murderer of Sir William Wyllie. He denies any complicity in the assassination, but describes the assassin as a martyr in the cause of Indian independence. He reasserts his doctrine that political assassination is not murder, and avers "That there are even in England some high-minded, thoughtful publicists who agree with him."

The significance of this letter lies in the prophecy at the end that "there will ere long befall England a catastrophe that will stagger humanity."

THE PITTSBURG STRIKE

Upon those who were first responsible for the wrong-doing let the burden rest. This is the pith of an old proverb and one found by experience to be well founded. When scandal and corruption are rife and sap the foundation of all forms of liberty and decent dealing it will be found that it is due to the example set by "those above."

There are various forms of graft, the involuntary and the voluntary. The former is the tribute forced from the wage-earner. The latter is the covert bribe forced from the favour-seeker. It is a favourite lever for prying open the strong-box adopted by those who do the loudest and longest professing. It is not always unwillingly given. It is a gilded form of securing "favours" in the name of benefitting a church, etc. Of course "the people" see through it and despise it. Of all forms of crookedness and sly dealing, however, the exaction of a bonus from the toiling workman and his wife and little ones is the worst. It is the meanest form of crookedness known to man, except, perhaps the robbery at the "company's store." We may be sure it is the meanest form known because if there was any meaner it would have been discovered and adopted. It is high time for Mr. Carnegie to spend some of his millions in finding out how he has amassed the others. He may plead that stock-gamblers are just as bad and no doubt they are. Money is made on 'Change by bulling and bearing at the expense of the real, though distant seller and buyer—in the one case the producer, in the other the struggling consumer.

All these forms of robbery must go. Their departure will solve most of the troubles, at any rate all the serious troubles of the men who now find it necessary to strike. No one denies that it is the grafter who is the cause of all the trouble. He must be ruthlessly dealt with, no matter what disguise he comes in. Instead of avoiding the very appearance of evil and suspicion he has become so bold as to rely upon his position and his bluff for overcoming public scruples and criticism. He makes poverty his disgrace while pretending to court it and honour it. In the end the biter is bitten. The creatures he has reared up turn on him and rend him. It is a law of nature. But it keeps the fires of hell burning on the hearth of the worker's family all the while. We are too fond of laying our sins at the devil's door. Run your eye over the aims of graft, etc., in Canada and who do you find the author and finisher of them? The devil? No. Just common, greedy, hypocritical humanity.

A PRACTICAL EXAMPLE

In a very few years Japan's export manufacturers have jumped from nineteen millions to two hundred and fifty millions, and they are only just starting. The Japanese Government is the most perfect capitalist government in the world. The nobles there are not only the ruling class, but they are also the industrial owners. Ruling the government completely, they have used the powers of government to establish themselves in business. Practically every industry in Japan has been established by Government funds. If a noble had no money, or not enough to start a factory with, the Government loaned him a sufficient sum to be paid back on easy long-time installments. Then living in Japan is very low, and wages correspond accordingly. The operative in the Japanese cotton mills get a wage of between thirteen and fourteen cents [illegible] shipyards the highest paid of the workers—the iron workers—receive a daily wage of $1.32. Blacksmiths get $1.23 a day, while the wages of all the other trades, employed in shipbuilding, range from 42 cents to $1.00 a day. Ship carpenters are paid 80 cents a day, house carpenters 42 cents a day, painters 75 cents a day, rivet makers 80 cents a day, lathe workers 99 cents a day, electricians 57 cents a day, and machinists 51 cents a day. The cost of production compared with the Union burdened nations, is simply staggering. The effects on the industrial world by Japanese advances during the next few years, will be much more impressive than is generally thought at present.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

Now, then, shall we do as the anti-protectionists want, and let the Japs come in and swamp our manufacturers, or shall we maintain the present standard of living of our workers by keeping them out? Of course Japs at $1.00 a day can give us cheaper manufactures than our people can at $2.00 or $3.00 per day, but then, do we want to go back to the days when the workers were supposed to be people created by God for the use and abuse of the rich? Of all things a capitalistic form of government, such as the Independent speaks of, is the worst in the world. It means the total loss of individual liberty and independence in the mass of the people.

EDITORIAL NOTES

After reading all the "don'ts" we have come to the conclusion that the best advice is "Don't go near the water."

No sooner was the U. S. assured of an immense crop of everything than too much rain upset the calculations and made the poor weep. The rich just raise the prices.

The Eskimo lad who with four others was brought to the United States eighteen years ago by Peary, has at last sailed for home. He is nearly crazy with delight. When Peary, who sailed not long ago on another polar expedition refused to take the lad back to Greenland, indignation was general throughout the United States, hence the lad's opportunity to return.

MILKING MACHINE TESTS.

Experiments of Tennessee Station With the Mechanical Milker.

One after another the experiment stations are taking up the question of milking by machine, with results not altogether in agreement, although generally favorable. The conclusions drawn by the Tennessee experiment station are grouped under nine heads as follows:

First. — Under conditions existing during the test at the station machine milking has been at least equal if not slightly superior to hand milking.

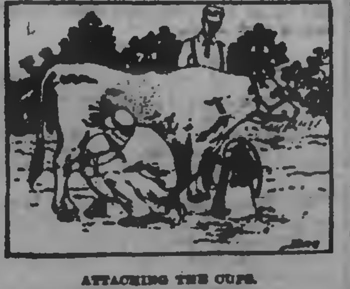
Second.—Under average conditions a cow is milked as clean with the machine as by hand. An expert operator can milk cleaner with the machine than the average man will by hand.

Third.—If the teat cups and mouth pieces are properly adjusted the machine is not injurious to the teats and udder or objectionable to the cows, some even preferring it.

Fourth.—The machines are not difficult to keep clean, and a high grade of milk is secured when machines are used. If neglected, however, they soon become filthy and are a serious source of contamination.

Fifth.—One man running two machines is nearly equal to two hand milkers. There is a great difference between the number of cows different men will milk per hour. To secure thorough milking and rapid work the operator should follow the machines closely to see that each cow is milking properly.

Sixth.—Successful milking with machines depends upon the proper fitting of cups and mouth pieces, the operator being sure that each teat is milking before going to the next cow and thorough manipulation of the udder before removal of the machine. In many cases it is necessary to use a smaller sized teat cup during advanced stages of lactation than when the cow is fresh.



ATTACHING THE CUPS.

Seventh. — The operator should be above the average farm laborer in intelligence and mechanical skill.

Eighth.—Troubles that occur in operating are due more to misuse than to any fault of the machine.

Ninth.—Some cows give more milk by machine milking and others less. Present knowledge indicates that machine milking is as efficient as hand milking under average conditions. A great deal better yields by machine could be secured if the herd were selected for uniform teats of good size.

THIS YEAR'S FIREWORKS.

Great Double Bill at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto.

What will the fireworks at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, be this year? That is the question that has been fired at the Exhibition management for months past, and at last they are in position to answer. The fireworks this year will be practically a double bill. The historical spectacle selected for this year is "The Siege of Kandahar," and it will be put on on a scale in keeping with the military nature of this year's attractions, and that will do honor to "Bobs," the darling of the British army and the hero of the historic event.

But the Dreadnought has occupied so large a share of public attention of late that it could not be overlooked by a management that always caters to the popular demand, so a second, or it might rather be called the principal feature of the evening will be "The Battle of the North Seas," in which the Dreadnoughts will sail into the arena and engage in the most realistic naval battle ever fought in times of peace.

A Double Writing Table.

The furniture makers have put out a very good writing desk for a sitting room. It has an upright centerpiece filled with pigeonholes on both sides. There is a lid on each side which is large enough to be fitted out with the usual desk implements. Two people can sit at it comfortably without staring into each other's face, as the center upright is higher than the head.

THE SHEPHERD.

Put the unthrifty appearing ewes by themselves and give a little extra feed. Perhaps they are suffering from the greed of the bosses in the flock and are not getting a full ration.

Feeding Orphan Lambs.

It may be more trouble at first, but it is better to teach baby orphan lambs to drink out of a basin than from a bottle, as it will be less trouble as they grow older. The milk should be blood warm and fresh from the cow for the first few days. If any is spilled on their wool it should be wiped off, as the odor of stale milk is unwholesome and disagreeable.

Exercise For Breeding Ewes.

An old sheep breeder and a successful one says that exercise for the breeding ewe is most essential. No matter how near perfect the ration may be, if exercise be forgotten failure will follow. When sheep begin to look ragged and lose wool in spots, better look out for some skin disease.

Twine For Tying Wool.

At shearing time care should be taken in the character of twine used in tying wool. The leading dealers, both west and east, and manufacturers complain that wrong methods are too often followed. Through effort made a year ago against use of sisal or binder twine in tying fleeces this practice has been largely discontinued. But dealers complain that too much of the wool last year was tied with thick twine made of old bagging, which is almost as bad as sisal, as it rubs off on the wool and will not take the dye in manufacture. What is wanted is a hard, smooth twine, keeping all tags or foreign matter out of the fleeces.

Not More Than Ten Per Acre.

The number of lambs to turn into a cornfield per acre depends upon the feed in it. Ordinarily ten lambs will not be too many to eat the pasturage furnished by one acre. Where corn is ripe and the yield is fifty bushels per acre thirty-five or forty lambs are frequently turned in per acre, but this is a different proposition. Here only the pasturage and not the entire crop is desired. Lambs are sometimes inclined to trample down the corn in the corner where they are turned in. To avoid their doing this they should be permitted to work into the cornfield slowly and at their own pleasure. If driven hurriedly into a field they lose each other and immediately run as if wild in an effort to find one another.

NOVELTY FOR A BAZAAR

A Fruit and Vegetable Stand of the Typical Irish Kind.

OLD APPLE WOMAN PRESIDES

The Stand Is Stocked With Real, Imitation and Surprise Wares—The Idea Partakes Somewhat of the Nature of a Grab Bag.

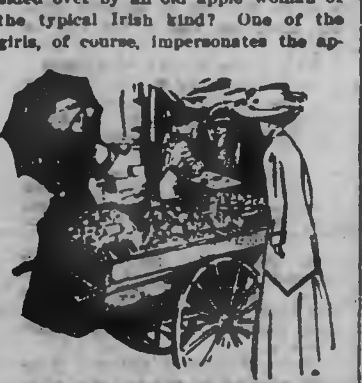
If you are planning a fair for some favorite charity, why not try as a novelty a fruit and vegetable stand, presided over by an old apple woman of the typical Irish kind? One of the girls, of course, impersonates the apple woman, and she should be a girl who has some ability at brogue and repartee.



A FRUIT AND VEGETABLE STAND.

For a costume she should wear a voluminous checked gingham skirt and waist, a small plaid shawl pinned across the chest and either a big, round starched white cap or a straw poke bonnet. A clay pipe in the mouth will add much of realism to the make-up, and a big red cotton umbrella is a most picturesque addition to the outfit, the open umbrella behind and over the apple woman's head being a fine background for a pretty face.

For the stand a regular pushcart is the best thing and should be hired or borrowed. But if this is not practicable a good imitation may be made of a plain kitchen table, rather low, with a little rim a couple of inches high standing up all around the edges. The whole stand should, to be really correct, be painted green.

The stand must be supplied with real fruit and "surprise fruit" and imitation fruit. It partakes somewhat of the nature of a grab bag. Ordinary brown paper bags should be used to wrap the purchases.

As to the articles to be sold, the plan best followed would be to divide the stand into three sections, one for real fruit and nuts and candies, one for imitations and one for the "surprises." The imitations are easily contrived. Balls of orange colored string are to be piled up like oranges; banana shaped pincushions of yellow silk are made, stuffed with wool wadding (cotton wadding will do); emery cushions in the form of strawberries and radishes, tomato and cucumber pincushions and thimble holders made of English walnut shells, opened, the meat taken out and tiny holes burned through the shells by a redhot hairpin, a narrow ribbon being slipped through these holes to tie the two halves of the shell together. These fruits should be piled as neatly as are the real ones, a stick with a placard at the top announcing the price of each variety.

For the "surprises" there are many devices. An orange may be quickly made of the proper shade of cambric, cut in four pieces the shape of a quarter of an orange skin and stitched together, or it may be even more simply made, though with a less lifelike look, by cutting a circle of nine or ten inches diameter and drawing up the edge with a needle and thread run around in long stitches about half an inch from edge to edge.

Each of these oranges will contain some little thing, such as would be put in a grab bag. The articles, a doll, a china dog, a little dish, some candles, or whatever may be found available, should be wrapped in tissue paper and then in cotton batting in a ball and stuffed inside the oranges.

A Japanese Novelty.

A charming little novelty from the cherry blossom land is the well bucket hanging basket. The chief convenience of this innovation is to the person who waters the household plant, but its artistic aspect is for all.

It consists of two pretty little pottery buckets suspended from a pulley. Each may be pulled very low for watering while the other goes up.

Also from the country of the almond eyed is a new soft green dull pottery, known as midori ware, fashioned in the most artistic shapes, teapots, candlesticks, jugs, jars, bowls, vases.

From Japan, too, are little candle lamps. They resemble a real little lamp, base, shade and all, but burn only candles.

Partners by Mutual Tastes.

It is a happy plan to pair off the men and girls who will go in to dinner or play a game together according to a similarity of tastes.

For example, the hostess makes out a list of modern novelists, typewriting each name on two separate slips. Each set of slips is dropped into a different basket. One basket is passed among the men, the other among the girls, and each person selects his favorite author.

Those who agree in liking the same one are partners. The names of novels and the titles of popular songs or poems can be utilized in the same way.

Drink For Tired Horses.

A horseman says that for horses fagged out after a tiring journey there is no safer or better tonic than a "white drink" made by stirring in a bucket of water a pint of oatmeal off which the chill has been taken. White drinks of this kind are not only good thirst quenchers, but they also seem to act as a restorative and are found to be very effective in enabling animals to regain strength lost through illness or severe exertion.

Washington Hopes For a Salon.

A phase in the character of the only New York chatelaine in a cabinet home is her fondness for getting celebrities together. The hope is large that at last Washington may have a salon. Mrs. Wickersham is a profound student of public affairs and public men. Experienced leaders of society have declared the salon impossible. Mrs. Wickersham thinks differently. She is especially interested in the personality of leaders of thought, not only in the political world, but in the worlds of science, art and letters. The nearest approach to the salon Washington has known in the last few years has been in the British embassy since the advent of James Bryce and Mrs. Bryce. When the limitations etiquette places on the activities of foreign chatelaines are considered, if Mrs. Wickersham is as earnest in her efforts as Mrs. Bryce has been a brilliant reputation awaits her.

Cretonne Used For Embroidery Bag.

A nice little embroidery bag is made of cretonne covered with two embroidery hoops and finished at the ends with the cardboard covered with cretonne just the size of the hoops. In other words, the bag is built like a barrel, with an opening at the side. This opening is held together by lacing with ribbon or by two buttons.

The bag is carried by ribbon loops, which are fastened at each end to the embroidery hoops.

It is pretty, and the sewing materials do not get lost when thus protected.

PASTIME PUZZLES.

Dickens Pictures Extremely Popular. Perforated Souvenir Postcards.

The fad for picture puzzles is still at fever heat, and dealers say that sales of the famous jigsaw pictures are on the increase instead of decline. There is now a line of Dickens pictures which are extremely popular. They include all the coaching scenes in these famous novels, like Mr. Pickwick arriving at the Blue Lion, David Copperfield bidding goodby to the Micawbers, Nicholas Nickleby starting for Dotheboys Hall, etc., and are cut into about 350 pieces. Attention is now being given to well known historical pictures, too, as well as that of the world's best art. The color work of Frederic Remington and Walter Appleton Clarke is coming out in picture puzzles.

The latest fad is the progressive picture puzzle contest, a fascinating game which may be participated in by any number of players, the trick being to see which person or group can first put the picture together. The pictures come in sets containing four, six and eight boxes.

Another fad which has doubtless sprung from the picture puzzle is the perforated souvenir postcard. These cards are perforated in square and odd shapes, and the idea is to write your message on the reverse side of the picture and then break the perforated lines, put the pieces in an envelope and mail. In order to read the message the recipient must first match the picture on a book or magazine, place another book or magazine on top, reverse and read the message.

What next in the way of diversions?

JUNE FESTIVITIES.

Three Pretty Table Decorations For Children's Parties.

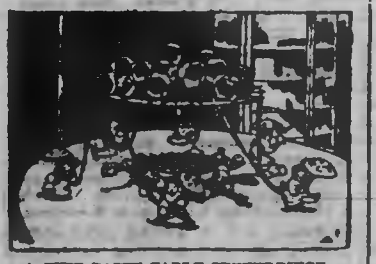
A June party for children can be made a thing of beauty as well as a joy for the time being with but little effort if nature is called to the assistance of the home decorator. The house, more especially the dining room, should be profusely decorated with vines, branches and other "green things growing," in order that it shall as nearly as possible be a replica of outdoors.

The refreshment table is always the center of the greatest interest to children, so should be made as festive as possible. Above it erect a framework of light wood and cover it with vines. From the framework, at certain intervals of space, suspend small paper lanterns of various colors. These should be lighted at the last moment and should be watched closely to ward off all possible danger of fire. If there are electric lights in the house a bulb could be placed here and there among the vines at a slight expense and would be just as effective as the lanterns and perfectly safe in so far as fire is concerned. The effect of this arrangement when the room is darkened and the lights on will be like a scene from fairyland.



A JUNE PARTY TABLE CENTERPIECE.

Another pink and white color scheme may be prettily carried out by the use of pink roses, which luxuriate at this season, and wood ferns. Place a large, low bowl of half open roses and buds on a mat of fern leaves in the center of the table. Stand smaller bowls of the blossoms at the corners of the table and extend inch wide runners of pink and white crape paper, which has been slightly ruffled by pulling the edges between the thumb and forefinger, from them to the centerpiece.

Suspend a white paper parasol above the centerpiece and fill it with roses and ferns, and from the ends of the ribs depend streamers of pink ribbon that end in a bunch of buds.

Or, instead of the parasol, suspend by means of invisible wire pink and white paper butterflies above the centerpiece.

Beside each plate stand a tiny pink and white candy basket filled with peppermint balls. To the handle of each basket tie a name card on which a butterfly is painted.

A dainty conceit for a "pie" at a child's June party is a Japanese umbrella filled with pink and white paper chrysanthemums, each one attached to a little gift. Pink ribbons attached at the stem end of the flowers and about the bodies of quaint Japanese dollies hold tiny paper umbrellas. In the center of the table place a dish of nuts surrounded with branches of artificial cherry blossoms. The umbrella should be hung from the chandelier or the ceiling.

To Keep Lettuce Crisp and Fresh.

After trying a number of ways to keep lettuce a housekeeper says that she finds the following to be the very best: Break off all the leaves, wash and rinse thoroughly and place in a covered dish, such as a vegetable dish or a bowl over which a plate will fit tightly.

Put no water in the dish except that which clings to the leaves.

Place in the refrigerator or cool place. For four to five days it will keep fresh and delightfully crisp and has the advantage of being ready when needed.

Seventeen members of a New York variety troupe arrived home. They had been stranded in Venezuela.

MOTHERS WHO HAVE DAUGHTERS

Find Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winchester, Ind. — "Four doctors told me that they could never make me regular, and that I would eventually have dropsy. I would bloat, and suffer from bearing-down pains, cramps and chills, and I could not sleep nights. My mother wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice, and I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking one and one-half bottles of the Compound, I am all right again, and I recommend it to every suffering woman." — MRS. MAY DEAL, Winchester, Ind.

Hundreds of such letters from girls and mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for them have been received by The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences and be restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by its use.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Few skins can stand glycerin, and it should never be used without being diluted. It absorbs all moisture, and the skin becomes dry and parched.

Neuralgia may very often be speedily relieved by applying a cloth saturated with essence of peppermint to the seat of pain and leaving it there.

Do not overeat or wear overtight clothes if you would avoid a red nose. Indigestion and cramped circulation can paint a more vivid hue than the rouge pot.

A good deodorizer is made by applying a hot poker to a lump of camphor gum in a saucer. The strong fumes will clear the atmosphere of a room in a few moments.

The health of the eye must be guarded. The girl who reads in a bad light, who does not care whether print is good or bad, who sits in a huddled position, with her head forward, is deliberately spoiling any beauty of eyes she may possess.

A well known chiropodist has given this hint for shoe comfort: "Never wear a shoe that will not permit the great toe to lie in a straight line." Cramping the toes not only gives corns and bunions, but so affects the feet that general misery follows. Never let vanity force you into a shoe too small. The penalty is too steep. It seemed that this particular form of silliness was disappearing, but the recent action of shoe manufacturers insisting on the correct number being placed in shoes, whether women liked it or not, looks as if common sense in footgear still bore cultivating.

A headache is one of the most tormenting ailments that ever visited humanity, and there are hundreds of different reasons for it. Men have headache, but women are the headache race. Headaches are warnings. Shopping headaches, nervous headaches and several other kinds of different sizes, widths, heights and ages warn one of some physical derangement, usually of stomach disorder. A headache is a fire alarm or any of those things that give a warning. It has been learned that headaches have nothing whatever to do with the brain, since the brain keeps actively at work under many distressing spells of headache, but the trouble is due to the anaemic state of the blood, which does not properly feed the nerves of the head.

Use of Charcoal.

A small dish of charcoal kept in the meat larder will keep the articles sweet and wholesome. Charcoal is a great disinfectant. A dish of charcoal kept in the icebox will also keep it smelling sweet and free from odors.

Watering Troughs and Glanders.

As long ago as 1682 Sollysel, who was the stable master of Louis XIV. of France and who wrote a book about glanders, called special attention to watering troughs as being the medium of contagion. Present day veterinarians do not consider the danger great unless the virus comes in direct contact with exposed tissues, but so many horses nowadays have their lips or mouths lacerated by the brutal jerking of their bits that communication of the disease in this way is said to be responsible for a very large percentage of the cases. As the disease is always fatal, the owner of the horse whose driver is permitted to torture him by nagging very often suffers a just punishment in the loss of the animal.

TRAP NESTS FOR HENS.

Clever Contrivance Which Gives the Layers Privacy.

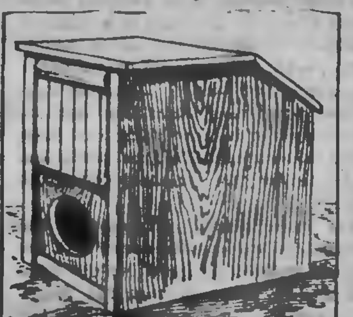
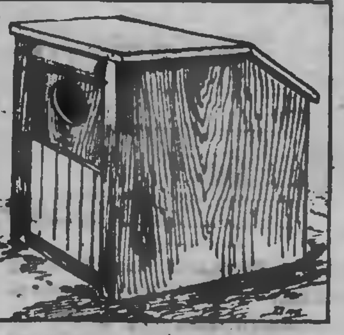
The trap nets described in this article are self regulating. When once set they require no more attention through the day. The hen when she wants to lay enters nest at the lower opening. The door closes automatically behind the hen, which prevents any other hen or anything else from bothering her while on the nest.

There is a partition about eight inches high which divides the interior into two equal apartments. The hen on entering the box, or reception apartment, the first time in search of a nest is as sure to want to see what is over behind the partition as daylight and dark come. In fact, she is hunting a place of seclusion and a little darkness. On seeing the nest over behind the partition she jumps upon the partition board to get over in the nest, which releases a small spring that holds the shutters in place above the entrance door, when the spring which holds the shutter in place is released and the shutter lowers and closes the entrance door. The weight of the shutter in coming down carries an elevator board up in the reception apartment to about on a level with the partition board. This elevator board is always down when the entrance door is open and always up when the entrance door is closed. When the hen has laid and is ready to come off she sees the screened opening above the entrance door as the only place of exit—in fact, thinks she came in at this opening—and when she steps on the elevator board to come out at screened opening, as she thinks she will, her weight carries the elevator down and brings the shutter up, when the little spring catches the shutter and she walks out where she came in, leaving the nest open for the next hen.



TRAP NEST—ENTRANCE OPEN (PATENT APPLIED FOR).

The upper opening is screened and serves to give ventilation and light. The nest, or box, is 12 by 24 inches and 24 inches high. The front half of the box is the reception room, and the rear half is the nesting apartment.



TRAP NEST—ENTRANCE CLOSED.

Used as a trap nest, it is like the night watchman's clock—it forces the one who looks after the eggs to be on time or the hen will lay and be gone without his knowing which hen laid the egg.

It is interesting to see how hens take to the nest. Those outside see the hen on through the screened opening and will stand around, sometimes three and four at a time, waiting to gain admittance, not offering to find a nest elsewhere. The box seems to offer just that seclusion and protection that suit their fancy.

Agricultural Legislation In Mississippi.

At a recent session of the Mississippi legislature a number of acts were passed with a view to promoting the agricultural interests of the state. Among these was an act authorizing each county in the state to build an agricultural high school and pledging a state support fund of $1,000 annually for each school meeting certain specified conditions. Fifteen counties have already located schools. The first of these was Noxubee county, which has voted a tax levy of 1 mill upon the taxable property of the county for the support of its county agricultural high school at Mashulaville, an inland village twelve miles west of Macon. This school will have an income of $1,000 from the state, $1,000 from the public schools merged into it and $5,000 from the county, making an annual income of $7,000.

The legislature also authorized boards of supervisors to appropriate money for premiums to boys engaged in corn growing contests. Such contests were organized in five counties last year and in twenty-three counties this year, with over 3,000 boys engaged in the work. There are also about 500 girls organized in home culture clubs. Exhibits are first held in the home counties, after which those taking prizes are shown at the state fair.

A bill giving women owners of property the right to vote at municipal elections was passed at New Haven.

Grain Buyer States Wheat Country is Looking in Fine Shape

Mr. W. H. Armstrong, who with his wife and two children, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. Beavis, of Douro, for the past three weeks, left Saturday for the west to again assume his duties as grain buyer for the Western Elevator Company. Mr. Armstrong is very optimistic for the prospects of the wheat country this year, and states that the grain is looking better at the present time than ever before. There has been no scarcity of rain, and every thing points to an abundant harvest. In speaking of land values in the vicinity of the large cities in the west, Mr. Armstrong stated that the price is advancing and at the present time, land within five miles of Regina is selling at $120 per acre. Before selling in the west Mr. Armstrong resided in Hamilton township.

Miss Ethel Goodenough, a pupil of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, passed with good standing the second year piano examinations of the midsummer examinations of the Toronto College of Music. Two other pupils of Mrs. Greenslade, Ruby Carr and Alberta Rehill, passed in first year piano with first-class honors. The first mentioned pupil is only thirteen years of age, and the latter are 11, which makes their success all the more creditable.

Frida Law, another of Mrs. Greenslade's pupils, passed the primary piano examinations with first-class honors.

Too Slow, He Says

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—I notice that Police Magistrate Dumble makes the statement that automobiles must not travel faster than six miles an hour on the city streets. I would like to have Mr. Dumble come with me for a ride with the car going at six miles an hour. It would be so unsatisfactory that I think his Worship would want to get out and walk.

Yours,
CHAUFFEUR.

A GREATER PETERBOROUGH

It is a very easy matter to calculate the rate which the citizens of Peterborough should pay for electric light, electric heat, electric manufacturing and electric traction purposes. We know where the power is, what it will cost to develop and what it will cost to bring it to the manufacturer's or the householders' door.

Our opportunity is unrivalled. We allowed the power to get out of our hands once. But it is not too late yet to get it back again, even at the higher price. We must be content to pay for our lack of foresight—or public spirit.

Getting light, heat, power, etc., at rock bottom prices means a vast deal to a municipality. The saving in the price of lighting alone would pay for the whole scheme in time. Why then should we hesitate to acquire power? The general comfort and happiness of the masses of the people is dependent on cheap light, cheap heat and indirectly upon cheap power and transportation. A calculation upon this basis would soon show the desirability of acquiring Burleigh, Buckhorn and every other power within reach. The day for bonuses, too, is gone by. As a Toronto journal says, running after every bird with a bonus is a thing of the past, of the callow age of municipal youth. Why should an employer demand such a toll? Make the conditions what they should be and we will reap the corresponding and legitimate advantage. We must work and legislate for "a greater Peterborough."

Let the citizens loyally support the Council and we have no doubt that the Council will do its part. No one need hesitate to prophesy that the municipal ownership of power would mean to Peterborough, a city of fifty thousand in fifteen years.

The price of our power would warrant it. It is not a venture. It is a fact. It is just as assured as it is that lower prices always bring greater patronage.

A PETERBOROUGH MAN'S IMPRESSIONS OF KINGSTON

Thursday and Friday of last week the members of the Daily Section of the Canadian Press Association met at Kingston in yearly session, and in addition to transacting the business of the meeting, were the recipients of some kind and enjoyable attentions at the hands of the press men of the city and leading citizens. The visitors were taken to inspect several local institutions, including the Kingston Locomotive Works, Rockwood Asylum, the Penitentiary and the environs of the city generally, the latter in a very enjoyable automobile excursion, which finished up at the Royal Military College. To nearly all the visitors the places visited were new and interesting, and the visitors carried away with them impressions of the fine old city, complimentary to its citizens and to the fine public spirit shown at all sides.

Kingson is referred to as "The Limestone City," and well it may. Nature has been bountiful in this respect. When the citizen sets about erecting a new building he quarries out the cellar and gets enough fine stone for the walls. Some of the modern buildings are of brick and many residences, but the older structures are all of stone. No finer architectural effect can be viewed in Canada than the groups of buildings forming Queen's College. Chaste, solid, rich and quiet, a mass of solidity, as befits a seat of learning, Queen's stands the same year after year in her suit of gray.

Buildings of stone are so durable that it is both a task and a shame to tear them down, even after the original purpose for which they were created has ceased to be served. So many of the business buildings, while lacking the chic and spruce appearance of modern structures, still house good stores and shops. They are not old enough to be antiques, nor young enough to be thoroughly up to date. One may be served with a thoroughly satisfactory meal in the British-American, and reflect that the walls and roof have seen a hundred years go by since they were piled up stone by stone. The business section of the city is admirably kept, well ordered, clean, and shows the result of civic management. The handsome parks, close to the business section, are grateful spots in which to pass a leisure hour. The public buildings are massive, and important in appearance, and will last for another century. When the heralds of civilization struck this great and glorious country, the advance has punctuated by four or five steps and the footprints are recognisable at Quebec, Montreal, Kingston and Niagara. These were all places of historical importance when the balance of the country was a wilderness.

The many fine residences, with surrounding grounds, bespeak wealth and taste. Money to cover expenditure—taste and knowledge to direct the work. Few monstrosities are on exhibition. The glaring conception, of brick, with corner towers and pinnacles does not exist. Grey stone mansions, quiet in conception and designed with taste and appreciation of the fine effect in the use of stone abound. All over the province the average citizen, when he feels that the verandah of his house needs remodelling, decides to put up what he fondly terms a "Colonial." It generally takes the form of stone blocks surmounted with short or long posts, or pillars, carrying the roof. To see the thing done as it should be, with the name and idea of a colonial style carried out thoroughly, go to Kingston. The big stone houses with ample roof form a background, and when graced with white pillars that reach from the ground to the eaves—two and sometimes two-and-one-half storeys, the effect is massive, simple and in extreme good taste. It takes money to do it—but Kingston is wealthy. The carrying out of the idea is no doubt a reflection from the prevailing tone of the public buildings, and of this style of treatment the city hall is a notable and extremely satisfactory example. Facing the broad reach of the St. Lawrence, the city hall is a landmark that can be identified as the visitor nears the city in the steamer, or views the water front from Wolfe Island.

We associate with our ideas of the Penetentiary all that is gloomy, forbidding and wholly restraint. Largely this is true, but in spots quite wide of the mark. Within the walls the utmost neatness prevails. Roads and walks that are the despair of the municipal officers that come to view them. Smooth, hard, even, clean and durable. Labor is cheap, material is at hand. Care and diligence do the rest. But the stone walls and barred windows do not look so forbidding in the bright July sunshine as in a snowy day in November. Inside the neat cells are empty, for the occupants are busy. Everybody works but father, is the rule. The iron hand of authority is everywhere, but it wears a glove. Only when needs must does the glove come down. The pleasant faced and sturdy warders standing about and moving around the grounds, look like members of the Canadian contingent returned from South Africa. They are courteous, respectful and explain things—so far. Beyond the accredited line they do not go. And the visitor is respectfully restrained when he gets too inquisitive.

When the five o'clock bell rings the occupants of the cells are marshalled into line. They march into the rotunda and up the stairs to the opening of the several corridors. Each one helps himself, from the stands, to as much bread and water as he wishes, is herded to his cell, and the warder at the end line, seeing all within the grated door closes and locks all doors along the corridor at one operation. Each cell has electric light until 9 o'clock. The single bed is swung down from the wall, the bed clothing arranged, and save for the footsteps of the warder, pacing up and down, all is silence until seven in the morning. At the back of each cell is a slit in the wall, through which the attendant can view the prisoner at any moment. Extreme neatness and cleanliness mark all the arrangements. The cells are marvellously clean. The massive steel work of the grated doors shines as if silver plated. Two books in each week are allowed from the prison library, which is well stocked and varied.

The visitors who view the prison chapels receive a surprise. There are two, one attended by those of Protestant faith, one for Catholics. Service is held each Sabbath, and all must attend. Each chapel contains a fine organ, and the music of the services is well sustained. But if the walls of the building and corridors are dull and forbidding in the chapel all this is changed. The walls and ceilings carry a wealth of decoration that could not be duplicated anywhere in the Dominion. All that ample time, good taste, artistic skill and fine conception would demand has been lavished on the walls and ceiling in color, design and effect, wholly the work of the prisoners.

The trustee board of any metropolitan church might well be proud to give out a contract and have it filled so satisfactorily. The whole impression was one that artistic ability of a very high order has been the guiding spirit in the work. The design is appropriate, the coloring harmonious, and, at intervals, are placed paintings of biblical scenes that are works of art. The man and men who gave, while incarcerated in the prison, so much of their lives and effort have passed away, but the ensemble is a striking testimony to good work—work indeed that has served to relieve the tedium of confinement, but which might never have come forth had those who did it been of a churlish spirit.

Power, strength, solidity and force are all emphasized in the locomotive. The railway engine is a synonym for something big. These are the things they are making at Kingston. Some places are known for nails, others for shovels, others again for reapers, but Kingston is getting a name for constructing locomotives. It is big work. It takes a big plant, with big tools and —very important—big men. The man in the Police Court who was fined for striking the wrong negro, excused himself by saying "All Coons Look Alike to me." To the most of us all locomotives look alike, except in the difference of their bigness. There appears—when one is told—to be about as much difference in locomotives as there is in individuals, so that the works at Kingston while turning out a large number annually, make a great many different brands and kinds. Locomotives for speed, and for speed and to pull big loads. Others to pull big loads up and down grades and make time under adverse conditions. Locomotives that have the attributes of the race horse and others that typify the great big Clyde. And to do all this calls for first, a capable engineering staff, to design, plan and lay out each detail. The engine that pulls trains up over the N. O. and Tim. is quite a different machine to his brother doing duty on the G.T.R. Coal and water arrangements are all different. Conditions of service are so varied. Once the road ordering specifies what it wants the engineering staff to do the rest. Then the shops take hold. The plant is so thoroughly equipped, that with the exception of minor trimmings and fixtures that may be bought for less than they can be made in the works, the entire locomotive is constructed on the premises from the sheets and bars of steel and tubes brought in from abroad. Plates of one inch thick are sheared, and rolled into shape and sewn together with rivets of red hot steel by hydraulic presses and riveters. Overhead cranes pick up and handle the big boilers with greatest ease. Two of the cranes can pick up and carry dangling through the air a locomotive ready for the rails. The most massive forgings are handled quickly and expeditiously. On the erecting floor were six fine locomotives nearly ready for delivery. The work is so well and thoroughly done that in no instance has a locomotive been returned to the shops to be altered or anything remedied after being delivered to the owners. The extensive premises with the fine water front and appliances for taking in material make a brave show and are a scene of activity of which any Canadian city might well be proud.

Reports from the farming country around New Westminster, say that the recent rains were worth thousands of dollars to the farmers.

LIQUOR CASE WAS DISMISSED

Proprietor of Hotel Charged With Selling Liquor in a Greater Quantity Than Three Pints

The proprietor of the Palace Hotel was charged at the Police Court this morning with having sold liquor in a greater quantity than three pints on Tuesday, July 13th. He pleaded not guilty. The evidence submitted failed to prove the charge and the case was dismissed.

Mr. E. A. Peck conducted the case for the defendant.

Roland Butcher, who was recently charged with securing liquor for Jas. Wilson, a blacklister, was first called and stated that he went to the hotel and asked for 25c. worth of lager but, the bartender would only sell him 10c. worth. The lager was put in a tin pail and although he couldn't swear as to the amount received, he understood he was getting a quart.

James Wilson next called, said Butcher parted from him on Brock street with the intention of getting 25c. worth of lager. He did not know what hotel the liquor was secured in nor did Butcher state on his arrival back, how much he procured. The pail was a four quart one and it was about three-parts full of lager and froth—mostly the latter, and for this reason could not say just exactly how much of the real article the pail contained.

The Magistrate said that he would not like to make a conviction of the evidence submitted, and accordingly dismissed the case.

Some Notes From Theatrical World

"The Gay Musician" will appear at the Grand Opera House here in September.

The list of attractions for the coming season at the Grand Opera House is said to be an unusually attractive one.

The Messrs. Shubert announce that they have selected "The Girl From the States" as the new starring vehicle for Lulu Glaser, who will inaugurate her second season under their management early in the autumn. "The Girl From the States" is by Glen Macdonough, with music by Baldwin Sloane and Raymond Hubbell. Lulu Glaser appeared here last season in "Mlle. Mischief."

In an article in the Green Book Album for August Henry E. Dixey writes with unusual frankness of his profession under the title "The Matter with the Stage." He says the actors are chiefly the "matter."

Emanuelo Iacoletti, a cabinet maker, of Montclair, N.J., and a brother-in-law of Caruso, is slated for grand opera. He will shortly make his debut in grand opera at La Scala, Milan. He has studied the tenor parts in Carmen, Aida, Faust, Pagliacci and Cavalleria, and his voice is said to have a remarkable range. He married the sister of Caruso.

VERY HEAVY GALE AT THE LAKES SUNDAY AFTERNOON

An excessively high wind was blowing yesterday at Stony and Clear lakes and on account of the fact that it prevented paddling or sailing it was a sleeping and reading spell for the cottagers and visitors. The waves on the lakes were high and dangerous and the wind was so strong that it was practically impossible to make any headway against it, and besides it was so very dangerous that the lakes were practically deserted during the afternoon. The storm which was accompanied by some rain, lulled about five o'clock and by 7.30 it became calm on the water. The weather Solomons say the waves were higher on the lakes during the gale than they have seen them for years.

The season at the different resorts is at its height and last week saw a larger influx of guests than other weeks of the summer. The summer hotels and boarding houses are enjoying a prosperous season.

Dances and yachting parties are very popular as usual and the largest crowd of the season was at Juniper Island pavilion at the dance on Saturday evening.

Victoria House at McCracken's Landing has been much improved since Mr. Edward Pickin, the proprietor, assumed the management of this popular summer hotel and is one of the most attractive houses in the Kawartha district. Its meal service is unexcelled on the upper lakes and general improvements have been made by Mr. Pickin.

A new well is now being drilled near the hotel. The drilling is being made through the solid rock and at a depth of seven feet there is indications of water. It is expected that water will be struck about ten or twelve feet, and if it is the hotel will have a constant supply of the purest spring water.

Among the guests at the hotel are: Edward W. McCabe, D. P. McCabe, R. L. Anderson, Mrs. D. P. McCabe, Pittsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Semon, Cleveland; Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Diemer, Cleveland; Miss Sara and Mrs. Sara, Toronto; B. Frank Culver, Rochester; F. R. Zacrau, Syracuse.

TORONTO ENGINEERS TAKE TRIP OVER TRENT CANAL

Were Guests of Supt. McClellan on the "Bessie Butler," Greatly Pleased With What They Saw.

Toronto, July 19—Englishmen are said to take their pleasures seriously, and it may have been the considerable leavening of that nationality in the Engineer's Club of Toronto that made their annual summer outing on Saturday so serene and decorous an affair. But a solid sub-stratum of fellowship and cordiality left nothing lacking from the human point of view. The trip began at Bobcaygeon, where the party arrived the night before over the C.P.R.

The Government steamer Bessie Turner took them over the 68 miles of lake, river and canal on the Trent Valley system from that point to Beaverton and to Jackson's Point; from the latter they took the electric home.

The members of the club who were along, together with a few friends, were—C. H. Rust, city engineer; J. G. Sing, government engineer, both of whom are past presidents of the club; John Tolmie, M.P.; J. H. McGregor, C. J. Printz, W. A. Johnson, John Scott, W. G. Bligh, E. A. Collyer, E. A. James, editor Canadian Engineer; A. T. Malone, resident engineer, Newmarket Canal; O. N. Scott; J. A. Richardson, W. A. Buckle, B. G. McBurney, T. C. Irving, jr.; R. Home Smith, O. B. Hamilton, A. F. McCallum, W. C. Brennan; R. A. Baldwin, chairman Executive; T. L. Somerville, D. D. James, C. W. Dill, E. H. Keating, T. J. McConkey, R. Southam, J. B. Fielding and L. J. Street, the treasurer of the club, and who capably managed the expedition.

On the boat the party were the guests of Mr. M. J. Butler, Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, and in the hands of Mr. J. Harris McClellan, Superintendent Trent Valley Canal, who was not only an ideal host but a veritable cyclopedia of information as well.

The trip was really the second chapter of last year's outing, which was over the eastern end of the canal. The day was spent aboard, with intervals for examining the engineering works along the route.

Before parting, Mr. Rust, on behalf of the club, expressed to Mr. McClelland their appreciation of the most hospitable entertainment provided. They were delighted to see the country and the work that was being done. In his reply Mr. McClellan spoke of the scope of the work and the good progress that was being made, especially since the Deputy Minister, Mr. Butler, had taken it in charge. He hoped to see it opened all the way from Midland to the Thousand Islands. In New Jersey alone, he said, there were $50,000,000 spent annually in the touring trade, and the large and increasing tourist traffic in the waters served by the canal would soon make this alone a very important source of revenue, in addition to the local and through commodity trade. The character of the work showed for itself, and he was delighted to have the Toronto engineers with him to inspect it.

EXTRAORDINARY SHOOTING OF CANADIANS IN McKINNON CUP

Bisley Camp, July 16.—The score of the Canadian team which won the Mackinnon Cup is the marvel of the camp. Not only did they distance every other team, but they made a new record 1,612, as against the previous best score of 1,513. To have added a hundred to the best score of the best shots in the Empire is a feat not to be ashamed of.

The average score of the team was over 134, out of the possible 150, while the previous record was an average of 126.

The remarkable score is shown in the fact that the lowest man of the Canadians put on a score only a point less than the highest previous average. When England made the record score of 1,513 in 1907 the average was 126. The lowest Canadian yesterday scored 125.

At all ranges the Canadians lead. Transvaal struggled on fairly close till the thousand yards and fell down badly.

The overwhelming defeat of the English and Scottish teams was a great blow to them. Never have they been so helplessly distanced on their own ranges, and it must be remarked that they did not shoot poorly.

They shot very well. Transvaal, for example, was a point ahead of the previous record. England and Scotland almost reached it. All three were above the average, which makes the Canadian score all the more creditable.

HAVELOCK HELD CLAREMONT TO A DRAW ON LATTER'S GROUNDS

Special to the Review.

Havelock, July 19.—The first game in the provincial semi-finals between Havelock, winners of the Midland district, and Claremont, winners of the southern district, took place at Claremont on Saturday evening, and was a battle royal, resulting in a no score game, both teams failing to place the ball between the stakes. The following was the line-up of the Havelock team:—

Goal—Wm. Rose.
Backs—H. Andrews, K. McKay.
Halves—W. Hitchins, H. Kindred and W. McMullen.
Centre—C. Robinson.
Left Wing—P. Lancaster, H. Mathison.
Right Wing—P. McPherson, G. Madison.

The two teams are veryevenly matched and the return game here on Wednesday afternoon will be one worth seeing, as goals count and both teams are on equal footing now. The winners will play the winners of the western district for the championship of Ontario.

Havelock have a great record, not having lost a single game this year, and only having two goals scored on them.

BIG BILL FOR PROFESSIONAL OLYMPIC GAMES OF 1909

London, July 14.—As the Olympic games of London, 1908, was the the greatest gathering of amateur athletes ever witnessed, so will the "Professional Olympic Games, London, 1909"—as the promoters propose to call the event—be the greatest assembly, if it goes through, of runners, cyclists, boxers and wrestlers ever brought together for one meeting. It will be a grand carnival of professional sport, and it is to be sincerely hoped that no untoward circumstances will arise to prevent its realization.

An international syndicate of great financial possibilities has made offer to Mr. Imrie Kiralfry, of £10,000 as rental of the Stadium for one week during the latter part of August or September.

PROGRAMME ARRANGED.

The programme is already practically arranged, and most of the men named therein have actually agreed to the terms offered them for their participation. It will surprise many to learn that two of the events contemplate a return engagement between Frank Gotch and Geo. Hackenschmidt, and a twenty-round contest between Jack Johnson and Stanley Ketchel, who are matched to fight in California in October. There will be a Marathon race, the following being willing to sign:—Hayes, Dorando, St. Yves, Svanberg, Longboat, Simpson, Maloney and Cibot. The prize for this alone will be £2,000. A six days' go-as-you-please race, a week's cycle endurance race, swimming events, tug of war, and other field sports. A match will probably be found for Jim Driscoll.

Never has there been framed such a series of world-interesting events to take place under one management and at one time. The venture depends, of course, upon the securing of the Stadium as London has no other place equally suited to such a scheme.

HOW BOBBY KERR RAN HIS RACES IN THE OLD LAND

Says the London Sporting Life of the athletic championships:

"The character of the performances generally uphold the claim of Britishers, that the A. A. A. championships may be regarded as the world's premier contests when Olympic games are not on the tapis. The dearth of sprinters in our own country, however, is as marked now as ever.

"In the 100 and 220 we had nobody to seriously challenge Walker, Cartmell or Kerr. Dealing first with the former event, Walker won by a comparative foot in even time from Nat Cartmell, who was not nearly as fast off the mark, as the South African. There was a trifling side wind, but the sprint course is well protected by the big spoil bank on the Walham Green side.

KERR BEATEN BADLY.

"Kerr was a beaten man at 70 yards but he never gave in till the post was passed, and Cartmell only caught him in the last stride. Reggie Walker, having thus gained his utmost desire, left the furlong to the others. Kerr and Cartmell both triumphed easily in 22 2-5 seconds, but R. W. Haley occupied 22 4-5 seconds in getting home. In the other heat W. Murphy beat R. J. Roche all ends up in 22 3-5 seconds, which form should easily secure him his place in the Ireland v. Scotland team. When Cartmell drew inside place in the field, the race might be counted over, for the station, even in strings, is an immense advantage. However, nobody need doubt that that the best man won, for he beat Kerr by quite four yards in 22 seconds.

THE FINAL 100.

From a good start Kerr appeared to be first into his running, while Haley also got well away. Cartmell was last at 25 yards. At 70 yards Walker and Kerr had drawn away, the latter leading slightly; but now Walker shot away, and the holder faltering, let up. Cartmell, who, finishing with a wet sail, was no more than a foot behind at the finish, with Kerr another half-yard away. Time, 10 seconds, which equals the best championship performance and Kerr's time last year.

WALKER GREAT.

"R. E. Walker has had indeed a brilliant career for one so young. He is just 20 years of age, stands 5 feet 7 inches, and weighs a trifle over ten stones. In 1907 he won the South African 100 yards championship in 10 seconds. Last year he was second, and it was only by a Natalian effort that he was entered in the Olympian games. He was second in last year's A.A.A. championship, and training on upset all calculations by winning the Olympic 100 meters race from Kerr and Rector. Since that he has shown sensational speed, and is credited with 100 yards in 9 3-5 seconds, 100 meters in 10 2-5 seconds, 120 yards in 11 3-5 seconds, and 150 yards in 14 1-2 seconds in South Africa.

FURLONG FINAL.

The flying American drew the inside position, and in that he had an advantage, Murphy being on the outside top bank. Cartwell was mostly fancied to win. From an excellent start he began well, but it was not until Kerr and he had got well into the straight that any material lead could be seen to have been established by either. Cartmell was first out of the strings and, putting plenty of dash into his final bit of running, he sailed home a winner by four yards from the holder, who was not in the form which carried him through last July. Kerr was three yards ahead of Haley. Time, 22 seconds, which is the best furlong championship performance since the inception of the race.

SKETCH OF CARTMELL.

Nat Cartmell is a typical specimen of the imperturbable American. Born at Union Town, Kentucky, 25 years ago, he stands 5 ft. 11 3-4 in. in height and scales about 12 stone. As a member of Pennsylvania University, he has been prominent in the inter-collegiate and A.A.U. championships. In 1907, at Manchester, he was second in the 100 championship to J. W. Morton, and third in the 220, but that was on a cold day. He prefers warm weather, and was prominent in both sprint finals at the last Olympiad. This year he has shown himself in fine form, and his 31 4-5 seconds for 300 yards at Wolverhampton last week prepared one for Saturday's splendid win.

T.A.S. DEFEATED IN FAST GAME BY STRATHCONAS; P.A.C. BEAT THE WEST ENDS

Abstainers Lost Their First Game of Season at the Hands of the Tailenders by 4-2, at Oval, Saturday—Gorham's Pitching a Feature—Dusty Allowed Only One Hit in Second Game.

In a game replete with considerable bitting, clean and snappy fielding and, therefore, few errors, the T.A.S.A.C., leaders in the City League race, met defeat at the hands of the Strathconas, who are located at the bottom of the honor roll, the said game being the first of the double-header played at the oval Saturday afternoon. The result, while jarring to the cold water team, boosted the spirits of the Strathconas, who have claimed all along that with an even break in luck, they are as fast as any of the other teams in the league. The players demonstrated this fact forcibly when, after tying up the score in the sixth, put two men over the plate in their last time at bat, and at the same time preventing their opponents from counting. The score was 4—2, and the defeat registered against the abstainers was their first of the season, and they were beaten by a team playing superior ball.

The Strathconas were minus the services of Wilson and Craig, and had to call upon Andrus and Ray to fill the vacancies. Both worked at their positions in creditable style, in fact their work was an unlooked-for feature, as neither have had sufficient practice to warrant their playing the game as they did. Another new face on the Straths' lineup was Jack Sheridan, who was prevailed upon at the last minute to don a uniform and work at centre field. The work of the infield was of a high order. Heaslip at first accepted fifteen chances without a misplay. Pete Weatherstone had little to do at second, but his work at the bat and on the bases resulted in two runs. Kendrey was called upon to handle five chances, four of which were handled in a la Wagner style, but an excuseable fumble of a fast one allowed a runner to reach first, although the side was retired without scoring.

To Paddy Gorham and Andrus goes the largest share of the honors. The twirling of the former was effective at all times, and especially so with with the bases occupied. In several innings the T.A.S. were stopped from scoring by his heady pitching, and when the fact of his opponent in the box, big Ab Quinlan, is taken into consideration, it must be admitted that the three-fingered boy did brilliant work. His receiving partner, Andrus, supported him throughout the contest in a manner that put the necessary encouragement in the pitcher to take all kinds of chances, and the result was that the downfall of the abstainers was brought about by these same chances.

THE T.A.S.

as has been stated, were up against it. While they were handier with the bat than the Straths, the class of fielding they had to contend with caused the players to lose their customary confidence. They made errors at critical points of the game, fatal to their chances of winning.

Quinlan, although he struck out twelve men, allowed one run on a wild pitch in the fourth, and a couple of passed balls by McFadden were costly. M. O'Brien at first played his usual good game, accepting ten chances, but Jimmy Callaghan's contribution of two errors came at the wrong time, and counted against his team. The two runs secured by the T.A.S. were in their second time at bat. Quinlan hit to centre field, but Sheridan misjudged it, and the runner made second base. Doherty grounded to Gorham, who fumbled, the runner being safe at first, while Quinlan took third and beat out the throw to the plate when McFadden hit to Kendrey. Derocher was out on being hit by his batted ball, and when Andrus threw wild to second to catch McFadden, Doherty, who in the meantime, had made third, crossed the plate. Two runs.

The Straths did not begin to score until the fourth. Shaw struck out, Weatherstone hit safely to centre and stole second. Kendrey hit to the same garden, but Derocher let the ball go through and Weatherstone scored, Kendrey being thrown out attempting to make second. Andrus missed three. One run.

In the sixth the score was tied. Gorham grounded out, Flaherty to O'Brien. Curtis was hit by pitcher, went to first, stole second, and went to third, and counted on a passed ball and wild pitch. Shaw fouled out to McFadden. Weatherstone was safe on Callaghan's error, stole second, but Kendrey fanned. One run.

In their last time at bat the Straths scored twice. McFadden let the third strike on Shaw get away, and the runner was safe at first. Callaghan booted Weatherstone's grounder, and the Straths secondbaseman made first, Shaw going to second. Both runners advanced a base on a double steal. Kendrey put a grounder between first and second, and Shaw scored on the play to first base, resulting in Kendrey being put out. Andrus bunted down third base line, and Weatherstone, who was on third, scored when McFadden dropped Callaghan's throw to the plate.

SECOND GAME.

This contest was easy picking for the Park Street team, as they had it on the West Ends in every department of the game. Dusty had his shoots performing in such an efficient manner that ten of the batsmen who faced him biffed the air three times for a strikeout. Fallon was the only player of the opposing team to get a hit, but it didn't count in a run. The Baptists fielded what little they had to do in winning style, only three errors being charged against them. They got after the West End twirlers for seven hits, and aided by thirteen errors, made a total of fourteen runs, while the best the Oldham outfit could do was to put one run across the plate in the first innings.

The game was too one-sided to be interesting, and the score is a good indication of the article of ball put up by the two teams.

The West Ends were disorganized, and this was probably the reason that the team put up such an erratic fielding game. Four pitchers were used. Bud Swanson got off to a bad start, and after three of the Park Street team had scored in the first innings, he was replaced by Rose, who finished the innings and remained in the box until the fourth, during which time the Baptists counted seven runs. In the fifth and sixth innings Kirn twirled and three more tallies were secured by the Southenders. In the seventh Clare Callaghan was sent in as a last resource by Manager Oldham, and in this innings the Park Street team was shut out, a double play killing their chances. In the eighth Dusty's hit and a passed ball gave the P. A. C. another run. Gibson scored the only run for the West Ends in the first innings. Pentland fumbled his grounder, he reached first and stole second and third, scoring on a wild pitch.

NOTES ON THE GAME

Morty McGill made a big noise in declaring his decisions on the bases. His rulings were impartial, as were also Joe Guerin's, who called the strikes.

Very little trouble was experienced by the large number of fans on both sides of the diamond.

The biggest crowd of the season witnessed the games, and the manner in which they contributed to the expenses of the teams was encouraging to the players, and speaks highly for sport in this city.

To use a rather unique expression, "the graduates from the Midland League performed creditably in City League company."

The West Ends had a hoodoo Saturday all right—thirteen errors, thirteen players.

This man Dusty is some pitcher. He only allowed one hit Saturday, and his previous work has been good.

A fan remarked after the first game that any team that beats the Straths on the Oval is a good one.

Only one man was caught at the second cushion in the first game, Kendrey was put out on a throw in from Derocher.

While the honors go to the T.A.S. for getting more men on bases than the Straths, the latter must be given credit for retiring the side without allowing any scoring.

LONGBOAT LOST TO SVANBERG

Swede Won by One Lap and Fifty Yards in fast Time of 1.23.24 2-5

John Svanberg defeated Tommy Longboat at Hanlon's Point, Toronto, on Saturday night by one lap and fifty yards in a fifteen mile race. The winner's time was 1.23.24 2-5, and he showed his superiority over his rival in a rather easy fashion. He gained the lap in the twelfth mile and remained at the Indian's heels until near the finish, when a spurt put him another fifty yards in the lead.

SPORTING NOTES

"Yebbie" Flaherty will do the twirling for the T.A.S. next Saturday, Ab. Quinlan being away on his holidays.

Toronto broke even with Newark on Saturday, losing the first game by 1—0 and winning the second contest by 2—1.

Krause lost his first game on Saturday to St. Louis. At the end of the ninth innings he was pulled out of the box with the bases full. Bender took his place, but could not hold the game and the loss goes against Krause.

Addie Joss was bumped by the Bostons Saturday for ten hits. Turner broke the finger and will be out of the game for some time. More bad luck.

Charles Osler, of Minneapolis, took two straight falls from big Yussiff, the Turk, in a catch-as-catch-can wrestling match in Seattle last night. The first fall was in 32.44, and the second in 15.06.

Jack Johnson and Jim Jeffries did not meet, as intended, at Chicago, Saturday. The negro failed to show up.

"Mr. "Pud" Lowe, of this city, and celebrated as the goal tender of the Montreal Wanderers, has gone on a vacation to Chicago.

THE Masquerader

By KATHERINE CECIL THURSTON,
Author of "The Circle," Etc.

Copyright, 1903, 1904, by Harper & Brothers

Above her forehead was a cluster of splendid diamonds shaped like a coronet, and a band of the same stones encircled her neck. Loder realized in a glance that only the most distinguished of women could wear such ornaments and not have her beauty eclipsed. With a touch of the old awkwardness that had before assailed him in her presence, he came slowly forward as she descended the stairs.

"Can I help you with your cloak?" he asked, and as he asked it something like surprise at his own timidity crossed his mind.

For a second Eve's glance rested on his face. Her expression was quite impassive, but as she lowered her lashes a faint gleam flickered across her eyes. Nevertheless, her answer, when it came, was studiously courteous.

"Thank you," she said, "but Marie will do all I want."

Loder looked at her for a moment, then turned aside. He was not hurt by his rebuff. Rather, by an interesting sequence of impressions, he was stirred by it. The pride that had refused Chilcote's help, and the self control that had refused it graciously, moved him to admiration. He understood and appreciated both by the light of personal experience.

"The carriage is waiting, sir," Crapham's voice broke in.

Loder nodded, and Eve turned to her maid. "That will do, Marie," she said. "I shall want a cup of chocolate when I get back, probably at 1 o'clock." She drew her cloak about her shoulders and moved toward the door. Then she paused and looked back. "Shall we start?" she asked quietly.

Loder, still watching her, came forward at once. "Certainly," he said, with unusual gentleness.

He followed her as she crossed the footpath, but made no further offer of help, and when the moment came he quietly took his place beside her in the carriage. His last impression as the horses wheeled round was of the open hall door—Crapham in his somber livery and the maid in her black dress, both silhouetted against the dark background of the hall; then as the carriage moved forward smoothly and rapidly he leaned back in his seat and closed his eyes.

During the first few moments of the drive there was silence. To Loder there was a strange, new sensation in this companionship, so close and yet so distant. He was so near to Eve that the slight fragrant scent from her clothes might almost have belonged to his own. The impression was confusing, yet vaguely delightful. It was years since he had been so close to a woman of his own class, his own caste. He acknowledged the thought with a curious sense of pleasure. Involuntarily he turned and looked at her.

She was sitting very straight, her fine profile cut clear against the carriage window, her diamonds quivering in the light that flashed by them from the street. For a space the sense of unreality that had pervaded his first entrance into Chilcote's life touched him again; then another and more potent feeling rose to quell it. Almost involuntarily as he looked at her his lips parted.

"May I say something?" he asked.

Eve remained motionless. She did not turn her head, as most women would have done. "Say anything you like," she said gravely.

"Anything?" He bent a little nearer, filled again by the inordinate wish to dominate.

"Of course."

It seemed to him that her voice sounded forced and a little tired. For a moment he looked through the window at the passing lights; then slowly his gaze returned to her face.

"You look very beautiful tonight," he said. His voice was low and his manner unemotional, but his words had the effect he desired.

She turned her head, and her eyes met his in a glance of curiosity and surprise.

Slight as the triumph was, it thrilled him. The small scene with Chilcote's valet came back to him; his own personality moved him again to a reckless determination to make his own voice heard. Leaning forward, he laid his hand lightly on her arm.

"Eve," he said quickly—"Eve, do you remember"— Then he paused and withdrew his hand. The horses had slackened speed, then stopped altogether as the carriage fell into line outside Bramfell House.

CHAPTER XIV.

LODER entered Lady Bramfell's feeling far more like an actor in a drama than an ordinary man in a peculiar situation. It was the first time he had played Chilcote to a purely social audience and the first time for many years that he had rubbed shoulders with a well dressed crowd ostensibly brought together for amusement. As he followed Eve along the corridor that led to the reception rooms he questioned the reality of the position again and again; then abruptly, at the moment when the sensation of familiarity was strongest, a cheery voice hailed him, and, turning, he saw the square shoulders, light eyes and pointed mustache of Lakeley, the owner of the St. George's Gazette.

At the sight of the man and the sound of his greeting his doubts and speculations vanished. The essentials of life rose again to the position they had occupied three weeks ago, in the short but strenuous period when his dormant activities had been stirred and he had recognized his true self. He lifted his head unconsciously, the shade of misgiving that had crossed his confidence passing from him as he smiled at Lakeley with a keen, alert pleasure that altered his whole face.

Eve, looking back, saw the expression. It attracted and held her, like a sudden glimpse into a secret room. In all the years of her marriage, in the months of her courtship even, she had never surprised the look on Chilcote's face. The impression came quickly and with it a strange, warm rush of interest that receded slowly, leaving an odd sense of loneliness. But, at the moment that the feeling came and passed, her attention was claimed in another direction. A slight, fair haired boy forced his way toward her through the press of people that filled the corridor.

"Mrs. Chilcote!" he exclaimed. "Can I believe my luck in finding you alone?"

Eve laughed. It seemed that there was relief in her laugh. "How absurd you are, Bobby!" she said kindly. "But you are wrong. My husband is here. I am waiting for him."

Blessington looked around. "Oh!" he said. "Indeed!" Then he relapsed into silence. He was the soul of good nature, but those who knew him best knew that Chilcote's summary change of secretaries had rankled. Eve, conscious of the little jar, made haste to smooth it away.

"Tell me about yourself," she said. "What have you been doing?"

Blessington looked at her, then smiled again, his buoyancy restored. "Doing?" he said. "Oh, calling every other afternoon at Grosvenor square, only to find that a certain lady is never at home."

At his tone Eve laughed again. The boy, with his frank and ingenuous nature, had beguiled many a dull hour for her in past days, and she had missed him not a little when his face had been filled by Greening.

"But I mean seriously, Bobby. Has something good turned up?"

Blessington made a wry face. "Something is on its way. That's why I'm on duty tonight. Old Bramfell and the pater are working it between them, so if Lady Bramfell or Lady Astrupp happen to drop a fan or a handkerchief this evening I've got to be here to pick it up. See?"

"As you picked up my fans and handkerchiefs last year and the year before?" Eve smiled.

Blessington's face suddenly looked grave. "I wish you hadn't said that," he said. Then he paused abruptly. Out of the hum of talk behind them a man's laugh sounded. It was not loud, but it was a laugh that one seldom hears in a London drawing room. It expressed interest, amusement and in an inexplicable way it seemed also to express strength.

Eve and Blessington both turned involuntarily.

"By Jove!" said Blessington.

Eve said nothing.

Loder was parting with Lakeley and his was the laugh that had attracted them both. The interest excited by his talk was still reflected in his face and bearing as he made his way toward them.

"By Jove!" said Blessington again. "I never realised that Chilcote was so tall."

Again Eve said nothing. But silently and with a more subtle meaning she found herself echoing the words.

Until he was quite close to her Loder did not seem to see her. Then he stopped quietly.

"I was speaking to Lakeley," he said. "He wants me to dine with him one night at Cadogan Gardens."

But Eve was silent, waiting for him to address Blessington. She glanced at him quickly, but though their eyes met he did not catch the meaning that lay in hers. It was a difficult moment. She had known him incredibly, almost unpardonably absentminded, but it had invariably been when he was suffering from nerves, as she phrased it to herself. But tonight he was obviously in the possession of unclouded faculties. She colored slightly and glanced under her lashes at Blessington. Had the same idea struck him, she wondered? But he was studiously studying a suit of Chinese armor that stood close by in a niche of the wall.

"Bobby has been keeping me amused while you talked to Mr. Lakeley," she said pointedly.

Directly addressed, Loder turned and looked at Blessington. "How d'you do?" he said, with doubtful cordiality. The name of Bobby conveyed nothing to him.

To his surprise Eve looked annoyed and Blessington's fresh colored face deepened in tone. With a slow, uncomfortable sensation he was aware of having struck a wrong note.

There was a short, unpleasant pause. Then, more by intuition than actual sight, Blessington saw Eve's eyes turn from him to Loder, and with quick tact he saved the situation.

"How d'you do, sir?" he responded, with a smile. "I congratulate you on looking so—so uncommon well. I was just telling Mrs. Chilcote that I hold a commission for Lady Astrupp tonight. I'm a sort of scout at present—reporting on the outposts." He spoke fast and without much meaning, but his boyish voice eased the strain.

Eve thanked him with a smile. "Then we mustn't interfere with a person on active service," she said. "Besides, we have our own duties to get through." She smiled again and, touching Loder's arm, indicated the reception rooms.

When they entered the larger of the two rooms Lady Bramfell was still receiving her guests. She was a tall and angular woman who, except for a certain beauty of hands and feet and a certain similarity of voice, possessed nothing in common with her sister Lillian. She was speaking to a group of people as they approached, and the first sound of her sweet and rather drawling tones touched Loder with a curious momentary feeling—a vague suggestion of awakened memories. Then the suggestion vanished as she turned and greeted Eve.

"How sweet of you to come!" she murmured. And it seemed to Loder that a more spontaneous smile lighted up her face. Then she extended her hand to him. "And you, too!" she added. "Though I fear we shall bore you dreadfully."

Watching her with interest, he saw the change of expression as her eyes turned from Eve to him and noticed a colder tone in her voice as she addressed him directly. The observation moved him to self assertion.

"That's a poor compliment to me," he said. "To be bored is surely only a polite way of being inane."

Lady Bramfell smiled. "What!" she exclaimed. "You defending your social reputation?"

Loder laughed a little. "The smaller it is the more defending it needs," he replied.

Another stream of arrivals swept by them as he spoke. Eve smiled at their hostess and moved across the room, and he perforce followed. As he gained her side the little court about Lady Bramfell was left well in the rear, the great throng at the farther end of the room was not yet reached, and for the moment they were practically alone.

There was a certain uneasiness in that moment of companionship. It seemed to him that Eve wished to speak, but hesitated. Once or twice she opened and closed the fan that she was carrying, then at last, as if by an effort, she turned and looked at him.

"Why were you so cold to Bobby Blessington?" she asked. "Doesn't it seem discourteous to ignore him as you did?"

Her manner was subdued. It was not the annoyed manner that one uses to a man when he has behaved ill; it was the explanatory tone one might adopt toward an incorrigible child. Loder felt this, but the gist of a remark always came to him first, its mode of expression later. The fact that it was Blessington whom he had encountered—Blessington to whom he had spoken with vague politeness—came to him with a sense of unpleasantness. He was not to blame in the matter, nevertheless he blamed himself. He was annoyed that he should have made the slip in Eve's presence.

"There's no penalty for separating husband and wife!"

They were moving forward, nearing the press of people in the second room, when Eve spoke, and the fact filled him with an added sense of annoyance. People smiled and bowed to her from every side; one woman leaned forward as they passed and whispered something in her ear. Again the sensation of futility and vexation filled him; again he realized how palpable was the place she held in the world. Then, as his feelings reached their height and speech seemed forced upon him, a small man with a round face, catching a glimpse of Eve, darted from a circle of people gathered in one of the windows and came quickly toward them. With an unjust touch of irritation he recognized Lord Bramfell.

Again the sense of Eve's aloofness stung him as their host approached. In another moment she would be lost to him among this throng of strangers—claimed by them as by right.

"Eve," he said involuntarily and under his breath.

She half paused and turned toward him. "Yes?" she said, and he wondered if it was his imagination that made the word sound slightly eager.

"About that matter of Blessington," he began; then he stopped. Bramfell had reached them.

The little man came up smiling and with an outstretched hand. "There's no penalty for separating husband and wife, is there, Mrs. Chilcote? How are you, Chilcote?" He turned from one to the other with the quick, noiseless manner that always characterized him.

Loder turned aside to hide his vexation, but Eve greeted their host with her usual self possessed smile.

"You are exempt from all penalties tonight," she said. Then she turned to greet the members of his party who had strolled across from the window in his wake.

As she moved aside Bramfell looked at Loder. "Well, Chilcote, have you dipped into the future yet?" he asked with a laugh.

Loder echoed the laugh, but said nothing. In his uncertainty at the question he reverted to his old resource of silence.

Bramfell raised his eyebrows. "What!" he said. "Don't tell me that my sister-in-law hasn't engaged you as a victim." Then he turned in Eve's direction. "You've heard of our new departure, Mrs. Chilcote?"

Eve looked round from the lively group by which she was surrounded. "Lillian's crystal gazing? Why, of course!" she said. "She should make a very beautiful seer. We are all quite curious."

Bramfell pursed up his lips. "She has a very beautiful tent at the end of the conservatory. It took five men as many days to rig it up. We could not hear ourselves talk for hammering. My wife said it made her feel quite philanthropic, it reminded her so much of a charity bazaar."

Everybody laughed, and at the same moment Blessington came quickly across the room and joined the group.

"Hello!" he said. "Anybody seen Witcheston? He's next on my list for the crystal business."

Again the whole party laughed, and Bramfell, stepping forward, touched Blessington's arm in mock seriousness.

"Witcheston is playing bridge, like a sensible man," he said. "Leave him in peace, Bobby."

Blessington made a comical grimace. "But I'm working this on commercial principles," he said. "I keep the list, names and hours complete, and Lady Astrupp guesses in blissful ignorance as to who her victims are. The whole thing is great, simple and [illegible]."

BARBER WORKED OVERTIME AND WAS FINED

$25.00 and Costs at Police Court This Morning—Customer Was Shaved on Entering Shop After Eight O'clock—Will Appeal.

A somewhat unusual case was heard at the police court this morning, when David Hall, proprietor of a barber shop on Charlotte street, was charged with having kept his shop open after eight o'clock, on Friday night, July 16th, and shaved a customer. He pleaded not guilty, but the evidence furnished by two witnesses proved him guilty in the judgment of the Magistrate, who imposed a fine of $25.00 and costs, amounting in all to $26.05.

The defendant stated that he would appeal against the judgment of Magistrate Dumble.

The first witness was Geo. Campbell, who stated he was employed at Irwin's barber shop. While standing at the door of his employer's premises, at 8.15 on Friday night, a man named G. H. Hill, accosted him in regard to getting a shave, but was told he was too late. Hill then went to Hall's barber shop and entered. A few minutes later when he (witness) passed the shop, was sitting in a chair reading a newspaper. He telephoned to the president of the Barbers' Union, and shortly afterwards they met on Charlotte street. About nine o'clock Hill came out and his face was clean shaven.

The defendant, when called to the witness box, stated that his door was not locked at eight o'clock, and there were five customers in the shop at the time. Two were in the chairs, and three waiting for their turn. He did not know Hill and could not say he was in the shop. A young man had entered a few minutes after eight to wait for a friend, and soon afterwards both went out. The shop had been closed at 8.30 p.m.

Evidence was given by the President of the Barbers' Union to the effect that he received a message over the telephone from the first witness, asking him to come down to Charlotte street about 8.25 Friday night. He did not go for some time as he was attending to a customer. It was between eight forty and nine o'clock when he arrived on Charlotte street, and from where he was standing saw Hill come out of Hall's barber shop. Later on he sat beside Hill, who was a short, stout man, in a shoe shine parlor, and could see that his face had been freshly shaved.

The Magistrate held that the evidence was against the defendant. The barbers had asked that the by-law be enforced, and it was for their own benefit. As a warning to all others he imposed the above mentioned fine.

RATEPAYERS SHOULD ATTEND TO-MORROW NIGHT'S MEETING

Much interest centres in the meeting of the Board of Trade, which will be held in the City Council Chamber to-morrow night at eight o'clock. There will be a thorough discussion of the Smith street bridge and street extensions by-laws and in addition Prof. Young of the Engineering Department of the University of Toronto, will give an address on "Reinforced Concrete Bridge Construction," the lecture to be illustrated by stereopticon views. In view of the fact that the proposed new Smith street bridge will be built of reinforced concrete, Prof. Young's address should be of unusual interest.

Ratepayers should attend this meeting in order that they may be in a position to vote intelligently on July 29th.

ATTRACTIVE SAUCES.

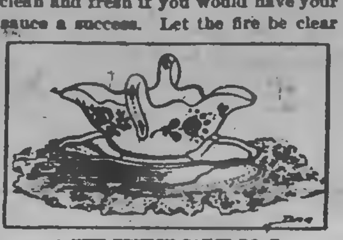
The Average Cook Is Not Clever at Their Construction.

Sauces and soups are the fine arts of cookery, and the person who undertakes them must understand tastes and flavors and must possess a trained palate. Each sauce should be adapted to the meat or fish or vegetable with which it is to be served. A rounding tablespoonful of butter and a rounding tablespoonful of flour will thicken half a pint of liquid.

Take care that your sauces are delicately flavored. The thickest saucepans should be used for the operation, and only wooden spoons should be used for stirring. Remember also that your saucepan must be exquisitely clean and fresh if you would have your sauce a success. Let the fire be clear and not too fierce. One of the commonest faults to be found with our cooking is the singular lack of variety in sweet sauces. The average cook rarely soars above "sweet melted butter." More often than not boiled and steamed sweets are served without sauce of any sort. A very enjoyable dish to such as possess the necessary good digestion is roast pork, but roast pork, to be eaten at its best, should have for an accompaniment apple sauce. To prepare this sauce, pare, core and quarter one pound of apples and throw them into cold water to preserve their whiteness. Put them into a saucepan with half a cupful of water and boil closely covered until soft enough to pulp. Beat them up, adding one tablespoonful of sugar and half a tablespoonful of butter. This sauce also forms a welcome addition to roast goose and duck.



A NEW FRENCH SAUCE BOAT.

Pistachio Sauce.—Throw two ounces of pistachio nuts into boiling water and let them reboil for a few minutes; then shell them. Next pound them till smooth. Mix in a basin half an ounce of cornstarch with a little cold water; then stir into the pounded nuts and allow them to boil, stirring all the time; then add one tablespoonful of sugar, one tablespoonful of cream, one cupful of marsala wine and a few drops of vanilla extract. Strain the sauce, and it is ready. This sauce looks particularly attractive with a chocolate pudding, the green sauce making a pretty contrast to the brown of the pudding. If liked, milk may be used instead of cream, and the wine may be omitted, but add instead a little lemon juice and a little more water.

For Phonograph Disks.

In recent years the family album has been displaced from its proud position on the center table by the postcard album. Now comes an album for phonograph records to dispute the place with the latter. This latest book is the invention of a New Yorker, and its advantages are twofold. It not only protects the record disks from breakage, but keeps them in such shape that any one can be located in an instant. This album is made slightly larger than a square that would box a disk. Its pages are of heavy cardboard, and around each page is folded a sheet of heavy paper with a circular opening in the center of each fold. This provides a pocket on each side of the page in which a record disk can be kept, its name visible through a circular opening. If the disks are kept in the album in alphabetical order and the pages indexed the finding of any record desired is the matter of seconds, and the risk of breakage is eliminated.

Practical Coat Lining.

A practical way of lining the longer serge coats is to have liberty satin or silk lining the sleeves and body and ending a couple of inches below the waist line. The seams of the skirt are bound with fine silk tape. This saves weight and makes for coolness, while permitting the coat, no matter how close fitting, to be slipped easily on and off, the lining, especially when white, protecting the snowy neckwear and the sleeves.

To Mark a Key.

When there are two or more keys on a key ring of approximate size and appearance draw a file over the stem of the one most in use. This makes a nick, which easily distinguishes it from the other.

The little dent is better than a string or other mark, the key being easily recognised by it (in slipping it through one's fingers) in the dark.

TREE FELL ON BUS AND OCCUPANT HAD LEG FRACTURED

As a result of an accident which befell a party of employees of the Brinton Carpet Co. Saturday night, Herbert Bourne received a compound fracture of the left leg, and is now in St. Joseph's hospital.

The Brintons had been up to Lakefield to play an exhibition game of football with the team of that place. Two buses were used to convey the party, but on the return trip, when about four miles from this city, a tree fell down, catching the front of the first bus and knocking the top and the occupants out in the road. The horses attached to the bus became frightened and galloped away in the direction of home. On reaching Rogers street they knocked down the barricade on which a lantern was placed and fell into the sewer, which is being constructed in this street. Chief Howard, who, on account of the constant fire at the sawdust pile, had put box 57 out of commission in the morning, so that unnecessary alarms could not be sent in, had gone over about 10.40 Saturday night to put the box in commission again, and had only reached that spot when the horses galloped along and plunged into the sewer. He notified several of the residents nearby and after some hard work finally got the animals out of their perilous position, and Mr. Gibbs, the owner, who had in the meantime arrived, took them back to the stable. He immediately sent a man to the scene of the accident with the same team and another bus. Bourne was the only person seriously injured, and he was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where he received medical attention by Dr. McPherson.

No blame can be attached to the corporation for not having the street properly guarded against accident, as all proper precautions had been taken by the foreman in charge of the sewer gang at the close of the day's work.

AIR BRAKE INSTRUCTION CAR ARRIVES IN CITY

Every Detail of the Air Brake System of the Grand Trunk Railway Demonstrated for the Instruction of Employees.

A handsome and splendidly equipped air break instruction car of the Grand Trunk Railway has arrived in the city, and will remain here for the next ten days, during which time the engineers, conductors and trainmen in this section will be instructed and required to pass an examination. The car is equipped with a complete system, demonstrating the air brake system on a train of twenty cars.

Each part of the air brake, from the largest to the smallest detail is shown, and the instruction is in every way complete. A signal system, as applied to a twenty-car passenger train is also demonstrated for the instruction of the employees of the railroad. The examinations are held under the supervision of Mr. G. McIntosh, of Montreal, who goes to each terminal point of the railroad. An office is fitted up at the end of the car, and is in every particular modern and up-to-date. Everything in the car is neat and compact, and it is said to be the best of its kind on the Grand Trunk Railway.

THE WIND MADE MERRY SUNDAY

Yesterday's wind storm was the worst of the season, but fortunately little damage was done. The playful breezes flirted with the ladies' skirts, carried off hats and made itself a nuisance generally. A large limb was torn from a tree on Aylmer street in front of Capt. R. T. Hounsell's residence. It fell across the sidewalk and blocked it for a short time.

PRACTICE MUST BE STOPPED

Persons Who Hunt Dew Worms on Other People's Lawns Will Get Into Trouble

A lady residing on Dalhousie street complained to Chief Roszel this morning that she has been annoyed of late by the actions of some unknown persons, who have been trespassing on her lawn at all hours of the night. A lantern was used by them during their operations and the complainant stated that she wished the Chief would make it known that the practice must be stopped.

The offending parties have been probably on a hunt for dew worms, but this will be no excuse if the practice is kept up and the guilty parties summoned to the Police Court. This warning should be sufficient.

WEDDING BELLS

CUNNINGHAM-CAMPBELL

A very pretty weddding took place on Wednesday evening, July 14th, at 7.30, at "Cherry Grove," the home of Mr. Alexander Campbell, of Fraserville when his only daughter, Violet, was united in marriage to Mr. Herbert Cunningham.

The drawing room was prettily decorated for the occasion with evergreens and flowers.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. A. McKenzie, of Centreville.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a handsome gown of cream crepe de chene and entered the room to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march which was played by Miss Jean Cathcart, of Springville.

The bride was attended by Miss Lulu Cathcart, of Springville, and Mr. Harry Wood, of Peterborough, supported the groom.

After congratulations the wedding party partook of a dainty dejeuner.

The groom's gift to the bride was a cheque and to the bridesmaid a gold bracelet.

Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham will reside at Fraserville, and carry with them the best wishes of a large circle of friends.

WOMAN WISHES TO RETURN TO AUSTRIA WITH CHILDREN

Mrs Bell, whose husband has disappeared, is in the city with her children without means of support. Mr. B. Lastar was good enough to come forward and do what he could to relieve their distress, and they are being looked after at Mr. Lastar's home. The woman wishes to return to Austria with her children. Her husband's people reside in that country, and to return to them is the only thing left for her to do. It will cost about $160 to take the woman and children back to Austria, and to secure this sum a subscription has been started in the city.

The case is a deserving one and there will no doubt be a generous response from citizens. Subscriptions will be received by Mayor Rush.

There will be a full discussion of the Smith street bridge and Street Extension by-laws, and every ratepayer should attend. The meeting will be held in the city council chamber at eight o'clock.

RIVAL GYPSY CAMPS AT OTTAWA HAVING LAW SUIT OVER GIRL ALLEGED TO HAVE BEEN SOLD AT PETERBOROUGH

Ottawa, July 19.—Two tribes of gypsies have a legal fight in Hull over the possession of a 12-year-old girl, Katrina Alexis, and members of them were present in good numbers this morning in Hull.

They brought all kinds of money with them and made the eyes of residents bulge out by the amount they displayed.

One woman was said to have $2,500 in gold pieces about her neck, and one of the men was seen with a big stack of gold coins on a table in the hotel. Still another was seen to flash a big roll of bills. The cabman driving them about was said to be getting two dollars an hour and was engaged for the day.

Katrina Alexis is the daughter of Miguel Alexis, a Belgian, who is one of a tribe camped on the Richmond road. Three weeks ago, it is alleged, she was hired by Stephen George, chief of the Mexican and Russian gypsies camped near the Portland Cement Works, Hull. Sometime later the girl, it is said, complained of being tortured by being burned with a red hot iron.

Her father brought her home, but Eli Stokes, another from the rival camp, is alleged to have taken her away again. Miguel Alexis then had Stokes arrested for kidnapping his daughter.

SAY THEY BOUGHT HER.

The Hull gypsies contend that Katrina was sold to them at Peterborough for 200 pounds, and that, moreover, the girl is married. Eli Stokes is also charged with insulting one Petro Sterio's wife. John Stokes was taken into custody as being mixed up in the affair.

When the two men appeared this morning they were remanded by Magistrate Goyette till Wednesday. The father and mother of the girl made a scene crying for the possession of their daughter, who was retained by the court so as to obviate a fight or any injury to the girl.

Mrs Alexis threw herself at the feet of the magistrate, kissed his feet and prayed for the girl's release. In their behalf Messrs Desjardins and Leduc applied for a writ of habeas corpus, and if they win in the argument this afternoon at 4 o'clock before Judge Champagne Katrina will be released.

Walton's ire was up and he had just administered a severe drubbing to a sailor on Front street. Walton met Halliday at a livery stable and, it is charged, that without any provocation, he pitched into him, inflicting severe injuries to his face and body. Halliday was assisted home and is now in a serious condition.

EIGHT HUNDRED SHOULD BE HANGED

Constantinople, July 20.—The report of the court martial on the Adena massacre concludes as follows:

"Fifteen persons have been hanged; 800 deserve death; 15,000 deserve hard labor for life; 80,000 deserve minor sentences. If it is decided to proceed with the punishment we will cordon the town and deal expeditiously with the matter."

In view, however, of the reconciliation between the opposing elements, the report recommends that a general amnesty be made the occasion of a national festival.

CONCILIATION BOARD MEETS

Winnipeg, July 20.—The first session of the board of conciliation in the dispute between the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and its operating employes opened yesterday afternoon in the office of H. H. Brewer, general superintendent, and will continue all week.

Hon. R. F. Sutherland is chairman of the board; F. H. McGuigan is representing the company, and J. G. O'Donoghue of Toronto the employes.

The men want an agreement similar to those enjoyed by the employes of the C.P.R. and all other roads, but with modifications to suit conditions along the G.T.P. They have grievances relating to equipment, condition of the roadbed, hours and the care of engines at roundhouses, and they also claim that serious accidents have occurred through lack of proper conditions and precautions.

FIRE UNDERWRITERS ENTER AN ACTION

Ottawa, July 20.—Another action was entered by the Canadian Fire Underwriters against the Willis Faber Co., agents for Lloyds of England. The action is charging the company with doing fire business in Canada without having taken out a license, according to the Federal act, which provides for a fine of $50 or six months in case of violation.

This is a new step in the fight between the insurance companies and the Manufacturers' Association before the Federal House last session. Both parties sent deputations to Ottawa. The underwriters want the unlicensed companies kept out, the C.M.A. want them in to prevent a combine.

RAPID PROGRESS ON NEW FACTORY

Rapid progress is being made on the new factory of the Colonial Weaving Company in the southern end of the city. The walls, which are of sandstone brick, are now up ten or twelve feet, and the work is being rushed. A large force of men is employed.

INDIA IN FERMENT IT IS STATED

New York, July 20.—After spending several years living in a tent and driving around in a bullock cart preaching the gospel in India, Miss Emily Minor of this city returned on the Caledonia, to remain two or three months with her relatives. Miss Minor went to India 18 years ago, when she was quite a young girl.

"The whole of India," said Miss Minor, "is in a state of unrest. The Brahmins, the high caste, are divided in opposing the present rule. Many of them, while not satisfied, know that the present time is not one in which to attempt the overthrow of English rule. Others want to drive the British out of India and rule the country themselves. From what I've seen, however, English rule is the best in the world, excepting, of course, our own.

"The lower classes are progressing under the work of the English school and the mission schools. Some of them are so well advanced that they are taking up official positions."

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Methodists and Baptists on Sunday held services in Zion City.

James Dale, a miner, was assaulted and robbed by three masked men at Cobalt Sunday night.

Charles Butler, aged 28, of Smith's Falls, had his back broken while shunting cars at Brockville.

Four more deaths have occurred in Berlin, Germany, due to the explosion of the fast running motor cycle.

Alice, the 10-year-old daughter of James Lalonde, curio dealer at Niagara Falls, was drowned Sunday night.

Owing to a land rental of $1,900 a year being demanded it is likely the R. C. Church at Cobalt will remove to Port Cobalt, where a cathedral will be erected.

Navigation on the Rideau River above Black Rapids is still considerably impaired by the low water, and the Rideau King and Queen have been stuck on the bottom several times lately.

Matthew Gill, jr., a wealthy retired ironmaster of Philadelphia, was found dead in the driveway of his country home at Dadnor, Pa., with a bullet wound in the head. Nearby was found a revolver.

Three children named Bedard, aged 9, 7 and 5 years, whose home is between Perth and Westport, in Leeds County, accompanied their grandfather when he went for the cows. They wandered away and were lost for the night.

Thrown from his small boat as the tow line from the steamer Woodford jerked taut, Tony Conkey, reporter for the Kendall Marine Agency, was sucked beneath the big steam barge and drowned at Port Huron, Mich. His brother plunged after him, but too late.

BECAUSE MAN DID NOT KNEEL

He Was Arrested in Church at Lachine

Montreal, July 20.—J. A. Lalonde, a traveler for the Redmond Co., Ltd., and a French Catholic, who attended the Lachine Catholic Church Sunday, refused to kneel when the host was elevated, as he had no seat, and had to stand the whole service. Policeman Aubin ordered him to kneel, and when he refused arrested him. When the chief of police heard it he released him. He had spent an hour in the jail. He entered three actions yesterday, $10,000 against Aubin, $5,000 against the parish church, $5,000 against the town.

The arrest in Lachine Church arose from misunderstanding. Lalonde was a good Catholic but at his church the rule is to kneel when the benediction bell rings. The constable is also porter of the church and it was as porter that he ordered him to kneel. He refused to do so until the bell rang and was ejected. Then the constable got angry and arrested him for making a disturbance.

SHERIFF CLEMENTS DEAD AT MILTON

Milton, July 20. Matthew Clements, sheriff of the County of Halifax, died yesterday afternoon, after an illness extending over several weeks, heart failure being the immediate cause of death.

The late sheriff was in his 83rd year, and was appointed by the Ontario Government in 1882, on the resignation of the late Hon. George C. McKindsey. Prior to his appointment as sheriff, Mr. Clements had held many municipal offices and had been warden of the county.

Two sons and a daughter survive, his wife having died several years ago.

THE VISIT OF LORD BERESFORD

Toronto, July 20.—Lord Charles Beresford, whose recent speeches in England on the navy have aroused so much discussion, is to sail from Liverpool on Aug. 20 by the Allan Line royal mail turbine steamer Virginian. His lordship, who will be accompanied by Lady Beresford, is to attend the exhibition to be held in Toronto.

"Charlie" Beresford, to give him his popular title, is an Irishman by birth, and has for many years been one of the people's naval heroes. His gallantry, his achievements and his exceptionally brilliant abilities have won for him world-wide fame. Canadians will undoubtedly give him a hearty welcome, and whether or not he talks about the navy, his words will command respect.

ALLEGED LUNATIC GETS FREEDOM

Orangeville, July 20.—Albert Johnston, one of the three brothers committed as lunatics from Mulmur some months ago, and who have been since in the county jail here, has been discharged by the authorities on the certificate of the jail surgeon, having been employed as a farm laborer by Archie Greer, reeve of the township.

James, the eldest, and David, the youngest, are still confined. It is likely that they will also shortly be released.

THE NEW SHAH LEAVES FATHER

London, July 20.—The Teheran correspondent of The Times describes the affecting scene at the parting of the new Shah from his parents. Both his mother and father broke down at the thought of parting with their favorite son, and offered their second son in his place. The boy wept bitterly. Finally Their Majesties, being informed that it was the people's will, were persuaded to agree to the departure of the youthful Shah.

The ex-Shah accepts his strange position with oriental philosophy, and shows no lack of personal dignity. He expressed a desire to live in the Crimea.

Battle of the North Sea.

Ever see a Dreadnought vomiting flame and destruction? That's what is going to be shown at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, this year. A fleet of these monsters of the sea will sail into view at one end of the arena and open fire on coast defence vessels and forts at the other end, and for the first time you will be able to realise what a naval battle means. It will be the most striking spectacle ever put on at the Canadian National and will give you a correct idea of what all this Dreadnought talk in England means.

Walker and Kerr.

Walker and Kerr, the two greatest sprinters in the world, will in all probability come together at the big athletic meet to be held in connection with the Canadian National Exhibition this year. Another event which will create widespread interest is the Foster International Marathon, in which the leading amateur distance runners of America will start. The meet will be under C.A.A.U. sanction, and promises to be the biggest thing of its kind held in Canada this season.

PROBABILITIES.

Light to moderate variable winds; Wednesday, southerly winds; warmer.

HARVEST BY AUGUST 20 IN THE CANADIAN WEST

Canadian Northern Bulletins Say Grain is Ahead of Last Year and Plenty of Machinery is Being Sold—Bull Operators Relying on Scarcity of Old Wheat.

Winnipeg, July 20.—"Harvest should commence about Aug. 20," says the Canadian Northern Railway weekly crop report in the message from Warman and it is practically the same from all over the west.

Each of the agents tell the story of magnificent prospects, with a great big crop in view. Wheat is now 40 to 46 inches high at Humbolt, and most other places it has attained a height of 30 inches.

The grain is all said to be much ahead of last year and is looking very well. No damage is reported.

In some districts dealers report large sales of harvesting machinery in anticipation of bumper crop.

Concerning flax, the report says that there will be a heavy crop.

Bulls and Bears Both Satisfied.

New York, July 20.—The Herald's survey of the grain situation says:

Recent evidences of a very small surplus of old wheat have created a strong bullish feeling in the minds of traders generally, who believe that the new crop will be wanted and that buyers will be willing to pay a good price.

The world is waiting for the movement of the new American crop. In the first place shorts are waiting for wheat to fill contracts. Mills, many of which have been forced to close down on account of the lack of supplies are anxiously waiting for new wheat to grind, and Europe is looking to America for a goodly supply of wheat to fill deficiencies in the foreign stocks and make up for rather poor crops abroad. The fact that old crop wheat for months has been selling around $1.36 to $1.45 from Kansas City to the seaboard speaks well for the strength of the situation, and while many authorities agree that it would be difficult to hold values at this figure, when the new crop begins to move in volume, it is the general belief that the new crop wheat will command a very good price.

Conditions point to a liberal crop of wheat this year in America and in Canada, but unless indications are very deceptive a good crop will be needed and readily absorbed. The outlook at present is for a total yield in the United States of around 700,000,000 bushels, and the price at which the crop will be marketed will depend largely on the volume of the demand from abroad. The Canadian crop will be our chief competitor, and so far indications point to a very large Canadian crop this year. Wheat is still moving from the Argentine in considerable volume, and reports from India and Russia are favorable, although on the continent and in the United Kingdom it is believed that this year's yield will be somewhat deficient.

COMMISSIONERS WILL INVESTIGATE MECHANICAL FILTRATION SYSTEM

Water Commissioners T. F. Matthews, W. H. Moore and W. H. Hill, have gone to Chatham to investigate the mechanical filtration system in use in that city. There is a probability of some kind of filtration system being put in here and the commissioners are investigating the different systems in operation. The mechanical filtration system is said to have given splendid results in Chatham. Previous to the introduction of the system the city annually had hundreds of typhoid fever cases, but now there are only a few cases each year.

HOW WHISKEY IS CARRIED IN A LOCAL OPTION TOWN

Special to the Review.

Toronto, July 20.—Rye whiskey in a galvanized tank, under a buggy seat is the latest revealed method of evading local option law in Owen Sound. Inspector Bennett stopped a citizen on his way to a friend's house and confiscated the spirits. The receptacle was twenty-five inches long and seventeen inches wide, seven inches deep, filled to the top with fine rye.

PRICE OF CAKES, BUNS AND PIES MAY ADVANCE

The price of cakes, buns and small pastry advanced two cents yesterday in Toronto, on account of the high price of materials used in their making. What the confectioners in this city will do is not known, but it is safe to assume that a change will be made in the prices here in the near future. Bread has advanced in price and it is not to be wondered at, when the cost of manufacture is considered. While eggs and butter will no doubt decrease in price within the next couple of weeks, the indications are that flour will remain at its present high rate.

BODIES OF SISTERS HAVE BEEN FOUND

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, July 20.—The bodies of both Greene sisters drowned near here last Thursday, were recovered to-day and there will be an inquest and thorough inquiry.

BOYS ORDERED TO LEAVE OVAL

Three boys who were mutilating the benches at Nicholls Oval last night, were ordered off the place by the park constable. They did not seem anxious to leave, and there was a lively row for a few minutes. A police court case will likely be the result.

THE NEWS AS TOLD IN DESPATCHES

Rural 'Phone Merger.

Brockville, July 20.—Representatives of seven rural telephone companies doing business in the counties of Leeds and Grenville, met at Athens and formed an independent telephone association for the establishment of an exchange in that village, uniting the various lines interested. The president is George Tackaberry of Plumbollow, and the secretary, G. F. Donnelly, Athens.

Four Years for Willing.

Whitby, July 20.—Four years at Kingston was Magistrate Harper's idea of punishment for Henry B. Willing, bigamist. He was scathing in his comments, before giving out sentence, characterising it as a case of the worst kind.

Willing presented a dejected appearance and snivelled some when his fate was pronounced.

Accepts at $10,000 a Year.

Ottawa, July 20.—Gordon Grant, inspecting engineer of the Transcontinental Railway Commission staff, has accepted the position of chief engineer vacated by H. D. Lumsden, at a salary of $10,000.

He will commence his new duties in a few weeks.

Italian Terribly Stabbed.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 20.—Early yesterday morning Humbert Calamanda, a 30-year-old Italian, was found at 20th street and Ferry avenue in a dying condition. He had been frightfully stabbed, being nearly disembowled. There were three Italian weddings in the city on Sunday, and the police believe that he was injured in a fight at one of them. The man refuses to make any statement. Four suspects are under arrest.

After the Bank Robbers.

Kenora, July 20.—Sunday night some lumbermen at Bishop's Bay, 20 miles south of here, noticed three men answering the description of the Rainy River bank robbers. They brought word to town yesterday that they appeared to be heading this way, and Constable Hanson and a posse of men left to intercept them if possible. They went well armed.

A TOTAL FAILURE

All agree that the Glace Bay strike has demonstrated the uselessness of the present Ministry of Labour. Mr. Mackenzie King is not even at the scene of the strike. The Government's conciliation methods have taken the form of a large military force. All this is not better, if indeed not much worse than before.

A BRITISH WARNING

London, July 18.—Referring to the G.T.P. issue, the Morning Post says Canada certainly has been borrowing in the past few years at a rate that must give rise to the greatest misgiving.

The amount of money yet to be borrowed for G.T.P. and other forms of Laurier administration madness, is large, very large. With the appalling sums charged for underwriting and brokerage and the low price for the loan itself it would look even to the most casual as if there were breakers ahead. The more so when it is seen that bonds of the Canada Chemical Co., of Toronto, to the amount of half a million dollars sold far above the G.T.P. government guaranteed bonds put upon the market at the same time. But, we repeat, take a glance at the future, which will be a fat one for the British financiers and brokers, who will demand a liberal rake-off as the price of taking up future loans.

A LAW UNTO THEMSELVES

The reason given for the strike at Pittsburg is as good a one as ever strikers had, and it is a probable one enough. The strikers allege that they are all resident around the present railway works, many of them being owners of their present homes, and that the officers of the company have bought up land in a new place, to which it had been determined to remove the works, and propose to make money out of the move, while the employees will be the losers, by the cost of moving, by the loss on their present homesteads, and by having to purchase new ones at a cost which will put money into the pockets of those who have taken advantage of the change."—The Montreal Witness.

The Witness gives an admirable summing-up of the conditions that brought on the strike at Pittsburg. It was caused by greed and cruelty, we were about to say, as usual. But this, while too inclusive represents pretty much the truth after all, in many of these great Pittsburg and other similar strikes. Some men seem so determined to make money that they lose all sense of comradeship, human brotherhood or even common decency.

THE TWO LANGUAGES

A recent number of La Patrie approves very strongly a letter of Prof. Leigh Gregor of McGill, advocating better relations between French and English-Canadians through and by means of the mutual learning of both languages. He admits, as does La Patrie, that the French learn English, but regrets that the English do not take the trouble to learn French. We deny that there is any disinclination on the part of English-speaking Canadians to learn French. Every English college has its professor and lecturer, every city has its school of languages, every village even, has its teachers and learners of French. [illegible] Canadian has always tried to learn French but it is a very difficult thing for him to do it. For one thing a language that is not the language of business in Canada is not the language of necessity and therefore not one that people must learn whether they will or no. French, therefore is an accomplishment and as such it is eagerly sought after by the bels esprits. But how can even they "keep up" what they do not make constant use of. We doubt if there is anybody in Canada who would not gladly speak both languages if he or she could, but "Lor' bless yer'" as Uncle Remus says, who would know what most of them were trying to do. Non! Pardon! It is not one language or two as one, that will make us think better of each other, although it might help. It is something more that is required. It is a spirit of pure-blend Canadianism that is needed so that we will all with common front resent from without what we stupidly resent from within at the present time. We must be to the world a unit and we cannot be this so long as the French insist on being French and the English insist on being English. Where religions or races band themselves together merely for purposes of "getting things" they will be treated accordingly. The separation of Canada into a lot of creeds and races is more than unfortunate. It is sinister. "Macdonald and Cartier" could trust, could love each other, Lafontaine and Baldwin also. It is not the big men, it is the small men, who cry "the race or the language is in danger." No one denies or would deny the almost unmatched glory of France, past and present, or the precision and beauty of her language, but what has that to do with keeping Canada talking two languages instead of one. It is more than a farce, It breeds perpetual discontent. Let it be that that man shall find himself anathema who would point to one Canadian as French and another as English. We may have our sectional differences, but not our national differences. If we have agreed to blend and live as one people, then let us do so as soon as possible. It is only necessary now for someone to insist upon Gaelic and Slavic being recognized as the language of portions of Canada, to have the split complete

Nothing is so satisfactory as what is known in law as a stated case. Let us have it then that any man may speak at any time the language of his choice. Will the French-Canadian deny such a privilege? That will bring the affair to a head. Political pull is at the bottom of a good deal of "the present discontent" in both Ontario and Quebec.

WHAT IS THE REST OF IT?

In the recent bye-elections in the Cleveland division of Yorkshire one of the great ironmasters of the district, who had at the general election opposed Mr. Herbert Samuel, the new Minister appealing for re-election, said at a public meeting he would give the Liberal candidate a thousand votes if he had them "rather than go back to the dark ages of protection, which would spell ruin for Cleveland." —The Globe.

The Globe is nothing if not lop-sided. The reason that the ironmasters above quoted, spoke so strongly against every reasonable degree of protection is obvious. Protection would protect food, and the food-producer. This would tend to make food products higher in price. As it is the ironmasters and cottonmasters have the best of it. They have agriculture at their mercy and propose to keep it so. Agriculture in England is at the mercy of Argentina and our Northwest, where the harvest is great and the labourers need only be few. To be an independent well-balanced kingdom Great Britain should have some agriculture, but until her fleet ceases to command the seas the ironmaster sees no good in giving up the feast he enjoys at agriculture's expense.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Since it transpires that the Ross rifle and the Lee-Endfield are on a par at Bisley, the tendency to unduly praise the former has subsided. The old Ross rifle was certainly no good. The present one is an improved patent.

It will strike most people as odd that so many Michigan wood manufacturers object to free raw material. The reason it seems is this. White pine is a minus quantity in Michigan, hardwood is not. Hardwood is supplanting pine. Concrete and hardwood make a better house than pine formerly did. To let in Canadian hardwood means the decline in price of the hardwood limits, and as the pine is all gone there is nothing else to protect.

IS THIS FELLOW A COMPETENT JUDGE?

If there are no better looking women at the Quinquenennial Congress than those of whom pictures appeared in the Toronto papers, then I move that they all be disfranchised for life—perhaps the rule is that when a woman gets too homely for any other purpose she joins the suffragettes.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, July 19.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending July 17 were 2200 cattle, 600 sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 1600 calves, while the supply for local consumption this morning amounted to 1000 cattle, 400 sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 200 calves.

The condition of the market for cattle was unchanged from a week ago, owing to the fact that supplies were smaller, and this, coupled with much cooler weather and a good demand from local buyers, maintained prices well for all grades. The export demand was quiet on account of the fact that cables from Liverpool on Saturday were again weaker, and noted a further decline in prices of ¼c to ½c per pound, as compared with a week ago, which was due to warm weather and a continued slow trade. One of the principal factors to which are attributed the high prices ruling for cattle this season here and in the west is the fact that United States exporters are operating freely in the Canadian market, on account of values being so much lower than in the Chicago market; consequently large shipments are being made weekly from Toronto to Boston and other ports for export account, which curtails supplies from coming this way, and tends to keep prices up. In this market to-day choice steers sold at 6c to 6¼c; good at 5½c to 5¾c; fair at 5c to 5¼c; medium at 4½c to 4¾c; common at 3½c to 4¼c; and inferior at 2½c to 3¼c per pound.

The strength which developed in the market for hogs a week ago still continues to be the main feature of the situation on account of the scarcity of supplies, and prices in consequence have scored a further advance of 10c to 15c per 100 pounds, and the indications are that they will go still higher in the near future unless supplies increase materially. The demand from packers to-day was keen, and sales of selected lots were made at $8.90 to $9 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars, and contracts were made for delivery later in the week at $9.10, which is a new high record price for the season.

The only important change in the market for small meats was the stronger feeling in sheep on account of the improved demand from local buyers, and prices advanced ¼c per pound, with sales at 4c. The trade in lambs was fairly active, and prices ruled steady at 6½c to 7c per pound. The offerings of calves were small and the market was quiet at prices ranging from $2 to $8 each, as to size and quality.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, July 19.—Cattle—Receipts, 3700 head; fat steers and heifers fairly active and 10c higher; others slow and barely steady; prime steers, $6.50 to $6.85; shipping, $5.75 to $6.40; butchers, $5 to $6.60; heifers, $4.25 to $6; cows, $3.25 to $5.25; bulls, $3 to $5; stockers and feeders, $3.65 to $4.50; stock heifers, $3.25 to $3.75; fresh cows and springers, choice, active to higher; common steady; $22 to $60.

Hogs—Receipts, 11,900 head; slow and 5c to 10c lower; heavy, $8.30 to $8.40; mixed, $8.40 to $8.50; yorkers, $8.20 to $8.40; pigs, $8.15 to $8.20; roughs, $7.10 to $7.15; stags, $6.00 to $6.65; dairies, $8.15 to $8.35.

SPECIALS FOR HORSES.

Show the Widespread Reputation of the Horse Show at the Canadian National.

The special prizes offered in the breeding classes at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, this year indicate the widespread reputation of the horse exhibit. The Ontario Jockey Club donate $100 to the thoroughbreds. Medals are offered in the Hackneys by the English Hackney Horse Society and the American Hackney Horse Society. In the Clydesdales, Mr. Geo. A. Ferguson, of Surradale, Scotland, gives an additional $25 to the champion stallion, while the Clydesdales Association give specials of $50 to the best stallion, any age, and best mare, any age. In Shires, the Shire Horse Society of England give a $50 gold medal for the best stallion or entire colt, and another of equal value for the best mare or filly. These are just a few of the many evidences of the world-wide reputation of the Horse Show.

Guides For Aeronauts.

Major von Frankenberg, president of the German Aero club, advises that huge signboards be placed on the roofs of church towers and high buildings, with a certain code of signals, visible from airships aloft, inscribed upon them. He also suggests that the frontiers of the different European countries shall be marked by the same method and that at night the signs shall be illuminated in such a way as to make them visible. Aeronauts would carry a signal code book, enabling them to decipher the meaning of the signals.

A Baseball Town.

St. Louis is evidently a baseball town, judging by the new city directory, which contains three Players, one Grounds, five Boxes, two Seats, five Fanns, one lone Ruter, two Passes, seventy-four Balls, three Batts, one Mask, twelve Sacks, eight Fielders, one Right, one Center, thirty-nine Shorts, five Pitchers, nine Hitts, three Bunts, one Outt, three Strikes, thirty-two Rapps, two Steals, one Fowle, five Scores and one Game.

"For goodness' sake, Bobby, shut up!" Bramfell's round eyes were twinkling with amusement.

"But my system"—

"Systems! Ah, we all had them when we were as young as you are!"

"And they all had flaws, Bobby," Eve broke in. "We were always finding gaps that had to be filled up. Never mind about Lord Witcheston. Get a substitute. It won't count if Lillian doesn't know."

Blessington wavered as she spoke. His eyes wandered round the party and again rested on Bramfell.

"Not me, Bobby! Remember, I've breathed crystals—practically lived on them—for the last week. Now, there's Chilcote"— Again his eyes twinkled.

All eyes were turned on Loder, though one or two strayed surreptitiously to Eve. She, seeming sensitive to the position, laughed quickly.

"A very good idea!" she said. "Who wants to see the future if not a politician?"

Loder glanced from her to Blessington. Then, with a very feminine impulse, she settled the matter beyond dispute.

"Please use your authority, Bobby," she said. "And when you've got him safely under canvas come back to me. It's years since we've had a talk." She nodded and smiled, then instantly turned to Bramfell with some trivial remark.

For a second Loder waited; then, with a movement of resignation, he laid his hand on Blessington's arm. "Very well," he said. "But, if my fate is black, witness it was my wife who sent me to it." His faint pause on the word wife, the mention of the word itself in the presence of these people, had a savor of recklessness. The small discomfiture of his earlier slip vanished before it. He experienced a strong reaction of confidence in his luck. With a cool head, a steady step and a friendly pressure of the fingers on Blessington's arm, he allowed himself to be drawn across the reception rooms, through the long corridors and down the broad flight of steps that led to the conservatory.

The conservatory was a feature of the Bramfell town house, and to Loder it came as something wonderful and unlooked for, with its clustering green branches, its slight, unoppressive scents, its temperately pleasant atmosphere. He felt no wish to speak as, still guided by Blessington, he passed down the shadowy paths that in the half light had the warmth and mystery of a southern garden. Here and there from the darkness came the whispering of a voice or the sound of a laugh, bringing with it the necessary touch of life. Otherwise the place was still.

Absorbed by the air of solitude, contrasting so remarkably with the noise and crowded glitter left behind in the reception rooms, he had moved halfway down the long green aisle before the business in hand came back to him with a sudden sense of annoyance. It seemed so paltry to mar the quiet of the place with the absurdity of a side show. He turned to Blessington with a touch of abruptness.

"What am I expected to do?" he asked.

Blessington looked up, surprised. "Why, I thought, sir"— he began; then he instantly altered his tone. "Oh, just enter into the spirit of the thing. Lady Astrupp won't put much strain on your credulity, but she'll make a big call on your solemnity." He laughed.

He had an infectious laugh, and Loder responded to it.

"But what am I to do?" he persisted.

"Oh, nothing. Being the priestess, she naturally demands acolytes, but she'll let you know that she holds the prior place. The tent is so fixed that she sees nothing beyond your hands, so there's absolutely no delusion." He laughed once more. Then suddenly he lowered his voice and slackened his steps. "Here we are," he whispered in pretended awe.

At the end of the path the space widened to the full breadth of the conservatory. The light was dimmer, giving an added impression of distance; away to the left Loder heard the sound of splashing water, and on his right hand he caught his first glimpse of the tent that was his goal.

It was an artistic little structure—a pavilion formed of silky fabric that showed bronze in the light of an oriental lamp that hung above its entrance. As they drew closer a man emerged from it. He stood for a moment in uncertainty, looking about him; then, catching sight of them, he came forward, laughing.

"By George," he exclaimed, "it's as dark as limbo in there! I didn't see you at first. But I say, Blessington, it's a beastly shame to have that thundercloud barrier shutting off the sorceress. If she gazes at the crystal, mayn't we have something to gaze at too?"

Blessington laughed. "You want too much, Gallry," he said. "Lady Astrupp understands the value of the unattainable. Come along, sir!" he added to Loder, drawing him forward with an energetic pressure of the arm.

Loder responded, and as he did so a flicker of curiosity touched his mind for the first time. He wondered for an instant who this woman was who aroused so much comment. And with the speculation came the remembrance of how she had assured Chilcote that on one point at least he was invulnerable. He had spoken then from the height of a past experience—an experience so fully passed that he wondered now if it had been as staple a guarantee as he had then believed. Man's capacity for outliving is astonishingly complete. The long ago incident in the Italian mountains had faded, like a crayon study in which the tones have merged and gradually lost character. The past had paled before the present, as golden hair might pale before black. The simile came with apparent irrelevance. Then again Blessington pressed his arm.

"Now, sir!" he said, drawing away and lifting the curtain that hung before the entrance of the tent.

Loder looked at the amused, boyish face lighted by the hanging lamp and smiled pleasantly; then, with a shrug of the shoulders, he entered the pavilion, and the curtain fell behind him.

CHAPTER XV.

On entering the pavilion Loder's first feeling was one of annoyed awkwardness at finding himself in almost total darkness. But as his eyes grew accustomed to the gloom the feeling vanished and the absurdity of the position came to his mind.

The tent was small, heavily draped with silk and smelling of musk. It was divided into two sections by an immovable curtain that hung from the roof to within a few feet of the floor. The only furniture on Loder's side was one low chair, and the only light a faint radiance that, coming from the invisible half of the pavilion, spread across the floor in a pale band. For a short space he stood uncertain, then his hesitation was brought to an end.

"Please sit down," said a low, soft voice.

For a further moment he stood undecided. The voice sounded so unexpectedly near. In the quiet and darkness of the place it seemed to possess a disproportionate weight, almost the weight of a familiar thing. Then with a sudden, unanalysed touch of relief, he located the impression. It was the similarity to Lady Bramfell's sweet, slow tones that had stirred his mind. With a sense of satisfaction he drew the chair forward and sat down.

Then for the first time he saw that on the other side of the gauze partition and below it by a few inches was a small table of polished wood, on which stood an open book, a crystal ball and a gold dish filled with ink. These were arranged on the side of the table nearest to him, the farther side being out of his range of vision. An amused interest touched him as he made his position more comfortable. Whoever this woman was, she had an eye for stage management, she knew how to marshal her effects. He found himself waiting with some curiosity for the next injunction from behind the curtain.

"The art of crystal gazing," began the sweet, slow voice after a pause, "is one of the oldest known arts." Loder sat forward. The thought of Lady Bramfell mingled disconcertingly with some other thought more distant and less easy to secure.

"To obtain the best results," went on the seer, "the subject lays his uncovered hands outspread upon a smooth surface." It was evident that the invisible priestess was reading from the open book, for when the word "surface" was reached there was a slight stir that indicated the changing of position, and when the voice came again it was in a different tone.

"Please lay your hands, palms downward, upon the table."

Loder smiled to himself in the darkness. He pictured Chilcote with his nerves and his impatience going through this ordeal; then in good humored silence he leaned forward and obeyed the command. His hands rested on the smooth surface of the table in the bar of light from the unseen lamp.

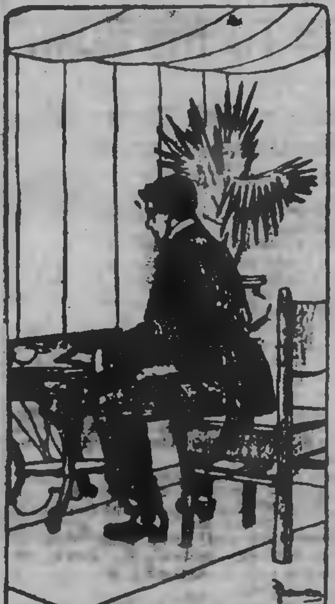
There was a second in which the seer was silent; then he fancied that she raised her head.

"You must take off your rings," she said smoothly. "Any metal interferes with the sympathetic current."

At any other time Loder would have laughed, but the request so casually and graciously made sent all possibility of irony far into the background. The thought of Chilcote and of the one flaw in their otherwise flawless scheme rose to his mind. Instinctively he half withdrew his hands.

"Where is the sympathetic current?" he asked quietly. His thoughts were busy with the question of whether he would or would not be justified in beating an undignified retreat.

"Between you and me, of course," said the voice softly. It sounded languid, but very rational. The idea of retreat seemed suddenly theatrical. In this world of low voices and shaded lights people never adopted extreme measures—no occasion made a scene practicable or even allowable. He leaned back slowly, while he summed up the situation. If by any unlucky chance this woman knew Chilcote to have adopted jewelry and had seen the designs of his rings the sight of his own scarred finger would suggest question and comment. If, on the other hand, he left the pavilion without excuse or if without apparent reason he refused to remove the rings, he opened up a new difficulty, a fresh road to curiosity. It came upon him with unusual quickness—the obstacles to and the need for a speedy decision. He glanced round the tent; then unconsciously he straightened his shoulders. After all, he had stepped into a tight corner, but there was no need to cry out in squeezing his way back. Then he realized that the soft, ingratiating tones were sounding once more.



"You must take off your rings."

"It's the passing of my hands over yours while I look into the crystal that sets up sympathy"—a slender hand moved swiftly into the light and picked up the ball—"and makes my eyes see the pictures in your mind. Now, will you please take off your rings?"

The very naturalness of the request disarmed him. It was a risk. But, as Chilcote had said, risk was the salt of life!

"I'm afraid you think me very troublesome." The voice came again, delicately low and conciliatory.

For a brief second Loder wondered uncertainly how long or how well Chilcote knew Lady Astrupp; then he dismissed the question. Chilcote had never mentioned her until tonight, and then casually as Lady Bramfell's sister. What a coward he was becoming in throwing the dice with fate! Without further delay he drew off the rings, slipped them into his pocket and replaced his hands on the smooth table top.

Then, at the moment that he replaced them, a peculiar thing occurred.

From the farther side of the dark partition came the quick, rustling stir of a skirt and the slight scrape of a chair pushed either backward or forward. Then there was silence.

Now, silence can suggest anything from profound thought to imbecility, but in this case its suggestion was nil. That something had happened, that some change had taken place, was as patent to Loder as the darkness of the curtain or the band of light that crossed the floor, but what had occasioned it, or what it stood for, he made no attempt to decide. He sat bitingly conscious of his hands spread open on the table under the scrutiny of eyes that were invisible to him, vividly aware of the awkwardness of his position. He felt with instinctive certainty that a new chord had been struck; but a man seldom acts on instinctive certainties. If the exposure of his hands had struck this fresh note, then any added action would but heighten the dilemma. He sat silent and motionless.

Whether his impassivity had any bearing on the moment he had no way of knowing; but no further movement came from behind the partition. Whatever the emotions that had caused the sharp swish of skirts and the sharp scrape of the chair, they had evidently subsided or been dominated by other feelings.

The next indication of life that came to him was the laying down of the crystal ball. It was laid back upon the table with a slight jerk that indicated a decision come to; and almost simultaneously the seer's voice came to him again. Her tone was lower now than it had been before, and its extreme ease seemed slightly shaken—whether by excitement, surprise or curiosity it was impossible to say.

"You will think it strange," she began. "You will think"— Then she stopped.

There was a pause, as though she waited for some help, but Loder remained mute. In difficulty a silent tongue and a cool head are usually man's best weapons.

His silence was disconcerting. He heard her stir again.

"You will think it strange," she began once more. Then quite suddenly she checked and controlled her voice. "You must forgive me for what I am going to say," she added in a completely different tone, "but crystal gazing is such an illusive thing. Directly you put your hands upon the table I felt that there would be no result, but I wouldn't admit the defeat. Women are such keen anglers that they can never acknowledge that any fish, however big, has slipped the hook." She laughed softly.

At the sound of the laugh Loder shifted his position for the first time. He could not have told why, but it struck him with a slight sense of confusion. A precipitate wish to rise and pass through the doorway into the wider spaces of the conservatory came to him, though he made no attempt to act upon it. He knew that, for some inexplicable reason, this woman behind the screen had lied to him—in the controlling of her speech, in her change of voice. There had been one moment in which an impulse or an emotion had almost found voice; then training, instinct, or it might have been diplomacy, had conquered, and the moment had passed. There was a riddle in the very atmosphere of the place—and he abominated riddles.

But Lady Astrupp was absorbed in her own concerns. Again she changed her position, and to Loder, listening attentively, it seemed that she leaned forward and examined his hands afresh. The sensation was so acute that he withdrew them involuntarily.

Again there was a confused rustle. The crystal ball rolled from the table, and the seer laughed quickly. Obeying a strenuous impulse, Loder rose.

He had no definite notion of what he expected or what he must avoid. He was only conscious that the pavilion, with its silk draperies, its scent of musk and its intolerable secrecy, was no longer endurable. He felt cramped and confused in mind and muscle. He stood for a second to straighten his limbs; then he turned and, moving directly forward, passed through the portiere.

After the dimness of the pavilion the conservatory seemed comparatively bright, but without waiting to grow accustomed to the altered light he moved onward with deliberate haste. The long green alley was speedily traversed. In his eyes it no longer possessed greenness, no longer suggested freshness or repose. It was simply a means to the end upon which his mind was set.

As he passed up the flight of steps he drew his rings from his pocket and slipped them on again. Then he stepped into the glare of the thronged corridor.

Some one hailed him as he passed through the crowd, but with Chilcote's most absorbed manner he hurried on. Through the door of the supper room he caught sight of Blessington and Eve, and then for the first time his expression changed, and he turned directly toward them.

"Eve," he said, "will you excuse me? I have a word to say to Blessington."

She glanced at him in momentary surprise; then she smiled in her quiet, self possessed way.

"Of course," she said. "I've been wanting a chat with Millicent Gower, but Bobby has required so much entertaining"— She smiled again, this time at Blessington, and moved away toward a pale girl in green who was standing alone.

Instantly she had turned Loder took Blessington's arm.

"I know you're tremendously busy," he began in an excellent imitation of Chilcote's hasty manner—"I know you're tremendously busy, but I'm in a fix." One glance at Blessington's healthy, ingenuous face told him that plain speaking was the method to adopt.

"Indeed, sir?" In a moment Blessington was on the alert.

"Yes. And I—I want your help."

The boy reddened. That Chilcote should appeal to him stirred him to an uneasy feeling of pride and uncertainty.

Loder saw his advantage and pressed it home. "It's come about through this crystal gazing business. I'm afraid I didn't play any part—rather made an ass of myself. I wouldn't swallow the thing, and—and Lady Astrupp"— He paused, measuring Blessington with a glance. "Well, my dear boy, you—you know what women are!"

Blessington was only twenty-three. He reddened again and assumed an air of profundity. "I know, sir," he said, with a shake of the head.

Loder's sense of humor was keen, but he kept a grave face. "I knew you'd catch my meaning. But I want you to do something more. If Lady Astrupp should ask you who was in her tent this past ten minutes, I want you"— Again he stopped, looking at his companion's face.

"Yes, sir?"

"I want you to tell an immaterial lie for me."

Blessington returned his glance; then he laughed a little uncomfortably. "But surely, sir"—

LINDSAY GIRLS TAKE TO HIKING

Walked From Pleasant Point to Lindsay Distance of Seven Miles

Lindsay, July 19.—Two young ladies, Miss Ethel Green, of Toronto, and Miss Bessie Hopwood, accomplished a real athletic stunt this morning when they walked from Pleasant Point, where they have been summering, to Lindsay. This afternoon the two, not a whit the least bit tired, started the return journey on foot. Their feat has set the other young ladies gasping.

It is a long journey from Pleasant Point to Lindsay—about twelve miles. If you walk it you'll think it's the longest twelve miles you've ever heard of. The roads were good, though, this morning and the fair pedestrians made good time, reeling off the mile posts very much after the fashion of Champion Hoagland, or Barber Reynolds, of Port Hope.

This afternoon they set out again, after partaking of a substantial dinner and expect to get to the Point in time for supper, and a raving appetite they'll have.

DRINKING WATER FOR STONEY LAKE

Amongst the items of news from Stony Lake is one to the effect that another well is being bored, but a few yards distant from the lake. It is to furnish delicious spring drinking water to the tourists and ranks as one of the attractions of the hostelry in question. Meantime the people of Peterborough are dragooned into drinking the same water, plus further abominations. The city must have artesian well water. Peterborough will never be happy until it gets it. The recent discovery that analysts had overlooked, totally, the most dangerous germ of all, makes the demand more emphatic. They don't drink lake water at Stony Lake. When it stands for a few hours Peterborough people understand why. Perhaps it will be ozonization. But it will have to be something.

CANADA HAS FINE EXHIBIT

At the Alaska-Yukon Exposition at Seattle—Richness of the Dominion Driven Home

Special to the Review.

Seattle, July 19.—An illustrative and beautiful pictorial record of Canada, past and present, is exhibited in the Canadian National Exhibit building of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition of Seattle. The descriptive effect is accomplished by panoramic paintings and specimens of grasses, grains and mounted examples of the taxidermists art.

The back ground shows a realistic view of the great fields, orchards and forests of the entire dominion, while the space separating this from the spectator is filled in with picturesque natural settings in which are grouped a collection of all animals native to country.

A pair of buffalo with shaggy skins and massive limbs confront the viewer, and a group of elk with wide branching antlers are seen browsing in a sea of grass. The rare animal of the north, the wood buffalo is represented by a beautiful specimen captured from the Peace River region, 1,000 miles north of the boundaries of the United States. Beaver, mink, otter, raccoon, wolf and all the lesser animals are posed in lifelike attitudes, and a great grizzly bear, raised to his fullest height, holds in his mouth a placard bearing this inscription; "Yes; hard wheat has removed my prairie friends, and through the building of a railroad through the Rockies our family has found life not worth living."

The panorama shows clearly and cleverly the wonderful transition of the north country, and the picture demonstrates the rapidity with which the vast areas of unoccupied lands have been occupied and brought to a high state of productiveness.

MR. S. S. STRATTON WHO IS DEAD IN OTTAWA FORMERLY LIVED IN THIS CITY

Ottawa, July 19.—Mr. Stephen Stewart Stratton, a well known resident of this city, died at his summer home at Westboro, "Rose Villa" on Saturday, after a lingering illness of five years' duration which was borne however, with much fortitude. In the death of Mr. Stratton there passes from the community a man at one time one of the most prominent in the city, politically and commercially.

Stephen Stewart Stratton was born at Hemingford, Quebec, about fifty-eight years ago. His parents came to this country from the north of Ireland. His father was Stephen Stratton, a well-to-do merchant. Deceased was an enthusiastic Liberal as was also his father before him. While still a young man Mr. Stratton won prominence as a supporter of the late Alexander MacKenzie and his government, and up till the day of his death was a true and unflinching supporter of Liberalism.

In early life Stephen moved with his parents from Hemingford to Peterborough, and there he attended grammar school. He graduated at Toronto in pharmacy before his 18th birthday, and then came to Ottawa. Where the Banque Nationale, Rideau street, now stands, he served as a clerk for three years in the drug store owned by Mr. Hearn. Leaving Mr. Hearn's employ, Mr. Stratton went into business for himself and opened up on York street. He was successful as a druggist, but after a few years sold out his establishment and took up a small grocery business with Mr. C. Stratton, his brother.

The late Stephen Stratton never aspired to public office municipally or in the wider fields. He was content to remain in the ranks. He was always found thoroughly reliable, and made many friends.

He was a member of All Saints' church, and of numerous fraternal societies. Many years ago Mr. Stratton was connected with the Governor General's Foot Guards and was active in the formation of that regiment.

Mr. Stratton's wife predeceased him some seven years ago. He is survived by three brothers, Messrs. C. Stratton, Thomas E. Stratton and John Stratton, and three sisters, the Misses May and Lily Stratton, and Miss Stratton, all of Ottawa.

In the city Mr. Stratton's home had been at 224 Cooper street. The funeral will be held at three o'clock to-morrow to All Saints' church, this city, and from his late residence in Westboro.

EXPIRED ON THE STREET AS HE WALKED TO HIS HOME

Sudden Death of Mr. Wm. S. Cocks, a Well Known Citizen—Heart Failure Was the Cause—News of Demise Shock to Family and Friends

With shocking suddenness death came yesterday to Mr. William S. Cocks, of this city. While returning from Ashburnham to his home at 155 Dublin street, he collapsed and expired on the pavement near the corner of London and George streets. Heart failure was the cause of death.

The sad event took place about 5.30 o'clock. Persons on the street at the time hurried to the spot when they saw the man fall to the pavement, and a crowd quickly gathered. Dr. Morgan, who was the family doctor, Dr. Burnham, and Dr. McPherson, all of whom were in the vicinity at the time, hurried to where Mr. Cocks lay, but nothing could be done, as death had occurred when he collapsed.

The Dan Spence ambulance was called and the body was removed to the family residence.

The late Mr. Cocks had not been in the best of health for some time, but had not been seriously ill. His heart had been giving him trouble, but yesterday he appeared to be better than for some time, and took a walk to Ashburnham. He had driven to Lake field on Sunday and appeared to be improving.

The news of his sudden demise came as a great shock to the members of the family and to citizens generally, among whom deceased was held in high regard.

Mr. Cocks was born in London, England, and came to Canada thirty-nine years ago. He had always lived here with the exception of four years spent in Toronto. He was sixty-one years of age. He was a painter and decorator by trade, and was well known throughout the city and district.

Mr. Cocks was a member of the Church of England and belonged to the Sons of England and the Canadian order of Foresters. He is survived by his wife and three sons, Messrs. Fred J. Cocks and W. G. Cocks, of Toronto, and F. J. Cocks, grocer, of Peterborough.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, from 155 Dublin street to Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Canon Davidson will conduct the funeral service.

BRIGHT SERVICE AT EVANGELISTIC MEETING

The Neccessity of Young People Starting Right and Using Their Influence for Good Was the Point Emphasized Last Evening—Mr. Soper Will Speak To-night.

The tent in which evangelistic meetings will be held for the next four weeks was well filled last night, and the first service was a bright and helpful one. After the singing of a number of hymns, a Bible reading and a song by Mr. G. W. Mulligan, the chairman, Mr. F. C. Moore, introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. A. G. Young.

He took his text from Kings 1, 21st chapter, 20th verse. "And Ahab said to Elijah, hast thou found me, Oh, mine enemy. And he answered, I have found thee because thou hast sold thyself to work evil in the sight of the Lord." There are two courses in life, said the speaker, and we are given the chance to choose in what direction we will go. Young people especially should endeavor to begin and start right. Ahab had not done so, and the result was that he sank lower and lower in sin. He started on the wrong path when he broke the commandments of the Israelites by marrying Jezebel, an alien woman. Her influence on his life was the cause of his downfall. Young people should be very particular in the sort of companions they choose.

Finally Ahab became covetous and wanted the vineyard of Naboth. His selfishness led him to forget the welfare of his own people and the people living at the present day are not any different, as there is evidence of selfishness all around us.

Then we are apt to think that God is an enemy rather than a friend, just in the same manner as did Ahab misunderstand Elijah, who was his best friend. The necessity of starting right while we are young and using our influences for the good of those around us was the point which the speaker wished his audience to consider.

The speaker to-night will be Mr. Soper, of the George street Methodist church, and Rev. Mr. Moore, of St. James' church will assist.

TENANT RESPONSIBLE FOR DAMAGE TO HOUSE

Charles Clarke Assessed $15.25 at police Court This Morning—Injuries to House While He Was Tenant

At the police court this morning, after hearing the evidence against Charles Clarke, who was remanded Saturday morning on a charge of having removed posts from the verandah of a house, the property of Mrs. Harrison, and in which he was a tenant, Magistrate Dumble decided that the defendant was guilty of doing wilful damage, and fined him $5.00. He must also make good for the damage caused to the verandah, to the extent of $5.00, and pay the costs of the case, which are $3.25, making a total of $13.25, to be paid in ten days, and in default of payment, twenty days in jail.

Mr. G. N. Gordon conducted the case for the defendant, Clarke.

The first witness called was the agent for Mrs. Harrison, who stated that Clarke had rented the house on the 11th of January, and remained as a tenant until the last of May, when he left without giving notice. During the time he had occupied the house four posts had been taken from the verandah, also posts from the cellar supporting the floor. Cellar beams from the attic had been taken and some boards had been removed from a shed in the yard. He placed the damages to the house at $20.00.

Silas Bullied, next called, said he left the house on the 7th of last October. He thought there were three posts on the verandah when he left, but would only swear that two remained. The plaster in the house was loose, but none had fallen on the floor, and there were only two or three boards off the shed. The sashes of the cellar windows were lying in the cellar.

Thos. Martin said he boarded in one half of the house with Harry Raymond, and it was in bad shape. Raymond took boards off the shed and had also taken the cellar beams from the attic to be used for fuel. Clarke took one of the verandah posts and cut it up. He did not know anything about the posts in the cellar.

Raymond had done most of the damage to the shed as he had no wood for fuel and was in rather poor circumstances.

Henry Truesdale said he went into the house as a tenant on April 1, and paid his rent to Clarke, amounting to one dollar a week. He didn't know anything about the posts in the cellar, but knew the cellar beams had disappeared. Clarke and he had repaired the shed, which was used for stabling their horses. He could not say who did any of the damage to the house.

The first witness wanted to show the damage to the house had been accomplished while Clarke was in possession, and in answer to questions Truesdale stated that boards off the back verandah had disappeared, and he had also missed lumber off a small structure adjoining the shed.

Defendant's wife, when called, said that she had knocked down the post mentioned by Martin, but it was an accident. She had been cutting ice one day and missed the ice and hit the post, but was unable to state where the post had gone to. The door of one section of the house had been left open, while she occupied her part. Witness did not see who took the boards off the verandah, but admitted her husband had taken several from the shed to fix his wagon. These boards had been replaced later. She blamed Harry Raymond for doing most of the damage.

The magistrate held that as Clarke had rented the house he was responsible for the damage done while he was a tenant. It had been shown that the post from the verandah had been taken by him, and the fact should be understood that tenants must not injure other people's property.

KITCHEN MARAUDER SAID TO BE AT WORK

A midnight prowler is annoying some residents of Peterborough by peeping into kitchens and entering and helping himself if the coast is clear. He disregards quarantine notices and other forms of prohibition. If he does not keep out of the kitchens he will find himself in the soup. The police expect to be able to get to work on the case next week.

SICK SKINS IN SUMMER

Summer is the hardest time for the human skin. Its delicate tiny pores, if worked under the best conditions, would have a rough time because of the heat. How when they have to work when impaired or damaged by sunburn and heat spots? No wonder one has rough patches, freckles, etc.

Zam-Buk heals sick skin. When a patch of skin on face, neck or arms is blistered by the sun, apply Zam-Buk at once. It will cool and soothe beautifully, and new skin will be quickly formed. When you are footsore or have some chafed places, Zam-Buk will stop that terrible itching and smarting. Keep Zam-Buk handy, use it freely, and this will be the happiest summer you have ever spent, viewed from the skin health standpoint. All druggists and stores.

ONTARIO BANK LOT

The plan of the lots to be sold on the ground on Saturday, July 24th, is planned on the Lock street frontage. The plan is about 6 feet square and clearly shows the lots. There is also a big plan in the window of Mr. Might, the land broker. Mr. Might will be in his office at night from 8 to 9 p.m., to meet intending purchasers. The house and barn will be sold at the auction and promptly removed.

BOYS AND GIRLS AT G.T.R. STATION

Citizens are complaining about boys and girls gathering at the G.T.R. station in the evening and making too much noise. Their conduct is a nuisance to people living in the vicinity and those who go to the station on business.

The erection of public cold storage facilities is being discussed in Edmonton.

DORANDO REACHES HOME; ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION

New York, July 19.—"America is a great country to make money in; also to make fame in," is the concrete opinion of Dorando, the Marathon winner, in an interview at Genoa, according to a special cable despatch. "Both come easy," he adds; "you make the money; other people make you the fame."

Dorando, on landing at Genoa, was immediately assailed by a hundred and twenty Italian reporters and almost mobbed by his enthusiastic compatriots, who seemed to want to carry him bodily off the vessel, and who also seemed unaware that he had lost a few races after all since he quitted Italian shores.

Nearly every reporter bore the invitation of his paper for Dorando to write articles at whatever price he pleased on his experience in the United States. Dorando replied that he intended to remain in Italy only two months before returning to London, thence going to New York, but would do all he could gratis during that period.

"I made enough money over there," he protested, "to last a long time." Twenty thousand dollars—and that means 100,000 francs—is the sum the little racer says he picked up in the short time he spent in the States, and he expects to be able to make that much every year as long as his endurance holds out.

"But the most agreeable thing was fame," acknowledged Dorando with a smile. "There were Dorando ties and Dorando cakes, Dorando songs and Dorando shirts. I heard my name pronounced on every street corner, in every cafe and at the theatre. I struggled to be worthy of this; to put up a good fight even when I felt I could not win."

Dorando added that he had been invited, and even urged, by several American managers, to sign agreements for five years, which would be distinctly to his advantage, but he felt that he preferred to retain his freedom, whether he suffered in the long run or not.

LINES ON SPORT

The "bones" were rattling on the boards,
And some had not the coin to stay,
But those who did kept up the cry,
"There's someone out, put in, [illegible]"

---

Young Corbett was recently married to a young lady in Virginia. This shows that some pugilists never lose their gameness.

Jack Johnson will appear in Toronto during this week and endeavor to explain to the sports of that burg everything that Jeffries neglected to.

With McGinley pitching Toronto again defeated Newark yesterday by 8—3 and the Leafs are now in fifth place.

Ball, of Cleveland, had a triple play unassisted yesterday in the game with Boston, knocked out a home run and had six more putouts than the first baseman or catcher. Cy Young was pitching and won 6—1.

Suridge, for Montreal, did not allow one man to get further than first base yesterday and Jersey City were beaten 7—3.

New York and St. Louis Nationals played a sixteen innings game yesterday, the latter winning 4—3.

Dorando, the Italian Marathoner, is back in Italy renewing old acquaintances.

The T.A.S. nine will be considerably weakened on account of the absence of Manager Quinlan and Leo Lerocber, who have left the city on their holidays. On this account Park street A.C. will put up a desperate fight to repeat the trick.

The Strathconas played on Saturday last when they handed out the first defeat this year to the leaders. The T.A.S., however, have a few substitutes left who are expected to make good on Saturday. This game promises to be the closest exhibition of the season.

PRACTICE TO-NIGHT

The T.A.S. Senior and Intermediate ball teams will hold a practice to-night at 6.45 at Boswell's field. A full turnout is expected.

From here it looks as if Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson were getting more free advertising than the latest scandal at an afternoon tea. What's the use of fighting when so much money can be made in such an easy way?

Kellogg, the southpaw twirler of the Toronto baseball team, has been farmed out to Reading, of the Tri-State League. Kellogg is still young, and needs, perhaps, another year's work to give him the necessary control. He has plenty of speed and assortment of benders, but is a little too wild.

McDonald, of Rochester, has reported, and will be used regularly in the games in the infield. Grimshaw, who has been playing at second in place of Mullen, will now take this place in the right garden.

JACK JOHNSTON WILL PERFORM

Following closely one the visit of James J. Jeffries, the great heavyweight fighter, Jack Johnson, the present holder of the title of heavyweight champion of the world, will be seen at Hanlan's Point on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights of this week at Maple Leaf Park.

So much interest was taken in Jeffries while he was here that it was decided to bring Johnson to this city also, although it entailed great expense.

Johnson will be seen in shadow boxing stunts, and will also punch the bag. He will spar three rounds with his partner, and will take on any local aspirants who may care to step into the ring.—Toronto News.

The New Owner Secured More Than the Old Home.

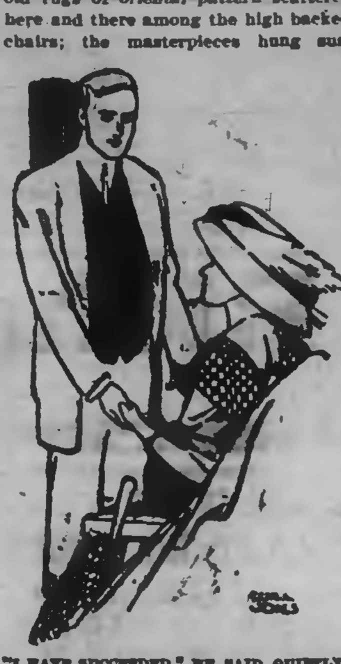
By JUANITA ALVAREZ.

[Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

It was early in the morning—so early, in fact, that the dew stood in big, opalescent drops on hedge and blossom.

Marjorie ran quickly up the short flight of stone steps. She stood for an instant, her breath coming and going in a little jerky fashion. She thrust a cold hand into her bag and fumbled tremulously for her latchkey. A second and her trepidation had passed. The high paneled door yielded instantly, swinging noiselessly back on its hinges.

Marjorie drew a long breath of satisfaction as she glanced down at the familiar things at her feet, the rich old rugs of oriental pattern scattered here and there among the high backed chairs; the masterpieces hung suspended from the walls, the statuary just where it had stood on the night she went away.



"I HAVE SUCCEEDED," HE SAID QUIETLY.

With a deep drawn sigh of relief Marjorie threw herself into a chair to rest and collect herself before proceeding to her own room.

After all, she reflected, it was a whole lot better to be at home with one's own people than to be sticking it out alone somewhere else, whatever the temptation or inducement. She had stuck it out and won. Others had tried the same thing and lost. The result was pretty near the same in any event, she argued, flushed now with the mere joy of her homecoming.

She wondered vaguely if her parents could by any possibility fail to forgive the waywardness which had taken her away to do battle, single handed, in the great world of need and struggle? The parting had been very bitter, so bitter that she tried not to recall it any oftener than she was forced to. The surprise, the triumphant results she was bringing home to them, would they compensate for her disobedience?

During the two months just passed she had heard little or nothing from either of them in her continued passage from place to place. Had she confided the real motive behind her desperate ambition things might have been different, but there are some soul secrets too dear and too sacred almost to be held in communion with one's own thoughts.

All at once a whole army of clocks began to strike 6, and innumerable whistles in every key shrieked a peremptory warning of the hour.

Marjorie started from her reveries in alarm and, quietly crossing the length of the hallway, moved up the deep carved and carpeted staircase.

The door of her sitting room stood ajar, and she entered noiselessly, depositing her bag and parcel on the familiar little spider legged table that held the student's lamp. Then she threw herself down into the old fashioned rocker that stood invitingly near and began to draw off her gloves. For the moment a rush of feeling dimmed her eyes so that she could not see. But in a little while she pulled herself together and glanced about critically, noting that nothing apparently had been disturbed. Everything was just as she was accustomed to have it—every picture, every book.

She bent toward the reading table with a sudden heart throb. There lay a fresh supply of the current periodicals, a newspaper or so, a paper knife she was sure she had never seen before and a half smoked cigar.

"Poor, dear papa," sighed Marjorie, with a little tremulous smile, "he will forgive me, after all. He must have cared very much to do this. I'm afraid I wounded him more deeply than I dreamed." She put forth her hand in a mechanical fashion and lifted the paper knife from the table, touching it softly with caressing fingers. It was just a common little affair of steel and ivory, but two initials showed roughly on the handle, as though carved there in some absent moment—"R. L."

"Richard Lassiter!" Marjorie's lips unconsciously framed the words. She looked up, half frightened, and glanced about her quickly.

Almost at the moment the door leading into her room was pushed open softly from the other side, and Richard Lassiter himself stood on the threshold.

"Miss Winthrop!"

Marjorie was on her feet in an instant, pale, embarrassed, bewildered. For once in her life all self control had abandoned her. She took an unsteady step forward, groping with one hand before her for support.

"I'm awfully sorry," began Lassiter apologetically. "There has in all probability been some mistake. I thought you knew."

Marjorie regarded him half dazed.

"My father and mother," she broke in appealingly, "what has become of them?"

"They are perfectly safe and well. I can assure you of that much. As soon as possible—as is practicable—I shall send you to them. Your father speculated heavily. He was unfortunate, but he did not lose everything," he went on, answering the unspoken question in her eyes. "A long expected lift from fortune made me independent, placed me where I am—here."

When he looked down Marjorie was crying softly, the tears slipping down her cheeks and splashing unheeded on her hands.

"When I learned that the place was for sale," proceeded Lassiter after a silence, "I wanted more than anything else in the world to come here to live. It seemed like—well, like being nearer to you, somehow. You don't mind me saying this, Mar—Miss Winthrop?"

Marjorie's tears had ceased suddenly. An exquisite tint of carnation had crept up slowly under her skin, and the lids closed over her eyes like pale white globes over blue lights. "I would rather it were you—than any one else—here," she replied presently in a low voice.

Something in her tone, in her manner and more than all in the swift avoidance of his eyes made Lassiter suddenly bold. He went and stood at the side of her chair, his hand resting on the back of it, his gaze, impassioned enough now, fixed on the shining brown waves of hair that intoxicated him with the delicate breath of perfume.

"Marjorie," he said hurriedly, "let me tell you—everything—now, won't you? It isn't the time nor the place perhaps, conventionally speaking, but I can't let you get away from me again. I think you must have known, dear, that I have always loved you—you did know it, didn't you? But you knew, too, that you were rich, while I was poor and that because of it my lips were sealed. But I was working night and day, day and night—working as no one ever could have worked before, for no one ever had so sweet and dear and precious an incentive—working to make myself worthy to ask you to be my wife."

He paused, out of breath from sheer emotion, the veins of his neck throbbing. He bent suddenly and took her hand in his.

Marjorie felt the quick quivering and yielding of her fingers and knew that with it was the giving up of her whole self.

Minutes passed and neither spoke.

After awhile she glanced up, with a slow flush deepening vividly on her cheeks, and Lassiter broke the silence.

"I have succeeded," he said quietly. "Will you come back home, sweetheart?"

Marjorie did not speak, but presently she lifted her other hand and gave that, too, into his keeping.

Are Cattle Your Hobby?

If they are, don't forget that the show in Shorthorns at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, last year, was pronounced by experts from across the sea, to be as good as can be seen in Scotland itself. Herefords, Jerseys and Ayrshires, were also of excellent quality. This year there is every evidence that the cattle show will surpass anything ever shown at Toronto—and that means anything in America.

Twenty thousand men are [illegible] to handle the big crop of the [illegible] that this year promises.

ALTHOUGH it might seem as though there were few or no changes in the fashions for evening gowns from one season to another, in reality there are many, and the small details of an evening gown, which are so all important, very constantly, while often an entire change of style is first to be noted in the evening gowns. The custom of wearing a low cut gown in the evening is even more universal this season than ever, for it is becoming more and more fashionable to wear what is known as full dress to the play or when dining or supping in public, and while there is a difference or distinction made between the ball gown and the dinner gown they resemble each other very closely. The latter has longer sleeves and is not cut so low and should not be quite so elaborate or costly in appearance. Be it noted that it is said in appearance; there is nothing more costly than fashionable simplicity in clothes.

So much depends upon where the summer season is to be spent in the ordering of evening gowns. At the most fashionable resorts, where the summer season means a round of formal entertainments, dinners and dances, there is a necessity for almost if not quite as elaborate models as are required for a winter season—in fact, a beautiful ball gown is displayed to the best possible advantage in the superb country houses or so-called cottages where during the month or six weeks of the gay season dinners and dances follow one another in quick succession.

For the Summer Gayeties.

Some women wear the same ball gowns, provided said gowns are not shabby, in summer as in winter, contending this is real economy, now that the styles change so often, but when a woman can afford to pay two or three hundred dollars apiece for gowns it scarcely seems necessary to wear them more than one season. Still, it is contended and generally admitted that the best gowned women buy less in quantity, preferring to expend the money on fine materials and exclusive, rather ahead of the times styles than to have a collection of what are known as half way clothes. The gist of the whole matter may be summed up in the statement that with the exception of materials like velvet or trimmings of fur, if a gown is in perfect condition, fits well and looks smart it can be worn in summer, even if it has already been seen during the winter. A clever way to save pennies is to buy models out of season, when prices have been reduced—and often a winter ball gown is bought late—a style that for some reason or other has been delayed, for a third of its original price, and which is far more effective and handsome than anything made up at the moment.

The embroidered passementerie and jewelled net trimmings that have been popular for several months are still fashionable, and there is, if possible, an even greater variety to choose from. They are to be found in different widths and designs, and consequently can be so placed on the gown that the most becoming lines can be carried out. They are used on both the thin materials and the heavy, and it is hard to decide on which they look best. In the soft satins they seem to show off marvellously, and yet when put on lace or net they look as though part of the material was woven in or embroidered in most exquisite hand work. The raised designs are especially popular, and either in gold or jet stand out most effectively. The diamanté, or rhinestone, trimmings are much flatter, bands of the stones being apparently strung close together on black or white net or caught together in some indescribably mysterious manner, so that only the stones show and no background of net is visible. Crystal and cut jet beads are also used in this manner, but the effect is not so brilliant. The cut jet combined with rhinestones is exceedingly effective and is used on gray, white or black net or satin gowns, while the entire robe patterns of black net, with paillettes of jet combined with silver or rhinestones, are apparently destined never to go entirely out of style.

White Tulle and Net Gowns.

Of all styles those that seem most appropriate for summer are the white net, tulle, chiffon and silk voile gowns. This season there are so many different qualities and weaves of each and every one of these fabrics that it is quite hard to decide which is the most effective. There are stripes of different widths, there are checks and a curious moiré pattern, but the plain surface of fine weave maintains its supremacy, and after all, if there is to be trimming, and all these gowns are trimmed, it shows to far better advantage on the plain surface than in any pattern. Crystal and silver are the most fashionable trimmings for these sheer all white fabrics, and charmingly dainty in effect is the gown trimmed with either crystal or silver.

As a rule the trimming is on the waist only, embroidered on the material itself, but if the passementerie or the embroidered bands are used then quite a different effect is gained, not so new, but not to be condemned on that account. In all these embroidered white gowns the lines are extremely simple and there is no extra fulness permitted. The greatest effort is, in fact, made to give the appearance of as little width as possible and yet not to have the draperies too scant. It is the same idea again of slenderness of figure but not an economy of fabric. There are flounces and flounced skirts, the flounces of spangled or embroidered net, charmingly dainty and light, but the plainer styles are the most popular and have a note of originality that is most marked. While all white is extremely fashionable at the moment, all light shades of color are in style and any model for all white can be copied in any of the fashionable shades, while the fashion so often described of the colored linings for the transparent fabrics is shown again, for the greatest care is taken in choosing the linings of the simplest of gowns and often the trimming and linings are most carefully matched.

For the elaborate outfits requisite for the summer season at Newport or any place where entertaining is on the elaborate order most exquisite creations of the dressmakers' and designers' skill have recently been exhibited. Such charming coloring and designs in the new brocades, materials that can be shaped so gracefully and becomingly, were surely never known; the colorings are most artistic and varied, the two tone effects in gray, old rose and yellow being especially noticeable.

Draped Brocade Gowns.

The shades resemble one another so closely that in some lights only the one color is visible, then in another light the design seems to stand out from the background and the two colors, or rather the two shades, are at once visible. There are the draped brocade and satin gowns made with little or no trimming, but there are some models that not only require the most costly of fabrics, but are trimmed with the most costly of embroidered net laces or passementerie. These are the brocaded nets that can either be embroidered in such fashion that the design of the material stands out from the background in most striking effect or there is only a pattern around the edge and the pattern is carried out in gold, silver, rhinestone or jet.

Among the many graceful draped models is one that has more than a far-away resemblance to the Greek robe. Made of soft, clinging material, there are many folds, which are draped most carefully to give graceful and becoming lines and to show every good point of the figure. The trimming is a design embroidered into the material and within the edges of all the folds as well as the line around the shoulders. Gold or silver embroidery on white is the smartest combination, and there is no touch of color anywhere save what is given by the embroidery, which is capable of many changes and is almost invariably becoming, especially if the wearer be tall and slender.

Fashion Details Every Woman Should Know

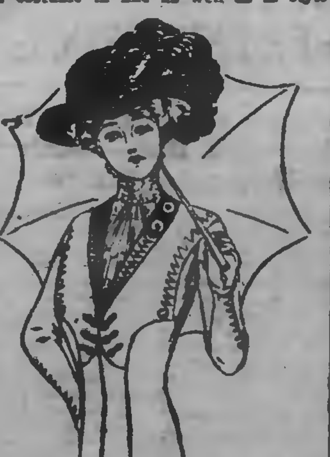
ONE of the points in successful costuming that is sometimes overlooked is the necessity of the hat fitting the costume in line as well as in style and color. Almost every one is sufficiently sophisticated about clothes to consider carefully the harmonizing if not the matching of the hat and costume, and the majority of women also consider the degree of elegance and elaborateness of each in comparison with the other, a perfectly plain hat rarely being seen, for instance, with an elaborate costume. But the actual harmonizing of line is frequently overlooked, and women often wonder why they are disappointed in effects which harmonize excellently in color and when both hat and gown look exceedingly well worn separately.



HARMONY OF LINE IN HAT AND GOWN.

It is usually a failure to consider the relation of the lines which results in this disappointment—a flat or drooping hat, for instance, of the exaggeratedly picturesque order being worn with a gown of the same shade or a harmonizing one, but of a sedate and distinctly formal style. Equally disappointing is the military looking hat with the graceful, drooping frock. In the illustration (figure 1) an admirable sample of the correct relation of the lines of the hat and costume is shown.

IN figure 2 is shown a charming conservative model for a pongee cashmere, foulard or linen gown. The design, perhaps, is especially suited for pongee. The design is really very simple and for a slender person would not be difficult of development by the home dressmaker. For any one not of slender build, however, the skirt cut higher than the natural waist line presents many pitfalls.

With the exception of the embroidered piece in the front of the bodice the gown has no ornamentation. The deep square guimpe is of a large meshed fancy net. One of the most attractive features of the gown is the long sleeves with horizontal tucks. The sleeve is shaped most gracefully to the arm, which above all else seems to distinguish this season the well made gown from that less carefully constructed.

GYPSY DELEGATION PAYS VISIT TO PETERBOROUGH

In Connection With Getting Evidence as to the Party Who Has Right to Young Girl Betrothed Here — Girl's Foster Father Arrested on Kidnapping Charge

As will be seen by a despatch from Ottawa on the front page of the Review, the gypsies were were encamped here are involved in a legal case in Ottawa, resulting from the alleged kidnapping of the young girl who was said to have been betrothed or married here. It was stated at the time that the girl was married to a man named Stoke. The information was obtained from Dr. Pelky, who was in the city at the time of the affair, and who acted as interpreter when the gypsies were arraigned here after being arrested by the county authorities.

It appears that Dr. Pelkey was misinformed regarding the principals of the wedding. He stated that the bride married a young man by the name of Stoke. The queen and chief of the band are here to-day in connection with the case now pending in Ottawa, and the queen stated to a Review reporter to-day that it was a young boy of the party that had married the girl and said that she had been purchased from Stoke for the sum of $1,000. Stoke, it would appear, was the bride's foster father.

According to the queen, Stoke kidnapped the girl on Sunday, taking her in an automobile, but he was pursued and the young captive taken from him. He was arrested, the queen states, for kidnapping the girl with some others, and the delegation from Ottawa is here to-day to establish the fact that there was a ceremony in Peterborough on June 30th. By doing this they hope to strengthen their claim on the girl in their effort to get her back.

Information concerning the ceremony is very vague, but it seems that the ceremony at the field in the south end of the city was in the nature of an "official betrothal," and that later the marriage would be recognized. The girl, it is claimed, is fourteen, and the husband is said to be very young also.

Mr. F. D. Kerr is looking after the local end of the matter in the interests of the gypsy queen and her followers. Affidavits from Peterborough citizens who were at the ceremony were taken to-day to the effect that they believed the festivities to be in connection with a wedding. In the question of the girl's legal status, it is a question whether the betrothal can be recognized by a Canadian court. From a disinterested point of view it would appear that the affair is gloriously involved, and the gypsies are providing lots of interesting copy for the newspapers, and giving the authorities ample opportunity to keep busy.

In connection with the matter an Ottawa despatch this afternoon says:

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, July 20.—The big band of gypsies who were at Peterborough, have struck here. One gang is on the Ontario side of the river and the other at Hull. Three weeks ago, when the party were at Peterborough, Katrina Alexis, a gypsy girl, was hired out to two of the band. She alleges she was kidnapped, and the parents, when at Hull, took steps to get her back again. Application was made for a writ of habeas corpus, which Judge Champagne granted at Hull to-day, so now the girl is free.

Peculiar Accident in Swamp Near Havelock—Successful Picnic at Round Lake—Other Live News From the Railway Town.

Special to the Review.

Havelock, July 19.—St. Johns' Sunday school picnic, which was held at McCutcheon's Landing, Round Lake, on Wednesday last, was a grand success in every way. The weather was excellent and all vehicles in the village were pressed into service to carry the large number to the picnic grounds, and a few rigs had to make two trips. The pupils of the Sunday school went out in the morning but the greater part of the crowd did not arrive until the afternoon. The children amused themselves by bathing and boating.

An important feature of the afternoon was a very fast and exciting game between two picked teams from Havelock. Despite the rough grounds, some excellent work was done by both sides. The following was the line-up:—

Team No. 1.—T. Falkner c.; A. Armstrong, p.; F. White, 1b.; B. W. Rudolph Falkner, 3b.; R. Barlow 3b.; P. O'Brien, rf.; R. Williams, lf.; E. Young, cf.; J. Sprinks, ss.

Team No. 2.—R. Frost, c.; J. Black, p.; H. Cameron, 1b.; W. Caverly, 2b.; R. Joyce, 3b.; R. Kitchen cf.; G. Griffith, lf.; R. Curry, rf.; B. Copp, ss.

Six innings were played, and at the end of that time the score stood 8—4 in favor of team No. 2.

After supper a good list of races were run off.

Messrs. Fred Squire and W. Cornwell launched their new gasoline boat on the water at Trent bridge on Saturday. The "Idyl Hour" as it is named, has a six horse power engine.

Mr. Alex. Rose has built a fine two-storey cottage at Trent bridge, and Mrs. Rose and family will move down in a few days.

The moving picture show in the town hall on Friday last was very poorly attended.

Rev. R. T. Richards, pastor of the Belmont Mission, has received word from the authorities of Toronto University that he has passed the senior matriculation examinations, standing second on the list of those taking second-class honors. This entitles Mr. Richards to the Governor-General's medal for Albert College.

Mr. Baker, B.A., of Brockville, has been engaged as principal of the continuation school at a salary of $800. Miss Cook, B.A., of Toronto, will be assistant at a salary of $600.

Miss Robertson, of the Public school staff, has sent in her resignation and the board will have to engage another teacher.

The half holiday is a greater success than ever in Havelock this year. On Wednesday last there was a general exodus of the citizens to the rivers and lakes that surround Havelock. A great many attended St. John's church Sunday school pic-nic at Round Lake.

What might have been a very serious accident occurred in the swamp about two miles east of Havelock, on the Cordova road on Saturday afternoon. Mr. T. C. Caskey, of Burton, an aged man, who has suffered two paralytic strokes, was driving along the swamp road, when he came to a pond of water, which, from the road, did not appear deep. He drove the horse to one side, but as soon as it had left the road it sank hip-deep in the suit of soft muck, followed closely by the front wheel of the buggy. The sudden drop of the wheel threw Mr. Caskey headforemost out on the hard ground, from which position he was unable to move until help arrived. A team of horses had to be used to pull the buggy out of the hole.

The twelfth passed off very quietly in Havelock, although the local lodge took part in the celebration at Warsaw a large number of members attended the walks at Hastings and Cordova. Mr. R. J. Graham, of town, was the chairman at the Orange picnic at Cordova. Rev. C. W. Holdsworth and Rev. J. A. G. Sterling also delivered addresses.

There was a large turnout of the Loyal Orange Lodges in and surrounding Havelock at divine service in the Presbyterian church on Sunday last, when Rev. Sterling delivered an excellent address.

The recent rains are working wonders with the crops in this vicinity.

Catherine Falkner, Irene Herrington, Percy Innis and Donald Plunket were the only successful Havelock pupils at the entrance examinations out of a class of sixteen.

"ONE OF THE PEOPLE" WRITES TO THE GOLF AND COUNTRY CLUB

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The beautiful grounds of the Peterborough Golf Club, near Auburn, on the Douro side of the river, are the envy of all passersby. It is not everyone who is able to join this fine club. Some people can't get the time, others the money, and so on. Now, I want to ask a question, if I may be allowed to do so. Cricketers let the "public" in on match days. They charge a fee, but the public is welcomed. Cricketers are anxious to inoculate everybody with an idea of the game. The same applies to baseball. All the big games attract the public. Would it be too much to ask the Golf Club to allow visitors or spectators in, in the same way, on match days, for a small fee? It is just possible that the idea has not occurred to the officers that it is a little selfish to enjoy so lovely a spot without even asking the less fortunate "to come in and see us occasionally." It may not be the fashion in golf to do this. Golf is supposed to be a selfish and even pernickety game. If so it will stand correcting. It would be a great pleasure to the public to hear that for the payment of a reasonable fee it might see the game, at least on match days. Curlers are so "free and frank" in their ways that people are "allowed in" for nothing to look on and "welcome." Many who would enjoy such an occasional treat in the hot summertime on the links the officers would also be benefitted by it. It would not hurt the game, which is almost unknown by the "crowd." It is a game of skill, and for itself alone is well worth watching. I make this suggestion in the hope that no one will be offended. No offence is meant.

I remain,
Yours, etc.
ONE OF THE PEOPLE.

JEWELS LOST AND FOUND

Chicago Woman at Cobourg is Victim of Timid Thief---Jewels Were Mysteriously Returned

Cobourg, July 21.—Seven thousand dollars in jewelry, belonging to Mrs. Boake of Chicago, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Donley, of King street, Cobourg, were stolen some time between Wednesday and Sunday last. Yesterday they were mysteriously returned.

The jewel casket was last in use by Mrs. Boake on Wednesday. On Sunday evening it was gone, Chief of Police Ruse was notified; so were Pinkerton sleuths; so was Provincial Detective Rogers, who came to town Monday.

Yesterday it was announced that the casket had been found in the residence in such a location that it must have been placed there some time during the morning. The police say that they are doing no further investigating.

The jewelry included a diamond and pearl bracelet, one shower pin of pearls surrounded with diamonds, one ruby pin surrounded with diamonds, one emerald bar brooch surrounded with diamonds, one crown pin set with pearls, one diamond ring, three pearl bar pins, and one gold fleur-de-lis ornament surrounded with large diamonds set in platinum.

Say It's the Rifle.

London, July 21.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The extraordinary success of the Canadians in "almost sweeping the board" at Bisley, as one paper puts it, is the subject of great comment here. If a representative of the Maple Leaf should win the King's Prize it would undoubtedly be known as the Canadian year.

The Standard says that never has such a powerful team visited Bisley, adding that special credit belongs to the Ross rifle for the successes, which indicates the early promise of Sir Charles Ross being realized. The Express says the Canadian victory in The Daily Graphic match is another triumph for the Ross rifle.

FRENCH PREMIER'S CAREER COMES TO DRAMATIC END

Clemenceau Loses His Head in Hot Debate on Naval Scandals With M. Delcasse, and Mentions Algeciras Incident—Certain Victory is Changed Into Defeat.

Paris, July 21.—The Clemenceau Cabinet fell suddenly last night under dramatic circumstances at the conclusion of a violent debate over the naval scandals, which has been extended over several days.

M. Delcasse, chairman of the investigating commission, led the attack upon the naval administration, especially during the incumbency of M. Pelletan and M. Thomson, former Ministers of Marine.

But M. Picard, who succeeded M. Thomson, had promised in the name of the Government to complete a series of reforms, both in the administration of the Department and the methods of construction, and the Chamber was ready to vote confidence in the Government, when an incident occurred which changed a majority into a minority.

Premier Clemenceau, who always has been an adversary of M. Delcasse, smarting under the criticisms and doubtless over-confident of a majority, which on July 15, under the general policies of the Government, was 182, taunted the ex-Minister of Foreign Affairs, who was thrown overboard by the Rouvier Ministry at the dictation of Germany during the crisis of 1905, with having led France to humiliation at Algeciras.

The spectre of that chapter of France's foreign history, in which Delcasse was sacrificed, was a fatal error. Instantly there was an uproar of dissent from both sides of the Chamber.

Delcasse flung back the taunt in Clemenceau's face with bitter words, declaring, amid cheers, that France had gone to Algeciras in the interest of peace.

Hot words were bandied back and forth. It was a veritable duel between two enemies.

The scene when the Premier took his seat was indescribable. Amid the wildest excitement the vote was taken, and when it was announced that the Government had been beaten 212 to 276, Clemenceau clapped his hat on his head, pulling it far down over his eyes and stalked out of the chamber, followed by the other Ministers, in token that he intended to resign.

Mr. Clemenceau went immediately to the Elysee Palace, and told the story to President Fallieres, who seemed stupefied at the incident which had caused the fall of the Cabinet, but he accepted the resignation of the Premier and his Ministers.

There is but one opinion in Paris to-day—astonishment that an old Parliamentary war-horse like Clemenceau should have committed political suicide by his awkwardness in recalling the Algeciras spectre up on the eve of adjournment, when the Government was assured of a majority on the naval question.

The Premier's action drove about 50 members of the Republican bloc into a combination with the Right and extreme Left, unhorsing the man whose Ministry has been the longest in the history of the third republic, and who for three years has been absolute master in France.

More than 60 members of the majority, enough to have saved the day, were absent visiting their Parliamentary confreres of Sweden when the vote was taken.

Many times during his Ministry M. Clemenceau apparently was on the eve of defeat, as many strong combinations, especially by the enemies of the income tax, were formed to accomplish his downfall, and often there was much secret opposition in the ranks of the majority. But when the decisive moment came the rebels never dared to brave Clemenceau's whip.

THE FIRST 1909 WHEAT

Carload of Norfolk Grain Brings a $1.10 per Bushel at Toronto --Good Growing Weather

Toronto, July 21.—Ontario's first 1909 wheat was marketed yesterday at $1.10 or 10 cents lower than the present quotations for old stock. A carload was ordered by a Toronto dealer at that price from Norfolk County, where threshing is now proceeding. A sale of flour for export was made at the new quotations by W. B. Browne.

Mr. Browne's advices are that the yield throughout Western Ontario will be 40 bushels to the acre of wheat, which is considerably better than last year. The acreage is, however, short. He does not anticipate that the price of new wheat will drop below $1.10 for some time anyway, as the farmers are too busy taking care of their fruit and marketing peas, etc., at the large canneries, to clean wheat for market.

"Ideal growing weather, with prospects for a splendid harvest of the brightest," about sums up the reports from all parts of the northwest received by Toronto business firms. The large banks, manufacturers of harvesting machinery and the many grain dealers are keeping in touch by means of special agents with the crop situation and there has yet to arrive the first disturbing intelligence regarding the crops. Of course, as a business man stated, the real danger season has not yet arrived. The time for rust is still to be passed and when the wheat is in the milk the supreme risk is from frost. Farmers and all others on the anxious seat, will have about two weeks more of anxiety.

Late reports received by the James Richardson Grain Co. are to the effect that the weather could not be better for aiding growth. In spite of the fact that seeding was two weeks later this year than last year the crop is now as far advanced as the 1908 grain was at this season, owing to the favorable weather.

ROW IN SOUTH AMERICA ARGENTINA AFTER BOLIVIA

Orders Bolivian Representative Out of Country—As Result of Bolivia's Refusal to Accept Her Decision in Peru-Bolivian Boundary Dispute Argentina Breaks off Diplomatic Relations.

Buenos Ayres, July 21.—The Argentine Government has sent passports to the Bolivian Minister here, ordering him to leave Buenos Ayres within 24 hours.

The Government has also telegraphed Senor Fonseca, Argentine Minister to Bolivia to leave La Paz immediately.

The action of the Argentine Government follows the refusal of Bolivia to accept the decision of Argentina in the matter of the boundary dispute between Bolivia and Peru.

The Bolivian Minister yesterday advised the Argentine Government that Bolivia had decided to submit to Parliament for consideration the arbitral award rendered by President Alcorta, which in itself was considered sufficient reason for breaking off relations.

In addition, however, the Argentine republic has taken offence at the action of the President of Bolivia, who it is asserted, has sent circulars to the prefects throughout the country, casting reflections on the Argentine Government.

Those familiar with conditions attending the Bolivian-Peruvian territorial dispute assert their belief that serious difficulties, which may involve other South American republics, are bound to ensue as a result of the Bolivian Government's rejection originally under stress of popular protest, of the decision entered by Argentine's President as arbitrator in the matter of the frontier limits of the two countries, and now the open diplomatic rupture.

Peru, it is pointed out, has pending another claim to certain Brazilian territory which also lies in the rich Acre River district. Though this claim now is only in the initial stage of litigation and has not reached the arbitration period. Peruvian maps which have been recently published display that country's northern boundary as including also this great strip of contested land.

Argentine's arbitrament, dismissing Bolivia's claims to at least a portion of the tract now in acute dispute, will, it is contended, tend to uphold supplementarily that republic's claim upon the big Brazilian strip, even though a part of this latter territory was formally ceded to Brazil by Bolivia in accordance with the treaty of Petropolis, which marked the termination of the war between those countries five years ago over national ownership of the same land.

As Brazil paid $10,000,000 to Bolivia at that time for the territorial rights thus ceded, it is asserted that she will not easily accede to Peru's other demands that affect her. Hence it is predicted, Brazil is likely to be drawn into the wrangle in case war should result between the republics concerned in the present trouble.

THE FOE OF MIDDLEMEN

Ottawa, July 21.—Complaints have been received by the Government from the British Colonial Office and the British ambassador at Tokio regarding the methods adopted by W. T. R. Preston, lately Canadian Trade Commissioner in the Orient, while working to establish and develop Canada's trade with Japan.

Mr. Preston, who is at present at Ottawa, yesterday said that when he went there he found himself up against the whole foreign commercial element, particularly Great Britain, Germany, and the United States. It was not only, he said, that they objected to Japan buying from Canada what she had been purchasing from them, but they feared the application of the larger principle, the disturbance caused, they claimed, by Canada's attempt to do without the middleman.

Mr. Preston may not go to Holland for some months yet. He will represent Canadian interests there.
